TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE CONTINENT

Desperate Attempt to Wreck Train Near Elmira, N.Y.—Passengers Have Narrow Escape—Wreckers Are Foiled—Other News of Interest.

Elmira, N. Y., April 14.—A desperate attempt was made last night to wreck a westbound passenger train on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railway, near Lowman, about seven miles east of this city, by piling ties on the track. The ties were placed across the rails and then laid from the top of these to the roadbed between the rails.

The train, which is due in this city at 6.40, was running sixty miles an hour. The obstruction was on a sharp curve and close to the river.

The locomotive ground one of the ties to pieces and shoved the others along on the rails. When the train was stopped a similar obstruction was found on the eastbound track and a freight train was due.

May Clear Murder Mystery.

New York, April 14.—By the arrest of Frank Monato at Huntington, Ind., the mystery surrounding the murder of Julius Rosenheimer at Pelham Manor, N.Y., June 18, may be solved.

Mr. Rosenheimer was secretary of the London Needle Co., and resided on a handsome estate at Pelham Manor. With his wife he was strolling among the shrubbery of his grounds at dusk, when two men jumped from behind a clump of bushes and beat him to death.

Found Mother Dead.

Blenheim, April 14.—Mrs. Annie Dyer, a woman whose husband is a sailor, at Port Burwell, met a sudden death at her home at Ridley, six miles from here, Saturday night. She put her three children to bed in the evening and was not seen alive again. During the night the eldest boy was awakened by the continual crying of the baby on account of its mother not being in bed, and he arose and found her dead upon the floor.

Struck by Wabash Express.

Walkerville, April 14.—Mr. J. H. Churchill, an old gentleman, was struck by a Wabash express while walking on the track about 6 o'clock last night.

Both legs were taken off, and there is slight chances of recovery. He was taken to Hotel Dieu, Windsor.

Drowned In Detroit River.

Amherstburg, April 14.—Henry Sellers, employed on a dump scow, fell to the bottom of the scow as the grates were opened and went into the river with rocks and mud and was drowned. He leaves a wife and four small children.

Until the Tariff Has Passed.

Melbourne, April 14.—(C.A.P.)—Premier Deakin will remain in office until the tariff is passed.

Senator Levitt Dead.

Yarmouth, N.S., April 14.—Hon. John Lovitt passed away yesterday afternoon after an illness of several months, cancer being the cause of death. About a month ago he came home from Ottawa and has since remained confined to his residence.

During the past year Senator Lovitt had been under physicians' care most of the time and had undergone several operations. Senator Lovitt had the reputation of being a very wealthy man. He was formerly president of the Bank of Yarmouth.

Shot Tobacconist.

Montreal, April 14.—Alphonse Martineau, a tobacconist on St. Antoine street, had a close call last evening. While counting his cash two unknown men entered, and while one of them pretended to want something the other made a dive after the cash.

When Martineau resisted one of the rascals whipped out a revolver and fired, the ball entering the storekeeper's left breast. The wound will not be fatal. The robbers disappeared.

Attacked by a Dog.

Strathroy, April 14.—While crossing the road yesterday to visit a neighbor Mrs. Frank Ivor was set upon by a bird dog, which made for her throat.

Mrs. Ivor pushed the brute off, but he came back the second time and sunk his teeth into her hip, making an ugly gash. Dr. Simpson was quickly summoned, and cauterized the wound. No serious effects are anticipated, although she will be laid up for an indefinite period.

Discovery on Dreadnought.

London, April 14.—It is announced that a new discovery in connection with the turbine engines of the Dreadnought has resulted in a great increase of speed.

In a 12-hours' trial just held, the battleship averaged 20 1-2 knots, which is only one-half knot below her designed speed.

Fire at the Foster Mine.

Cobalt, April 14.—Last night fire totally destroyed the machine shop and assay office at the Foster Mine. The loss is $3,000. The fire is supposed to have started from defective electric wiring.

Lockjaw Follows Injury.

Ingersoll, April 14.—Lockjaw, following an injury sustained over a week ago, caused the death Sunday of Walter, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Holmes. On Friday, April 3, the lad had his foot crushed by a wagon, but he continued to improve until Friday last, when lockjaw set in.

THEY WILL WAIT TILL JUNE COMES

Then Great Britain Will Deal With Belgium Over Congo State

Liverpool, April 14.—If by June next Belgium has not annexed the Congo Independent State on acceptable terms the British Government is determined, with the co-operation of the American Government, to take measures which will compel the Congo Government to observe its treaty rights, which have been openly and persistently violated, was the announcement made yesterday afternoon by E. R. Morel, secretary of the Congo Reform Association, at a meeting of this body.

Baiting Berlin's Mayor.

Berlin, April 14.—Allen Huber, Berlin's Socialist mayor, who has tried in every possible way to turn municipal matters topsy-turvy, received his quietus last night at a special meeting of the council.

While criticizing the purchase of a horse for the scavenger system, he was called a liar by Ald. Lang.

The mayor asked a policeman to lock the alderman up and the policeman refused. "Well," said he, "all I can say is that you are a liar too."

The council will by bylaw cancel his salary, and he will be given to understand that he cannot run the town according to his unreasonable views, and that he must take into consideration the other municipal representatives.

Commission Declined.

Port Arthur, April 14.—A deputation consisting of all the ministers of the city and some business men waited on the police commissioners with a petition signed by themselves urging the total suppression of houses of prostitution.

They addressed the commission at great length, but were finally informed by the authorities that they were handling the problem in the very best possible way. The commission declined to close the houses.

"Physician" Goes to Jail.

Windsor, April 14.—J. E. Harrington, convicted by Magistate Bartlet of violating the Ontario Medical Act by selling medicine when not a registered physician, was taken to Sandwich jail for thirty days, in default of a fine of $25 and costs.

Harrington defended his own case against the charge brought by Special Detective Ross of the Ontario Medical Association, who investigated the defendant's "herb and root remedies."

BONUS SYSTEM IS OPPOSED

Montreal Workmen Declare They Will Not Labor Under It

Montreal, April 14.—The trouble here in shipping circles does not appear to have all disappeared, and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux will again be here on Wednesday to have a talk with the longshoremen. The trouble seems to be the bonus system, which the shippers appear to be determined to keep in operation.

The men say that it happened last year that men working for two or three different companies the same day would not be able to keep their accounts straight, and many of them pretend to have lost money during the season.

Mr. Polequin, interviewed yesterday, said the longshoremen would not work under the bonus system this year. The men wanted 30c. to 35c. an hour. If they had to start on 27 1-2c to 30c. an hour there was no knowing what they might do later.

William Robb, manager of the Shipping Federation, being seen regarding the threat of the longshoremen, that they would not work under the bonus system, said it was not a matter for the federation to deal with. The companies would have to deal with their own employes in the future as they had done in the past. The employers had decided, some time ago, to continue the bonus system, as it had prevented "hold-ups" in the autumn, and he did not know what the workers were going to do about it.

Sealing Steamer Sinks.

St. John's, Nfld., April 14.—Alarming news from the icefields reached here by the steamer Newfoundland. She reports the Grand Lake sunk at the ice, the men barely had time to escape. They are aboard the Vanguard. The Grand Lake had full cargo of 21,000 seals, which went down with the vessel 90 miles north of Funks. The accident was caused through the blowing clean out of the injection pipe. Two hundred and three men were aboard.

The Ranger has its bow completely beaten in. Her condition is critical. The Neptune was standing by her on the fifth. No definite news has arrived since.

Nothing has been heard of the Southern Cross. The Algerine's condition is bad.

The Newfoundland's crew had a terrible experience in Thursday's gale. The total catch is 20,000 less than previously announced.

Quail will be introduced in Alberta by the Provincial Fish and Game Association.

MONK'S VIGOROUS ATTACK ON THE POLICY OF IMMIGRATION

Aims to Have Government Keep Out Undesirable Citizens—Canada Great National Penitentiary, Says Armand Lavergne—Seed Grain For Northwest—Death Rate on G.T.P.—Treaties Signed.

Ottawa, April 14.—In the House yesterday Dr. Sproule read a press despatch from Washington to the effect that Secretary Root and British Ambassador Bryce had signed two treaties between the United States and Great Britain. One provides for a commission to determine the boundary between the United States and Canada and the other regulates fishing in the great lakes and contiguous streams. The boundary commission will be charged with the work of resurveying certain sections of the boundary and determining the disputed question in that connection. It is said that the fishery question also is placed in the hands of a commission by terms of the treaty.

Dr. Sproule asked if the Government was in a position to give any information on this subject. Had they any control over the appointment of commissioner or over their selection, especally on behalf of Canada?

"I have just received a telegram stating that these two treaties have been signed," replied the Prime Minister. "One refers to the boundary. It is not contemplated to establish new boundaries, but simply to mark again the boundaries and describe them on the maps. The second deals with the fisheries. In contiguous waters we have had difficulties for many years owng to there being a close season on one side and none on the American side. By the treaty, all contiguous waters will be put under a commission which will make regulations for the fisheries. The appointments on the British side exclusively belong to the Government of Canada."

Mr. Monk asked if the Government will lay on the table the two agreements arrived at, also the correspondence connected with them. He cited a London cable to The New York Herald, dealing with Canada's attitude, and added that he judged from this that there must be considerable correspondence.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that, as a matter of course, as soon as the ratifications of the treaties had been exchanged and the Government received them, they would be communicated to the House as well as the correspondence.

"I have not seen the article to which Mr. Monk refers," added the Prime Minister, "but I have seen articles in American press to the effect that there are some other questions as to what negotiations are pending. This correspondence, of course, cannot be brought down until the matter is concluded."

Mr. Lennox asked about the report that a new order-in-council had been passed relating to seed grain in the Northwest.

Mr. Oliver replied that an order-in-council had been passed to carry out the views of Parliament, it having been found that the requirements were not as large as had been anticipated, and that sufficient grain had been purchased to fill those requirements.

Mr. Boyce (Algoma) asked if the application for seed grain had been received from the people in Northwestern Ontario and, if so, would the Government grant the same assistance as was given to farmers in the Northwest provinces.

Mr. Oliver answered that such applications had been received, but as conditions were not similar to those in the Northwest, no assistance could be given.

Mr. Bergeron asked when Judge Cassels would begin his investigations into the Marine and Fisheries Department, and whether, in the meantime, the Minister of Marine was conducting enquiries.

Mr. Brodeur replied that he was investigating, for his own satisfaction, affairs of the Department as they arose from day to day. This investigation was not being made under oath.

Mr. Blain called attention to the enormous death rate on the G.T.P. Railway, some 42 workmen having been killed on one section by reason of negligence of the construction company and the use of low grade explosives.

This was a question of considerable seriousness, admitted Mr. Graham. The National Transcontinental Railway Commission had charge of this work and was responsible to the Government, but the death rate was so high as to demand investigation. Discussing the question with the chairman of the commission, Mr. Graham had been told that a great many deaths were due to carelessness of employes, who, through continual handling of explosives, became oblivious to danger.

W. F. Maclean said that some years ago a similar condition arose on the construction of the C.P.R. It was a question of hospital facilities. Action was taken by the Government and the condition was corrected in some way. It was necessary that some authority should intervene. The contractors had no financial interest, except perhaps to bury the men killed. He was glad that the Minister of Railways proposed taking some action.

Col. Tisdale said he had no idea that such a condition existed. In remote districts it was hard to get juries that would not be indifferent.

Mr. Conmee, speaking as a railway builder, ascribed the high death rate chiefly to carelessness and not to the explosives used. He differed with Mr. Maclean about the indifference to contractors. Accidents were a considerable loss to them and they took proper measures to avoid them.

Mr. Cockshutt said the loss of life on the G.T.P. had been out of proportion to any similar work in Canada. Prompt action should be taken.

Replying to Mr. Smith (Nanaimo), the Minister of Justice said five provincial acts, all of British Columbia, had been disallowed by the Federal Government. Four of them related to immigration and were disallowed because they were re-enactments of statutes which had been previously disallowed; the fifth, relating to Supreme Court, because it limited scope of selection by governor-in-council.

Col. Worthington enquired if any fortification were in course of erection at, or near, Quebec or Levis. What was the nature thereof, and whether the works were being constructed by the British or Canadian Government?

"I hope," answered Sir Frederick Borden, "that question will be dropper. It is not one that would be put in any Parliament of any country. If the leader of Opposition desires informaton confidentally, I will give it to him."

"Drop it," called several members, but Col. Worthington did not immediately comply.

That Canada had been paying bonuses on a large number of undesirable immigrants, and many others who passed out of the country shortly after their arrival, was pretty conclusively proved yesterday afternoon by F. D. Monk (Jacques Cartier) who, in a moderate arraignment of the system moved, on going into supply, that the time had come to cease paying a bounty to agents for bringing in immigrants. He laid down the principle that none but the most desirable people should be admitted to Canadian citizenship and that we should be in no hurry to fill up our wide acres.

The experience of the United States should be a guide to Canada. That country had been attempting to restrict the immigration of foreigners.

The head tax had been increased and a commission of nine had been appointed this year to investigate in Europe this problem, but in spite of the increase of restrictive measures immigration to that country had been climbing up year after year amounting to over four millions in the past four years, and this without the inspection. In the four years mentioned over 47,000 were debarred from the United States.

Mr. Oliver admitted that Government did assist the Doukhobors, the bonus being given to defray part of their transportation, but the press and the people of Canada approved of it.

Armand Lavergne, Montmagny, declared that the Minister of the Interior had made a most inadequate reply to Mr. Monk. He read from the report of the Interior Department to show the heterogenious character of the immigration into the West. Since the Liberals came into power they had brought in sufficient immigration to populate sixty counties or only five less than in the Province of Quebec, and owing to the bonus system the class of British immigration included in this influx was not what it otherwise would have been.

"We had no socialistic movement in Canada until we encouraged the discontented elements of Europe to come to this country," said Mr. Lavergne.

"Absolute nonsense," declared Ralph Smith.

Proceeding Mr. Lavergne asserted that every police magistrate in the old country was an emigration agent for Canada. The policy of the Government was to make Canada a world-wide hospital, an immense penitentiary and a national lunatic asylum. He regretted that he had to choose between the party and his country in this matter, but he would choose his country and vote for Mr. Monk's amendment. Verville (Labor, Montmagny) moved the adjournment of the debate.

To Make Shells and Rifles.

Ottawa, April 14.—A report from the Canadian Trade Commissioner in Melbourne, received yesterday, brings word that the Australian authorities have set about the erection of a small arms factory of their own at Lithgow, New South Wales, to manufacture rifles of the latest type of the British War Office. Later on the manufacture of shells will be undertaken.

The Government has also purchased twenty acres of land near Melbourne for a cordite factory. The plans of the Australian Government in these regards are to make the Commonwealth independent of the Mother Country, so far as rifles and ammunition are concerned.

To Probe New York.

Albany, N.Y., April 14.—Governor Hughes yesterday signed the bill of Senator Page, providing for an investigation into the Government of New York City. The law authorizes the governor to appoint within thirty days, a commission of fifteen persons to enquire into the city government in New York and suggest legislation, and in its discretion, draft a new charter and an administrative code for the city.

The commission has authority to delve into all departments.

Returned Open Verdict.

Orangeville, April 14.—The inquest on the body of James Hambly, which was found in a tannery vat several days ago, was resumed last night by Coroner James Henry. The jury returned on open verdict, there being no conclusive evidence of foul play.

Fire In North Dakota.

Williston, N.D., April 14.—The business portion of Schafer, county seat of McKenzie County, was destroyed by fire yesterday.

The court-house was among the burned buildings.

Fourteen cars of United States settlers' effects are detained at Gretna, as some of the horses are suspected of having glanders.

During the gale on Saturday the big freighter Doric at Owen Sound broke loose and swung into the CPR liner, Assiniboia.

MR. T. H. PRESTON, M. P. P.
Who Will Address Peterborough Canadian Club on April 30th.

THEATRICALS

MAJOR O'HARA, THE IRISH DRAGOON.

Tom Marks, the popular comedian, and a good cast, presented "Major O'Hara, an Irish Dragoon," to a big audience at the Grand last night. There are many dramatic moments in the play and it was greeted with liberal applause. The costumes were particularly rich, and in the matter of stage garb the production was quite an elaborate one. There was much of the comedy element, too, with the laugh lines supplied by Tom Marks.

The principal characters of the play were Tom Marks, as Major O'Hara; Chris. Allen, as Godfrey De Vere; Jack Mirven, as Captain Henry Lafetta, and Miss Millie Desmonda as Elsie De Valliere.

The illustrated songs and specialties were well given and were accorded a cordial reception.

Tonight the play will be Hall Caine's "The Hypocrite."

EPWORTH LEAGUE HELD PIE SOCIAL

Delightful Time at George St. Church Last Evening

The Epworth League meeting last evening took the form of a delightful pie social. A large number were present and an exceedingly pleasant time was spent. The president, Mr. W. A. McCann, was in the chair and opened with devotional exercises.

During the evening an interesting time was spent in guessing contests and Messrs George Ingram and E. Dodge carried off the prizes for these. Vocal solos that were much enjoyed were contributed by Messrs. Wallace Armstrong and Albert Gray.

Dainty refreshments consisting chiefly of pie, were served and a happy time was brought to a close by the singing of the national anthem.

WAS NUISANCE AT G.T.R. STATION

Jas. King in Police Court To-day ---Was Dismissed

Jas. King made himself a considerable nuisance at the G.T.R. station last night about ten o'clock, and as a consequence was placed under arrest. He was charged in court this morning with using obscene language. He pleaded not guilty.

Conductor Jobbitt of the Lakefield train, and Mr. Sandy stated that the language the prisoner used was most disgraceful and was said in hearing of several ladies.

King tried to make explanations by stating that a friend came to see him. This friend owed King some money and the heated arguments arose over the refusal to pay it. "I got so excited that I really did not know what I was saying," the Englishman said, and "I promise it shan't occur again."

He had no money to pay a fine, so His Worship dismissed him.

LOSS FROM BOSTON FIRE WILL TOTAL SIX MILLIONS

Insurance Companies Will Suffer Heavily by Chelsea Blaze—No Further Deaths Reported—Bodies Still Unidentified--Houses Blown Up.

Boston, April 14.—From the embers of Sunday's conflagration in Chelsea there arose yesterday a well-organized movement for aid and relief of the ten thousand homeless, accounting of the cost by insurance companies, whose representatives placed their losses at three millions and a half, and a determination by the city authorities to rebuild the three hundred and fifty acres swept by the flames where stood, before the fire, property valued at nearly $6,000,000.

No further deaths were reported yesterday and of the injured persons taken to the various hospitals, only two were believed to be in a critical condition. The three bodies which were taken to the morgue in Boston remain unidentified.

Revised figures obtained yesterday indicate that the losses were divided, according to the various classes of property destroyed, as follows:

Churches and schools, $525,000.
Public buildings, $475,000.
Factories, business blocks and contents, $825,000.
Dwelling houses, $3,750,000.
Total, $5,575,000.

The insurance of $3,500,000 is divided among about eighty companies.

There was comparatively little suffering reported among the fire victims yesterday. So prompt and efficient was the relief work begun Sunday, that practically no one was without shelter during the night. Yesterday the relief work was taken up by those who handled the Massachusetts fund for San Francisco sufferers. Early in the day Mayor Beck issued an appeal to the country, but after a conference with Acting Governor E. S. Draper, the appeal was amended so as to include only the state. Announcement was made that $15,000 had been raised by subscription in Boston before noon. In addition, the City of Chelsea appropriated $10,000, and a resolve for $100,000 from the state was introduced in the House of Representatives. Many nearby cities announced the starting of subscription papers and the city governments of others will hold special meetings to take action on the matter. A message received from President Roosevelt early in the day expressed sympahty and volunteered the services of the army and navy.

In the meantime the local organizations, such as the associated charities and the Salvation Army, were perfecting their work and they professed entire ability to find temporary quarters for all the homeless.

The burned district was closely patrolled yesterday by the state militia. The work of the guard, however, consisted mostly in keeping people from venturing too near the standing walls. There was very little property remaining to be guarded, so thoroughly had the area been swept by the flames. In fact, the underwriters who viewed the ruins yesterday, saw no prospect of salvage of any description. One street, Broadway, was cleared and opened to the general public and as it led straight through the heart of the ruins, a steady stream of people moved through it all day. A few of the ruins smoked lazily during the day and two more oil tanks caught fire and burned themselves out. Other than this there was little left of the fire and the visiting apparatus was sent home.

There were numerous deeds of heroism. Crazed, weak women, leading children, stopped in their reckless, unheeding flight to lend aid to their less fortunate neighbors. On this hill had gather a number of men and boys who were watching the advancing flames. As soon as it became known how dangerous was the fire they ran through the streets breaking in doors and ordering the frightened women into the streets.

Heaving against the door, a man smashed his way into the house. Threats even could not move them. The women explained that a little boy, sick with diphtheria, was upstairs. Tearing upstairs the man gathered up the little fellow, who was too sick to realize his danger. Wrapping his overcoat about the child to protect him from the sheets of blazing embers that were flying, this man marshaled the family in front of him and raced down the street.

A passing automobile was held up with threats of violence, the little patient bundled in, and safety was assured for three or four more.

Scores of charitable institutions in Boston, wealthy citizens and departmental stores in Boston will advertise this morning for the homeless and destitute of Chelsea to come to them for aid.

Mayor Beck, together with Senator Alfred S. Hall of Revere, put in hard work along Suffolk street, rousing the residents and getting them to move their belongings.

Mayor Beck lives at the extreme west end of the street and early in the day it did not look as if the fire could work down that way at all. At 4 o'clock the mayor's new house was in flames and in ten minutes it was a pile of ashes.

As a last resort when water failed, firemen resorted to dynamite and blew up houses in the path of the firefront, but this only provided kindling for flames that leaped a block length.

THE CABINET IS COMPLETE

Premier Asquith Announces Several Important Appointments

London, April 14.—Premier Asquith yesterday completed the reorganization of the Ministry as follows:

C. F. H. Hobhouse, at present Parliamentary secretary of the Indian Office, becomes financial secretary of the Treasury.

C. F. G. Masterman, Liberal member of Parliament for Westham, becomes Parliamentary secretary of the Local Government, and Thomas McKinnon Wood, Liberal member of Parliament for Glasgow, becomes Parliamentary secretary of the Board of Trade.

The Marquis of Ripon remains Lord Privy Seal, but at his request the Earl of Crewes, Lord President of the Council will be the leader in the House of Lords.

T. J. McNamara, now Parliamentary secretary of the Local Government Board, becomes Parliamentary secretary of the Admiralty.

Sent to the Central.

St. Thomas, April 14.—Wilbur G. Slaughter, who was found guilty on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, was yesterday sentenced to the maximum penalty of one year in Central Prison on that charge, and was found guilty on the charge of supplying liquor to Indians and sentence deferred.

In suspending sentence, however, on the second charge, Magistrate Glenn informed Slaughter that when he was freed from the Central Prison at the end of the year, if he returned to St. Thomas he would be re-arrested and sentenced to six months and probably fined $300, which is the maximum penalty for supplying liquor to Indians.

Earl Grey in Washington.

Washington, April 14.—Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada, and Lady Grey, who have been visiting Bermuda, will arrive in Washington to-day and will be guests of the British ambassador and Mrs. Bryce in the embassy for several days.

Lady Sybil Grey, their daughter, spent a few days in Washington last week, the guest of Assistant Secretory of State and Mrs. Bacon.

The Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce will return from Virginia, where they spent the week-end. Earl Grey and Lady Grey will be guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at luncheon tomorrow.

M. Reynolds late of the Mexican Central Railroad has been added to the GTR as fifth vice-president.

Thomas M. Patterson, a pioneer of Barrie, fell from a new house he was building and was found dead,

RE-UNION WAS NOT FOR LONG

Sad Story That is of Local Interest---Wife Died Few Days After Reaching Canada

After waiting and saving for nine months, R. Johnston, 57 Mulock avenue west, Toronto, was able to write home to the old country for his wife to come ute to him. She arrived on Thursday night, apparently in good health, was taken ill yesterday morning and died in St. Michael's hospital

Johnson came out to Canada from Buckinghamshire, England. He soon got work as braketman on the C.P.R. but on September 13th he had his toes crushed under a freight car and was for nearly a month laid up at the Western Hospital. In spite of this setback he had saved enough to justify him in bringing out his wife in the summer. She arrived in Montreal on the Allan liner "Tonian," and went straight to Toronto, passing through this city. On the train she was very sick at the station where her feeble condition was noted by the passengers and local officials. She spent the night on her arrival at Toronto at the Salvation Army New-Comers' home.

Yesterday morning she was too unwell to get up, and at four o'clock had to be sent to St. Michael's Hospital, where it was discovered that she was suffering from heart trouble. She gradually grew worse and died at 11 o'clock last night.

Johnson said he had endeavored to dissuade his wife from coming out till summer, but her mind was set upon rejoining him at once. They had only been married about two years.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Insure Them Good Health.

Ninety per cent. of children, under twelve years of age, are being poisoned and parents don't realize it.

Irregular bowels are the chief cause. You parents know that your bowels should move every day. You know you must be as regular as clock-work, or the blood will become tainted.

Don't you realize that the children must be as orderly in getting rid of the waste matter of their systems?

Then, if you find that any of the little ones go two or three days without action of the bowels, don't run to castor oil, senna tea, calomel, cascara or harsh "liver pills." These simply purge the child—strain the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" are the ideal medicine for children. They are fruit juices and tonics in the form of a pleasant tasting tablet. "Fruit-a-tives" stimulate the liver, causing more bile to flow. It is the bile, given up by the liver, which moves the bowels. "Fruit-a-tives" regulate the liver and bowels, and thus completely cure constipation. They sweeten the stomach, and are the finest tonic in the world to build up the system and make children plump and rosy. 50c a box—six for $2.50. Sent on receipt of price if your dealer does not handle them. "Fruit-a-tives" Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

DR. McNULTY'S PAPER

The paper read before the Board of Health of the City of Peterborough, by Dr. B. F. McNulty, is unquestionably an able and original one. Practically, Dr. McNulty maintains that an isolation hospital is not necessary. This will be good news these hard times. We are not sufficiently well up in the matter to criticise if criticism be necessary but we can say that the doctor has treated it thoroughly and that the city owes him a debt of gratitude for so doing. The second paragraph which Dr. Nulty quotes [illegible] that respecting isolation hospitals in England would almost lead us to suppose that the proper thing to do in cases of scarlet fever, etc., is for the community to, at once cultivate as friendly relations with the patient as possible. A few months ago we had the pleasure of reading a paper in the London Lancet of 1837, in which the present out-door treatment of phthisis was advocated. There is apparently little new after all.

THE CIVIL SERVICE

The Globe quotes from the Commission's report to show that the Commission did not propose to lay the blame for either political party. So far so good. But a difficulty and a very serious difficulty crops up here. The Civil Service Act under which the Government is acting bears date of 1908. Thus it is shown to be most distinctly the work of the Laurier administration and it shows. As a drowning man catches at the proverbial straw so did the Globe catch at this remark of the Commission. But as we see it it will not avail. Then again, the Commissioners point out that in many departments the work is not well done. What system ever devised could make a good manager or minister out of a poor one? What system could prevent the buying of wholesale supplies at retail rates from those on the "patronage list." A beautiful thing this patronage list! Moreover, it has nothing to do with the system as such. It is an excrescence, a growth and a malignant growth at that, which has come upon the whole body of political service and its flagrant abuse is the work of the Siftons, the Emersons, the Brodeurs, etc. What system of Civil Service ever devised could prevent wrong-doing of this character? It is the men. The party in power that requires amendment and it is useless for the Globe to try to crawl away from the Government's ante-election professions of honesty and capacity in that style or to try to drag the Laurier administration away from the danger of being held responsible for what its members have done deliberately. Finally, we recommend to the Globe's attention the fact that the Commissioners state that it was not till recent years that the patronage list became an abuse. The ignoring of this statement is a very plain case of the suppressio veri. But then desperate cases demand desperate remedies.

BY THEIR FRUITS

It is customary to represent England by a picture in which the reigning monarch is handing over a Bible to a benighted black man. The reverse side of this picture should represent the waiting-girls of Piccadilly getting 7s. 6d. per week with "no tips" on the bill. A magnificent sum for the swellest street in the metropolis of the British empire surely! Such conduct as this is a direct invitation to these poor girls to go wrong. And yet it requires an agitation, a boycott, a march in procession to Trafalgar Square in the hope of finding an redress. One is fain to exclaim "Either read or put down the Bible." It should be impossible for any institution to offer so mean a wage. If popular sentiment were not nearly all on the side of the rich it would be impossible. Yet we have the Globe, as it did a few weeks ago, coolly inviting the unemployed to lower their rate of wages, for in that way they could supplant those then working and get employment. And this great journal poses as a Christian newspaper. Any employer, governmental or otherwise, which would accept a fair day's work without granting a living day's wage in return should be put in the list of employers to be avoided, if not suppressed altogether. It is madness to drive people to crime and then seek to stop it by gaols and other forms of punishment. We recognize this when we enlarge and extend the parole system. What is a ticket-of-leave but a compromise, and why a compromise? Because it is clear that something is wrong somewhere. One dollar and a half a week and long hours! Where can such a wage as that be found in Holy Writ? To complete the picture of England's greatness the untutored savage should have been unable to repress a smile.

THE LASH

Those mild-mannered people who would do away with severe forms of punishment, such as the lash, on humanitarian grounds, would like free-traders, sacrifice even life to an idea. The less the idea fits the immediate circumstances the dearer it seems to them. Criminals go practically unpunished, as we understand the word. In all such cases, whether it is due to a mistaken idea of reform or to "the law's delay," the result is the same. Lynching will take the place of law. The sacrifice of the young, the weak and the innocent in order that they may serve their purpose in the gradual rise and development of a gentler race is very grand no doubt, in its range, but wholly insupportable in its effects. The law assumes to protect the individual and therefore to hand him over to a society for the evolution of the criminal is to deny the fundamental principle of government and to be cruel and harsh in the very name of mildness and gentle dealing. While an eye for an eye is not to be perpetuated in the new dispensation neither is a life for a fad one with more to be so made use of. Punishment has been shown to be absolutely necessary and let there be no foolish qualms about administering it, not as a form of vengeance, but as a corrective. In England it has been found necessary to re-institute the lash and an agitation for it is springing up in Canada.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"The British Government undertakes to discourage Hindus from coming to Canada. The Punjab will probably be flooded with old pictures of Montreal's ice palaces, thus causing India's torrid strand to shiver from end to end."—Toronto Star.

But why? We understood from Sir Wilfrid Laurier, et al. that Hindoo immigration was just the thing for Canada.

Dr. Poole, V.S., has recently returned from England where he has been for the last five months. He reports business very bad there and times consequently hard. Naturally emigrants are flocking to this country. They have little capital or knowledge of farming, hence our cities will be crowded with them. Next winter will be a hard one—weather or no.

"We hear many eulogies on the daring, skill and enterprise of the captains of finance, and their superiority over Governments; it is strange, therefore that the Government should be asked to undertake a task that daunts the captains. The country would take the risk and bear the expense while the captains of finance would reap the profits."—Toronto Star, Liberal.

This is really written about the proposed Hudson Bay Railway although one would think that it referred to the G.T.P.

"Approached by a delegation of liquor dealers, Mr. Hazen, the new premier of New Brunswick, said he believed the license law should be enforced. The effect is said to have been noticed in a better observance of the restrictions on the hours of sale by victuallers. It seems to be a peculiarity of weak governments that they neglect to enforce the license laws. It was the case in Ontario under Ross, and evidently also in New Brunswick under the late many handed ministry. The recent change is working well."—Montreal Gazette.

The laws of Ontario had not yet been changed and yet the whole political sky and atmosphere underwent an instant transformation after election day. Nor was there any difference except in men for some time after the general election, necessarily. This proves that administration, not law is the secret of good government. But the people of this province must remember that if Mr. Whitney goes under, whose fault it will be. Laxness is sometimes a fatal vice.

BROKEN SLEEP
MORNING TIREDNESS

Unable to sleep indicates starved nerves and weak blood. You'll never be well till the system is better nourished—that's sure.

What you need is a nutritive tonic like FERROZONE, which vitalizes and enriches the blood, fortifies the nerves, instills new energy into worn-out organs. At once you feel better. Your spirits improve, and day by day you gain in strength and power.

FERROZONE

ALWAYS CURES.

No remedy removes that gone, exhausted feeling like FERROZONE. In every case it completely cures the cause of sleeplessness and restores the sufferer to robust health in a short time.

Use FERROZONE and your sleep will be as restful and sound as an infant's. In the morning you'll feel capable and ready for the day's toil. Don't lose the sound, vigorous health FERROZONE is sure to bring you. Get FERROZONE to-day and beware of substitutes.

Ferrozone is sold only in 50c boxes, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

Special to the Review.

New York, April 13.—The stock market situation has been considerably relieved by removal of doubts concerning payment of the $5,500,000 notes due this week. Fortunately a receivership has been thus averted along with all the entanglements and disturbances which such a step would have inevitably involved. Had Erie gone into the hands of a receiver the effect both at home and abroad would have been exceedingly detrimental to the financial situation in general. What Mr. Harriman's plans for the future are remains to be seen, but judging from his past operations they are likely to be of a constructive order rather than otherwise. If it be, as is generally supposed, Mr. Harriman's ambition to secure a great trans-continental system then control of Erie would undoubtedly offer him a signal opportunity; such a one as would fitly crown the achievements of any great railroad magnate.

Outside of Erie there have been no events of importance in the financial world. Operations on the Stock Exchange are being conducted on very moderate and conservative lines; the indications being that this policy will be followed for some time to come. Our big leaders are generally inactive, preferring to await the outcome of politics, or to hold back until signs of business revival are more evident. Perhaps the most encouraging news of the week was the Government Report on winter wheat, indicating a yield of 498,000,000 bushels this season. Condition is reported at 91.3 on April 1st, compared with 91.1 on December 1, and with 89.9 on April 1, 1907. These figures are sufficiently high to allow for considerable deterioration as well as for the reduced acreage resulting from winter-killing and still leaving an ample yield for the coming harvest. Operations for planting in all parts of the country are well advanced, and the season is fully two weeks ahead of the same time last year. Considering the profitable prices which farm products generally are bringing, there is little prospect of any reduction in acreage, and the general conditions are such that farmers have every inducement for increasing their output for the coming season. It is noteworthy that there are not many complaints of the scarcity of labor, which last year materially interfered with a proper cultivation of the crops in many districts.

Another very favorable feature is the great ease of money. In view of the dull condition which reigns in trade, and the low prices on which business is based, the indications are that very easy rates will prevail, at least until the crop demands begin to assert themselves. In fact, it would be no surprise if money were soon to become a drug in the market. This does not mean that credit will be plentiful. Bankers are justly pursuing very conservative policies and exercising much discrimination in the granting of credit and support of new enterprises. Sound concerns, however, have no difficulty in securing all the reasonable accommodations which they require, and commercial paper is in good demand and free supply. The effect of such easy money in the long run will be extremely beneficial to the security markets. In the first place it will enable many, who have been cramped for money, to turn about and adjust themselves to the new conditions. This is a feature the importance of which can only be fully recognized by those in close touch with financial and business affairs. Suffice it to say that some of our perfectly sound concerns have been embarrassed by no other influence so much as the difficulty of securing accommodations which ordinarily would have been granted without question. The lower rates for money will also have another good effect, that of stimulating the demand for the better class of investments. At current rates of interest 5 per cent and 6 per cent. high grade bonds and stocks will begin to look cheap in proportion as confidence revives. Confidence is slowly reviving and hope for the future is steadily rising; yet it is doubtful if any real business recovery can be looked for until all doubt regarding the political outlook and the crops has been safely passed. Emergence from such a crisis as the one just passed is a matter of time. Readjustment is inevitably slow, inasmuch as it must work its way through all departments of business activity until the process is completed. This means that all interests must come down to the lower level and that costs of business must be greatly reduced. Unfortunately this cannot be accomplished without more or less contraction and depression. We are now passing through this process which should not be unusually protracted and which must be patiently endured.

The severity of the late crisis is now plainly seen in the reports of bank clearings for the first three months of the current year. All cities in the United States showed a decrease of 28 per cent. In New York City the decrease was 35 per cent.; in the Middle States 34 per cent.; in the New England States 24 per cent.; in the Middle Western States 8 per cent; in the Pacific States 27 per cent; and in the South only 10 per cent. These figures show that the point of greatest depression was New York; they also show what is extremely satisfactory, that the other parts of the country have felt the crisis less severely. Railroad earnings continue to show large decreases; nevertheless the ratio of declines is smaller than in January and February and the large curtailments in expenses enforced by some of the roads are making net results less unfavorable than at one time was feared. The iron trade is much depressed and orders are exceedingly slack; the policy of maintaining prices undoubtedly checking business. Real estate is also feeling the effect of the panic, and building contracts placed in New York in March were about $10,000,000 less than in March 1907; a shrinkage of 68 per cent. General business as a whole is upon the mend, and its volume is larger than in February or March; but liquidation in trade and industry is still incomplete, and the contraction which must be expected for a few months longer should be endured patiently in the hope of better things to come. Stock market operation will have to be conducted on conservative lines until improvement elsewhere becomes more pronounced.

Beverly of Graustark

By
GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark"

Copyright, 1904, by Dodd, Mead and Company.

"We only know that he is not one of us. It is not beyond reason that his allegiance is to another power—Dawsbergen, for instance. Count Marlanx is not at all in sympathy with him, you are aware. He is convinced that Baldos is a man of consequence, possibly one of our bitterest enemies, and he hates him. For my own part, I may say that I like the man. I believe he is to be trusted, but if he be an agent of Volga or Gabriel, his opportunity has come. He is in a position to make accurate maps of the fort and of all our masked fortifications along the city walls." Beyond a doubt the baron was worried.

Baldos stood at the window.

"Neither am I one of you," said Beverly stoutly. "Why shouldn't I prove to be a traitress?"

"You have no quarrel with us, Miss Calhoun," said Dangloss.

"If anything happens, then I am to be blamed for it!" she cried in deep distress. "I brought him to Edelweiss, and I believe in him."

"For his own sake, your highness, and, Miss Calhoun, I suggest that no opportunity should be given him to communicate with the outside world. We cannot accuse him, of course, but we can protect him. I come to ask your permission to have him detailed for duty only in places where no suspicion can attach to any of his actions."

"You mean inside the city walls?" asked Yetive.

"Yes, your highness, and as far as possible from the fortress."

"I think it is a wise precaution. Don't be angry, Beverly," the princess said gently. "It is for his own sake, you see. I am acting on the presumption that he is wholly innocent of any desire to betray us."

"It would be easy for some one high in position to accuse and convict him," said Dangloss meaningly.

"And it would be just like some one, too," agreed Beverly, her thoughts, with the others', going toward none but one man "high in power."

Later in the day she called Baldos to her side as they were riding in the castle avenue. She was determined to try a little experiment of her own.

"Baldos, what do you think of the fortress?" she asked.

"I could overthrow it after half an hour's bombardment, your highness," he answered without thinking. She started violently.

"Is it possible? Are there so many weak points?" she went on, catching her breath.

"There are three vital points of weakness, your highness. The magazine can be reached from the outside if one knows the lay of the land, the parade ground exposes the ammunition building to certain disadvantages and the big guns could be silenced in an hour if an enemy had the sense first to bombard from the elevation northeast of the city."

"Good heavens!" gasped poor Beverly. "Have you studied all this out?"

"I was once a real soldier, your highness," he said simply. "It was impossible for me not to see the defects in your fort."

"You—you haven't told any one of this, have you?" she cried, white faced and anxious.

"No one but your highness. You do not employ me as a talebearer, I trust."

"I did not mean to question your honor," she said. "Would you mind going before the heads of the war department and telling them just what you have told me? I mean about the weak spots."

"If it is your command, your highness," he said quietly, but he was surprised.

"You may expect to be summoned, then, so hold yourself in readiness. And Baldos"—

"Yes, your highness?"

"You need say nothing to them of our having talked the matter over beforehand—unless they pin you down to it, you know."

CHAPTER XV.

A FEW hours later all was dark and silent within the castle. On the stone walks below the steady tread of sentinels rose on the still air. In the hallways the frosted guardsmen glided about like specters or stood like statues. An hour before the great edifice had been bright and full of animation. Now it slumbered.

It was 2 o'clock. The breath of roses scented the air; the gurgle of fountains was the only music that touched the ear. Beverly Calhoun, dismissing Aunt Fanny, stepped from her window out upon the great stone balcony. A rich oriental dressing gown, loose and comfortable, was her costume. Something told her that sleep would be a long time coming, and an hour in the warm, delightful atmosphere of the night was more attractive than the close, sleepless silence of her own room. Every window along the balcony was dark, proving that the entire household had retired to rest.

She was troubled. The fear had entered her head that the castle folk were regretting the advent of Baldos, that every one was questioning the wisdom of his being in the position he occupied through her devices. Her talk with him did much to upset her tranquillity. That he knew so much of the fortress bore out the subtle suspicions of Dangloss and perhaps others. She was troubled, not that she doubted him, but that if anything went wrong an accusation against him, however unjust, would be difficult to overcome. And she would be to blame in a large degree.

For many minutes she sat in the dark shadow of a great pillar, her elbows upon the cool balustrade, staring dreamily into the star studded vault above. Far away in the air she could see the tiny yellow lights of the monastery, lonely sentinel on the mountain top. From the heights near that abode of peace and penitence an enemy could destroy the fortress to the south. Had not Baldos told her so? One big gun would do the work if it could be taken to that altitude. Baldos could draw a perfect map of the fortress. He could tell precisely where the shells should fall. And already the chief men in Edelweiss were wondering who he was and to what end he might utilize his knowledge. They were watching him; they were warning her.

For the first time since she came to the castle she felt a sense of loneliness, a certain unhappiness. She could not shake off the feeling that she was, after all, alone in her belief in Baldos. Her heart told her that the tall, straightforward fellow she had met in the hills was as honest as the day. She was deceiving him, she realized, but he was misleading no one. Off in a distant part of the castle ground she could see the long square shadow that marked the location of the barracks and mess room. There he was sleeping, confidently believing in her and her power to save him from all harm. Something in her soul cried out to him that she would be stanch and true and that he might sleep without a tremor of apprehensiveness.

Suddenly she smiled nervously and drew back into the shadow of the pillar. It occurred to her that he might be looking across the moonlit park, looking directly at her through all that shadowy distance. She was conscious of a strange glow in her cheeks and a quickening of the blood as she pulled the folds of her gown across her bare throat.

"Not the moon, nor the stars, nor the light in St. Valentine's, but the black thing away off there on the earth," said a soft voice behind her, and Beverly started as if the supernatural had approached her. She turned to face the princess, who stood almost at her side.

"Yetive! How did you get here?"

"That is what you are looking at, dear," went on Yetive as if completing her charge. "Why are you not in bed?"

"And you? I thought you were sound asleep long ago," murmured Beverly, abominating the guilty feeling that came over her. The princess threw her arms about Beverly's shoulder.

"I have been watching you for half an hour," she said gently. "Can't two look at the moon and stars as well as one? Isn't it my grim old castle? Let us sit here together, dear, and dream awhile."

"You dear Yetive," and Beverly drew her down beside her on the cushions. "But listen. I want you to get something out of your head. I was not looking at anything in particular."

"Beverly, I believe you were thinking of Baldos," said the other, her fingers straying fondly across the girl's soft hair.

"Ridiculous!" said Beverly, conscious for the first time that he was seldom out of her thoughts. The realization came like a blow, and her eyes grew very wide out there in the darkness.

"And you are troubled on his account. I know it, dear. You"—

"Well, Yetive, why shouldn't I be worried? I brought him here against his will," protested Beverly. "If anything should happen to him"—she shuddered involuntarily.

"Don't be afraid, Beverly. I have as much confidence in him as you have. His eyes are true. Grenfall believes in him, too, and so does Mr. Anguish. Gren says he would swear by him, no matter who he is."

"But the others?" Beverly whispered.

"Baron Dangloss is his friend and so is Quinnox. They know a man. The count is different."

"I loathe that old wretch!"

"Hush! He has not wronged you in any way."

"But he has been unfair and mean to Baldos."

"It is a soldier's lot, my dear."

"But he may be Prince Dantan or Frederic or the other one, don't you know," argued Beverly, clinching her hands firmly.

"In that event he would be an honorable soldier, and we have nothing to fear in him. Neither of them is our enemy. It is the possibility that he is not one of them that makes his presence here look dangerous."

"I don't want to talk about him," said Beverly, but she was disappointed when the princess obligingly changed the subject.

Baldos was not surprised, scarcely more than interested, when, a day or two later, he was summoned to appear before the board of strategy. If any one had told him, however, that on a recent night a pair of dreamy gray eyes had tried to find his window in the great black shadow he might have jumped in amazement and delight. For at that very hour he was looking off toward the castle, and his thoughts were of the girl who drew back into the shadow of the pillar.

The Graustark ministry had received news from the southern frontier. Messengers came in with the alarming and significant report that Dawsbergen was strengthening her fortifications in the passes and moving war supplies northward. It meant that Gabriel and his people expected a fight and were preparing for it. Count Halfont hastily called the ministers together, and Lorry and the princess took part in their deliberations. General Marlanx represented the army, and it was he who finally asked to have Baldos brought before the council.

The Iron Count plainly intimated that the new guard was in a position to transmit valuable information to the enemy. Colonel Quinnox sent for him, and Baldos was soon standing in the presence of Yetive and her advisers. He looked about him with a singular smile. The one whom he was supposed to regard as the princess was not in the council chamber. Lorry opened the examination at the request of Count Halfont, the premier. Baldos quietly answered the questions concerning his present position, his age, his term of enlistment and his interpretations of the obligations required of him.

"Ask him who he really is," suggested the Iron Count sarcastically.

"We can expect but one answer to that question," said Lorry, "and that is the one which he chooses to give."

"My name is Baldos—Paul Baldos," said the guard, but he said it in such a way that no one could mistake his appreciation of the fact that he could give one name as well as another and still serve his own purposes.

"That is his number one," observed Marlanx loudly. Every eye was turned upon Baldos, but his face did not lose its half mocking expression of serenity.

"Proceed with the examination, Mr. Lorry," said Count Halfont, interpreting a quick glance from Yetive.

"Are you willing to answer any and all questions we may ask in connection with your observations since you became a member of the castle guard?" asked Lorry.

"I am."

"Did you take especial care to study the interior of the fortress when you were there several days ago?"

"I did."

"Have you discussed your observations with any one since that time?"

"I have."

"With whom?"

"With her highness the princess," said Baldos without a quiver. There was a moment's silence, and furtive looks were cast in the direction of Yetive, whose face was a study. Almost instantaneously the entire body of listeners understood that he referred to Beverly Calhoun. Baldos felt that he had been summoned before the board at the instigation of his fair protectress.

"And your impressions have gone no farther?"

"They have not, sir. It was most confidential."

"Could you accurately reproduce the plans of the fortress?"

"I think so. It would be very simple."

"Have you studied engineering?"

"Yes."

"And you could scientifically enumerate the defects in the construction of the fort?"

"It would not be very difficult, sir."

"It has come to our ears that you consider the fortress weak in several particulars. Have you so stated at any time?"

"I told the princess that the fortress is deplorably weak. In fact, I think I mentioned that it could be taken with ease." He was not looking at Count Marlanx, but he knew that the old man's eyes were flaming. Then he proceeded to tell the board how he could overcome the fortress, elaborating on his remarks to Beverly. The ministers listened in wonder to the words of this calm, indifferent young man.

"Will you oblige us by making a rough draft of the fort's interior?" asked Lorry after a solemn pause. Baldos took the paper and in remarkably quick time drew the exact lay of the fortress. The sketch went the rounds and apprehensive looks were exchanged by the ministers.

"It is accurate, by Jove," exclaimed Lorry. "I doubt if a dweller in the fort could do better. You must have been very observing."

"And very much interested," snarled Marlanx.

"Only so far as I imagined my observations might be of benefit to some one else," said Baldos coolly. Again silence was like death.

"Do you know what you are saying, Baldos?" asked Lorry after a moment.

"Certainly, Mr. Lorry. It is the duty of any servant of her highness to give her all that he has in him. If my observations can be of help to her I feel in duty bound to make the best of them for her sake, not for my own."

"Perhaps you can suggest modifications in the fort," snarled Marlanx. "Why don't you do it, sir, and let us have the benefit of your superior intelligence? No, gentlemen, all this prating of loyalty need not deceive us," he cried, springing to his feet. "The fellow is nothing more nor less than an internal spy, and the Tower is the place for him! He can do no harm there."

"If it were my intention to do harm, gentlemen, do you imagine that I should withhold my information for days?" asked Baldos. "If I am a spy you may rest assured that Count Marlanx's kindnesses should not have been so long disregarded. A spy does not believe in delays."

"My—my kindnesses?" cried Marlanx. "What do you mean, sir?"

"I mean this, Count Marlanx," said Baldos, looking steadily into the eyes of the head of the army. "It was kind and considerate of you to admit me to the fortress, no matter in what capacity, especially at a critical time like this. You did not know me, you had no way of telling whether my intentions were honest or otherwise, and yet I was permitted to go through the fort from end to end. No spy could wish for greater generosity than that."

An almost imperceptible smile went around the table, and every listener but one breathed more freely. The candor and boldness of the guard won the respect and confidence of all except Marlanx. The Iron Count was white with anger. He took the examination out of Lorry's hands and plied the stranger with insulting questions, each calm answer making him more furious than before. At last, in sheer impotence, he relapsed into silence, waving his hand to Lorry to indicate that he might resume.

"You will understand, Baldos, that we have some cause for apprehension," said Lorry, immensely gratified by the outcome of the tilt. "You are a stranger, and, whether you admit it or not, there is reason to believe that you are not what you represent yourself to be."

"I am a humble guard at present, sir, and a loyal one. My life is yours should I prove otherwise."

Yetive whispered something in Lorry's ear at this juncture. She was visibly pleased and excited. He looked doubtful for an instant and then apparently followed her suggestion, regardless of consequences.

"Would you be willing to utilize your knowledge as an engineer by suggesting means to strengthen the fortress?" The others stared in fresh amazement. Marlanx went as white as death.

"Never!" he blurted out hoarsely.

"I will do anything the princess commands me to do," said Baldos easily.

"You mean that you serve her only?"

"I serve her first, sir. If she were here she could command me to die, and there would be an end to Baldos." And he smiled as he said it. The real princess looked at him with a new, eager expression, as if something had just become clear to her. There was a chorus of coughs and a round of sly looks.

"She could hardly ask you to die," said Yetive, addressing him for the first time.

"A princess is like April weather, madam," said Baldos, with rare humor, and the laugh was general. Yetive resolved to talk privately with this excellent wit before the hour was over. She was confident that he knew her to be the princess.

"I would like to ask the fellow another question," said Marlanx, fingering his sword hilt nervously. "You say you serve the princess. Do you mean by that that you imagine your duties as a soldier to comprise dancing polite attendance within the security of these walls?"

"I believe I enlisted as a member of the castle guard, sir. The duty of the guard is to protect the person of the ruler of Graustark and to do that to the death."

"It is my belief that you are a spy. You can show evidence of good faith by enlisting to fight against Dawsbergen and by shooting to kill," said the count, with a sinister gleam in his eye.

"And if I decline to serve in any other capacity than the one I now"—

"Then I shall brand you as a spy and a coward."

"You have already called me a spy, your excellency. It will not make it true, let me add, if you call me a coward. I refuse to take up arms against either Dawsbergen or Axphain."

The remark created a profound sensation.

"Then you are employed by both instead of one!" shouted the Iron Count gleefully.

"I am employed as a guard for her royal highness," said Baldos, with a square glance at Yetive, "and not as a fighter in the ranks. I will fight till death for her, but not for Graustark."

CHAPTER XVI.

"BY Jove, I like that fellow's coolness," said Lorry to Harry Anguish, after the meeting. "He's after my own heart. Why, he treats us as though we were the suppliants, he the almsgiver. He is playing a game, I'll admit, but he does it with an assurance that delights me."

"He is right about that darned old fort," said Anguish. "His knowledge of such things proves conclusively that he is no ordinary person."

"Yetive had a bit of a talk with him just now," said Lorry, with a reflective smile. "She asked him point blank if he knew who she was. He did not hesitate a second. 'I remember seeing you in the audience chamber recently.' That was a facer for Yetive. 'I assure you that it was no fault of mine that you saw me,' she replied. 'Then it must have been your friend who rustled the curtains?' said the confounded bluffer. Yetive couldn't keep a straight face. She laughed, and then he laughed.

HAS FEARS FOR HIS DAUGHTER

Mr. R. J. Sutherland is Afraid His Daughter May Have Have Been Burnt Out at Boston

Mr. R. J. Sutherland, who conducts a grocery on George street near Charlotte street is in a state of great anxiety in regard to his daughter, Mrs. Thos. G Ranton, whose home he greatly fears to have been swept out by the disastrous Boston fire. Mr. Ranton is boiler inspector for the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York and moved from Rochester to Boston about a year ago, where he has been living at 208 Broadway, East, on the corner of Arthur street. Although Arthur street is not mentioned in the latest despatches from the stricken city it is very near those districts which are reported to have been wiped out.

Mr. Sutherland expects some news of his daughter not later than tomorrow.

REV. DR. PATTON CHOSEN.

Successor to Rev. Dr. Workman at Wesleyan College.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Governors of Wesleyan College, Rev. Dr. Walter M. Patton of Baldwin University, Kansas, was appointed successor to Rev. Dr. Workman, in the chair of Oriental literature and Old Testament exegesis. Dr. Patton was a former Montrealer, having held the chair in Wesleyan College in 1902. He is 45 years of age and was born in Toronto. He was educated at the high school Montreal, leaving it to go into business in this city, and afterwards in Chicago. Returning to Montreal, he took up theological studies at Wesleyan College, afterwards going to Europe, where he studied Oriental literature at Leyden and Heidelberg, from the last of which he graduated with the degree of Ph.D. He returned to Montreal to occupy a chair in Wesleyan College during the years 1901 and 1902. In 1902 he took ministerial charge at Beacon's Falls, Connecticut, at the same time assisting Prof. Sanders at Yale in Oriental languages. In 1904 he was appointed to the chair of Oriental literature in Baldwin University, Kansas, which chair he held up to his recent appointment to Wesleyan College. He will assume his new duties on May 1 of this year.

WILL DISALLOW B.C. ACT.

Conflict Between the Ottawa and B.C. Governments.

Instructions have been sent by the Government to the agent of the Justice Department in British Columbia to promptly take legal action either by habeas corpus proceedings or otherwise to restrain the provincial authorities from any attempt to enforce against Japanese immigrants the penalties imposed in the Natal Act, just passed at Victoria.

Under the act the province takes power to imprison or fine immigrants from Japan or China who land after refusing to pass the educational test prescribed in the act. As the act is clearly ultra vires, the courts can at once grant the release of any immigrant whom the province attempts to penalize, and recourse for damages for illegal arrest may be had against the province.

As soon as an official copy of the act reaches Ottawa it will promptly be disallowed. Meanwhile assurances have been sent by cable to the Japanese Government that the action of the British Columbia Legislature will not be allowed in any way to interfere with the rights of Japanese subjects in Canada, as guaranteed by treaty.

Long Snoe Shoe Tramp.

After a tramp of nearly 300 miles on snowshoes, from Moose Factory, on James Bay, to MacDougal Chutes, at the northern end of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway, and sleeping out for twelve nights during the recent Arctic weather, with the temperature on one occasion 58 degrees below zero, with only the shelter of a tree and a fur covering, Archdeacon Robert J. Renison, Anglican missionary at Moose Factory, and a graduate of Wycliffe College, arrived in Toronto.

Mr. Renison graduated in 1896, and has been up north for the past ten years, having been south only once in that time.

"My work is chiefly among the Indians," he said. "There are the Crees, at the coast, and the Ojibways, back inland along the rivers. They are not heathen, of course, in the ordinary sense, for the Gospel has been preached for a long time up there. They have all been baptized, and are nominal Christians, at any rate."

Mr. Renison was accompanied to MacDougal Chutes by one of the men from Moose Factory, who will there await his return. They carried their supplies for the journey on a toboggan, one of them tramping ahead to break the trail and the other pulling the toboggan. They made about 25 miles a day, and Mr. Renison says, did not mind the weather or the cooking of their meals and sleeping in the open.

His weather-beaten countenance and robust figure tell of the outdoor life and great amount of traveling done by the missionary in the north.

How Cold 80 Degrees of Frost Is.

It is difficult for us to form any conception of the degree of cold represented by the 80 degrees of frost recorded from certain parts of Russia.

Sir Leopold McClintock tells how in one of his Arctic expeditions a sailor was foolish enough to do some outdoor work at precisely this temperature. His hands froze, and when he rushed into the cabin and plunged one of them into a basin of water so cold was the hand that the water was instantly converted into a block of ice.

At 25 degrees, Dr. Kane says, "the moustache and under lip form pendulous beads of dangling ice. Put out your tongue, and it instantly freezes to this icy crusting. Your chin has a trick of freezing to your upper jaw by the luting aid of your beard. My eyes have often been so glued as to show that even a wink was unsafe."

Virtues of the Scot.

A prominent Presbyterian minister in Halifax, N.S., while rambling about the citadel one afternoon ran across a very respectable looking "brither Scot," who, being slightly "under the influence," and in a communicative and patriotic mood, accosted the minister whose denomination and nationality he at once divined. He forthwith commenced an enthusiastic panegyric on old Scotia. Scotland, he declared, produced the greatest writers, poets, politicians, merchants, divines, etc., etc., in the world, "and," he concluded, "they are the most religious people in the world."

"That may be, my friend," rejoined the minister, "but I'm afraid they drink a good deal of whisky."

"Whusky, whusky," spluttered the other scornfully, "what has whusky got to do with releegion."

The moon's shadow which falls on the earth during an eclipse of the sun is about 550 miles in diameter.

TEMPLE BAND WILL VISIT PETERBORO' NEXT WEEK

One of the Finest Musical Organizations in Canada to Give Concert at Local Salvation Army Barracks on Saturday.

The Toronto Temple band of the Salvation Army will visit Peterborough on Saturday and Sunday next and will give one of their delightful concerts on Saturday evening. The Temple band is an excellent musical organization and their entertainment will no doubt be looked forward to with great pleasure. It is under the direction of Bandmaster James McGrath and the officer in charge is Staff-Capt. Walton.

The band is recognized as one of the finest musical combinations in the Dominion of Canada. It, like all other S.A. bands, consists entirely of working men, none of whom receive any remuneration for their services, but rather contribute to the upkeep of the band. The complete set of first-class, silver plated instruments the band possesses are the property of the Salvation Army Temple corps, and are almost all S.A. make.

In 1906 the band successfully toured through Eastern Ontario, visiting Peterborough, Tweed, Carleton Place, Ottawa, Smith's Falls, Montreal, Kingston, Napanee, Deseronto, Picton, Trenton, Cobourg, Port Hope, and Oshawa.

The men comprising the band represent between them about 500 years of soldiership, and 333 years' service as bandsmen. A number have been Salvationists all their lives. Of the 32 men nearly all are Army converts and all are Army-made instrumentalists. Four of the bandsmen have completed over twenty years' continuous service as S.A. soldiers.

WAS GIVEN THE OPTION OF PAYING FINE OR LICENSE

Amounts Were the Same in Each Case—Peddler in Court To-day—Decided to Take Out License

Elijah Billings, representing a Toronto rug firm, who was remanded a week ago on a charge of peddling in the city without a license, appeared before his Worship Magistrate Dumble, and was given the option of paying the costs and taking out a license or paying a fine of fifty dollars and costs, amounting to $56. The amounts were the same in each case, so Billings decided to take out the license. Mr. L. M. Hayes appeared for the city and Mr. G. N. Gordon for the defendant.

Two ladies were in court as witnesses and stated that Billings had called at their houses offering rugs for sale. They did not buy any of them.

Chief Roszel stated that he saw a man in a buggy with a supply of rugs. He had stopped at a house on Bethune street, and the Chief waited until the peddlar came out. He asked Billings if he had a license. Witness was told no and that it was not necessary to have one. Chief Roszel informed him that he would have to get one. There was another gentleman with Billings. He drove down to the clerk's office and the defendant walked along with the Chief.

City Clerk Armstrong stated that by-law 1136 of the city prohibited men from peddling goods without a license. The defendant had no license.

Mr. Gordon argued that the information was defective and that here was not one instance of where the goods had been sold.

His Worship stated that it had been proven that he went from house to house in an endeavor to make sales. He did not produce the proper authority. The Magistrate gave him the above-mentioned option of a fine or pay the license. The defendant chose the latter.

NEW ZEALANDER'S LETTER

The following has been supplied the Review by Mr. H. P. Opie, a young New Zealander, who has been in the city about two weeks come here from Deloro near Marmora;

How many of us who belong to the Empire know of her wide-spreading arms, or how she encircles this Globe. Let us glide along through the Mediterranean with its blue waters and sunny skies till we reach the eastern side of Suez canal (Port Said). There we take the train and rattle alongside of the canal, and that canal train does rattle. The line is bordered on either side with bamboo and tamarac, and we are also near the canal which is a never ending source of interest as we see the steamers slowly winding there way from one side of the world to the other. We rattle along until we wind up at Port Suez or Port Twefik. Here the officials being mostly Egyptians, we have a lot of formalities to go through after a certain amount of (Backsheesh) tips have been parted with we find ourselves landed on one of the Khedivial boats far down the Red Sea. The sea being fairly calm we have a good passage for three days, excepting to a thorough colonial, who generally enjoys his meals without being cooked with olive oil.

We find ourselves at a new port which is not marked on any map unless it be of very recent issue. This Port Sudan which the British Government is constructing it is about 30 miles Suez side of Suakim, which is or was the old port for the Sudan, but is now being rejected and deserted, as the entrance is so treacherous with coral reef that large steamers are refused insurance on account of the growing coral reefs. Port Sudan is a new harbor, and a natural one, so steamers of the heaviest burden could enter. There is no picturesqueness about it as the formation is raised, coral reefs with a deep, clear, narrow gut of water with a safe anchorage running back for two miles. Here the British are constructing a base building customs houses, warehouses, machine shops, quays, docks, electrical cranes, and barracks, and a large railway lift bridge across the harbor. A railway also runs to Khartoum via Berbee, so should any trouble arise, in either way, the Empire is in touch for trouble in Egypt by drafting troops from India, or in India from Egypt, quicker than she could from her own shores. Reverting back to Port Sudan, it is a barren desert place, the drinking water is brought down from the hills several miles back on camels and has to be filtered before drinking, through what is termed a zeer or large earthen pot sun baked. The labor is carried on by Arabs, with English overseers, and here we have to observe their Sunday or as they call it (Fantasia Day) which is our Friday, so that our own Sunday is obliterated. The water of Port Sudan is so clear that one can see to a great depth and you see fish of hue and color of the rainbow swimming about, also the most gorgeous and unique forms of jelly fish. I could carry you across the (Bab-el-Ahmed) Red Sea to Jeddah, the Port of Mecca, where the pilgrims met at the feast of the Ramadan, and where you will see thirty thousand camels waiting for the pilgrims to engage to take them to Mecca, the Jerusalem of the Mohammedan. But let us stop at Port Sudan and think of Britain and her octopus-like arms.

CORNER STONE OF ARMORIES TO BE LAID ON APRIL 22ND

Preparations for Military and Civic Welcome of Sir Frederick Borden who Will Perform Ceremony—Meeting Will be Held.

The date fixed for the laying of the corner stone at the armories is April 22nd. Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, who will lay the stone, will be welcomed here by the civic and military authorities.

In so far as the city is concerned, the Reception Committee from the City Council, composed of Aldermen Elliott, chairman; Phelan, McIntyre and Turner, will look after the reception of Sir Fredrick. It is planned that he be the guest of the regiment part of the time, and the city part of the time. A banquet at which Mayor Rush will be chairman, will be given him before his departure.

All matters in connection with welcoming and entertaining the minister will be decided upon at the meeting to be held for that purpose.

EPIDEMIC OF MUMPS NOW PREVALENT IN PETERBORO'

There is an epidemic of mumps in Peterborough at the present time. The malady is not of a severe type, but it is sufficiently to keep many away from their places of labor. The epidemic has prevailed for the past two weeks and appears to be on the increase. The victims are stricken down suddenly and some peculiar incidents have been the result. A few days ago a local young man rang up a young lady and requested the pleasure of her company at an attraction at the Grand Opera House the following night. The invitation was accepted, but the lady in the case received a telephone message the following afternoon that her prospective escort for the show was down with the mumps and would be unable to accompany her. Several more incidents of the same nature have been reported.

Doctors state that the epidemic will be stamped out in a few weeks.

EXCELLENT PROGRMAMME AT THE KNOX CHURCH CONCERT

Rev. W. D. Reid Gave Entertaining Address on "Scotland'—Increase in Salary for Rev. H. J. Keith—Many in Attendance.

In connection with the Knox church anniversary services this week, a lecture, with limelight views was given in the church auditorium last evening, the subject being "A trip through Scotland," by Rev. W. D Reid, of Montreal.

Mr. Reid is not only a speaker of unusual eloquence and force, but proved to be a humorous and entertaining lecturer. He described one of his many trips through Scotland and from his description of that country, one can well understand a Scotsman's unflagging patriotism and love for his native land.

Rev. H. J. Keith occupied the chair for the evening and introduced the first number in the form of a bagpipe solo, by Rev. Mr. McLeod, when "Scots wha' Hae" was rendered in a manner which sent every Scotchman's blood tingling through his veins.

Miss Childs was then heard to advantage in a piano solo, in which considerable talent and command of technique were shown. Mrs. Patterson Mowry favored the audience with one of her popular recitations "Cuddle Doon."

"Annie Laurie" was rendered in a most pleasing manner by Mr. John Barrett. An excellent rendition of "Bonnie Doone," was given by a mixed quartette consisting of Miss Kerr, Mr and Mrs. Greenslade and Mr. D. Campbell. Mrs. Greenslade was also heard to advantage in a Scotch solo.

Mr. Reid commenced his lecture by showing several English views, and recalling reminiscences of his tour through England. Views were shown of the homes of Shakespeare and Wordsworth, both of which he visited. Working his way northward and drawing many humorous pictures of peasant life, as he observed it in passing, we find him at last at Melrose, on the Scotch border. Mr. Reid has an excellent photograph of Melrose Abbey as it once was, when it was one of the finest specimens of architecture as well as a view of it as it now is a pile of bleak pillars and ruined walls, through which the wind whistles and in which the birds build their nests. Here it is that the heart of Robert Bruce is buried in its silver casket.

Mr. Reid explained that this is sacred ground to every Scotchman as it is upon these borders that some of the best blood in Scotland has been spilt.

A view was also shown of Sir Walter Scott's home on the Tweed which place Mr. Reid took especial interest in. This place has been preserved almost intact, as it was left by Sir Walter Scott upon his decease, the abbey now being used as a sort of museum for antique relics. Here we find Rob Roy's sword, Napoleon Bonaparte's pistols, Marie Antoinette's clock and complete suite of armour which once clad the heads of some of the oldest houses in Scotland.

Views were also shown of Sir Walter Scott's monument in Edinburgh, Mary Queen of Scot's bedroom, and several views of Bonnie Doone.

At the conclusion of the lecture a Scotch solo was excellently rendered by Mr. Duncan Campbell.

Rev. W. D. Keith, who arrived on the nine o'clock train for the purpose of seeing Mr. Reid before he left for Montreal, was just in time to deliver a short address in which he paid high compliment to the lecturer and concluded by moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Reid, which being seconded was tendered him by the chairman.

Mr. Reid replied in a short though eloquent speech and expressed great pleasure in presenting Mrs. Rev. H. J. Keith, on behalf of the Ladies' Aid with a handsomely mounted marble clock. The pastor was presented, on behalf of the congregation with a $200 increase in salary together with their best wishes.

Mr. Keith made a suitable reply on behalf of Mrs. Keith and himself and stated that he had great expectations for the future in store for their church.

The artistic work of the decorators was greatly admired as well as the excellent manner in which the musical numbers were given.

The entertainment was brought to a close by Rev. W. D. Reid pronouncing the benediction.

The theory that the north pole has moved leads one to the conclusion that the north pole must have a wife.

In the London revenue district during the fiscal year, 34,340,650 cigars were manufactured.

STREET SERVICE DREW ANOTHER CROWD TO-DAY

Forcible Address by Rev. Robt. Pogue of St. Paul's Church

Again today the noon day service attracted a large crowd and much interest was manifested. The Ministerial Association were all present, and the choir of Murray street church led the singing of the hymn, "Draw Me Nearer to the Cross." Pastor Steurnagel said the prayer, after which Rev. Robt. A. Pogue of St. Paul's church, delivered a ten-minute address.

The sentiments expressed in the hymn sung was the theme of Mr. Pogue's strong and earnest appeal. During this Holy week, he said, our minds, hearts and thoughts are centred in the cross. The cross represents a wonderful Saviour and salvation. God is lovingly revealed to mankind in the glorious things of nature, but it is at the cross that one learns the love of God. The fact that Christ gave His only Son to die upon the cross is proof of His love for man. Christ died for all and the speaker urged his hearers to bring their troubles and sins to the cross of Jesus Christ. He is ready to receive and only at that cross is true comfort to be found.

The meeting closed with the benediction by Pastor Steurnagel. To-morrow, Rev. E. A. Pearson of George street church will give the address.

GOOD FRIDAY'S SERVICE.

The open air service on Good Friday will be held at Central Park at three o'clock, and will it is expected mark the climax of the present successful series. A large concourse of people are expected to be in attendance.

The singing will be led by the united choirs of the city.

MATTERS BEFORE HEALTH BOARD

Requests for Sewer Connections—Time Extended in Two Cases

A meeting of the Board of Health was held this morning when a considerable amount of business was cleared off the blotter. Those present were;—Dr. Burnham, chairman; Dr. Young, Dr. McNulty, Messrs. Edgar and Murty and Medical Health Officer Dr. Bingham. A considerable part of the meeting was taken up by the discussion on the paper read by Dr. McNulty, which appears in full in to-day's Review.

A letter was received from O'Connel & Gordon, asking that Nicola Rennetti be given further time to come to his premises with the sewer and put them in a proper sanitary condition.

On motion the time was extended until May 15th.

A letter was received from the Dickson Co., asking the Board to devise means of providing sewer accommodation for that district lying east of Harvey street and on London and Waterford streets.

A letter was received from the C.G.E. Co., stating that the sewer on Park street was blocked.

Mr. Jas. Roe was heard by the Board regarding the necessity of sewer accommodation on Harvey street, north of Antrim street.

A motion was passed recommending the City Council to construct a sewer on Harvey street from Smith ot Antrim streets and on Antrim st. from Harvey to Water streets, as a local improvement.

It was decided to notify J. P. Metheral to have his house on George st. opposite Central Park, connected with the sewer by May 15th.

Adjournment then took place.

THE SUMMER CAMP OF Y.M.C.A. BOYS

Biggest and Best Camp of History Association is Planned

The boys of the Y.M.C.A. are planning big things in connection with their annual summer camp. It is proposed to make it the biggest and best camp ever held at Sandy Point and it is probable that Lindsay and Port Hope Y.M.C.A's., will also be represented by a large number of campers. A camp re-union will be held in the gymnasium on Tuesday, the 28th of April, in the evening. The gym. will be transformed into a camping ground for the night and there will be something doing all the time. All the boys who are interested will be there. Everything in connection with the gym will be discussed.

JOHN B. GOUGH THE SUBJECT

Of Interesting Address at Murray St. Church Last Evening

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Young People's Society last evening at Knox church and an interesting and profitable time was spent. Mr. Walter Garbutt, the president, opened the proceedings with devotional exercises. The feature of the evening was Principal Dunlop's excellent address on "John B. Gough." Mr. Dunlop dealt with the life of the greatest temperance lecturer of his time in a decidedly intelligent and interesting manner.

Mr. B. Matthews, who was a personal friend of John B. Gough, also made a few remarks.

LAST MEETING OF SOCIETY

Closing Meeting of Philomathean Society at St. Peter's Hall at 8 O'clock To-night

The closing meeting of the Philomathean Society of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute will be held to-night at St. Peter's hall at 8 o'clock.

The principal feature of the meeting will be an oratorical contest for prizes. A good programme of musical selections and recitations has been prepared. A silver collection will be taken at the door.

Mr. Michael O'Brien, president of the society, will occupy the chair.

A CONVERSAZIONE

A Conversazione will be held in St. John's schoolhouse on Tuesday, April 21st, by the ladies of the Women's Auxiliary, from four to six o'clock.

An interesting paper will be read on "Miss Florence Nightingale," by one of her trained nurses. An exhibition of old curiosities, music, &c., given. Tea and refreshments will be served. All strangers who can come will be welcomed, and it is hoped that the membership will be increased.

A. PALMER,
2d Secretary.

MARKET SCALES BEING INSPECTED

The market weigh scales are being inspected by Mr. G. H. Howson, the Government inspector, to-day and Mr. Geo. Ball, the market clerk, is weighing down at the Peter Hamilton Co. The market scales have been weighing too heavy lately and an inspection was deemed advisable. Mr. Ball will again be at his old stand to-morrow.

BIGAMIST WAS NOT DIVORCED

Messrs. Hall & Hayes Did Not Tell Hepburn That His First Wife Had Secured Divorce and Alimony

In connection with the arrest of George Hepburn in Kingston a day or so ago, on a charge of bigamy, it was intimated in the Toronto papers that Hepburn had received word from Hall & Hays, barristers of this city, that his first wife had secured a divorce and alimony from him. His first wife was Annie Bundy, who resides near here.

In speaking with the Review today, Mr. Hays denied having given Hepburn any such information, but stated that he had acted for the first Mrs. Hepburn, and had written her husband, threatening to take action against him if some settlement was not transacted.

A BANNER HIGH UP IN THE AIR

An Original Method of Advertising Adopted by Producers of "Parsifal"

People are holding their heads high to-day. Not because they are proud of their new Easter garbs, or anything like that, but for the simple reason that there is a source of attraction that causes them to gaze skyward. It is a white banner in the air upon which is painted in prominent black letters "Parsifal, Easter Monday."

Attached to the banner is a box kite which flies above it, keeping it suspended and the banner is securely tied to the building of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons.

This advertising device is a decided novelty and perhaps is used by the publicity department of "Parsifal" to indicate that their production soars high above the usual run of theatrical attractions.

FIRE SWEPT FIELDS IN EAST CITY

Spark From Passing Train Started Blaze—Fire Brigade Quickly Responded

The fire brigade were given a quick call to Ashburnham at noon today. The grass being exceedingly dry in the two fields to the rear of Mr. H B Strickland's residence, a spark from a passing engine soon started a blaze. The wind was blowing in a northerly direction and the conflagration quickly spread over the entire fields. At one time the beautiful hedge intersecting the field and Mr. R. A Elliot's property was in danger but the firemen worked hard and prevented it.

INTERMENT WILL TAKE PLACE HERE

Former Peterboro' Lady Burned to Death in Dunnville

The remains of the late Mrs. Stanley Bates who was burned to death at her home in Dunnville on Sunday night, are expected to arrive here this evening on the 6.45 train from Port Hope, and will be taken to the residence of Mr. Fred W. Bates, 654 Stewart street, a brother of the deceased's husband. The unfortunate woman was well known here, having resided in this city at one time.

She was sitting before an open stove washing her little babies when her clothes caught fire. She was so badly burned that she died in a short time.

Her husband was absent in Penetanguishene.

LEGISLATURE PROROGUED

Two Hundred and Fifty Three Bills Were Introduced During the Session Which Was Shortest in Years

Special to the Review.

Toronto, April 14.—The last session of the eleventh Provincial Parliament terminated this afternoon when the Legislature was prorogued by his Honor, Lieut.-Governor Sir Mortimer Clark, with the usual formalities. Only a very few members were in attendance and a smaller number than usual of the general public were present. One hundred and forty-six bills were assented to by his Honor. The total number of bills introduced during the session was 243. The session just terminated was the shortest that has been known for a number of years.

UNDER WATER WEDDING.

Forty-One Couples Eager to Earn $500 by Unique Ceremony.

Forty-one applications from would-be brides or bridegrooms have already been received from all parts of England as the result of an offer by the management of the London Hippodrome of £100 to the couple who are willing to be married under water, in the centre of the arena, which will be lowered for the occasion and flooded with water.

By means of ingenious mechanical contrivances and illusions, bride and bridegroom, clergyman and best man alike, a few moments before the wedding, will appear to the audience to be engulfed by the flooded water and drowned, whereas, by reason largely of a series of diving bells, as well as by waterproof clothing, those who take part in the ceremony will be virtually as dry as the spectators themselves. Lights turned on under the water will enable the audience to witness the performance of the ceremony throughout.

It will be extremely difficult to secure a performance of any valid marriage ceremony under the circumstances. In view of the fact that the Hippodrome is not licensed as a place for the solemnization of marriage, no license can be issued by any registrar, and no such ceremony as that contemplated would constitute a marriage.

At the Bishop of London's marriage registry office, Doctors' Commons, it was stated that such a ceremony could only be performed, under the canons of the Church of England, by the granting of a special license by the Archbishop of Canterbury, a highly improbable proceeding in the present instance. Cases of special licenses being granted, it was added, did not occur once a year, and then only in very exceptional circumstances. The most recent occasion was Lord Loreburn's marriage in the crypt under Westminster Abbey.

A furious windstorm swept New York yesterday and at least five were killed as a result.

Private corporations are leading a bold race for the street railway franchise in Edmonton.

SPORTING NEWS

HURTUBUISE HAS AGREED TO WRESTLE WITH KENNEDY

Peterborough Heavyweight Will Meet American Here and in Toronto—Local Man to Become a Professional.

The decision of Eugene Hurtubise, the Peterborough giant rugby player and ex-champion amateur heavyweight of Canada, to abandon the amateur ranks and meet Frank Kennedy, the lightweight wrestler, in two matches, one here and the other in Peterborough, comes as a omplecte surprise to Toronto sportsmen. When Hurtubise turns over the leaf amateur sport in Ontario loses a well-known figure.

Hurtubise as a wrestler and rugby player is probably as well known in Ontario as any athlete ever turned out of Peterborough, and that is saying a good deal, when the list includes such good men as Bill Crowley, the hockey rugby and lacrosse player; Fred Whitcroft, the hockey player; Freddie McGrath, the sprinter, Fred Simpson and Ernie Wilson, the runners; Art Burn, the Calgary runner; George Gauthier, the wrestler; Chris Graham, the boxer, rugby, lacrosse and baseball player, and others, not overlooking Dave Hartley.

HURTUBUISE IS ROUGH.

Hurtubise with his six-foot four of bone and sinew made his presence felt on every football field. He might not have been a brilliant football player, but when it comes to close, effective work in the scrimmage—"inside" football, according to Chaucer Elliott's vocabulary—Gene was there, and strange to say, many's the man took the count when he bumped into the elongated French-Canadian. They all tried to get even, but Hurtubise took the retaliatory offerings without a squeal and handed back more.

HE DEFEATED BANTY.

On the mat Hurtubise was just as rough as he was on the field. He won his bouts by brute strength. Banty Russell, the sturdy Argo scrimmager, gave Hurtubise a battle once, but he had to succumb to Hurtubise's brawny arms, and those who saw him gather up Beckman, the New York amateur heavyweight, and crush him into submission in one bear-like embrace, will never forget it.

Hurtubise is now under suspension by the C.A.A.U. for playing rugby with the Peterborough team against Montreal. He was the captain of the team which won the O.R.F.U. championship.

In Kennedy the Peterborough lad will meet a wrestler whose chief stock-in-trade is roughness and an ability to stand punishment. When they get together the battle will be a fierce one, and one worth going far to see.—Toronto Star.

PRESIDENT PULLMAN DISCUSSES NATIONAL LEAGUE OUTLOOK

Big League Opens To-day—An Interesting Review of the Prospects for the Season.

The outlook for the National Baseball League, which body I head, and, in fact, for organized baseball all over the country is such that the patrons of the game will have more sport and better competition that ever before. From an artistic viewpoint the season which opens today will certainly be one of the best since I became president of the National League. This is because the teams in the league have never been as well matched as they are this year. Chicago's wonderful team of world champions, which title they won from Detroit, has not been weakened, but the other teams have been strengthed, so that there will be more of a race and less of a procession. The four clubs which finished in the first division last year will fight it out to the end, and there is more than a possibility that one or two of the clubs in the second division last season will be up with the leaders working toward the pennant in most formidable fashion.

The schedule, which changes each year, this season favors the East, because after September 9th the Chicago club is on the road, while the Philadelphia and New York clubs are playing practically all their games at home. No one who is familiar with the game can underestimate the great advantage that this gives the East, especially if the clubs are fighting out the finish of the season, and on the outcome of the month that precedes the end depends the final rating of the pennant-chasing clubs.

One of the noteworthy things about the new season is the incorporation in the constitution of the National League of the Fleischmann resolution. I have fought for this measure for a long time, and am decidedly pleased that it has been made a law. This gives the president of the league the right and power to enforce discipline and preserve good order on the ball field and will be a most effective weapon to quell rowdy ball players with. It has been tried for five years, and has at last been incorporated in the constitution. Hereafter there will be no such doubt as has existed in the past in regard to whether such control would be given to the president, for now it is a law, and instead of being subject to adoption or rejection, by a majority vote, it will require six votes to nullify it as a law. This means the betterment of discipline and a higher standard of conduct on the ball field.

While the Fleischmann resolution is an excellent thing, and I am very glad it has become a law, it is worth speaking at this time of how much less it is needed today than ten or even five, years ago. The men who are playing professionag baseball are improving each year, and I question if you can find a better class of men in a sport anywhere in the world today. There may be, and unquestionably are, some ungentlemanly players but they are in a very small majority. Each year witnesses a higher standard. Some credit for this improvement must be given to the intrusion of college ball players into the game. Men who have shown unquestioned ability in playing for their college and are consequently sought after by the big league clubs are feeling more and more that there is nothing degrading or reprehensible about going into professional baseball, that they will find and associate with a very good class of men on and off the field, and that by using their natural skill but ball players are unquestionably born and not made, they can earn far better salaries in a much easier manner than by crowding into some of the professions where they would make a mere living wage.

Various "fans," with their own team's interest nearest to their hearts, have been busy trying to figure out the pennant chances for this new season ever since the clubs went south for their preliminary work. It is impossible to pick the winner, even knowing the inside conditions and the possibilities of the clubs which have added to their playing strength. For my own part, as I said above, I firmly believe that four and possibly five teams will fight it out, with Chicago possibly in a shade the best position through the record made by the players in the past, who have almost all been retained. New York will put up a good fight. I am sure of that. With McGraw back in the game the New York players will be keyed up to the right pitch and will make a splendid showing. Other teams besides these may well be expected to be very much in the running and one of the best struggles ever pulled off will certainly result.

GOLF CLUB SHOULD HAVE MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON

The annual meeting of the Petersdayborough Golf Club was held recently in the Bank of Montreal Chambers.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, Mrs. Rubidge, Mrs. Sherwood and Messrs. Campbell, Medd, Hill and Goodwill.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted, and upon motion, by Mr. Medd, Mr. Blanchett was elected captain of the club for the coming year.

Miss Pearl Lundy was elected ladies' captain and Miss Helen Davidson ladies' secretary.

The various committees were elected as follows:—

House Committee—Chairman, Mr. F. D. Mulholland; members, Mrs. Montizambert and Miss Dobie.

Greens Committee—Chairman, Mr. Richie; members Messrs. E. H. D. Hall and W. H. Denham.

Tennis and Boating Committee — Chairman, Mr. Cluxton; members, Messrs. Kerr and Courier.

Handicap Committee—Messrs. Blanchett, Cryil Hill and Dr. Eastwood.

The directors reported having engaged a steward and stewardess for the coming year, the prospects for which are usually pleasant for Peterborough golfers.

The club has a membership of a hundred and twenty.

BASKETBALL

The 1st YMCA team had an excellent practice last night in preparation for their game on Good Friday with Midland. Over 250 tickets are in the hands of the sellers and a very large attendance is looked for. The game is called for at 8.30, and it would be well for those requiring seats to be early.

TENNIS

A meeting of the Tennis Committee and all interested in the game of tennis in connection with the YMCA, will be held on Wednesday night at 8.30 in the parlor. The committee, who have it in charge are Messrs. J. Clark, R. F. McWilliams, and A. E. Poe. A club will be organized and officers elected.

BASEBALL

BELLEVILLE ORGANIZED

At a recent meeting at Belleville a club was formed to be known as the Belleville Baseball Association.

The team will be semi-professional but details of course, have yet to be worked out. A number of players, some of them good, others fair, signed their names as intending to try for a place on the team. A former professional player is likely to be the star pitcher.

The following officers were elected:—

Hon.-Pres.—H Corby, Ex-MP.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—J V Jenkins
Pres.—Dr. Yeomans.
Vice-Pres.—Dr. Gilbert.
Sec.-Treas.—E V Illsey.
Committee—W J Wilson, W. Carnew, W. Maclean.
Manager—Robt. Colling.

Another meeting will be held before Easter Monday, due notice of which will be given.

BELLEVILLE WANTS BALL

The Belleville Intelligencer says:

Mr. Sandy Lockington, of Port Hope, Sec.-Treas., of the Midland League writes to the sporting editor stating that Belleville would be welcomed in the Midland League and that the annual meeting of the league will be held in Port Hope on Good Friday afternoon, this city being asked to send representatives. This matter is respectfully referred to the association formed last night.

There is no doubt at all that a Belleville club in the Midland League would mean much for sport in this city, providing, of course that a team could be gotten together which could keep up its end in that fast organization. The team which wins the Midland League championship has to keep on its toes all the time.

In the past, however, Belleville has had ball teams which took a back seat for none in this district. History has a knack of repeating itself. Perhaps it will this summer. Anyhow, there is no little doubt that a winning ball team in Belleville would be well patronized and if the gentlemen who were last night placed at the head of the club want to they can secure a good team. It seems to be up to them. Here's a chance to secure admission to a real live league, with a good summer's sport in prospect. You're on deck, gentlemen.

A meeting of the baseball club of the YMCA. is called for this evening at 7.45. All men who have signed with the YMCA. are urged to be present.

The West Ends and Strathconas will play at the West End's field on Good Friday at 2.30.

ATHLETICS

A tramp is proposed among the fellows for Wednesday the 22nd of April from Omemee to Lindsay and come back on the train. All fellows who wish to take in the tramp should see the physical director.

Art Burn, the Calgary long-distance runner, who was to have joined the Montreal Federation and so secured the acceptance of his entry in the Boston Marathon has reconsidered his intention to abandon the CAAU. and will not run at Boston. He is training for the Olympic trials—Toronto Star.

FOOTBALL

The Quaker football team will meet at 7.30 to-night in the Y.M.C.A. to discuss the matter of entering the Midland League this year. All interested in football are requested to attend, as business of importance will be touched upon. The probability of bringing the Britannia football team of Toronto, will likely be discussed.

WRESTLING

As a wrestler and a man Eugene Hurtibuise, or as he is familiarly known, "Gene," is as good a fellow and as square a man as there is in Canada to-day. He has been scrupulously correct as an amateur and now now that he is going into the professional ranks, we wish him well. At the amateur tournament in Toronto he was without a rival and many a compliment was flung at the tall, handsome man as he rolled his opponents out and laid them down as he would pretty much a piece of carpet. We expect to hear big things from him some day.

BOWLING

A game is being arranged between the Bell Telephone team and the yet unbeaten organization, Munro's Colts. The match will likely take place this week.

DR. BROWETT'S OPHTHALMOMETERS

In estimating the degrees and kind of astigmatism, this eye instrument is most valuable and accurate. Dr. Browett has, during the past fifteen years, taught opticians the use of five different kinds of ophthalmometers, all of which were good instruments, but the one he now uses is conceded to be the most exact and the finest instrument made for the detection and estimation of astigmatism, and the measurements of the curvatures of the cornea of the eye. This and other instruments are used for many examinations daily at our office. We supply modern eye glasses at reasonable prices.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 13.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending April 11 were 1800 cattle, 264 sheep and lambs, 4700 hogs and 1336 calves.

The offerings for the local trade this morning were 1300 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 300 calves.

This being the Easter market, the attendance of buyers was unusually large, including some from Quebec and Ottawa, and there were also present a few exporters. The weather was favorable, and the condition of the market was all that could be desired by both buyers and sellers, and especially by the latter, in showing their stock. The supply of cattle was much smaller than was generally expected, and, as the bulk of it was superior in quality to what generally is offered, a much stronger feeling prevailed, and prices advanced ¼c to 1c per lb. for top grades, while in a few odd instances some fancy figures were paid.

Sales of small lots of choice yearling lambs were made at 7c to 7½c, and good at 6½c to 6¾c, while choice lots of sheep sold at 5½c per pound. The supply of spring lambs was also small, which met with a ready sale at prices ranging from $5 to $8 each. There were a few extra choice, milk-fed calves on the market, for which the demand was good, and sales were made at 6c to 6½c per pound; but some holders were asking as high as 7c to 7½c per pound. Good calves sold at 5c to 5½c, and fair at 4c to 4½c per pound. A weaker feeling developed in the hog situation, and prices show a decline of 25c to 50c per 100 pounds since this day week. This was due to increased supplies and in sympathy with reaction in prices of 3s to 5s per cwt. for Canadian bacon in Liverpool last week. The demand from local dealers and packers for hogs this morning was good, and an active trade was done. Selected lots sold at $7 to $7.25 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, April 13.—Cattle—Receipts, 2900 head; fairly active and steady; prime steers, $6.60 to $7; shipping, $5.75 to $6.50; butchers', $5 to $6.25; heifers, $4.50 to $6.15; cows, $3.25 to $5.50; bulls, $3.50 to $5.25; stockers and feeders, $3.50 to $4.75; stock heifers, $3 to $3.75; fresh cows and springers, good, active and strong, common dull, $20 to $56.

Veals—Receipts, 2300 head; active and steady, $5 to $6.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 13,600 head; slow and steady; heavy and mixed, $6.40 to $6.45; yorkers, $6.30 to $6.45; pigs, $4.50 to $5.65; roughs, $5 to $5.50; stags, $4 to $4.50; dairies, $6.30 to $6.40.

THE NEW LODGE TO HAVE MEETING

Loyal True Blues Will Meet To-morrow Night---Ladies Lodge May be Organised

The new Lodge of Loyal True Blues organized on April 1st, will hold their second meeting to-morrow evening, when very important work will be transacted, including the installation of officers and the white and scarlet degrees. The meeting will be presided over by the District Organizer for Peterborough county, which appointment was recently awarded a local member. This organization is making rapid strides throughout the country and many new lodges have been organized recently.

It is proposed to organize a Ladies' Lodge in a few weeks.

The new lodge just organized will be known as Watch Tower, No. 277, and a list of members elected to offices will be given after the installation meeting.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HE MADE DEEP IMPRESSION

Many Heard Mr. Douglas Russell at Y. M. C. A.---"Peace" Was the Subject

Mr. Douglas Russell conducted his first meeting in the YMCA. hall last night. Those present had the joy of hearing an address on the fifth chapter of Romans which will never be forgotten; the burning words of of truth seemed to touch every heart. He commenced by saying, "God made man in His own likeness, not a monkey, or a tadpole, but a man, and sin entered by this one man, but no sooner had man sinned than God had the remedy—in the person of His only begotten Son, who was before all things, and by whom all things consist." Mr. Russell's subject being "Peace," he went on to show from the word of God that Peace had been made by the blood of Christ on Calvary. God could then, in A.D. 60, as well as in A.D. 1906 proclaim Peace to all men on the grounds of the sacrifice of Jesus on Calvary and the resurrection life, for God raised him again from the dead, a proof that sin had been dealt with. When a man gets God's peace he enters into grace, and as the spies whom Moses sent to search out the land of Canaan brought back a good report, also a bunch of grapes as a foretaste of the inheritance. So God gives the Holy Spirit to every believer in the "finished" work of Christ as the first fruits, or pledge, of glory or inheritance, yet to be revealed. Mr. Russell went on to say that in the year A.D. 60, the Epistle to the Church of Rome declared that being justified by faith they had peace not on the ground of works but by grace through faith and it it was apostolic truth then so it is today. To illustrate the point of the young man who asked Jesus what he must do to inherit eternal life, he told of a certain wealthy land owner's son, saying father, what must I do to inherit your estate." His father said "That is yours by birth, you cannot do anything." So a contradiction of terms are expressed in the question. Inheritance is by the second birth, by faith in the gospel of Jesus Christ, whose death made an end of sin in God's sight. So God in Christ to every believer gives his whole estate joint heirs with Christ. It is impossible to give the whole address but throughout it was most inspiring. Mr. Russell will sing at every meeting, and also lead the song service at the beginning. All are invited. Singing commences at eight o'clock.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR THE SEASON

Cheesemen are Getting Ready---Power Agitators Installed in Factories

The first meeting of the Peterborough cheese board for this season will be held on the 30th of May. Ald. Gillespie, who is prominently identified with the board, states that prospects are very favorable for good prices this year.

On account of scarcity of help the proprietors of many cheese factories have decided to install power agitators in many of their factories. A number of these were installed in eastern factories last year and proved such a signal success that they are now coming into use throughout the whole province. These power agitators do away entirely with the old hand mixing process.

Several cheese factories in the eastern district are already doing business and it is expected that all will be running by the first of May.

IS AN ISOLATION HOSPITAL NEEDED IN PETERBOROUGH?

Dr McNulty Says That Home Isolation is Preferable to the Isolation Hospital System—Interesting Paper Read Before the Local Board of Health—Question Treated in a Full and Comprehensive Manner.

At the meeting of the Board of Health this morning, a carefully prepared and comprehensive paper on the handling of infectious disease cases was read by Dr. F. P. McNulty, a member of the Board. Dr. McNulty advances the view that hospital isolation is not the best means of handling infection. Home isolation, carefully regulated, is recommended. Review readers will no doubt find the paper given below exceedingly interesting. It was as follows:

Gentlemen,—I think it is full time that a systematic and concerted effort should be made to evolve some definite plan of dealing with infectious cases in our midst. We have enjoyed almost complete immunity from this class of disease for the last three years and it is very largely owing to this fact that no headway has been made in regard to formulating a plan of procedure in the event of an epidemic arising. This Board and the local press have lately resuscitated the question and in the hope that something definite may soon be accomplished, I wish to place before you the more recent opinions of those who have made the subject a special study. These opinions are so at variance to the commonly accepted views of the question that they will come as a surprise to most of you, but they are so formed on careful observation and prolonged study as to be beyond contravention, and it follows that a complete revision of our methods of isolation seems inevitable. The two main conclusions that have been fairly drawn are:—

1. That hospital isolation, after long years of trial, has utterly failed in controlling either the incidence or mortality rate of scarlet fever.

2. That this disease has increased in prevalence almost pari passu with increased provision for its isolation.

These are the conclusions drawn by sanitarians in England who have spent a life time in the study of the question. In that country each county is divided into rural and urban districts over which Medical Health Officers are appointed. In probably one-half of these districts isolation hospitals have been erected, and in the government returns it has been found that those districts with isolation hospitals invariably have a higher percentage of cases and higher percentage of deaths than those districts without hospitals. While this seems somewhat paradoxical the facts admit of ready explanation. In dealing first with those districts without isolation hospitals it has been noted that an epidemic of infectious diseases arises with a fairly marked degree of regularity. Every four or five years, or sometimes longer, a great number of cases suddenly crop up, rigid home isolation is followed and the epidemic, after a varying time, subsides, to be followed by another period of almost complete immunity. Such in fact has been the experience of this city. Three years ago, both scarlet fever and diphtheria, were very prevalent; some of the cases were, at that time, treated in the hospitals, but many of the cases were taken care of at home, and it was only when the hospitals refused further admission, that the epidemic subsided, and now for three years we have enjoyed almost complete freedom from these two diseases. This circumstance of periodic outbreaks, and subsequent periods of immunity, has been noted repeatedly in dozens of health districts in England, in which no isolation hospitals existed. The disease in these epidemics is mild in its nature and the mortality low.

In the hospital districts, on the other hand, these diseases have been consistently prevalent, year after year, the form of the disease more malignant and the mortality higher. In accounting for this, at least, one factor is manifest in the "infecting case," which so frequently results from the aggregation of patients in hospital wards, patients, who, after their discharge from hospital, effuse infection and generate "return" cases; in fact, the hospital feeds itself with patients, and thus converts an epidemic disease into a continuous or endemic one. Of course, an effort is made in every case to render the patient and his clothing free from infection before his discharge; but in the case of scarlet fever, we have not as yet discovered the causative germ, and so we do not know the exact conditions under which it exists, the length of its life's history, nor is there any certain means of ascertaining whether the discharged patient is infected or not; in fact, it is impossible to fix a time, when infection after scarlet fever cases, and so it has been repeatedly observed, that a fresh series of cases arise in the home or neighbourhood, to which a discharged patient has been sent. For this reason these diseases are forever present, and once an isolation hospital has been established in a district, to cope with an epidemic, it is practically never afterwards able to close its doors or cease from its labours.

To appreciate the ensuing facts, it must be understood that the severity of all infectious diseases depends upon two factors, the virulence of the individual germ, and the strength or resistance of the patient. Germs differ in their strength, just as human beings do, and, as we may have a robust, powerful man, or a weakly, delicate one, so we may have a strong, violent germ, or a weak, almost harmless one. An infection with the former would induce a severe, probably fatal, attack of the disease, whereas, an infection with the latter would be followed by a mild attack. The second factor, the resistance of the patient, also comes into play; a strong, healthy man or child, exposed to infection by a weak germ, would probably not contract the disease at all, only the more delicate of those exposed would become ill, and so, in a general way, the varying severity of infectious diseases depends upon the variation in virulence of the germ, and the variation in the strength of the patient. It is from this fact that, in mixing up mild cases with severe cases in open wards, the symptoms of the former often become aggravated; the mild cases contract the more severe form, and, in fact, convalescents have been re-infected by a freshly admitted patient ill with infectious trouble in a more virulent state. For this reason the mortality in hospital districts is higher, as shown by statistical reports. It is segregation, and not aggregation, of patients that is desired, and this has so far been recognized by the French physicians, that in an endeavour to overcome this defect of hospital isolation, each patient in the hospitals of Paris is placed in a closed glass cubicle. In fact, an ordinary case of scarlet fever has a better chance of speedy recovery at home, if proper nursing is provided, and the risk of the infection spreading in the household, however poorly circumstanced it may be, is not nearly so great as is generally believed. For example, in the districts without hospitals, more than half the cases notified were single cases, that is, only one case in the household, which proves that effective isolation at home is possible, when supervised by an intelligent person. This disease is no longer characterized by its old terrors, and yet much of the old dread attaching to it remains. Thirty years ago, the reported mortality was estimated at from seven to ten per cent., but of late years it has only varied from one and a half to two per cent. In fact, the type of the disease has become so mild that many cases escape notification altogether, and herein lies, in a large measure, the explanation of the inefficiency of hospital isolation as a preventive measure. Virulent attacks may follow in those exposed to infection from a mild case, the germ of a mild case attaching itself to a susceptible person might engender a severe form of the disease; in this way great mischief is wrought by mild, unrecognized, ambulatory cases. In over fifty per cent. of initial cases in households, there has not been the semblance of any direct exposure to the infection of a notified case. In other words, the disease has been derived from an unascertained source, and so hospital isolation, or no hospital isolation, the real diffuser of infection, the transient, unnotified case, remains untouched.

In hospitals are placed not the patients who most commonly spread the disease but others who would in any case be kept under observation and more or less effectively isolated, at least from other households. Until some reliable method of locating unnotified cases is evolved, hospital isolation must obviously be inefficacious. Another important fact repeatedly noted is the incapacity of many children, who have successfully steered through the initial stages of an epidemic, to resist the "return" type of infection. A more virulent type of disease is fostered by the aggregation of scarlet fever patients in isolation hospitals, and so a child admitted with a mild attack, which the other children of the household were able to resist, becomes contaminated in the hospital with a more virulent germ, returns home after a varying time, diffuses the germ of a more virulent type, which this time is able to overcome the resistance of the other children and so a fresh series of cases develop. This sequence of events has been repeatedly observed in the quarter of a century that isolation hospitals have been on trial and has led the medical health officer of Sheffield to write "that our scarlet fever hospitals must be regarded as a last resort for those unfortunate patients who cannot be possibly treated in their homes."

From the foregoing fact it follows that houses from which patients went to hospital presented subsequent cases more often than those in which patients remained at home. Even before the removal of the patient the rest of the household have been exposed to infection, exposed in fact very often before the physician has been called in, and then whether fresh cases appear in the household or not does not depend on the removal of the patient, but on the resistance or state of health of the others in the family. No object is sequestering a patient at great cost in an isolation hospital after he has come in contact with the rest of the household; treatment can be as effectively carried out at home if a trained nurse is in attendance, and in addition the disturbance of removal, and the patient's usual dread of a hospital, have a depressing effect on the case.

Then again mistaken diagnosis sometimes occurs, the patient may be hurried away to the hospital, suffer the consequence of isolation and probably contract, or in any case brought into hourly contact with real infectious cases. This grave danger would be rendered impossible if the patient was intelligently isolated at home and the progress of the case carefully observed. Besides of what use would an ordinary isolation hospital be in the presence of an epidemic; no hospital of ordinary capacity could afford accommodation for all the cases. The plans for the proposed local hospital allow for between twenty and thirty beds, but no great purpose would be served in isolating twenty or thirty, if one hundred or more were affected in the city. In addition a very grave danger attaches to the isolation of cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria in the same hospital, the danger of "cross infection." The scarlet fever patient in his weakened condition might easily fall a prey to diphtheria, and the diphtheric patient might as easily contract scarlet fever, when both are kept under the same roof no matter how carefully otherwise kept apart. The danger is still further enhanced if we must at the same time afford accommodation for other infectious cases such as mumps, chicken pox, measles, etc. A patient would be fortunate indeed who could safely run the gamut of these additional infections.

These are some good points that practically all who have given the subject special attention are agreed upon. A medical investigator, officially appointed, looking into 25 000 cases of scarlet fever, reports adversely on hospitals. The same applies to diphtheria, the prevention and care of which rests upon the antitoxine treatment, and not hospital isolation. The British Medical Journal and the Lancet advocate the appointment of a Royal Commission to look into the whole question, as does also the Society of Medical Officers of Health and the Congress of the Royal Institute of Public Health. They ask the question whether isolation at very considerable cost to the community, of a disease in which no one can fix with certainty the time when a patient is free from infection, is worth the labour and expense involved.

The above facts apply to hospitals as they exist today. The fault may be with the system of administration and not be inherent in hospitals themselves. One can imagine the ideally conducted hospital, to which scarcely any of the above objections would be applied. Such a hospital would be on the cottage system, with a separate building and separate nursing staff for each class of infectious trouble, to have in fact, no communication whatever between the buildings allotted to the various diseases, the buildings to have terrazo or tile floors and polished cement walls to allow of frequent flusing with the hose and antiseptics. Each patient is to be kept separate from other patients to avoid infection. This might be done by giving each a private ward or enclosing him in a glass vehicle. Nurses also to be allotted to the mild cases and to be kept apart from those attending the more severe ones. Patients not to be discharged directly to their homes, but sent to convalescent institutions and kept there under observation for some time. Such a plan as this would be expensive in the extreme, but if adopted would probably overcome many of the objections raised against hospitals as particularly nowadays conducted. But there is no hope or expectation of the money being found for such an ideal place, and so to otherwise meet conditions as they exist. The following is an alternative:—

1. Active sanitary administration and effective method of disinfection.

2. Intelligent home isolation, the municipality to supply the nurse, and in diphtheria the antitoxine, in the case of indigent patients, and also to pay the wages to the breadwinner of the family and keep him at home to pay his board outside and allow him to continue at work.

3. In exceptional cases, in the homes of dressmakers, school teachers, hotels, etc., to have patient removed to a hospital tent, a number of which should be always available and placed under the care of a nurse and medical health officer, or attending physician; double walled tents with kitchen outfit are supplied for this purpose, are warm and comfortable, even in mid-winter and can be thoroughly disinfected after each case.

The arrangement of the fine points of this plan is left to the sanitary medical health officer. The equipment to accommodate in tents a few cases of each class of infectious diseases should always be immediately available; arrangements should be entered into with all resident nurses and a list of their addresses kept; a good supply of antitoxine should be always on hand, and so the details be perfected as to allow of prompt and decisive action on the appearance of the early cases. The cost to the municipality of this plan would be 1-4 to 1-3 the cost of maintaining an isolation hospital; such has been the result where the two methods have been compared. With a less cost and a more effective control of these diseases, I submit that we should be guided by the experience of those in a wide field and put into practice these more advanced measures.

The strongest and surest point in favor of "Salada" tea is quality. Never in the history of a product have the Canadian people given such a sweeping endorsement of merit as has been accorded "Salada." One out of every six Canadians drink it and this number is steadily increasing.

BIG SNOWSTORM CAME 38 YEARS AGO THIS APRIL

"This season may be a little backward," said an old resident last night, "but it doesn't compare with that of thirty-eight years ago. I remember that spring well, and no doubt many old citizens will also recall it when one of the incidents is recalled. Thirty-eight years ago last Friday, April, a foot and a half of snow fell and sprang a big surprise on everyone as the weather had been fine previous to the big snowstorm. The snow only lasted a day or so as the sun came out strong and it disappeared almost as quickly as it came."

ANOTHER ACCIDENT ON G. T. R. DELAYS TRAFFIC

Feright Train Jumped Track at Blizzard's Station Early This Morning—Three Cars Badly Wrecked

For the second time within a fortnight traffic has been delayed on the Peterborough-Belleville line of the G.T.R., by an accident on this road. The one this morning is somewhat more serious than that of a couple of weeks ago. However, fortunately, no one was hurt.

About two o'clock this morning a double-header freight train going east left the track at Blizzard's station, which is about fourteen miles from this city. The train consisted of a large number of cars and it was travelling at a pretty fast rate. The cause of the accident is attributed to the dropping of a brake beam. Four cars were thrown over on their side into the ditch, three of them being badly smashed. The ties too in the track were torn up. The auxiliary train from Lindsay, passed through the city this morning about 7 o'clock, en route to clear up the wreck.

TRAFFIC DELAYED.

This morning the train for Belleville went as far as the scene of the accident, transferring its passengers to the train from Belleville that was waiting on the east side of the derailed freight. Likewise the passengers from Belleville, took the train returning to Peterborough. The afternoon Belleville train did not leave until three o'clock, an hour behind scheduled time.

The loss to rolling stock is estimated at about $500.

FIRE BRIGADE QUESTION WAS AGAIN BEFORE THE COUNCIL

At a special meeting of the City Council last night a bylaw was passed fixing the city solicitor's salary [illegible] per year.

Two months' leave of absence was granted Ald. Morrow, who is going on a trip to Europe. Ald. Bradburn was appointed to act as chairman of the Finance Comittee during Ald. Morrow's absence.

Ald. Johnston brought up the question of the proposed change in the fire brigade. He pointed out that the establishment of a permanent fire brigade will save the mercantile interests in insurance 20 to 25 per cent., and the residential interests 5 to 10 per cent.

Ald. Morgan was doubtful if Ald. Johnston's statement was correct, and considerable discussion took place. No definite conclusion was arrived at.

A letter was received from Mr. G. M. Roger on behalf of Messrs. D. W. Dumble, G. Walter Greene, himself and others owning property bordering on Park street, north of McDonnel street, asking for sewer accommodation. They requested that the Park street sewer be extended northwards, or that the McDonnel street sewer be extended west to Park and then north Park to McDonnel.

The matter was referred to the Board of Works.

A letter was received from the Dickson Company asking for a sewer on Waterford street, and on London street east of Harvey street, and on Weller street from London to Dublin streets.

The letter was referred to the Board of Works.

A letter was received from Mr. Kovaleski asking when the sidewalk on Donegal street would be put down. It had been applied for, but had never been put down. This matter was referred to the Board of Works.

Those present were Mayor Rush, and Ald. Johnston, Tovey, Elliott, Morgan, Buller, Bradburn, Gillespie, Neil McIntyre, Morrow and Phelan.

The convention is expected to be a large one and prominent Baptist leaders in young people's work from Ontario and Quebec and the United States will deliver addresses.

Peterborough will be represented at the convention by Mr. W. Garbutt, president of the BYPU. of the Murray street Baptist church; Miss Amy Hardwicke, the secretary; and Messrs. John Hardwicke and Jos. Ellis, also members of the Murray street BYPU.

Mr. Lincoln Brace will be the representative from Park street.

MEMORIES FOR BIBLE VERSES

This morning in one of the business places up town, a lady and gentleman were disputing the statement of each other that they had attended church Sunday. To prove it, the only way seemed to be to give the texts used by the preachers at the services attended.

The gentleman astonished those present by giving the text of both morning and evening services he had attended, and thought he had the lady beaten. What was his surprise when the young lady gave chapter and verses exactly, that were the subject of study at the afternoon Bible class, and then gave the evening text of her pastor. Such a record would be hard to beat by most church goers.

SEE "PARSIFAL" EASTER MONDAY

Wagner's Mystic Festival Play at Grand Opera House

One of the most notable events in the history of the stage in this country, was the grand and magnificent spectacle of Wagner's world-renowned mystic drama of "Parsifal," witnessed at the Metropolitan Theatre in New York City.

Scholars and students, musicians and artists, and all lovers of the refined and beautiful flocked in thousands, from all parts of the new world, to witness this wonderful work.

The press and clergy vied with each other in extolling its many beauties. The intelligent public at large praised and lauded it without exception. "Parsifal" was then and always will remain so in the mind of the thousands that witnessed it, by far the most magnificent and beautiful spectacle ever placed upon the stage or presented to the public. It was not limited in name to "opera." Even talented musicians referred to it as a "music drama" or "grand spectacle." It was beyond the ordinary opera in its influence, impression, action and speech, because of itself it possessed such supreme dramatic qualities, such a gorgeous environment and so human and soul a story in its plot and theme, that from first to last the observer was thrilled with its gradual development and its overwhelming climaxes. Nothing like it, from a dramatic standpoint was ever seen. It is hard to conceive that anything approaching it, in dramatic intensity, will ever be witnessed again.

These statements can best be understood by the many of our readers who are more or less familiar with the mythical stories of the "Holy Grail," made famous throughout the world by the most renowned of our poets and scholars. It is a theme that has stirred the hearts and souls of men for ages. It will continue to do so for ages to come.

Messrs. Martin and Emery's Company will present this famous festival play at the Grand Opera House, Monday, April 20th.

This engagement will be marked by the unusual hour of commencement which is promptly at 7.45. Auditors should be in their seats at that time as the darkened auditorium will prevent seating anyone during the first act.

VOL. LVI., No. 89. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15, 1908 TEN CENTS PER WEEK

MEN WHO ATTACKED KING ALFONSO CONDEMNED TO DIE

Other Anarchists go to Prison for Long Terms—Exciting Scenes in Court—News of the World Briefly Told.

Barcelona, April 15.—Sentences were handed down yesterday upon Jean Rull and his accomplices, who were found guilty of complicity in the recent series of bomb explosions and Anarchist outrages, including the attempts to assassinate King Alfonso at Madrid and Paris. Jean Rull, Herman Rull and Maria Querrelto were sentenced to death. John Rull was given seventeen years, Amadeo Trille twenty-four years, and Francisco Triguaros fourteen years at hard labor. Raymond Burguet was sentenced to imprisonment for four months. Perello and Perals were acquitted.

After the sentences had been pronounced Burguet's mother slipped a knife into the hand of Herman Rull, with which he tried to commit suicide, but was prevented by the guards.

Three dynamite bombs were found in Angel's Square yesterday.

Killed at Regina.

Regina, April 15.—Herbert Clarke, brakeman of the C.P.R. yard crew here, had his right leg taken off yesterday morning as the result of an accident. His foot caught in a guard rail as he was coupling cars and the wheel ran over his leg. He died a few hours later.

Smallpox Stamped Out.

Brockville, April 15.—The smallpox epidemic in Brockville, extending over a period of four months, has at last been completely stamped out.

The quarantine on the last patient was raised yesterday. The records show a total of 79 cases without a fatality.

Great Dam Collapses.

Helena, Mont., April 15.—Hauser Lake dam across the Missouri River, 150 miles below here, gave way yesterday afternoon with a great crash and precipitated from 25 to 30 feet of water over the dismembered structure. So far as known no lives have been lost, but it may result in the destruction of much property between the dam site and Great Falls.

Thrown From His Horse.

Kingston, April 15.—Gunner McKerracher, R.C.H.A., was thrown from a horse in parade yesterday and received serious injuries. He had a very narrow escape from having his head crushed by the gun carriage.

Infant Burned to Death.

Brockville, April 15.—At Ogdensburg the five-months-old baby of William Dishaw was burned to death in a fire that destroyed the residence. The mother left the house for a short time to go to a grocery.

Advocates Empire Assembly.

Melbourne, April 15.—(C.A.P.)—At a meeting of the Imperial Federation League, Premier Deakin presiding, Sir John Quick advocated a quinquennial grand assembly for the Empire, each self-governing state having five representatives. The assembly should deal with questions requiring uniform action and its recommendation would not be legal until ratified by the local Legislature. The scheme is criticized as impracticable.

Revolutionist Sentenced.

New York, April 15.—Joseph Giordani, an agent of the firm of revolutionists, was sentenced yesterday to six months at hard labor in Sing Sing Prison, for having counterfeit Haytien money in his possession.

He was placed in the custody of U. S. Marshal Henkel, until May 15. Giordani was having the Haytien notes printed in New York to finance a revolution.

A Year For Each Dollar.

Quebec, April 15.—Two years in the penitentiary was meted out to Joseph Simard in the Police Court yesterday morning for the theft of the sum of $5. Simard is a well-known character to the police and has appeared on several occasions before this court for theft, doing various terms in jail.

Richard Hall Acquitted.

Vancouver, B.C., April 15.—A Dawson despatch says Richard Hall has been acquitted of the charge of stealing gold dust to the amount of forty thousand dollars from a Yukon river steamboat last summer, which was consigned to Seattle banks by persons in Fairbanks, Alaska.

Locked Up the Bailiff.

Galt, April 15.—Yesterday Bailiff Bawtenheimer of the Division Court, went with Landlord James Bond to execute a rent warrant. He was proceeding to distrain an organ in the house, on West Main street, when the occupants, two women, decoyed him into an inner room and locked him up. The bailiff was a prisoner for several hours, pending the arrival of the help that effected his release. He left the house without taking possession of the organ and moving it out.

Hit by Falling Limb.

Parry Sound, April 15.—Alexander Bonder, a Russian, working in the lumber camp of the William Peter estate at McKellar, was struck by the limb of a falling tree on Monday and seriously injured. He was brought here and taken to the Parry Sound Hospital, where it was found that the lower part of his body was paralyzed from the effect of the blow.

THREE MORE BODIES FOUND

Discovered in Cellars After Disastrous Fire at Chelsea.

Boston, April 15.—Search of ruins yesterday disclosed three bodies in the cellars of destroyed houses, making a total of six known dead. One was that of a man, and the other two women. There was nothing that would lead to identification.

Daniel Ross, whose home in Third street was burned, was arrested on a charge of incendiarism. The watchman of a lumber yard on Everett avenue claims that he found Ross trying to set a pile of lumber on fire during the night. The watchman locked Ross in a small room and yesterday notified the police, who took Ross to the police station. Ross was brought before Judge Bosson in the District Court later in the day and held for a continued hearing. In default of $500 bail he was locked up.

State Senator Hall of Revere, who represents the Chelsea district, announced yesterday that he would introduce in the Legislature a petition with an accompaying bill, asking for the appointment of a commission of three men, one of whom shall be the mayor of Chelsea, to govern the city for three years, in order to facilitate the task of rebuilding. Similar action in the case of Galveston and San Francisco are cited as precedents.

Insurance Will Be Paid.

New York, April 15.—The presidents and managers of the fire insurance companies here accepted the news of the disastrous fire at Chelsea, Mass., with uniform good nature and confidence.

Estimates of the total loss varied from $4,000,000 to $6,500,000, but, on all sides it was said that there was absolutely no doubt of prompt cash settlements, without discount.

Wants Four Battleships.

Washington, April 15.—Compressed into what would be not more than a ten-minute speech on the floor of Congress, President Roosevelt yesterday urged that body in a special message to provide for the construction of four battleships of the largest and most approved type, at once.

The arguments of the President to impress his insistence on this naval program were few, but calculated to be effective. China was held up as an example of the "peace at any price" doctrine, and Great Britain has having the naval policy to be emulated.

The Port Arthur Chronicle says Hon. Adam Beck may sit for the Port Arthur riding.

George Karr, of Pickering, ex-manager of the Western Bank there, is dead, aged 80.

IS UNABLE TO SECURE WORK

Englishman Arrived Here a Few Days Ago With Family—No Employment

Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Green and two sons arrived in Peterborough a day or so ago from Reading, Berkshire, England. Mr. Green has been unable to secure any work in this city. He is a brick maker by trade and holds a reference from a large firm in the Old Country. He is industrious and respectable looking, and no doubt will make a good citizen. The family is at present boarding on Charlotte street.

TO SPEAK IN PETERBOROUGH

Mrs. Walton and Miss Kingland to Give Addresses at Bethany Tabernacle

Miss Ringland, of the South African General mission, will, accompany Mrs. Walton to this city, and will address all interested next Monday afternoon at Bethany Tabernacle, while Mrs. Walton will speak at night. The mission of which Rev. Andrew Murray is president, is interdenominational, and should appeal to the Christian public generally. Both ladies have been addressing large congregations in various denominations in the States recently and will no doubt interest and profit many in Peterborough.

ON CHARGE OF WIFE BEATING

County Constable Cochrane Went to Harvey to Arrest a Man for the Offence

County Constable Cochrane went back to Harvey this morning to arrest William Dickson, who it is alleged has been beating and ill-treating his wife. The complainant is Alfred Sandford of Madoc, a brother of Mrs. Dickson. It is expected that Mr. Cochrane will return tonight with his prisoner, who will likely appear before County Magistrate Edmison tomorrow.

John Moffatt fell down a shaft in the Beardmore factory at Acton and was killed.

THEY DRANK TO THE TWO FLAGS

Emperor and British Captain Exchange Compliments.

Berlin, April 15.—A despatch to The Lokalanzieger from its Corfu correspondent, dated Monday, says that Emperor William during the course of a luncheon given in honor of the officers of the British battleship Implicable, made the following toast:

"I drink to our two flags and I wish that they may ever be united in the welfare of the world's peace."

Captain Kerr, commander of the Implicable, whose father was Admiral Lord Walter Kerr, in response, replied:

"My father used to say with reference to Your Majesty that God had created a great emperor out of a man who had become a great admiral."

Lonely, He Ends His Life.

Yorkton, April 15.—William Clark, M.A., an honor graduate in mathematics at Toronto University, committed suicide by blowing off the side of his head with a shot gun and afterwards cutting his throat. It is supposed the lonely life of homesteading, which he lived for many years, caused the rash act.

A Galician, in his employ, heard the shot and ran to the house, where he saw Clark standing in the doorway with a letter in his hand. Clark went in the house and a second shot was fired.

Sent Up For Trial.

Windsor, April 15.—Lorne Stoneberg, Walter Morneau and Joseph Lesperance, charged with theft of butter from a Pere Marquette car, were committed for trial yesterday by Magistrate Bartlet.

William Morgan, charged with receiving stolen goods from the prisoners, pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence. Morgan is expected to give material evidence for the crown.

BRITISH HOUSE HAS ADJOURNED

Sir Gilbert Parker Enters Protests Against U.S. Hops in England.

London, April 15.—After a brief sitting yesterday Parliament adjourned until April 27, for the Easter recess.

Sir Gilbert Parker tried to galvanize the House of Commons into a semblance of activity by urging action to stop the alleged dumping of American hops into England, but Mr. Lloyd-George, who made his first appearance as Chancellor of the Exchequer, pointed out, in reply, that Sir Gilbert's figures were greatly exaggerated.

In any case, he said, the matter was now a subject of enquiry by a commission and nothing could be done until this commission had made its report.

Fireman and Tramp Killed.

Helena, Mont., April 15.—A special from Glendive says that the North Coast Limited train on the Northern Pacific was ditched yesterday by running into a burned bridge. Fireman Gustave and an unknown tramp were killed. Engineer Waddingham was seriously injured. The air brakes saved the engine from plunging into the gulch by a narrow margin.

Another Italian Murder.

New York, April 15.—Another Italian murder in Brooklyn came to light yesterday, when the body of an unknown man was found in a vacant lot on the southern outskirts of the city. The victim was an Italian.

He had been strangled and the rope with which it was done was still knotted about his neck. Another rope tied around his head and through the mouth acted as a gag. The head and upper portion of the body was covered by two burlay rugs. The coroner is investigating, but no clue to the murderer has been discovered.

THESE MEMBERS SAT ALL NIGHT

Prince Edward Island Legislature Has Stormy Session.

Charlottetown, April 15.—Prince Edward Island Legislature had an all-night session over a dispute concerning indemnities, and some hot expressions were used. Members now receive $104, and certain perquisites bring the maximum to $196.

Last year on the closing day of the session, after the estimates were passed, Provincial Secretary Newbery suggested that a fixed indemnity of $200 be paid, covering everything. Premier Peters agreed, provided the consent of the Opposition leader, Mr. Matheson, was obtained.

Newbery saw Matheson, who consented, but later called on Newbery and withdrew his consent. Nothing more was heard of the incident until the newspapers Tuesday declared that all the Legislature excepting four Opposition members, had accepted the $200 indemnity.

Newbery was called to the bar of the House and examined under oath, but Matheson was refused the right to cross-examine.

Ditched Car and Shot Conductor.

Birmingham, Ala., April 15.—Highwaymen, supposed to be negroes, derailed a South Bessemer electric car shortly after midnight Monday night at the Woodward crossing, and when the motorman and conductor went forward to investigate they were fired upon from behind a pile of logs. Conductor Woods was killed instantly. The men escaped.

Passed Franchise Bill.

Copenhagen, April 15.—By a vote of 64 to 35, the Folkething yesterday passed the Government franchise bill. This measure already had been adopted by the Landsthing. Under it all taxpayers, both male and female, over 25 years of age, and all married women whose husbands are taxpayers, are entitled to vote in all communal elections.

MORE GRAFT CHARGES MADE IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Mr. Bennett Exposes Pugsley's Method of Awarding Contracts—Says Fraud Was Connived at—Minister Attempts to Defend Deal—Tilt With Dr. Sproule—Conmee's Virtuous Wrath—Labor Member Attacks Government Immigration Policy.

Ottawa, April 15.—Mr. Bennett moved adjournment yesterday afternoon to discuss a question of urgent public importance relating to the dredging at Tiffin and Victoria harbor. He said that according to statements of Mr. Pugsley it was proposed to let contracts for dredging at these points without calling for tenders, at prices for which the same work was performed last year. Mr. Bennett said he knew something of the prices of last year, and he read from the report of the Civil Service Commission evidence that they were extravagant. In the past two years the firm of Boone & Co. had been paid over $2,000,000, Great Lakes Dredging Co., $1,350,000, and the Owen Sound Dredging Co., $350,000. And Mr. Pugsley had blandly informed the House that he had secured consent of his colleagues to giving contracts for work amounting to half a million dollars without calling for tenders.

Mr. Bennett challenged the Minister to produce the original tenders, upon which he would base his figures for the work. It would be seen that there were two tenders, one from the Midland Dredging Co. of which F. W. Grant is secretary-treasurer, and Penetanguishene Dredging Co., of which Dr. Spohn is secretary-treasurer, and both tenders were in the same handwriting.

For work at Midland the Grant Co. tenders at 53 cents and Spohn Co. at 57 cents. But there was a third tender, from the son of the member for Ottawa for 30 cents. Mr. Bennett charged that there was connivance and fraud between the Grant and Spohn companies, and he challenged the Minister or Prime Minister to have tenders laid on table.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared he had no authority to order the production of the papers, but Mr. Bennett thought Parliament was big enough to do it. Finally Mr. Bennett sent a page after the papers.

The whole thing, said Mr. Bennett, hinged on whether the scows were filled. The country paid inspectors who were never there. This had been proved in one case, and no one had been prosecuted for conniving at fraud.

Mr. Pugsley pleaded that the transaction was before the public accounts committee, and therefore could not be discussed in the House.

Mr. Bennett declared that the Midland matter had not been before the committee; papers had been moved for and brought down and in due course an investigation would be started.

Mr. Speaker ruled that if the matter was before the committee the discussion was out of order, but the decision was not accepted without protest. Mr. Lake pointed out that it would be possible to prevent discussion on any expenditures by having a supporter of the Government moving for the production of the papers before the public accounts committee.

After further discussion Mr. Speaker gave his ruling, declaring that if the matter was not being investigated by the committee, Mr. Benett was at liberty to go on.

Dr. Pugsley admitted the importance of the subject, and was not sorry that Mr. Bennett had brought it up. Dredging was becoming more and more expensive, and he believed that if the Government had not a plant it should have. It had been found that in the majority of cases it was advisable to pay for dredging work by scow measurement, and therefore the Government had to depend upon the honesty of the inspectors. There had been cases in which inspectors had not done their duty. One man appointed as inspector employed another to do the work. He was dismissed. The Minister said he had taken precautions to secure the full measure of work for pay given.

Mr. Blain of Peel expressed his strong dissent from the new doctrine laid down by the Minister of Public Works.

The Auditor-General had protested against the system of giving out large works without tender and contract. The Minister of Public Works in extending tenders of last year was but encouraging the system of collusion between dredging companies under which the contract was originally let. It was a system that the people of Canada would not endorse.

Dr. Sproule warned the Government that it was embarking upon a dangerous course. It was to prevent awarding of contracts in the fashion favored by the Minister that the statute had been passed enacting that a Minister "shall invite tenders by public advertisement for the execution of such work."

Dr. Sproule and the suave Mr. Pugsley had a verbal tilt at the evening session. Dr. Sproule was trying to get the attention of the Minister, who a portion of the time was engaged in conversation with F. B. Carvell. He stopped several times and at last he protested.

"If he had the instincts of a gentleman," said Dr. Sproule, "he would extend the courtesy of listening to what I have to say. I am talking of his Department."

The Speaker ruled the expression out of order.

Dr. Sproule withdrew, adding, "But I wish I had some other words to express the same sentiments."

Mr. Pugsley complained of Dr. Sproule's exhibition of temper, and asked for a ruling as to whether he was to be compelled to look at a speaker when listening to his address.

Mr. Speaker did not think that was a question on which the point could be raised.

George Taylor instanced a harbor in the Province of Quebec where a contractor got 75 cents a yard for dredging and sub-let the work for 18 cents. Not only that, the same contractor got 32 cents for filling in for a wharf, the scrapings being taken out of one side and dumped down on the other side of the dredge.

Mr. Conmee replied in heated fashion. Referring to Mr. Bennett's attack on the dredging contracts, he termed it slander and misrepresentation. As he proceeded to drive at the political record of the member for East Simcoe, he was called to order for wandering from the subject.

Mr. Conmee denounced the late Conservative Government for boodling and expressed the conviction that the party would never be returned to power.

Robert Stewart arose and explained that there was no such company as the "Stewart" Dredging Co. He himself had no interest in the Dominion Dredging Co. The insinuation that because he had a son a member of that company it had secured Government contracts, was false and unworthy.

This ended the debate.

Before the orders of the day, Dr. Sproule read a despatch from Washington that treaties between Great Britain and the United States relating to fisheries and boundaries had been presented by President Roosevelt to the Senate.

Dr. Sproule thought it strange that the Government had not come into possession of the documents.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said copies should be here soon. As soon as received they would be laid before the House.

The House at midnight adjourned over the Easter recess, to meet again on Tuesday. It had been intended to have a division on the anti-immigrant bonus resolution, but so many speeches were in prospect that it was decided to allow the debate to go over until next week.

Mr. Verville (Liberal-Labor, Montreal) resuming the debate on Mr. Monk's motion to abolish bonuses, said that dealing with it as a business proposition, while the excuse might have been offered in times past for the bonus system, it had certainly resulted in speculation in human flesh, and should be discontinued. It had enabled the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and other associations to flood the country with more sufferers and more beggars. Canada, as a field for settlement, was so well known that a bonus was no longer necessary.

Under the bonus system there had been no solicitation of immigrants for the booking agents instructed all passengers to say they were farmers. The result of this had been the armies of unemployed who had gone begging through the leading cities last winter. With all due respect to the west, said Mr. Verville, there was no element of fairness in the fact that two-thirds of the time of the House of Commons was taken up in discussing western affairs. The great cities of the east were entitled to more consideration, and they were being made the dumping ground for the indigent surplus immigration. Instead of granting bonuses to booking agents the Government should send to the old country a number of the successful farmers of the west, who could explain conditions in Canada and encourage the right class of immigrants to come to this country.

Mr. Verville read a number of resolutions passed by trades and labor organizations in Canada, protesting against assisted immigration.

Mr. Miller (Liberal, South Grey) spoke at length in praise of German-Canadians, but avoided discussion of the bonus question.

Dr. Chisholm contended that the main consideration was to get good people. There would be no difficulty to fill up the west. The difficulty in the end would be to get land for our own children. For seven years homesteads had been held for the Doukhobors, but one of Dr. Chisholm's neighbors, who had fallen ill after taking up a homestead, could not have it held for seven months.

Mr. McIntyre of Perth moved the adjournment of the debate, and at midnight the House rose for the Easter recess.

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE WAS PROROGUED YESTERDAY

Lieut.-Governor Gives Assent to Legislation Passed—His Honor Compliments the Government—Redistribution Bill Fair and Just—Royal Visit.

Toronto, April 15.—No one who saw the broad grin that spread over the Assembly yesterday afternoon could doubt what was the feature of the prorogation ceremony.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor read the speech from the throne with his usual nice emphasis and dignified elocution. Critical ears listened eagerly for the flutter in the breathing, a hesitance in accent, a tremor in tone, when the passage occurred dealing with the redistribution bill. Clear and calm and sonorous the complete vindication of the Government rolled serenely forth.

"I am confident that the measure will commend itself to the people of the province as fair and just and free from political partisanship——"

And then the Assembly wore its quiet grin.

The ceremony was not less stately than on former years and the attendance, probably on account of the beautiful day, was better than for some years past.

Fifteen guns from B Battery exploded at 3 o'clock, and Premier Whitney entered the Chamber with Lady Clark on his arm. Only eight ladies sat on the floor of the House, including, besides her ladyship, Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. Pyne, Miss Foy, Mrs. Crawford, Miss Crawford, Miss Ferguson and Mrs. Hugh Clark. Justice Britton sat opposite in venerable state. Other guests sitting on the benches were Principal McLaren, President Falconer and Col. Belcher. The galleries were barely half full.

The members present were the Speaker, Premier Whitney, Hon. Mr. Foy, Hon. W. J. Hanna, Hon. Mr. Matheson, Hon. Dr. Pyne, Hon. Dr. Reaume, Hon. Mr. Monteith, W. K. McNaught, J. H. Carnegie, I. B. Lucas, Col. Hugh Clark, Hon. Adam Beck, T. E. Bradburn, G. W. Niely, Charles Calder, C. C. Hodgins, Herbert Lennox, C. R. McKeown, A. McCowan, J. Torrance and Dr. Godfrey. Hon. A. G. MacKay, C. N. Smith (Sault) and Allan Studholme sat together on the front Opposition bench, the only representatives of their parties. A. C. Pratt and E. E. Fraser appeared after the ceremony.

Col. Delamere, the clerk assistant, read over the list of 146 acts passed by the Legislature, and got through in ten minutes. The clerk, Arthur H. Sydere, announced that they had been assented to "in His Majesty's name."

The Speaker addressed his honor declaring that the House approached him "with sentiments of unfailing loyalty and devotion to His Majesty."

The Speech From the Throne.

His honor then read his speech, as follows:

"In bringing to a conclusion this, the fourth session of the eleventh Parliament of Ontario, I desire to convey to you my appreciation of the earnestness and thoroughness with which you have applied yourselves to your public duties. During the short time that has elapsed since this Parliament was chosen—a little over three years—the number of legislative enactments placed upon the statute book has been so many, and their character so important, as to constitute a distinct era in the Parliamentary history of this province. I have therefore to thank you for this large amount of beneficial legislation, as well as to express the hope that it will enure to the moral, the educational, and the material advancement of the people in every walk of life.

"It is reassuring to observe already the signs of the revival of agricultural and industrial activity throughout the province, after a period which, owing to the financial stringency elsewhere, has been especially trying alike to labor and capital.

"Again it has been made clear that constant watchfulness is necessary to check all attempts to evade the jurisdiction of this and other provinces through the medium of federal legislation. It is to be hoped that a permanent understanding will yet be reached whereby this menace may be removed.

"I have observed with satisfaction that a substantial portion of the increasing revenues of this province has been set aside to assist education in the urban schools. Following as it does the liberal provision recently made for rural schools and for higher education, there is reason to believe that we are in the midst of an educational revival which will be far-reaching in its beneficial results.

"With pleasure I have learned that during the present year His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales will visit the City of Quebec. While we regret that the arrangements may not permit His Royal Highness to come to this province, we will rejoice in welcoming him to Canada, especially because he comes to take part in the celebration of the 300th birthday of Canada by the nationalization of the battlefields of Quebec — a purpose which commands the enthusiastic support of all patriotic Canadians.

"In dismissing you from your duties, I desire again to thank you for the great public service you have rendered, and join with you in expressing the hope that the blessing of Almighty God will rest upon our country and our people."

Hon. W. J. Hanna then declared that it was his honor's desire that the Legislative Assembly be prorogued "and is accordingly prorogued."

Boy Shot and Killed.

Brockville, April [illegible]—The 18-year-old son of John [illegible], who resides at Richville, was shot and instantly killed by the accidental discharge of his gun. The boy was hunting muskrats with several companions when the tragedy occurred.

WRECK IS NOW CLEARED AWAY

Auxiliary Returned From Blezzard's Station Early This Morning.

The auxiliary passed through the city about three o'clock this morning on its return to Lindsay after clearing up the wreck at Blezzard's station. Considering the large amount of debris, the work was done remarkably quick. The Belleville train was delayed several hours again last night not arriving here until midnight.

HIGH PRAISE FOR "CRYSTAL"

Correspondent of the Review Speaks Highly of Local Place of Amusement

An esteemed correspondent writes to the Review giving his impressions of the city and says;

"I have been visiting your city for about two months and have read at different times articles in your newspapers about the different amusements in your city, and one not long ago was on 'the Crystal,' which charges 5c admission. I have visited thatplace of amusement at least once or twice a week regularly and the person who wrote the last article about this place must have had some mental derangement, as I have travelled from Canada to Mexico, from Maine to California, and as well all through the provinces of England, Paris and Germany, and I can assure you I have never been in a place of amusement that gives as much for the money.

"I attended the Crystal last night and witnessed two of the best pictures I ever looked at and in my time I have looked at several, possibly more than anyone in your city, as I may say I am a fiend on the 'picture shows,' but 'The Two Orphans' and 'An Eye for an Eye' are two of the best subjects I have ever seen and it is safe to say that will witness these same pictures every day."

The United States fleet has left San Diego and is now on its way to San Francisco.

ENDED LIVES IN N.Y. HOTELS

A Day's Tradegies in the Big Metropolis.

New York, April 15.—Three men killed themselves in New York hotels yesterday.

E. F. Dennison shot himself in the head and died in his room at the Hollander.

Joseph Christopher, a cigar salesman, who had been ill with consumption, shot himself in his room at the Hotel Albany.

The third suicide was Charles Fisher, who was found dead in his room in Mills' Hotel No. 2. He had shot himself through the head.

It was learned that Dennison's home was in Bradford, England. He left a note in which he said he had suffered severely from insomnia.

Impaled on Meat Hooks.

Winnipeg, April 15.—John Goer, who was fatally injured by being impaled on meat hooks in J. Y. Griffith & Co.'s pork factory Monday, died yesterday morning. He leaves a wife and family.

Pumped Out; Life Saved.

Kingston, April 15.—A farmer named John Thompson, Verona, took a dose of poison in mistake for medicine, and was only saved from death by the use of the stomach pump.

COURT STANLEY HELD MEETING

Committee Appointed to Arrange for Annual Outing.

There was a large turnout of members at the regular meeting of Court Stanley, A.O.F., last night. Chief Ranger Bro. T. Hendry, occupied the chair, threecandidateswere duly initiated into the order. The new proposed bylaws were given the second reading and fully discussed and approved of by the court, and will be accepted after the third reading. The bylaw will then be submitted to the High Court for their approval. Several visitorswere present and gave speeches, which were fully enjoyed by the members, also Bro. Johnston and Record gave very encouraging remarks on the welfare of the court. A committee was appointed to arrange for the annual outing and report at the next meeting. Those on the committee are; Bro. T. Hendry, R. J. McWilliams, S. Adam and C. C. Mowry,

More proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures sick women.

Miss M. R. Morin, 335 Ontario St., Montreal, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was in very poor health and doctored for months, receiving very little benefit. I had lost all ambition, was despondent, and subject to dizzy spells and painful periods each month.

"A friend suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as the proper medicine for me. I procured a bottle of this remedy and began taking, and before it was finished, I felt so much better that I continued its use and gave it a thorough test, with the result I am to-day well and a much healthier girl than I was three years ago. I have no more painful periods, dizziness or nervous troubles."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15, 1908.

ANARCHY AT OTTAWA

It takes time to read, mark and learn such a report as that now known to history as the Civil Service Commissioners' report. It is the report of all reports par excellence. We have read it, we have marked it (nearly every line of it), and we are learning it, but as for digesting it, that requires time. Robbery, waste and lack of conscience, aided, abetted and concealed by deliberate lack of system, are the crowning infamies of our government as "administered" at Ottawa at the present time. "Wine, women and graft" should displace "Dieu et mon droit" on the Canadian Coat-of-Arms as the national motto. Let us take for the present just one example of our meaning. "Your Commissioners have to confess that the general conclusions which they have formed regarding the administration of the department are most unfavorable," and again, "The political pull has much to do with this." But they barely touched the fringe of it all. The Department of the Interior, the home of Sifton, Oliver, Burroughs, Turriff, and the timber stealers with its more than five hundred employees was not even looked at! Truly great is Diana of the Ephesians.

RAILROAD EARNINGS

"People in London who hold stock in the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk Railways watch eagerly for the weekly publication of the earnings. If a decrease, the shareholders mourn silently, whilst more than one stockbroking establishment splash out howls of execration in their market letters. Sometimes they even thirst for the gore of the directors.

"The railways earnings for the last ten days in March show a big decrease. As compared with the same period in 1907, the combined decline of the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk amounts to more than half a million dollars—a decrease of $295,000 on the Canadian Pacific and $240,000 on the Grand Trunk. The shrinkage is visible in both passenger and freight receipts." — The Monetary Times.

The last edition of the Monetary Times contains the above extract in an article on Railroad earnings. The Monetary Times makes as much of an apology for the condition of things as possible and as a financial paper, is certainly not in favor of depreciating the country or trade conditions, but it can do nothing against these figures. The fall in customs receipts has been heavy too. The idea of trying to head depression off by borrowing is suicidal. Like a man who has just raised money on a mortgage we may "do things" for a short time but—There is no doubt that the failure to bonus Canada with G.T.P. national transcontinental money has been a great blow. There is very little else left but to get out. However it may be satisfactory to some of the Liberal party if not to the country generally to know that before going the people are being bled white through the departments at Ottawa. A rake-off of 20 to 30 per cent on all articles purchased by and for the government is an excellent arrangement for the crooks. This is what the Examiner refers to probably when it points out (not by statistics but by exclamation points) the vast extent to which the Laurier Government is doing (well) for the farmer. Is it any wonder that the estimates for this year are nearly three times what they were in the last year of Conservative rule. However there is still something left for the Liberals to keep in power for. The farmers have yet a little money left and although all the timber limits have been blanketted there are fishing rights in Nogey's Creek still remaining but we expect to hear by any mail that it has been discovered that they too have gone to a Grit heeler. But as the Yankee said "What is the good of a country if you can't realize on it." Away with decent highfalutin politics," let us "sit forward and fall till," as an old Liberal used to say, "Practical politics," is the Liberal heelers' watchword.

'WARE THE CONFIDENCE MAN

The man who draws up alongside of you, and in response to your shrewdly-put questions gives you the information you want, is fooling you nine times out of ten. Let anyone try it for himself. People will take in any old yarn and spin it out to twice the length to some one else. We have in mind the action of a certain gang, which no matter how often it is beaten flat, comes up smiling and explains everything to its own advantage. It is a very common subterfuge but, strange to say, is just as effective as ever. We have all the weakness of "knowing it all," and of being fond of mystery and of posing as the "I told you so" of life. Well! dear reader, give it up for this election at least, and when you see the turtle on its back, remember that it really did not get in that position of its own accord, and as a proof of what it can do at any moment if it choose.

FOR EDUCATION

The Whitney Government has extended liberal treatment to the schools and to the University of Toronto. The legislative grant to rural schools has risen from $123,033 in 1905 to $381,843 in 1908. That is to say, this particular appropriation has been more than trebled in order that the boy and girl on the farm and in the country village may have a better education.—Toronto News.

The Whitney Government has bent its best energies to the cause of education. There can be no comparison between the starving, devious, uncertain policy of the late unlamented Ross Administration, and that of Mr. Whitney. If you don't believe it ask the University authorities, ask the graduates and undergraduates, ask the headmasters of collegiate institutes and high schools, ask the heads of public schools, and last but not least, ask the trustees and teaching staff. It was inconceivable that a government calling itself a government could neglect education the way the last two administrations in Ontario have done, the last being always "first and worst." It has been urged that it was impossible to provide money for education and rake-offs too. We agree. But then surely the Province might have been allowed a small share in its own funds. However we may well rest satisfied that the election came on when it did, for apart from all other considerations, in the case of education alone we were in for a cruel fall. Publishers' rings, schoolbook rings, coal rings, mining land rings, timber limit rings, all had us "by the neck." The province has breathed freely ever since. The saving in the price of school books has meant much to the average citizen.

"MY VALET" HAS CHANGED HANDS

Mr. Bruce Rickey is Now Conducting the Business

Mr. Bruce Rickey has taken over from Wesley Bros., the business of "My Valet," and will conduct it in the future. The business is in a flourishing condition, and should continue to prosper under Mr. Rickey's efficient management. The same staff is being retained and patrons of the establishment are assured of the same excellent service as was given by the former proprietors.

REPORTS OF THE COMMITTEES

Arrangements for Missionary Institute Were Presented

The Missionary Institute Committees met last evening in the Y.M.C.A. hall. Rev. H. J. Keith presided and reports from the billeting and publicity committees were presented. Everything is going ahead nicely and the institute is bound to be a success. The meetings will commence on May 4th, and it is expected that several hundred delegates will be present from points within a radius of fifty miles of Peterborough.

THE REPORT OF MR. J. A. RUDDICK

Dairy and Cold Storage Matters are Gone into Very Fully

The annual report of J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner, has just come to hand in a volume of 174 pages. It deals with the work of four important divisions of the Department of Agriculture, namely, dairying, fruit, extension of markets and cold storage, and is well illustrated with half tones, and contains maps showing the various fruit growing districts of the Dominion.

In the section devoted to dairying the Commissioner reviews the dairy industry and gives some interesting figures bearing on the trade. A large amount of space is devoted to a complete report of the two testing associations. A review of the apple industry of Canada by Mr. McNeill is a feature of the section devoted to fruit and the working of the Fruit Marks Act is dealt with at some length.

The methods which are employed to improve the handling of perishable products receive considerable attention and the report shows what is being done along this line.

Under the head of Cold Storage the various services are described and some general information on the subject is also given.

There has been prepared along with this report, but published separately a map showing the approximate location of all the cheese factories and creameries in Canada. The report makes interesting and instructive reading for any person connected with the industries touched upon. Copies may be secured by application to the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner, Ottawa.

TALES TOLD HERE

Druggists Hear Much Praise for This Home-Made Mixture.

Some remarkable stories are being told of this simple home-made mixture, curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble, even after the most noted health resorts failed to give the slightest relief. Here is the recipe and directions for taking: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of good water.

This mixture, writes one authority, has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys; cleaning the clogged-up pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter overcoming Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary troubles in a short while.

A New York druggist who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the first announcement in the newspapers, stated that the people who once try it "swear by it," especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble and suffer from Rheumatism.

Every prescription pharmacy can supply the ingredients, which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood-cleansing agent or system tonic known, and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.

THE HALIBURTON TRAIN WRECKED

Left the Rails Near Kinmount Yesterday Morning

Lindsay, April 14.—The Haliburton train left the rails this morning and the north line is blocked in in consequence. Some time after leaving Kinmount the veteran flyer got unruly and owing to a broken beam or twisted truck—the real cause is yet uncertain—jumped the rails.

The passengers, none of which are hurt, it is said, were conveyed to Kinmount by carriage and brought down from there by train. The accident was not a serious one. The auxiliary could not be sent up the line, as it has gone down near Keene, where six cars left the track this morning and blocked things completely. Instructions have been given that no tickets be sold to Kinmount today, evidently meaning that the track will not be cleared before tomorrow.

The passengers arrived in town this afternoon at 2.40 p.m. Outside of a little shaking up, they were caused no inconvenience.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

Mr. Douglas Russell, evangelist, spoke in the Y.M.C.A. hall last evening to a large audience, taking as his text Jer. III. 19. He said that the words of the text were primarily addressed to Judah and Israel. We however, are Gentiles, members of a fallen race. How can we be saved?

Mr. Russell will speak on "Redemption or a Broken Neck" tonight, and tomorrow night "An Ethiopian Converted in the Desert."

WEEK'S NEWS AT GRAYSTOCK

Notes of Interest to Residents of That Locality

Graystock, April 14—The dry windy weather of the past week has dried up the land so well that some of our farmers are looking forward to begin the spring work in a few days

The people of this burg are busying themselves getting their summer wood ready and putting everything in ship-shape order before the seeding begins.

Mr. Fred Fott is at present at his father-in-law's finishing the work on his woodshed which he lately has moved down from the Morgan farm.

Maple syrup making is all the rage in our little village. A large quantity is at present being made, so large that it will, if it keeps up, require a few express wagons and carters from the city to haul it in there.

Messrs. John and R. Robinson, who have been cutting wood for Mr. Wm. Anderson for the past few months have finished the job for this season.

Mr. Ross Pickle has engaged at the cement company's plant for the coming summer.

Mrs. Jos. Manley has returned home after a week's visit with her son, Mr. James Manley.

Mr. R. Robinson will soon take his departure for Westwood, where he will engage in the cheese making business with Mr. D. McCracken of that place.

Master Jos. Lamkershire has engaged for the summer with Mr. Sid Rutherford.

Miss Edith Pickel is spending a two week's holiday under the parental roof

Mr. Thomas Ruttel has leased the house of Mr. Walter Dickson, on the Base line, where he will be convenient to his work.

Mr. Evert Manley has left our burg and has gone to live in the city with Mr. White, butcher, for the summer.

YANKEE ARISTOCRACY

(Detroit News.)

Our "great families" are going to seed. What with the elaborate efforts of the idle rich to pass their time aping of foreign manners, their eternal social wars and petty ostracisms, their ostentatious displays of wealth and their downright selfishness and unwomanliness, it is little wonder that the husbands of the women of the four hundred turn from them to others. The childlessness and thriftlessness of the upper class are glad omens for the rest of the world. Let the impoverished and tainted blood die out, and let the swollen fortunes find their way back to the common fund.

DAM BREAKS AND FLOOD IS SWEEPING DOWN UPON CITY

Great Falls, a City of 15,000, is in Serious Danger as Result of Break in Dam on Missouri River.

Special to J. R. Heintz & Co.

Helena, Mont., April 15.—As a result of a break in the Great Hauser Lake dam on the Missouri River yesterday a flood is rapidly advancing upon Great Falls, a city of 15,000.

It is believed that the Boston and Montana Smelter one of the largest in the world, is doomed. The smelter is situated on the river bank and employs 1,500 men. The workmen were working all night erecting a wing dam around the smelter.

Cascade, a town of 400 population, 60 miles from Helena, is and 23 miles under water, and is in danger of being swept away. The river is thickly strewn with debris.

THIS LOOKS LIKE ANOTHER CASE OF THE "STUNG" FAD

A local school teacher recently found out the meaning of the ubiquitous "stung." A few evenings ago while sitting in the rotunda of a local hotel, he was drawn into conversation with a stranger. On ascertaining that the gentleman with whom he was conversing was a member of the teaching profession, the stranger said he was a teacher himself and told a hard luck story of having lost his ticket and being without sufficient funds to buy another one to reach home. He asked for the loan of a five and it was given him. Of course the money was to be returned just as soon as the gentleman arrived home.

It is now several weeks since the money was advanced but as yet there is no sign of the returning five spot.

It looks like another case of "stung!"

SCOTSMEN OF THE CITY WILL HAVE BANQUET ON APRIL 22ND

Camp Alpine, Sons of Scotland, will hold a banquet in the Sons of England hall on Wednesday evening, April 22nd. This was decided on at the meeting of the camp last night when there was a large number in attendance. A committee was appointed to make all arrangements and a most successful event is assured. Grand Chief Munroe of Toronto, will be in attendance and prominent members of the Sons of Scotland camps at Lindsay, Campbellford, Belleville, Lakefield and other points will also be present. Tickets for the banquet are now being issued and can be obtained from the members in a day or so.

Several candidates were initiated at the meeting last night and a most enjoyable social time was spent.

Organizer G[illegible] is doing excellent work and is meeting with great success in his efforts to organize the Scotsmen of Peterborough.

ALD GILLESPIE WILL BE MR. BRADBURN'S OPPONENT

Ald. G. A. Gillespie was this afternoon nominated by the Liberals of West Peterborough, to contest the riding against Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., at the coming provincial elections. The nomination took place at the convention being held in the Grand Opera House this afternoon, and was unanimous. No other names were proposed. Mr. Gillespie accepted the nomination in a neat speech.

The convention was not very largely attended and enthusiasm was not very much in evidence.

Mr. G. M. Roger occupied the chair at the opening of the meeting, and the election of officers was the first business taken up. Mr. J. J. Hartley was elected president for 1908, and then took the chair.

Nominations then took place and resulted as given above. The nomination of a candidate for the Dominion House was postponed.

Hon. A. G. MacKay, leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, was present, and his address was the feature of the meeting.

The inquest into the death of the late Elgin Weaver, which was adjourned a week ago, awaiting the report of Prof. Ellis, who analyzed the contents of the deceased's stomach, will be resumed tonight at 7.30 o'clock at the Council Chamber. The report of Prof. Ellis has been received and will be presented tonight.

FUNERAL TOOK PLACE TO-DAY

Remains of Late Mrs. Bates Arrived Here Last Evening

The remains of the late Mrs. Stanley Bates, who was burned to death in Dunnville on Saturday last, arrived in the city last evening on the 5.45 train from Port Hope, and were taken to the residence of Mr. Fred. Bates, 834 Stewart street.

The funeral took place this afternoon at three o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. E. A. Pearson, pastor of George street Methodist church, conducted the funeral service.

LINDSAY'S NEW NEWSPAPER

Publication Will Commence in About Two Weeks—"The Free Press"

Lindsay will have another newspaper in the course of a few days. The "Lindsay Free Press" will be the name of the new paper, which will be issued daily, with a weekly edition also. Mr. R. J. Moore lately of the Fenelon Falls Star, will be the manager of the new company, and Mr. J. V. MacNulty, late of the Lindsay Post, will edit the new paper. Both are experienced men and should be able to make the new publication pay. The "Free Press" will be independent in politics.

FIFTY MINERS ARE ON STRIKE

Not Pleased With Ten Hour Schedule in Frontenac

Kingston, April 14.—Some 50 men are affected by a strike at the Wilbur iron mines, on the line of the Kingston and Pembroke Railway. A ten-hour schedule was put in force, the night shift also being put on at midnight on Sunday night. The men all quit and have been paid off. The mine is controlled by the Clergue interests, the ore being used at the "Soo." Men are being secured at Sudbury and the "Soo."

THE REAL ISSUE

That the religious world is moving, even if very slowly, towards greater unity seems abundantly evident. Proofs of this come occasionally from most unexpected quarters. The retiring moderator of the Boston North Association of Baptist churches, at its last annual meeting, made this proposition:—"Is not the time ripe for us to say to the world, the Baptist church exists for one end, to magnify and to serve Jesus Christ, and the world he came to save. We welcome, therefore, to our fellowship and to our membership everyone who desires to magnify and to serve Jesus Christ. We leave the form of baptism to the individual, because we do not care to magnify the importance of symbols; we are after reality. The Master needs us, the world needs us, the supreme issue is large enough to tax us utterly, and we cannot be hindered in such a declaration. We believe that in time the spirit of it will triumph. It may be that most of our Baptist friends would hardly care just now to go as far as the writer of the above, but we trust the time is soon coming when they will. We may not witness the extinction of denominational differences, but we trust to welcome the disappearance of denominational bitterness, and the entrance of the broadest, most Catholic, Christian brotherhood.—The Christian Guardian.

AN ODD CANDLESTICK.

With a Curious Reach of the Long Arm of Coincidence.

Historical students when called upon to criticise relations of events, especially those that seem in themselves unlikely, that are recorded to have happened in the lives of persons whose careers are separated by a long period of time when the said events have a very striking similarity between them are wont to regard the first narrative as the prototype and the latter as a case of transference. Sometimes this may be the correct view to take, but it is commonly a dangerous proceeding to insist upon. An example has occurred to me which illustrates this.

At East Butterwick, a village on the banks of the Trent, there lived in the middle of the nineteenth century a shopkeeper named Marshall. He was a general dealer, supplying nearly all the wants of his neighbors. Above this man's shop and adjoining outhouses was a long chamber open to the roof in which he kept such stores as he had not room for in his somewhat small shop. Among other things, this room contained a mangle, which was at the service of such of the women of the town as made him a small payment.

One winter evening several women were engaged in mangling when one of them knocked down their solitary candlestick, and, being probably of earthenware, it was broken. Work for the night was nearly over. It did not seem worth while to fetch another, so one of the women took the still burning candle—happily it was not a very short one—and stuck it into some black, dusty looking stuff which she had noticed in a barrel standing near. Soon, however, one of these good dames had occasion to descend into the shop and, encountering Marshall there, naturally began to apologize for the candlestick having suffered.

We may conceive what was the shopkeeper's horror when he heard what was the substitute that had been found, for he knew at once that the candle was standing in a cask of gunpowder. He rushed upstairs and was just in time. He made "a cup with his two hands," as he said, "so that no sparks could get to the powder," and drew the candle calmly out without uttering a sound. His words afterward when all danger was over were, I have been told, of a kind not uncommonly heard on board of keels and coal barges on our rivers, but such as are discouraged elsewhere.

In the year 1861 "The Depositions From the Castle of York In the Seventeenth Century" was published by the Surtees society. In a note in this work by its editor, Canon Raine, the following passage occurs. The parallelism between the two narratives as to the way the candle was removed from danger is very striking:

"Newcastle had a very narrow escape about 1684. An apprentice going up with a candle into a loft which contained many barrels of gunpowder and much combustible material thoughtlessly stuck the candle into a barrel, of which the head had been knocked off, to serve for a candlestick. He saw the danger and fled. A laborer ran into the loft and, joining both his hands together, drew the candle softly up between his middlemost fingers, so that if any snuff had dropped it must have fallen into the hollow of the man's hand."—London Notes and Queries.

The Charm of the Orient.

Rich and poor wear the plaited frock coat of somber hues, the absence of a collar producing a slovenly appearance, while the snow turban of the Arab and the red fez of the Turk are replaced by the black lambskin kolah and the brown felt skullcap of the peasant. You ask why the carpenter should draw his plane toward him, why the horse is backed into his stall or the boat dragged sternforemost on the beach. You notice the footnote at the top of the page and that your morning egg is invariably served with its small end uppermost. But not certainly in such trivial matters does the charm of the east reside. We are nearer an explanation when we acknowledge the release from care and artificial conventions which accompanies a relapse to the conditions of a freer and more primitive life. To enjoy an ease, even luxury, of life we could not afford at home to have a servant for every task, to ride in Bombay or Teheran when we would walk it in Piccadilly, to be free from the burdens of a civilization which has created civic responsibilities and duties to one's fellow men, to have no Young Men's Christian association to support or fireman's ball to patronize, to be able to play the role of self indulgence to one's heart's content and be, in truth, a little king—in these things, alas, for many lies the secret of this charm.—Atlantic.

Ginseng as an Elixir.

Many of the Chinese believe that when all other remedies fail and death is at hand ginseng has the power to bring back health and longevity; hence when they feel the need of it they will pay fabulous prices for certain kinds of roots. A root to be really valuable as a commodity must come from the mountains of Kirin or be reputed to have come from there. It must be bifurcated, so as to resemble as much as possible the human form, and be semitransparent, dry and flinty. Of course the larger the root the better, and as it is sold by weight it is not very uncommon for a good specimen to bring as much as $100 an ounce. The value for such a root is in its shape, its texture, the manner in which it has been cured and the region whence it came. But it must be borne in mind that out of a great quantity of roots only a very few of the kind described can be obtained, so that the average price of ginseng is even greatly less than $100 per pound.

Cheese—Easy, unchanged; receipts, 2116.

Eggs—Steady, unchanged; receipts, 23,181.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—American Markets Quiet and Easier.

LONDON, April 14.—London cables are steady at 13c to 14c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 11c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, April 14.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market, as reported by the railways, were 59 carloads, composed of 898 cattle, 689 hogs, 383 sheep and lambs, 300 calves and three horses.

Exporters.

Few export cattle were on sale, but prices were quoted at $5 to $5.70 per cwt. for steers and $4 to $4.75 per cwt. for bulls.

Butchers.

George Rowntree, who bought for the Harris Abattoir eight carloads of cattle, quoted prices as follows: Loads of fair to good at $4.85 to $5.25; a few choice picked cattle at $5.35 to $5.70; medium butchers and good cows, $4.25 to $4.65; fair to medium cows, $3.60 to $4 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report having many orders on hand, but few cattle are being offered wherewith to fill them. One load of stockers, 800 lbs. each, sold at $3.60 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers.

A limited number of milkers and springers sold at $30 to $45 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts of veal calves, so called, were again liberal, the quality of the bulk being common to medium, as many of the were from dairy herds, judging from the breeds on sale. Prices ranged at from $3 to $6 per cwt., with an odd one here and there at $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Taken altogether, the quality of the sheep and yearling lambs was better than for some time, there being some of the best yearlings seen on the market this season. Export ewes sold at $5 to $5.50; rams, $3.50 to $4.25; yearling lambs of choice quality, $8 to $8.50 per cwt.; common, $5 to $6 per cwt.; spring lambs, $3 to $6 per cwt. The quality of the spring lambs was generally poor; many of them should have been left with the ewes for some time.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris quoted $6.40 for selects and $6.15 for lights.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, April 14.—Cattle—steady; prime steers, $6.60 to $7.

THE CAMPAIGN OPENS WITH JOINT MEETING AT LAKEFIELD

Mr. Cockshutt M. P. Arraigns the Laurier Administration —Mr. Thompson, Mr. Sexsmith and Mr. Burnham Also Deliver Addresses—A Large Audience

The joint meeting held in the interests of Messrs. Thompson and Sexsmith at Lakefield last evening was one of the best and most satisfactory meetings that ever took place in the county. The town hall was almost completely filled by a large, attentive and enthusiastic audience. Dr. J. R. Fraser was made chairman on motion of Mr. Lillicrap, seconded by Mr. Johnston. Mr. Thompson, the Liberal-Conservative candidate, for the Legislature in the East Riding, was then called upon and delivered an eloquent and interesting address upon the record of the Whitney Government. Passing in review the legislative enactments of that administration looking to the better government of the province he congratulated the electors upon the fine financial standing of the province and upon the clearing up and wiping off of the crowd of scandals and chronicles of wrongdoing that had accumulated during the term of Mr. Ross et al, who had fallen so ingloriously and deservedly on 25th January, 1905.

Mr. Burnham followed, confining himself to provincial issues. He defended the three-fifths clause as the best way to approach such a change in the customs of a people. Mr. Whitney had stated that his Government was not wedded to a three-fifths majority as against a bare majority and that when the conditions of life in the province warranted it he would be pleased to put local optin oon a level with other measures in that respect. Meanwhile, the speaker urged, a three-fifths measure honestly administered is vastly better than a normal measure used as a means of conspiracy against the interests moral and political of the people in whose favor it was supposed to be made. The day for compulsion of the liquor men at election time when they had to "shell out" for a campaign fund that others even got the credit of, had gone by for ever. It takes time but Ontario is emerging from political darkness into light and freedom

Mr. Sexsmith enlarged to the manifest entertainment of the audience, upon the devious methods that had been used to defeat him. He was not a seeker after office, but came before them again at the request of his friends. This time he had been assured he would win. Mr. Stratton, he said, had stated publicly that he was out of public life and was making a great parade of this, while writing to and working with his friends in the East Riding, earnestly looking for and working for the nomination. "Let him come on," the speaker exclaimed. "He may have money, but the people want something else nowadays in a representative." (loud applause.)

MR. J. A. SEXSMITH

Conservative Candidate for Dominion House for East Riding.

Mr. Cockshutt, M.P., was the speaker of the evening and for more than an hour held the attention of the audience with one of the best and clearest descriptions of the rascality and maladministration of the Laurier Government that has ever been delivered in this district. The economy which Sir Wilfrid had promised had matured in a system of wholesale extravagance which must plunge this country in ruin. Per-capita the expenditure had increased from $5 to $11. Next year the debt would be increased by no less than 30 millions of dollars! The Senate too, had been deformed probably, but certainly not reformed. The patronage list upon which the faithful were placed from whom goods were bought at fabulous prices, came in for a vivid and caustic arraignment. Sir John Macdonald had been defeated by one scandal. What would happen to Sir Wilfrid with his one hundred? It is idle too, the speaker declared, to say that Conservatives are just as bad as Liberals in this respect. Whitney in Ontario, Roblin in Manitoba, McBride in British Columbia, Hazen in New Brunswick, proved the contrary. Their administrations were honest and capable. Turning his attention to the west he described the scandalous and wholesale robbery and ballot-stuffing that went on in the new provinces at their first election. The hideous cases proven before the court, as the Prince Albert case, where agents went out on the prairie, opened the boxes and filled them up with the required number marked by themselves for the Liberal candidate, were enough to excite the indignation even of the most uninterested. Were these men punished? Were any of the rascals who held high carnival in the west punished? Not one, and why? Because in the Autonomy Bill, which was the political charter of the new provinces, there was no provision made for such cases. The judge in court exclaimed, "I tell you gentlemen, there is not one word of election law in the bill." Such a flagrant violation of the first principles of decency, it was hard to parallel. The G.T.P. was to cost 13 million dollars in cash only. The speaker held up a former Grit campaign sheet from which he read the triumphant announcement. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had declared time and again that 13 million dollars was the outside figure. "It was a case of deliberate false pretences!" said Mr. Cockshutt. "and nothing else. The people of this country were buncoed." The Quebec bridge fiasco was worth going miles to hear as the speaker described it. Even at the finish when 80 men and five millions of the people's money lay at the bottom of the river there was not one cent forthcoming from the company to pay the funeral expenses of the burial. What had remained to the company's account had been drawn out of the bank the day after the accident! Sir Wilfrid had become inordinately fond of power and it was deplorable to hear the first Minister on the floor of the House defending wrong-doing of the most injurious type. The march of the Doukhobors excited the laughter of the audience. Here was Ontario saddled with a squad of lunatics for whom she had to provide, as they could not be deported. The bonus system should have ended long ago, but the Minister of the Interior declares it shall continue. Five dollars from the Government and five from the steamship company are the reward of agents for each immigrant no matter who, or where from. It was ruining Canada body and soul. "We don't import bad stock for our herds and why should we do so for our people?" The speaker concluded amid long continued applause. The usual cheers ended one of the best meetings ever held in East Peterborough.

WARDEN THOMPSON

Conservative Candidate for Ontario Legislature for East Riding.

NOTES.

The Lakefield band played most acceptably at the entrance to the hall before the meeting. The joint meeting at Keene on Thursday evening ought to be a good one.

Mr. Cockshutt, M.P., returned to Ottawa on the midnight train.

A NOISE LIKE A SKY ROCKET

Boy Severly Shaken up by Being Thrown From Fire Brigade Ladder

The fire brigade had another hurry call last night to attend to a slight grass blaze in the North Ward.

The most exciting feature in connection with the run was the experiment of a small boy who endeavored to secure a fast ride free. This ambitious youth caught on to the rear end of the ladders when the team started, and hung there while the horses sped up Aylmer street. His grasp weakened however, with the strain, and finally when the wagon struck a rather high crossing the boy took on some of the features of a rocket and shot into the air. Although nothing serious resulted the boy was badly shaken up, and it is a pretty safe guess that he will not try this form of rapid transit again.

TO INVESTIGATE THE CHARGES

Special Meeting of Board of Education To-night

A special meeting of the Board of Education will be held tonight at 7.30 o'clock, at the office of the secretary. It is for the purpose of investigating the charges laid by Mr. E. R. Stocker, regarding the plumbing in the Queen Alexandra school, and the new Collegiate. The matter will be carefully gone into tonight and discussed by the board.

"CRUCIFIXION" ON FRIDAY NIGHT

For the third year in succession the choral work known as Sir John Stainer's "Crucifixion," being a sacred meditation on the Passion and death of Our Blessed Lord, will be solemnly sung in St. John's church on Good Friday evening at eight o'clock. The choirsters have worked hard to give a really good rendering of this work, and last night's practice was fully attended and a great success. The final rehearsal will be held on Thursday evening at 8 p.m. When all taking part are expected to be present.

REV. E. A. PEARSON GAVE THE ADDRESS

At the Street Service To-day---A Large Crowd

Rev. E. A. Pearson of George St. Methodist church, was the speaker at the street service today at noon, and a large crowd assembled to hear him. His discourse was on the subject of God's inestimable love to man and it was an earnest and powerful appeal to all to accept Christ and lead consistent christian lives. Rev. Robt. A. Pogue led the service, announcing the hymns and saying the prayers. These meetings last only fifteen minutes.

MEETINGS ARE WELL ATTENDED

Mr. Douglas Russell Drawing Large Crowds at Gospel Services

There was a large attendance at the Gospel service at the Y.M.C.A. hall last evening when Mr. Douglas Russell delivered another one of his strong and earnest addresses. He said that we were all born children of a fallen race and that which is born of flesh is f leah but flesh is not of God. Christians, he said, are such only by birth called the second birth or born again.

Tonight, Mr. Russell's subject will be "Redemption or a broken neck," and tomorrow night he will speak on "An African converted in the desert'

THEATRICAL

"PARSIFAL."

"Parsifal," that beautiful and impressive masterpiece of one of the world's greatest men, of soulful, forceful, magnificent conception, Richard Wagner, will be produced for the first time here at the Grand Opera House, Monday, April 20. Staged with spectacular features that enhance the value of the production, presented with a sense of fitness of things that is necessary to so demanding a play, and interpreted by an ensemble of artists carefully selected is what we are promised in this most unique offering. There is no necessityof describing the wonderful work at this time for it is familiar to most people, students of the greatmaster and hi sgreatest effort.

A feature of the performance which Parsifal patrons should bear in mind is the unusual hour of commencement. The curtain will raise promptly at 7.45. Auditors should be in their seats at this time, as the darkened auditorium will prevent seating any one during the action of the play and lat ecomers will be required to stand until the conclusion of the first act, which requires 45 minutes for each interpretation.

ARRESTED AS SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER

James Davis in Police Court To-day—Was Remanded

James Davis was arrested as a suspicious looking charater last evening and appeared before Magistrate Dumble on a charge of vagrancy this morning.

"He has been here before," said his Worship.

"Yes, he was here about a year ago, last fall," replied the Chief.

Chief Rossel asked for a week's remand, whereupon Davis was taken down to his cell.

"We don't want Toronto's tramps down here," said the chief.

Ald. Gillespie received the nomination for the Legislature at the Liberal convention held this afternoon in the Opera House. He will be Mr. Bradburn's opponent. He is a man of good reputation and attainments, and if he can contrive to keep himself clear of sinster entanglements, will no doubt worthily represent the Liberal party, although not in Parliament.

OBITUARY

MRS. RICHARD IRWIN

The sad intelligence was received in the city yesterday by Mr. Martin McFadden of the sudden demise of his sister, Mrs. Richard Irwin of Chicago, Ill. The deceased had not been well for the past two weeks. She was 56 years of age and lived in Peterborough until 1870, when she went to Chicago. She leaves to mourn her loss besides her husband, two daughters, both married, and one son. Mr. McFadden, and Mrs. Geo. Bell, a sister, left on the C.P.R. last night for Chicago to attend the funeral which will probably take place Friday morning.

Lieut.-Col. Moscup of Stratford will resign his commission in the 28th Regiment.

SPORTING NEWS

THERE WILL BE SOME FAST WALKING AT TOURNAMENT

Cream of America's Walkers Will Struggle for Supremacy --Will a Record be Established?

The walking tournament it would eem is an assured succes. Many edestrian grinds have been conductd in the United States on a paying asis and with such a large and fast ield of competitors it would seem s though the walking contest here hould meet with every success. The rack walkers of America are here or the event, Blake, Slater, Brooks, Graham and others.

STAR WALKERS.

The four men mentioned above are ll star walkers. They have been in he business for years, and are traind as fine as they can be. They are en who have made a study of peestrianism as a science and have iven some wonderful exhibitions in alking contests in which they have igured.

HOAGLAND TO START.

The starter in the tournament to whom perhaps the greatest interest is attached outside of Hartley, the local favorite, will be W. A. Hoagland, the champion of America, and the man who took the first money in the recent walk at Kansas City.

"Is Hoagland coming?" is what people all over the city have been asking lately. Everybody seems anxious to see the famous pedestrian in action, and there is much speculation as to wether he will win or not. He will be in perfect condition for the event.

WILL RECORD BE MADE?

The track will be fast, special pains having been gone to prepare it, and everything will be in readiness for the men to get away with a good opportunity of establishing a new record for a six-day walking contest if there should be stiff enough competition. And there seems every reason to believe that there will be the fastest kind of walking. The famous pedestrians are all out for the big end of the purse and there will be some mighty tall struggling for first place.

"Y" WILL PLAY IN CITY LEAGUE

Will Have a Strong Team--Prospects Are Good

The Y.M.C.A. Baseball Club met st night to discuss the advisability f placing a team in the city league. It was decided to enter the league, nd the "Y" will probably be rep sented by a strong nine. The prosects for the season are good.

Another meeting will be held in e near future.

BASKETBALL

A practice of the 1st and 2nd asketball teams is called for this evning at 6.30 and the following men re asked to be present. Wallace, arling, Cressman, Loomis and S aing. THIS WINDOW IS WELL DRESSED

Two very excellent pictures one of the Strathcona Hockey team and the Peterborough Rugby team are on exhibition in the window of Messrs. Merrill and Meredith. The officers of both clubs are also included in the pictures.

They are enlargements of photos taken by Mr. Louis Mendel and are neatly framed. They are attracting considerable attention.

The window itself looks very attractive in its Easter garb and was dressed by Mr. Fred C. Freeland, of Merrill and Meredith's staff.

HOCKEY

The Fort William Herald of Thursday, contains half-tone cuts of the members of the Wanderer Hockey Club of that city. Among them are the familiar faces of "Billie" Sweet and "Pat." McDonough, two well-known ex-Orillians. "Billie" is manager of the team, and Pat plays at point. The Wanderers are winners of the Northern Ontario Hockey League, and the team are to be presented with gold medals at a dinner given by the citizens of Fort William this week. — Orillia Letter.

The British Government is to appoint a Royal Commission to inquire into deaths under anaesthetics.

FOOTBALL MATCH GOOD FRIDAY

Britannias of Toronto Will Play the Peterboro' Quakers

At a meeting of the Quaker Football Club last night it was decided to play the Britannias of Toronto here on Good Friday afternoon. The game will be played at the Exhibition Grounds and should be a fast exhibition. The Brits will bring down a fast eleven and the Quakers will have to play the game of their lives to beat them. The admission will be ten cents and a big crowd should turn out. The Quakers line-up will be selected from the following men;

McFadden, Doris, Evans, Archibald, DeForge, R. Best, Dunnigan, Scrimshaw, Crough, Huston, Thorpe, Milburn and Baker.

LISTS MUST BE IN SATURDAY

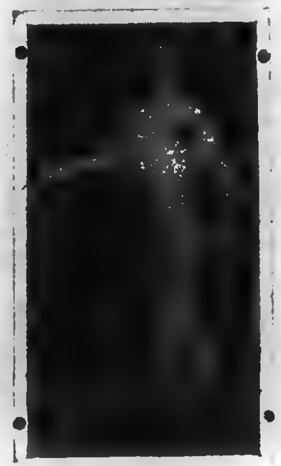
Notice to Teams in the Intermediate Baseball League

The teams in the intermediate league are notified that they must have their lists of players in the hands of President J. T. C. Lang before Saturday night, April 18th. This rule will be enforced as the executive meets to consider the lists on Monday night. There are nine teams in the league and the preliminary arrangements are working out splendidly.

A meeting of the Constitution committee will be held this evening.

CLOSING EXHIBITION

All senior men are urged to turn out next week on Tuesday and Wednesday nights for a final rehersal for the exhibition which will be given on Thursday night. Dumb bell and pyramid work and apparatus work will be the chief features.



W. A. Hoogland, winner of the Kansas City walk and champion walker of America. He comes here next Saturday for the championship tournament at Brock street rink.

BASEBALL

LINDSAY PREPARING.

Yesterday's Lindsay Post says;

Is Lindsay to have a Midland League team this year? That is the question, and to settle it an open meeting has been called for tomorrow night (Wednesday) in the Y.M.C.A. rooms at 8 sharp. Everybody is heartily welcome and privileged to have their say. It is hoped a large number will be present. It's a shame to have the best town in the circuit left out of the league. The Midland League this year will be very successful. "The towns on the front are tired of the wild cat schemes that were used last season," said a local sport today, "and we are going in for baseball this year."

ST. LAWRENCE LEAGUE.

Mr. E. V. Ilsley, secretary of the Belleville Baseball Club, has received letters from parties in Gananoque, Kingston, Napanee and Trenton, which show that the idea of a St. Lawrence Baseball League is being viewed with favor and much enthusiasm in those places, and it certainly looks as though the proposed league will be a go.

A meeting of the executive of the local club will be held at the Quinte tomorrow night and, judging by present indications it is altogether likely that a meeting of delegates will be held in Napanee on Good Friday, when the St. Lawrence Baseball League may be formed, officers elected and a schedule drafted.

The gratifying way in which the idea has been taken hold of presages good sport this summer.

"STUNG" LAST SEASON.

The following is from the Picton Times:—A letter from Wm. Carnew, Belleville, suggests the forming of a baseball league to take in the towns of Picton, Trenton, Napanee, Belleville and Kingston, and asks that representatives be sent to a forthcoming meeting in Belleville for that purpose. At present there is very little enthusiasm in Picton about baseball, and it is not likely that the gentlemen connected with last summer's fast nine will interest themselves to any extent in the sport this summer. The leading baseball men of Wellington and Bloomfield seem to be of the same to be of the same opinion.

GIANTS MUST GO SOME

When John McGraw with his Giants brought the world's championship to New York three years ago he had previously found out that such an accomplishment would have been impossible with a team unbalanced in the offensive and defensive departments of the game. Last season he discovered that his club was fraying at the edges and he immediately set about to bring it back to is former standard This he believes he has done. Therefore the baseball world may not be surprised to see another flag float from the flagstaf at the Polo grounds at the end of the coming season.

The offensive part of a ball club rests with the hitting. The defensive rests with the pitchers and infielders, whose business it is to see that the ball is not hit or not hit safely.

The hitting of the Giants has been improved fully 40 per cent. and the pitching is as good as it was when the Giants won the world's championship. The old and worn out parts of the machinery have been cut away and in their places new men have been put, who have ability, youth and ambition. This new men are also good hitters.

Whether the new pitchers are of major league material matters but little as the old staff is far better than 80 per cent of the major league clubs as it stands. Mathewson is in excellent shape and Ames was never so good in his life. In a practice game the other day Taylor let the Dallas club down with one run, which shows that he is just as good as ever. McGinity has been ill and has had little chance to show what he can do.

McGraw is pleased with McKinney, the big pitcher from Oyster Bay and one or two of the others are very likely to make good.

The greatest trouble, however, which confronted McGraw last winter was getting rid of his worn out timber and replacing it with men on whom he could depend. He knew that it would never do to let the old men go before he was sure of players on whom he could depend to take their places. He consequently began searching the National League for what he wanted. The man he has always wanted was Fred Tenney the former manager of Boston. Tenney was always a great hitter and for years had been considered without a peer as a first baseman. Until this day there is no first sacker in the league who is considered his equal, unless, perhaps, it is Chance, of the Chicago Cubs who is regarded as the best the National League affodrs. In the National League there are two great men, Chase and Donohue but to secure either of them was beyond the realms of possibility. Tenny is now a Giant.

McGraw has the best hitting outfield in the National League says the New York World. Seymour, in centre is a wonder, and Shannon probably gets on the bases more than any other man in the club. He is a good waiter and when it is necessary to hit he can hit. Seymour Donlin and Shannon form a combination that it will be hard to improve.

The catching department of the Giants was somewhat weakened by the loss of Bowerman, but Curtis looks like a good man, and besides, Needham is to be used when Bresnahan cannot do all the work. Needham has a very good arm. In fact, there are few catchers in the business who can throw to second better than Needham but he is a bad hitter. Bresnahan will be able to do the bulk of the catching, however and there need be no fear on that score.

The loss of George Browne robs the club of one of its best runners but towards the latter part of last season Browne developed a bad case of sulks and for that reason McGraw had to get rid of him. Browne is very sensitive and takes exception to criticisms on the part of other players. Donlin, it is believed, will make a fairly satisfactory man.

McGraw says he is very well satisfied with his prospects, and when he says that it's a sure sign that he has something up his sleeve.

KICKING ABOUT DUST NUISANCE

High Wind Made it Unpleasant To-day

Some citizens were kicking about the dust today. It was bad in spots, largely on account of the high wind. The watering carts were out but did not seem able to keep the dust down. Only a few weeks ago, citizens were wading through the snow; a few days later it was the slush that was causing the trouble, and now it's the dust. Thus do the times and weather change.

In estimating the degrees and kind of astigmatism, this eye instrument is most valuable and accurate. Dr. Browett has, during the past fifteen years, taught opticians the use of five different kinds of ophthalmometers, all of which were good instruments, but the one he now uses is conceded to be the most exact and the finest instrument made for the detection and estimation of astigmatism, and the measurements of the curvatures of the cornea of the eye. This and other instruments are used for many examinations daily at our office. We supply modern eye glasses at reasonable prices.

LABOR BANS LIQUOUR

One of the most encouraging signs of the times to temperance men is the very pronounced stand that is being taken by labor organizations both in Great Britain and in this country. A very interesting item in this connection comes recently from Montreal. At a recent meeting of the Trades and Labor Council a letter was read from Mr. Mee, president of the Montreal Bartenders' Association asking permission for the members of that association to take part in the Labor Day parade. The request was quietly refused. The excuse given was that the admission of the bartenders to the Labor Day parade would have damaged the cause labor; and the fear was expressed that the liquor trade would probably be tried at the end to secure control of the whole labor organisation and use it to further its own interests, the labor party realises would be suicidal. Labor and liquor are enemies, and can never be friends.—The Christian Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15, 1908.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Joseph Elmhurst.

He walketh with God in holy joy,
While yet his years were new;
The deep, glad spirit of the boy
To love and reverence grew.
Whether each nightly star to count,
The ancient hills he trod,
Or sought the flowers by stream and fount,
Alike he walked with God.

The graver years of manhood came,
The time of cares and fears,
One voice was in his heart—the same
It heard through childhood's years.
Amid fair fields, and flocks and herds
O'er the green pasture sod,
A farmer in dear Ontario,
My friend, he walketh with God.

And calmly, brightly that pure life,
Melted from earth, away.
No cloud it knew, no parting strife,
No very long decay.
He westward went to seek new health
But failed to find it there,
And our dear Lord has taken him,
Where angels walk with God.

We, through the darkness must go home,
Hearing the tempests call.
Closed is the path for evermore,
Which without death be trod,
Not so, that way, whereon of yore,
His footsteps walked with God.
So let us walk, the night must come
To us, that comes to all.

Keene, April 14—Mr. Fee, Mount Pleasant, is visiting in Keene the guest of his son, Mr. A. Fee.

Misses Margaret and Edith Bryce visited last week at the home of Mr. Henry, Elmhurst, Indian River.

Mrs. Edward Wright, of Peterborough, spent last week in Keene.

Miss Lillian Pearce is the guest of Miss Mabel Harrison.

Miss Clara Campbell is visiting friends in Peterborough.

Mr. D. Eason, of Peterborough, visited in the village last week.

Messrs. Thompson and Sexsmith, the Conservative candidates will hold a joint meeting on Thursday evening in the town hall. A feature of the programme will be an address by Mr. E. Guss Porter.

The Keene Gun Club held a shooting match Tuesday afternoon.

The roads in this vicinity are getting dried up and are again in pretty good shape. There appears to be no frost in the ground.

Mrs. Albert Eason, Calgary, is the guest of Miss Maude Eason.

The Epworth League have engaged John R. Clarke the famous lecturer, and entertainer for a lecture on "To and Fro in London" in the town hall Good Friday evening.

A social will be held in the town hall Monday evening under the auspices of the Y.P.C.E.

The ice is not yet out of the lake but is getting pretty well-rotted away and will probably be out in another week.

An unusually heavy catch of muskrats is being made in the Keene Marsh.

PHILOMATHEAN SOCIETY HAVE ORATORICAL CONTEST

Closing Meeting in St. Peter's Hall Last Evening a Great Success—Mr. Ingham Won First Honors in Competition—Scholarship Presented.

The closing meeting of the Philomathean Society of the Collegiate Institute was held last evening in St. Peter's hall, and it may well be termed the best and most successful of the present school year. The concluding meeting was marked by an oratorical contest in which four young men took part and for which three cash prizes were awarded. The programme consisting of vocal and instrumental selections, a dialogue and readings was a particularly interesting one and drew forth rounds of applause and in many instances those taking part were obliged to respond.

Mr. Michael O'Brien, president of the society, officiated as chairman in his usual capable manner, and in opening referred to the success that had attended the meetings during the year. The public, the chairman said, had given their hearty support to the society and manifested their interest in it by always turning out in large numbers to the open meetings. The chairman asked for the minutes of the last meeting but upon motion, they were adopted as prepared by the secretary. A vote of thanks was also tendered Bishop O'Connor for his kindness in allowing the society the use of the assembly hall. Mr. Colin Lees made the motion, and Mr. Geo. Ingham seconded it. It was carried unanimously.

THE SPEECHES.

The four young men who took part in the oratorical contest contest were Messrs. G. Ingham, Cyril Moore, Harry Hall and Master Allin Brown. Three prizes were given, the first one, five dollars, being awarded to Mr. Ingham. His subject was the "Modernization of China." Mr. Cyril Moore dealt with the "Life of Napoleon," obtaining second prize, that of three dollars. Mr. Harry Hall's address on "The Tercentenary of Quebec," won third class honors, a prize of two dollars being awarded him. Master Allin Brown, the fourth competitor, although not among the winners deserves honorable mention. He is much younger than the other contestants and considering his youth made an exceedingly clever oration last evening. His subject was "Bird Habits," and the clear and intensely interesting manner in which he dealt with his subject proved that he well understood what he was talking about. Each speaker presented his remarks fluently and could not fail to interest those present. The subjects were well chosen ones that were profitable and instructive.

The judges were Dr. Morrison and Mr. R. H. Leary, and as Dr. Morrison stated, they had an exceedingly difficult task. In giving the decisions, he took occasion to congratulate the speakers on the splendid ability they displayed, and thought that as orators they had a brilliant future before them.

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED.

The presentation of the Nicholls scholarships to the pupils winning them last midsummer were awarded last evening by Principal Fessenden as follows,

Junior Matriculation ($15)—Miss Gladys Crane.

Junior Leaving ($15)—Mr. S. Pringle.

Senior Leaving or Honor Matriculation ($50)—Miss Marguerite Burnett.

THE PROGRAMME.

Piano Solo—Miss K. Leary.

Dialogue—"The Opening Address"—Misses M. Halpin, B. Reid and Sophia Elliot.

Reading—Miss Young.

Violin Solo—Miss L. Sanderson.

Recitation—Miss M. Edwards.

Vocal Solo—Miss N. Hallihan.

Chorus—Glee Club.

Miss Edwards won great applause in her recitation and was forced to respond to an encore. Miss Nellie Hallihan was also encored. She possesses a sweet voice, and her rendition last evening of "A Dream of Paradise," was particularly pleasing.

The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close a very pleasant evening.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL HELD REGULAR SESSION

The regular meeting of the Township Council was held on Monday, the 13th inst., at May's school house, at 1.30 p.m. All the members were present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. A communication was read from T. Hurley, in regard to Mr. Brown opening a street to meet Western Avenue. This was received.

Mr. George Jackson attended the meeting and requested the Council to build a bridge over the drain on the west side of Erskine Avenue at its junction with Cameron street.

Mr. Alfred Sanders appeared before the Council and asked for information in regard to the poundage bylaws of the township.

The following accounts were handed in;—C. Diamond, opening drain on Brown street, $1.00; Dennis Mahar, opening snow road on Lock street, $2.00; W. J. Byers, goods, charity, $7.00; Henry Carner, opening snow roads, Road Division No. 1, $3.00; D. Doig, opening drain on Cameron street, $1.50; H. Sanders, opening drain on Park street, $0.00; R. Colin, opening snow roads on Road Division No. 2, $29.25; Dr. J. Johnston, holding a post-mortem examination on horse, $5.00.

It was moved by Messrs. Howden and Dobbin that the accounts of Messrs. C. Diamond, D. Mahar, W. J. Byers, Henry Carver, D. Doig and A. Sanders be passed and paid. This was carried.

The accounts of R. Colin and Dr. Johnston were referred for investigation and the clerk was directed to render the account of D. Mahar to the Peterborough Radial Railway Co.

It was moved by Messrs. Forster and Dobbin, that a Committee consisting of the Reeve and Messrs. Howden and May are hereby appointed to investigate the matter of whether Cameron street, west of Erskine Ave., is a public thoroughfare, and to also report upon the desirability of the municipality building a bridge, as requested, by Mr. Jackson. This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. May and Dobbin, that Mr. May inform Mr. Hurley that the Council has no recourse in the matter of having Mr. Brown open a street through his property. This was carried.

A petition from Mr. Bruce Johnston and 32 others was presented and read asking the Council to widen out and grade that part of Erskine Avenue north of the Grand Trunk Railway.

On motion of Messrs. Dobbin and T. Foster the Reeve and Councillor May are hereby appointed a committee to investigate fully the matter of opening and assuming as a public highway that portion of Erskine Avenue as requested by the petitioners and to report at next meeting of the Council. This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. Howden and May, that all amounts of money expended as commutation of statute labor in excess of the amount due each road division in any year be charged to such division in the ensuing year, and also if any money is still spent on any road division at the end of any year, the same shall be credited to such division in the next year, and also that all monies paid for snow shovelling be charged to the commutation account for each road division in which such shovelling is performed respectively, save and except the money paid for clearing Park street drain. This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. Howden and Dobbin, that all road commissioners of the township are hereby directed that to rates of pay to be given by them for labour and teams for doing road work during the year 1908 shall be as follows;—For each man and team with waggon, plough scraper or working on the grades, or other necessary vehicle or implement, $3.00 per day of 10 hours, or 30 cents an hour for any portion of a day. This was carried.

Bylaw No. 601, a bylaw to appoint poundkeepers and fenceviewers, was then introduced and finally passed. The poundkeepers are:—Division No. 1, Wm. Williamson; division No. 2, R. Sanderson; division No. 3, Harry Clark; division No. 4, D. Doig. The fenceviewers are:—Division No. 1, John Fowler, T. Stinson and G. Ward. Division No. 2, T. Hunter, J. McIntosh and J. F. Clarke; division No. 3, R. Waterman, W. Whitfield and J. Armstrong; division No. 4, A. Sanders, John Bell and John Williams.

On motion Council then adjourned to meet in the Town Hall, on May 27th at 1.30 p.m., as a Court of Revision and for general business.

BIG ICE SHIFT AT GANNON'S NARROWS BREAKS BRIDGE

Floating Bridge Smashed But Still Clinging to Abutments—County Will Make Repairs—Ice Move at Hastings

The ice moved in large quantities last night above the bridge at Gannon's narrows between Buckhorn and Pigeon Lake and the floating bridge at Gannon's narrows was damaged to quite an extent as a result of the shock. The bridge was broken away near the centre the ends floating with the current. They did not become detached however and are still clinging to the abutments.

CAN'T BE FIXED YET

The bridge cannot be fixed until the water goes down and the extent of the damage has not yet been estimated.

The bridge belongs to the county and the swinging mechanism is owned and operated by the Government. There is practically no damage to the swinging apparatus.

COUNTY WILL MAKE REPAIRS

It is understood the county council will repair the bridge at the earliest moment it is possible to commence operations for that purpose. The county council will pay a visit to the scene of the accident in a very short time to have a look at the bridge and make estimates concerning repairs, etc.

ICE MOVED AT HASTINGS

The ice in the Trent shifted at Hastings last night in large quantities. In fact it was one of the biggest ice moves ever seen in the history of that town.

The ice passed over the dam without causing any flooding or damage of any kind.

THE HUDSON BAY SWINDLE

Now, three things are shown. First that as the subsidies were lapsed and land had increased in value the Government could have made other arrangements and kept the land for the settler.

Second, the present Government has changed the conditions by allowing the contractor to select lands outside the area originally defined, and they are selected in the best farming regions in the west, where the grant is worth at least $6 per acre.

Third, while the company has received these lands subsidies on 320 miles of railway, supposed to be towards Hudson Bay, the place reached is only 150 miles nearer Port Churchill than the starting point. The contracting company is simply authorized to use these subsidies for the construction of its line towards Prince Albert, so that most the mileage is not in the direction of Hudson Bay. The land subsidity in the Territories was worth $76,800 per mile, and this prairie railway could be built for one-third of this sum. With this inducement to build the longest possible line, and with a Government ready to give such magnificent subsidies for roads running in every direction except towards Hudson Bay, the company has obtained these immense land grants, and the Hudson Bay Railway is still to be built.

HAND TERRIBLY MANGLED.

Doctor Withdrew his Remedies in favor of Zam-Buk.

Mr. Ab. Wheeler, Marine and Stationary Engineer, of 145 Front St., Belleville, Ont., says: "Two months ago, while employed in a steam laundry in this city, my left hand became caught and was accidently drawn into a hot mangle. As soon as possible the machinery was stopped and my hand was extricated, but not before the flesh on the palm of the hand was literally cooked to the bone and the fingers flattened out of shape. However, quite soon after the accident my hand and arm became frightfully swollen to the elbow and the hand presented a shocking sight. No one can imagine what I now suffered, and endured. Not only was it hard to bear on account of the cruel pains, but it was a great shock to my nervous system. It was some time after the injury before the cooked flesh could be removed from the palm and then only a very little at a time. As soon as all this had been well removed, healing balms were applied, but as the improvement was so slow I obtained permission from the Doctor for Zam-Buk to be used exclusively, as several of my men friends (having previously used it for severe injuries) spoke in the highest terms of its unusual healing qualities and urged me to give it a trial. From the commencement Zam-Buk soothed and relieved the pains and drew out the soreness. I now began to enjoy a good night's rest and sleep. In about three weeks time the palm of my hand was nicely healed over thro' daily application of this wonderful remedy Zam-Buk, and all inflammation and swelling was thoroughly banished from both hand and arm."

Annual Meetings of Cheese and Butter Makers Association Being Held—Many Present

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Cheese and Buttermakers' Association was held this morning in the Council Chamber. There were about twenty of the cheese and buttermakers of this district present, and although the attendance was not what had been hoped for, considerable business was transacted and a great deal of valuable information gleaned from the address by Mr. D. Cameron, of Campbellcroft. The meeting was opened with the President, Mr. A. H. Campbell, in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and the election of officers proceeded with, as follows:—

Mr. Dave Oakley was elected president of the association for the coming year, and Mr. Demorst, vice-president. Mr. Ashley Andrews will be secretary this year, with Mr. Hugh Lackie as assistant.

Mr. A. H. Campbell remarked upon the former lack of funds of the association and suggested that a fixed assessment of one dollar be placed on all members. In the past the funds have been kept up by subscriptions from those members who were present at the meeting, while those who were not present derived the same benefits through the report.

The amount of assessment was not decided upon, however, but was left for this afternoon's meeting.

The funds in the treasury from last year, amount to $11.67, which amount will be almost cancelled by the cost of the present meeting.

In this address Mr. Campbell referred to the high quality of cheese made in this district and stated that he anticipated higher prices than ever for the coming year. In answering a number of questions put by the members present, Mr. Cameron stated that a great mistake was made very often in using too much salt. In his estimation two and a half pounds should be the maximum amount, while two pounds would often be found sufficient. Mr. Cameron also gave some valuable information regarding the effect on the cheese of fat percentage in the milk.

Heretofore the idea has been prevalent that large percentage of fat did not increase the weight of cheese. This, however, is not the case, and Mr. Cameron stated that at the school at Kingston they had tested 325 lbs. each of 3 per cent. and 4 per cent. milk, and from the large per centage they made nine pounds more cheese. This test was kept up for six days and in every case proved to be almost the same. Mr. Cameron explained that in these which is to be kept for two weeks before shipping, not more than two pounds of salt should be used.

The duty of cheese makers, Mr. Cameron said, was to get around to their patrons and be sure they get only pure milk.

A great many farmers entertain the dread of a milk inspector, and very often consider it a reflection upon their honesty to have the milk tested. The cheese maker, however, is, as a rule, well-known to his patrons, and Mr. Cameron thinks the makers' advice carries most weight with them. Mr Cameron concluded by admonishing the members to be very careful of this getting in the curds as this is one of the chief dangers of pure cheese.

Another session is being held this afternoon.

RENZETTI WAS NOISY IN HOTEL

Created Disturbance on Charlotte St. Last Evening—Fined in Court

Nicola Renzetti was in police court again this morning and was fined two dollars and costs, amounting to $5.75 for being drunk and disorderly. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Renzetti and pleaded guilty.

Renzetti has been behaving pretty well for the past few weeks but yesterday was paid some money as a result of winning a law suit and proceeded at once to spend it freely. Last evening he was in a local hotel, and being already in a drunken condition was refused any more liquor. His swearing and disgraceful language could be heard some distance. He was taken into custody by P. C. Newhall and it was with considerable difficulty that the enraged Italian was finally placed in a cell.

CONVENTION AT KINGSTON

Labor Educational Association of Ontario Will Meet There on Monday May 25th.

The call for the sixth annual convention of the Labor Educational Association of Ontario, which will meet in Kingston on Monday, May 25th, next, should be very largely attended During the last five years without having asked for or received one cent of financial assistance from any organization excepting the regular subscription to the Banner, the Labor Educational Association has been prosecuting a valuable work. The time has come when the necessity of a larger and more frequently issued paper is fully recognized. The Industrial Banner is the only labor paper published in the province and the time is here to improve it and increase its influence. Within a few days the call for the Kingston convention will be issued and it can be asserted that this will be the most important meeting ever held in this province. Other important questions will also come up for discussion which will be of vital interest to organized labor. The association has now reached the point where it can actively enter upon the mission for which it was organized. The year just past has been an encouraging one. Every month has witnessed an increase in the circulation of our paper which has been most marked during the past two months. We urge upon all the Trades Councils and local unions the necessity of being represented at Kingston. The time has come to resolutely grapple with the problems that confront us. Let every local do its duty. Let all send delegates to co-operate in this great work.—Industrial Banner.

ASK HAGUE TO DECIDE TROUBLE OVER FISHERIES

British and United States Governments Seek Arbitration on Newfoundland Question—Shall State or Colonial Laws Prevail.

Washington, April 16.—The British and the United States Governments are planning to submit to the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague the task of interpreting the Newfoundland fisheries treaty of 1818. Ratification of the general arbitration treaty recently negotiated between the two countries will be necessary before The Hague court can be called upon to take jurisdiction, but this ratification is predicted in well informed quarters.

In settling this controversy The Hague Tribunal will have to decide whether state or colonial laws and regulations shall be permitted to interfere with the terms of a treaty. This latter question has recently confronted the American administration in the Japanese school question in California.

That under the treaty of 1818, Americans were granted the same fishing rights in Newfoundland waters as British subjects, is the American contention. The British view of this question is that Americans were given such rights only as British subjects then, or at any subsequent time, should possess. To accept this view, the American rights would be subject to change at the will of Newfoundland, expressed in the enactment of local regulations. Such regulations have been made, and each has been regarded by American fishermen as a grievous curtailment of the original unlimited privilege to fish. The attempted enforcement of these rights has resulted in the accumulation of claims on the part of the aggrieved fishermen, and these claims will be considered in the award of the arbitration. To this list of claims has been added those of two American captains of fishing schooners arrested last week and fined $100 each by the Newfoundland authorities.

The submission of this treaty to The Hague court will, it is believed, inspire action by other nations.

NEWTON, C.P.R. BRAKEMAN IS SENTENCED TO GAOL

Left Switch Open at Guelph Junction—Special Train Was Wrecked and Engineer Armstrong Killed—Sentenced to Nine Months.

Milton, April 16.—Richard Newton, the young C.P.R. brakeman, goes to jail for nine months for his disobedience to orders at Guelph Junction before dawn on March 11th last. He was found guilty by a jury in the Assizes yesterday of criminal negligence in opening a switch on the main line in the yard which resulted in the death of his friend, Engineer Charles Armstrong. Both he and Armstrong were neighbors in West Toronto.

Armstrong was taking a special train of Mystic Shriners to London from Toronto. Newton turned a switch that ran the engine on to the main line without orders and without looking to see that the yard was protected by the semaphore. The semaphore was down to allow the special to pass through without stopping, as it was late.

The jury were half an hour reaching a verdict. Their recommendation to mercy escaped the notice of the clerk till Mr. Justice Anglin, in answer to the plea of the young man's counsel, Mr. T. C. Robinette, K.C., agreed that the case was one where justice should be tempered with mercy.

"In dealing with your case I am dealing on the assumption that you have hitherto borne an unblemished character," said his lordship, imposing a sentence of nine months in Milton jail without hard labor.

"I quite understand that you did not anticipate any such results from your act of carelessness, as unfortunately followed from it.

"If I were to consider you alone I would be disposed to accede to your counsel's suggestion to allow you to go upon suspended sentence. But I have to consider not only you, but the great body of railway employes in this country and the public.

"It is absolutely essential in the interests of the public that it should be known throughout the breadth and length of this land that the rules of a railway company, formulated for the safety of persons traveling upon the railway, cannot be disregarded with impunity. Parliament has seen fit to penalize their disregard and to treat that as a crime, although no criminal intent be shown.

"I would be wanting in my duty, I would fail in my duty, as I regard it, if I were to countenance any view that such neglect as yours was, can be allowed to go unpunished.

"At the same time you are not a criminal in the ordinary sense, and that I think is well understood. To mark my appreciation of that I intend, if possible, to segregate you from the criminal class, and to see that you shall not get in contact with them more than is absolutely necessary."

Woman Wrecked Fence With Axe.

Chatham, April 16.—Madly swinging an axe, Mrs. James Finley, Princess street, quickly demolished the fence between the properties of Rev. J. C. Richards and Mrs. N. Anderson on that street. The reverend gentleman objecting, rushed from his house and forcibly took the instrument of destruction from the woman, but found that the disciple of Carrie Nation would not be quiet until again given the axe. She then promptly completed the job. Mrs. Finley was landed in the lock-up, where her mental condition will be investigated.

No Strike This Season.

Cleveland, April 16.—Special meetings have been called by the officers of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association to be held next Saturday evening at all ports on the Great Lakes, where the organization has local branches to take up the pending controversy brought about by the decision of the Lake Carriers' Association to hereafter insist upon an "open shop" policy. The prevailing opinion among the engineers apparently is that there will be no strike this season.

Physician Cuts His Throat.

New York, April 16.—Dr. Alexander B. McWowell, a physician of 119 West 129th street, cut his throat with a razor and died soon afterwards yesterday. Just before death came he urged his housekeeper to summon medical aid.

The man was 35 years of age, a widower and had a son of five years. He had appeared in good health and spirits earlier in the day.

Not Contemplating Refusal.

London, April 16.—(C.A.P.)—In the Commons Sir E. Strachey stated the Government had not heard that the Canadian Government intended to impose restrictions on the importation of British breeding stock. The British Government had not contemplated legislation regarding the importation of Canadian cattle in order to prevent such action.

Accidentally Shot.

Gilbert Plains, Man., April 16.—H. Lamond, while drawing a gun from a wagon yesterday the gun discharged, the full charge entering Lamond's left shoulder, which will have to be amputated.

Bridge Swept Away.

Peterboro, April 16.—The bridge at Gannon's Narrows on Chemong Lake was swept away Tuesday afternoon. The bridge was a floating structure, and the loss will be heavy.

Boy Crushed to Death.

Toronto, April 16.—Bennett Asher Qua, aged 14, son of Samuel Qua, traveler, was killed by a King street car which he tried to board while it was passing King street and Gwynne avenue yesterday morning. He was on his way from his home, 11 Gwynne avenue, to the technical school. The car had stopped at Tyndall avenue and was passing when the unfortunate lad, running across the street in front of the car, tried to get on the rear platform of the motor. He slipped and went beneath the trailer and motor and was terribly crushed. A brother was among those attracted to the scene and assisted in caring for the remains.

Coroner Orr will open an inquest at the residence at 10 o'clock this morning. A representative of the city legal department will attend on instructions of the board of control.

Yesterday's was the third trolley fatality with children as victims inside a fortnight.

Cocaine Made Him Thief.

New York, April 16.—Franklin H. Gray of the Roxbury section of Boston, who said he was formerly a newspaperman of Niagara Falls, N.Y., was held by the grand jury yesterday on a charge of obtaining $465 worth of jewelry from the Wanamaker department store by means of a forged order.

Gray, who was being sheltered in a settlement house, until he could find work, admitted the truth of the charge in court and he said that cocaine had brought him into trouble.

Says Reports Are Untrue.

Brussels, April 16.—The governor of the Congo Independent State has issued a reply to the British white book containing reports from British consuls in the Congo.

These reports, the reply states, are untrue, particularly the affirmation with respect to the exaction of taxes in labor instead of money.

Drifted In Open Boat.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, April 16.—The first engineer and the cook of the disabled steamer Sonora, which has been drifting helplessly in the gulf for a week, arrived in this city Tuesday in an open boat.

They traveled 250 miles at the mercy of the winds and currents of the gulf.

Improvements at Havana.

Havana, April 16.—A committee of the City Council has reported favorably on the plan submitted by Governor Magoon for the paving and sewering of Havana at a cost of $15,000,000.

PRIESTS LOOK AFTER SETTLERS

Oblate Fathers Getting French Canadian Families to Locate in the Canadian West.

Montreal, April 16.—The activity employed by the Oblate Fathers in getting French-Canadian families to leave the Province of Quebec to settle in the Northwest resulted in 16 French-Canadian families leaving Montreal under the guidance of Rev. Father Therrien of the Oblate Order. The colonists will settle in and around St. Paul de Metis, in Alberta, where there is already a French-Canadian colony of considerable proportions.

Most of the men included in the party that left were farmers in the northern parishes above Montreal, where the lands are very poor. Hardly any of them have managed to save more than a few hundred dollars.

The Oblate Fathers have quietly been carrying on a very aggressive campaign to get French-Canadians Catholic families to settle in the French colonies in the west, and have even made arrangements to have assistance given to poor families who might find the trip to the western provinces too expensive, and on their arrival they will also be helped to establish homesteads.

Modified Bill Passes.

Albany, April 16.—The bill of the joint insurance committee, modifying the limitations upon the expense of securing new life insurance business was unanimously passed by the Senate yesterday.

It has already passed the Assembly and goes now to the governor.

A CHANGE IN THE ATTITUDE

John E. Redmond Cannot Support Premier Asquith.

Dublin, April 16.—Speaking at a meeting yesterday afternoon of the United Irish League, John E. Redmond, the Irish Parliamentary leader, said the changes in the Ministry resulting from the assumption of the Premiership by Mr. Asquith had involved an alteration of the attitude of Ireland toward the Liberal party, and he did not think that British voters could support Winston Churchill in the approaching bye-election at Manchester.

Continuing, Mr. Redmond declared that the attitude of Premier Asquith and Secretary for Ireland Birrell toward home rule was a direct challenge to the people of Ireland, and he warned Mr. Asquith to remember the fate of Lord Rosebery.

Ireland herself would have to force the home rule question to the front at the next general election, but there was nothing to be gained by withdrawing the Nationalists from Westminster.

Came From Kansas.

Winnipeg, April 16.—A trainload of settlers and their effects, consisting of 36 carloads, are en route from the district around Kansas City, Mo., and are taking up land in Saskatchewan.

Dined at White House.

Washington, April 16.—Lord Grey, Governor-General of Canada, British Ambassador Bryce and others were guests of President Roosevelt at luncheon yesterday.

THEY BURNED THE CHURCH

Garrison Church in Berlin Probably Fired by Incendiaries.

Berlin, April 16.—The keenest regret is felt by all classes at the loss by fire Tuesday night of the historical Garrison Church, with standards won by the blood of Prussians from the time of Frederick the Great onward.

Berliners have further cause for bitterness in the almost absolute knowledge that the conflagration, which completely gutted the building, is no accident, but probably another of the series of incendiary fires which already have been drawn attention to, only more daring, hundreds of others having been recorded lately, which the police appear to be unable to check.

It is supposed the fire was laid in the organ, which is a famous old one. It was full of flames when the doors were opened. Fire also broke out in two other places high up. It is quite possible that it was started through the roof, the same as all the other acts of incendiarism of late have been.

No less than 14 field marshals general and 50 generals are buried in the vaults of the church. The Crown Prince and Princess visited the ruins yesterday.

Lena Ashwell Gets a Divorce.

London, April 16.—Mrs. Playfair, known on the stage as Lena Ashwell, was yesterday granted a divorce.

Lena Ashwell, who is a daughter of Commander Pocock, R.N., married Arthur Wyndham, youngest son of Major-General A. L. Playfair, who has also been on the stage since 1887.

EXPERT WILL INVESTIGATE CHARGES AGAINST PLUMBING

Lively Time at Special Meeting of Board of Education Last Evening—Mr. Stocker's Charges Regarding Plumbing in Queen Alexandra School and New Collegiate Institute Were Read—Too Complicated a Matter for Board to Deal With.

There was a lively time at the special meeting of the board of education last evening, called for the purpose of investigating the charges laid by Mr. E. R. Stocker alleging that defective plumbing had been done in the Queen Alexandra School and the new Collegiate Institute. There was considerable discussion and it finally resulted in a motion being passed authorizing the chairman of the board to employ a disinterested expert to inspect the plumbing in the Queen Alexandra school and the new Collegiate Institute.

Those present at last night's meeting were Messrs. Robt. Fair, chairman; D. W. Dumble, W F Nelson, W. S. Robinson, John Crane, L. M. Hays, Dr. Morrison and W. H. Hill. Messrs. E. R. Stocker, Derouceau, the city plumbing inspector, P. Thompson, J. E. Belcher architect, and John Kincaid, clerk at the new Collegiate.

The first business taken up was the reading of Mr. Stocker's list of defects in the plumbing of the two schools. It was a somewhat lengthy list giving in detail every piece of faulty work in the two buildings. Mr. Stocker stated that the specifications to be followed were the City's by-laws.

"Who did the work?" asked Mr. Belcher.

"I did," said Mr. Stocker.

"You knew it was wrong," said Mr. Dumble, "and why didn't you come to the chairman of the board?"

"Because it was none of my affairs," was Mr. Stocker's reply. "I was only a fourth man. There was Mr. Deronceau and Mr. Thompson who were over me."

"Well, why do you make the charges now," he was asked.

"I make them as a ratepayer."

At this moment Mr. Robinson rose and objected to Mr. Dumble asking any such questions. The charges had been laid and it was for the board to investigate them. Mr. Robinson made a thrust at the plumbing inspector by stating that the city council might well investigate the matter. They employed an inspector and it was his business to see that plumbing was done according to city by-laws.

Mr. Dumble thought that owing to the technicalities in the work that not one member of the board understood, the matter should be referred to an independent expert.

"It is a well known fact," said Mr. Robinson, "that the plumbing in the Queen Alexandra has been completed and I am ready to show defects at present existing in the plumbing of that building."

"It is not completed until it has been tested and it hasn't been yet," said the chairman of the Queen Alexandra building committee.

The City Plumbing Inspector, Mr. Thompson was given a few minutes to address the board. He said that he thought that Mr. Stocker had no business doing the work which he knew was not being done satisfactorily. In answer to a question from Dr. Morrison, the inspector said that he had tested the underground plumbing of the new Collegiate building and everything worked satisfactorily. Mr. Thompson said that he was guided in his inspections by the city by-laws on plumbing.

"Does the city by-law not say that all work should be left open until finally passed by the Inspector" asked Mr. Robinson.

Mr. Thompson explained this by saying that the weather had not been favorable to trying the smoke test but expected to make it next week.

Mr. Dumble thought the plumber had the privilege to make any alterations he desired until the work is taken out of his hands.

Mr. Robinson took exception to this stating that before the investigation would be made the contractor would have time to make the necessary alterations.

Mr. Hill thought that any man had a right to make any changes that he saw were necessary and the board of education or anyone else could not legally interfere with him.

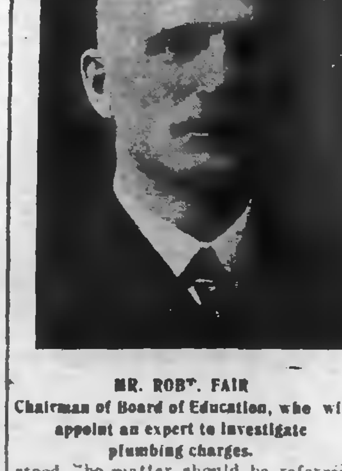
Mr. Hays said that the work was still in Mr. Deronceau's hands and he thought that it was time to call for an investigation when the contract had been finished.

Mr. Dumble said that if Mr. Deronceau's men did not do work correctly he should have a right to change it.

Mr. Stocker in answer to a question by Dr. Morrison stated that the workmanship with the exception of the brass bands was all right.

The plumbing up to the third storey was perfectly done. Dr. Morrison said that above this is a cracked pipe which Mr. Thompson said would be found out when the final test was made.

It was finally moved by Mr. Dumble, and seconded by Dr. Morrison, that the chairman of the board be authorized to employ a disinterested expert to investigate the plumbing of the Queen Alexandra and the new Collegiate buildings. This motion was carried and the meeting then adjourned.



MR. ROBT. FAIR
Chairman of Board of Education, who will appoint an expert to investigate plumbing charges.

MAY CONFISCATE STEAMER FOR KIDNAPPING CHINESE

Sailed Fraudently Under the British Flag—Coolies Taken to Mexico and Forced to Work on Railways—Constant Fighting on Board.

Shanghai, April 16.—An extraordinary case is being tried in the British court here. The crown is applying for the confiscation of the steamship Maori King on the ground that she obtained fraudulent registration under the British flag while she really belonged to a rich Russian Jew named Ginsburg, who chartered her to a naturalized American named Zimmerman, formerly a Russian Jew.

Zimmerman and two low class Americans conspired to kidnap 1,200 Chinese coolies from Vladivostock under the pretence of taking them to a Chinese port. They were actually landed at Guaymas, Mexico, where they were handed over to a Mexican Railway and forced to labor. They still remain there.

The captain of the Maori King, a Britisher, even kept the engineers in ignorance of his destination. Zimmerman is one of the richest men in Shanghai. The case is proceeding.

The Maori King arrived in Guaymas, Mexico, in August, 1907, with more than a thousand Chinese and Russian laborers. During her voyage from the far east there was almost constant fighting on board, as the Chinese, who had been told that their destination, Mexico, was a city near Hong Kong, were furious when the truth dawned on them. They became alarmed at the length of the voyage, and threatened to kill one of the contractors who had remained on board. To save the man's life the captain had him locked up in his stateroom.

Later there was a pitched battle between the Russian and Chinese laborers. When the ship reached San Diego, Cal., twenty armed Americans were taken on board and acted as guards during the remainder of the trip.

On the arrival of the vessel of Guaymas, on the west coast of Mexico, the coolies took possession of the boats and tried to reach the shore, but were prevented by the Mexican authorities, who were appealed to for assistance. Then they were turned over to the Sonora Railway to work.

A MURDERER IS CAPTURED

Head of Berlin Police Adopts New Tactics---Utilized Press.

Berlin, April 16.—The chief of the criminal branch of the police force, Herr Vannowski, is the hero of the moment.

Yesterday morning at 3 o'clock he arrested a man, Heider, the supposed author of a crime which caused more sensation than any in years past. On Wednesday morning last in the Thiergarten a package containing the remains of a man, mutilated beyond recognition, was found by a passing milkboy. On the next day many of the missing parts were found and enabled the victim to be identified as a Jew boy.

As much as possible of the face was put together and a ghastly photograph of the same has for the last few days figured in the bureau of the Lokal Anzeiger. On the fourth day Herr Vannowski was enabled to give the name of the victim as Blecher, a bootmaker's apprentice of nomadic and vicious habits. The police traced him to a low restaurant, which he had left in the company of a man at a quarter past four on Tuesday morning last.

Herr Vannowski was now running on a hot scent, and all that remained for him to know was the street and number of the house and the name of the man. Aided by a young girl who had once been there, Berlin's Sherlock Holmes was led to the very door. Blood-covered clothes were found. A trunk, which probably contains the clothes, hands and feet, is missing.

This told the whole tale, but the murderer had fled. Herr Vannowski ordered patrols made, with such success that at 3 o'clock yesterday morning the murderer, Heider, returning from the fire which destroyed the famous old Garrison Church, was recognized by a waiter who was with the detectives and he was promptly arrested. He was found in a semi-helpless condition of intoxication.

Herr Staubenrauch, the new head of the police, in this matter pursued a new policy by giving the utmost publicity to all the developments, and as a result found the assistance given by the press invaluable.

Will Ratify Treaty.

Washington, April 16.—The fisheries treaty between the United States and Great Britain regulating fishing in the lakes along the boundary line between the United States and Canada, yesterday received the favorable endorsement of the Senate committee on foreign relations.

Secretary of State Root went over the treaty in detail with the committee and also explained the treaty providing for the demarkation of the boundary between the United States and Canada.

Upon the conclusion of his remarks the committee decided to report the fisheries treaty, but final action on the other convention was postponed until another meeting.

Deed of Discharged Employe.

Northampton, Mass., April 16.—John Tracey, a discharged employe of the street department, shot and fatally wounded George F. Birge, superintendent of streets, in the latter's office yesterday and immediately returned home and shot himself. Tracey, who is 60 years old and married, was an employe of the street department for ten years. No cause for the shooting is known other than the discharge of Tracey Friday on account of lack of work.

Way of the Transgressor.

Philadelphia, April 16.—Confronted with the accusation of embezzling more than $12,000 from the Franklin Institute of this city, of which he had been actuary and treasurer for 22 years, Herbert E. Heyl was seized with what is said to have been apoplexy at his home in West Philadelphia yesterday and died shortly afterward. A warrant for his arrest was issued on Tuesday.

Shacks Burned at Cobalt.

Cobalt, April 16.—The shack owned and occupied by George Ross, barrister of Cobalt, and formerly of Toronto, was burned to the ground yesterday morning, as was that of Zena Trudelle, next door, on the Nipissing property.

HE FRIGHTENED THE JURYMEN

Extraordinary Scene in Quebec Court During Libel Suit.

Quebec, April 16.—Ulric Barthe, editor of La Vigie (The Lookout), a semi-weekly French paper published in Quebec, was found guilty in a libel suit and condemned to pay $600 damages and costs.

Ald. Huard, the plaintiff in the libel suit, is the promoter of the early closing saloon law in this city, which came into effect some two years ago. In the heat of municipal politics La Vigie undertook to demonstrate that Ald. Huard was a hypocrite.

The attorney for the defence, L. A. Gannon, son-in-law of Sir Charles Fitspatrick, took numerous written exceptions to the stringent ruling of Judge Lemieux.

When the case was given to the jury an extraordinary scene was enacted in the court-room. The presiding judge held forth the terrors of hell to the members of the jury who did not vote in accordance with their conscience. Turning to one member of the jury named Latulippe, who endeavored to get clear of the trial when the jury was being empaneled, on the ground that he was prejudiced, the judge called him by name and said: "You, Mr. Latulippe, on the first day of the trial, said you were prejudiced." Then he proceeded to lecture him.

The case will be appealed to a full court of the King's Bench.

Four Years In Kingston.

Guelph, April 16.—Alex. Cudney was sentenced yesterday by Judge Chadwick, to four years in Kingston Penitentiary. Cudney was the man arrested for committing numerous burglaries in the city and the surrounding country. A search of an old hotel near Marden, where he made his home, revealed a quantity of stolen goods of all descriptions, from dry goods and tools of all kinds to pickled pork. The value of the goods recovered amounted to about a thousand dollars. Goods were found at his home that had been missed since burglaries committed in 1906.

James Scarrow, his alleged accomplice, who was brought here from Palmerston, also appeared before Judge Chadwick on the Reid and Ross burglary charge and was dismissed.

Glorify Governor's Assassin.

Winnipeg, April 16.—The Ruthenians here are mourning Sziczynski, the assassin of Governor Potocki of Galicia, as a great national patriot. He was personally known to many residents here. Sziczynski's brother was at one time priest of the Greek church here, and his sister is the wife of another Greek church missionary who has been located here. The assassin is spoken of as a man of nobility of character, whereas Potocki was brutal in his oppression.

Baker's License Canceled.

Montreal, April 16.—The officials of the local food inspection office, acting as a result of a number of complaints received during the past few days, have started a campaign against city bakers who keep establishments which are not up to the proper standard of cleanliness.

Jacob Swarts, who keeps a large bakery, was arrested. Yesterday he was condemned by the magistrate to pay a fine of $10 and his license was canceled.

Makes Kipling Jealous.

London, April 16.—(C.A.P.)—Kipling, in The Morning Post, deals with Winnipeg and the wheat belt. He urges the need of labor, and says if a tenth of the energy wasted in England on social reform could be diverted to supervised emigration work, "we might do something worth talking about. It makes one jealous and afraid to see aliens taking so much of this treasure of good fortune for the sane and living."

Wreck North of Leamington.

Chatham, April 16.—A wreck occurred on the Pere Marquette yesterday morning about a mile north of Leamington, when an express engine in charge of Conductor R. R. Crouchman and Engineer George Gubb ran into the rear end of a freight in charge of Conductor Fisher and Engineer Barclay.

The caboose was completely demolished and the engine badly damaged.

ONCE MORE WELL

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" ALONE CURED HIM

Clarence J. Placey is a farmer of Ulverton, Que., known as a man of integrity and good judgment. He writes in no uncertain terms of the great benefit he derived from taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a long standing kidney trouble.

Ulverton, Que.

I suffered for many years with kidney trouble, with bad pain in the back and all symptoms of disease of the kidneys. I took every known kidney remedy and kidney pill but nothing gave me relief and I was getting discouraged. I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and I did so—and this medicine cured me when every other remedy failed. I used altogether fifteen boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and from the outset they give me relief and I am now practically well again, no pain in the back, no distress, and all the symptoms of severe kidney disease have entirely left me. I am very thankful to be once more well and I freely make this statement for the sake of others who may suffer as I suffered and to them I say "Try "Fruit-a-tives." 151

APRIL SHOWERS

The April showers are late this year. Spring with and without them is two different things. They bring out the Canadian frog band in all its tunefulness. There is nothing sweeter, softer or more musical, and it is not without reason that the frog has been called the Canadian nightingale. The heat of summer is lingering by anticipation, in the mellow air. Presently the grass bursts fresh and and green from its winter covering and then the leaves push through the varnish that protects them until they are quite sure that it is time to make the plunge. The gardener also begins his preparations. The amateur gardener gets uneasy and digs up everything in sight until he finds that the frost is not all out of the ground and that there is no good in planting things just yet. Then too the sucker season is at hand. This early fish is caught in fabulous numbers some being taken in the air as they leap the dams and sluice-ways in the upstream trips. The small boy catches them in large numbers although not so large as his vocabulary is able to describe. Even at this age and with such poor fish as suckers he learns to tell fish-stories, goes from bad to worse and probably ends in the pulpit as a clerical-fisherman. However that has very little to do with April showers which will wet our feet the same as any other shower but we welcome them all the same as a sort of Nature's dish-washer after a hard winter.

THE OPPOSITION LEADER

The leader of the Opposition, Hon. A. G. MacKay is an agreeable speaker although why he is billed as "Honourable" we are at a loss to say as not even the leader of the Opposition at Ottawa Mr. Borden is so ornamented. But then this is a democratic country. Retired provincial ministers are not entitled to the courtesy either but certainly if they are to get it the leader should. Mr. MacKay referred to Mr. Stratton as an efficient administrator of his department while in office. It is true that the latter was not there for long but when he went out he had been far from efficient. The trust estates of the department in charge thereof had been neglected and no less than $40,000 of an improved revenue was added to the income of widows and orphans in a short time after Mr. Hanna's accession. Also the asylums, prisons, etc., under Mr. Stratton's control had been allowed to fall into such decay as to necessitate large expenditures by Mr. Hanna to put them in a fit and proper state of repair. It is well known too that the administration of these various centres of accomodadation for the weak and feebleminded was anything but good. There has been a vast improvement in that respect as anybody can see who will take the trouble to inquire into it. Nor did Mr. Stratton suggest any of the far-reaching improvements introduced by Mr. Hanna as many will remember who heard that gentleman speak there last summer, Mr. MacKay's attack on the administration of University affairs was no doubt a matter of necessity. He has got to fill up his time with something and there are not many things to do it with.

The whole of Toronto University including staff, graduates and undergraduates to the number of many thousands approve of the new policy and rejoice in the advent of a strong straight man like Mr. Whitney to power. The University had sunk to the level of a shambles in Mr. Ross' time as did indeed everything else in eluding the moral atmosphere of the province. Mr. MacKay's stand on local option is the one thing that may be termed "reasonable" in his speech. The three-fifths clause is a matter of dispute and fairly so, Mr. Whitney is not wedded to it and may in time, remove it. It is not a good thing to be too precipitate in matters of habit and custom. In any event there is no degradation of the public service in respect to it to the level of common espionage and peonage as there was in the "good old days." It has required time to root out the rats that accumulated during the dying days of a malodorous administration but it is being done and done effectively.

TRY IT ON

The Review is purporting to print a series of articles on New Ontario. If the one published yesterday is a fair example, the series is of every doubtful value; for yesterdays' is an absolute untruth, in both innuendo and statement from beginning to end. If we might venture to tender some advice to the Review it might be suggested to the editorial writer to draw the long bow with a little more discretion. While we give our evening contemporary as stiff a business competition as possible, we should not like to see it unnerved by an expensive libel suit. One who knows the facts in connection with the Review's article of yesterday can easily see that Mr. O'Brian, if he took the Review's article seriously, would have very good ground for action at law.—The Examiner, April 14, 1908.

Bluff! The article referred to was founded upon speeches delivered in the Ontario house. They passed unchallenged because they were true. The statements contained in our article are not new, and the Examiner knows full well that they have appeared in a great many journals throughout the province. Bring on your libels! If the Examiner can wind us up so easily we recommend it to try it and it would be politically advisable as well for these glimpses of memories of the ragged past do the Liberal cause no good. But perhaps after all the real sting is in the fact that the original arraignment on the floor of the house was in this case also by R. R. Gamey, MPP.

THE AYLESWORTH BILL

The Aylesworth Bill puts into the hands of the returning officers of ridings in the western provinces, for Dominion election purposes, the power of making up voters' lists. "Give me the lists and I care not who makes the laws." These words are a fitting description of a piece of downright deliberate wrong-doing. It is safe to say that there will be such a fight in parliament over this proposed bill as to make the coolie immigration scheme look like a benevolent measure of reform. Leach too, the author and finisher of the thin red line by which 2000 Conservative voters were disfranchised in Manitoba by the simple expedient of scoring them out in red ink, is to be promoted. In fact he is already promoted to be the distributer of seed wheat to the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. It seems as if the Laurier Government wanted to break all records for wrongdoing and they are certainly accomplishing their purpose. It reads almost like a tale of brigands and bravoes. Day after day some new plan in violation of the simplest and plainest axioms of right conduct is "exposed" by the Opposition. But through them all runs the extravagance of reckless expenditure. It might be well for the preachers to turn their attention to politics. More harm is being done by political crookedness in one day than can be mended in the pulpits in a year. Facts prove it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Although so much was to be done and was done the session just ended of the Ontario legislature was one of the shortest if not the shortest in the history of parliamentary government in Ontario.

Mr. A. G. Mackay leader of the Ontario Opposition was in the city yesterday for the Liberal Convention. He didn't tell the public who paid his salary as Opposition leader.

A man especially in politics is better without a record than with a doubtful one. Not long since a sure winner, crooked or straight was what was wanted. This silly although old-fashioned idea has gone by the board. People are waking up who never waked before.

BY WAY OF THE HUDSON BAY

Parliament has just witnessed a demonstration in favor of the Hudson Bay Railway by the Western members who support the Government. These gentlemen describe the route by the northern ocean as perfectly feasible, and add that if built the line will assure the Western farmer reduced rates on his cattle and his grain. The road is so excellent a proposition that it is difficult to understand why it was not built years ago. How doesit come that the Government which these politicians support has not taken this first step towards the providing of this boon!

On this point Mr. M. S. McCarthy, the member for Calgary, throws light. It appears that when the Laurier Administration took office it found the machinery at hand for the building of the road. The question of the navigability of Hudson Bay had been settled by an expedition which had made an examination of the route, and a company had been chartered, and a land grant offered. In 1895 the subsidy for the road was actually defined. The allowance was 6,400 acres per mile within Manitoba, and 12,800 a mile in the Territories. After the Laurier Administration came in and Mr. Clifford Sifton was placed in charge of the Interior Department, the policy on this question was changed. Instead of pressing for the construction of the Hudson Bay road, the Government bent its efforts towards the construction of a line to Prince Albert by a route which is noted for what is termed "subsidy curves," or elongations of the line to increase the land grant. The road authorized by Clifford Sifton is an important railway; but it is not the Hudson Bay road. Yet to it the land subsidy voted for the Hudson Bay line was turned over. Of the grant made towards the building of a road to Hudson Bay no less than 3,180,928 acres were diverted to the line to Prince Albert, which was built by the Canadian Northern. It is sometimes said that the present Government never gave land to a railway. In this case it not only gave the land to a railway, but it gave it to a railway to which it had not been intended, thus interfering with the Hudson Bay project. If the people of the West want to know why the Hudson Bay Railway is not built the explanation is within their reach. The land grant was given to another proposition altogether.

Why did the Western Liberals, who make speeches and propound resolutions once a year in favor of the Hudson Bay scheme, permit this diversion of the land grant to take place? Why did they sit idly by while the Hudson Bay project was being slaughtered? Why, again, do they permit the resources of the country to be wasted on such projects as the second Intercolonial from Quebec to Moncton? If the land belonging to the country were not wastefully distributed, and if the money of the country were not thrown away in graft, or in the duplication of public services that ought not to be so treated, or in the putting up of bridges and towers that fall down, the Hudson Bay Railway would not be difficult to build.—The Mail & Empire.

THE WIRELESS SERVICE

In a resolution before the Royal Institution in London, Marconi stated that communication across the Atlantic by his new plant has never been interrupted for more than a few hours at a time since the commencement of commercial work on October 17. Mr. Marconi referred to the difficulty met with in transmitting during certain hours of the day. These periods he said, come in the morning and evening when daylight or darkness only part way across the Atlantic. He read a letter from the New York Times in which it was stated that since October last that journal had received from its correspondents in England and on the Continent news despatches totalling 68,404 words promptly and efficiently transmitted by wireless.

August 17 will be the fiftieth anniversary of sending the first cable across the Atlantic Ocean. In August of 1857 the first attempt to lay a cable was made, but about 300 miles from the Irish coast a strain caused by a sudden dipping of the sea bottom caused the cable to part, and the attempt for the time abandoned. A message of 90 words from Queen Victoria to President Buchanan, which took 67 minutes to transmit, was sent through the 1858 cable, but after a few following short messages it ceased to transmit signals. One of the electricians on the U.S.S. Niagara, which, together with the British war vessel, Agamemnon, laid this cable, always maintained that no message was ever sent, and that the message to Buchanan from Queen Victoria was "cooked up" for commercial purposes, his ground being that the cable had ceased to test out long before reaching the Newfoundland coast, and that on several occasions that in paying it out accident had occurred that had destroyed the insulation of the cable. In 1865 another unsuccessful attempt was made to lay an Atlantic cable, and the first operative cable was not laid until 1866.—Electrical News.

Beverly of Graustark

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark"

Copyright, 1904, by Dodd, Mead and Company

'Some day you may learn more about me,' she said to him. 'I sincerely trust that I may, madam,' said he, and I'll bet my hat he was enjoying it better than either of us. Of course he knows Yetive is the princess. It's his intention to serve Beverly Calhoun, and he couldn't do it if he were to confess that he knows the truth. He's no fool."

Baldos was not long in preparing plans for the changes in the fortress. They embodied a temporary readjustment of the armament and alterations in the ammunition house. The gate leading to the river was closed, and the refuse from the fort was taken to the barges by way of the main entrance. There were other changes suggested for immediate consideration, and then there was a general plan for the modernizing of the fortress at some more convenient time. Baldos laconically observed that the equipment was years behind the times. To the amazement of the officials, he was able to talk intelligently of forts in all parts of the world, revealing a wide and thorough knowledge and extensive inspection. He had seen American as well as European fortifications. The Graustark engineers went to work at once to perfect the simple changes he advised, leaving no stone unturned to strengthen the place before an attack could be made.

Two, three weeks went by, and the new guard was becoming an old story to the castle and army folk. He rode with Beverly every fair day, and he looked at her window by night from afar off in the somber barracks. She could not dissipate the feeling that he knew her to be other than the princess, although he betrayed himself by no word or sign. She was enjoying the fun of it too intensely to expose it to the risk of destruction by revealing her true identity to him. Logically that would mean the end of everything. No doubt he felt the same and kept his counsel, but the game could not last forever, that was certain. A month or two more and Beverly would have to think of her return to Washington.

His courage, his cool impudence, his subtle wit, charmed her more than she could express. Now she was beginning to study him from a standpoint peculiarly and selfishly her own. Where recently she had sung his praise to Yetive and others she now was strangely reticent. She was to understand another day why this change had come over her. Stories of his cleverness came to her ears from Lorry and Anguish and even from Dangloss. She was proud, vastly proud, of him in these days.

The Iron Count alone discredited the ability and the conscientiousness of the "mountebank," as he named the man who had put his nose out of joint. Beverly, seeing much of Marianx, made the mistake of chiding him frankly and gayly about this aversion. She even argued the guard's case before the head of the army, imprudently pointing out many of his superior qualities in advocating his cause. The count was learning forbearance in his old age. He saw the wisdom of procrastination. Baldos was in favor, but some day there would come a time for his undoing.

In the barracks he was acquiring fame. Reports went forth with unbiased freedom. He established himself as the best swordsman in the service, as well as the most efficient marksman. With the foils and sabers he easily vanquished the foremost fencers in high and low circles. He could ride like a Cossack or like an American cowboy. Of them all, his warmest admirer was Haddan, the man set to watch him for the secret service. It may be timely to state that Haddan watched in vain.

The princess, humoring her own fancy, as well as Beverly's foibles, took to riding with her high spirited young guest on many a little jaunt to the hills. She usually rode with Lorry or Anguish, cheerfully assuming the subdued position befitting a lady-in-waiting apparently restored to favor on probation. She enjoyed Beverly's unique position. In order to maintain her attitude as princess the fair young deceiver was obliged to pose in the extremely delectable attitude of being Lorry's wife.

"How can you expect the paragon to make love to you, dear, if he thinks you are another man's wife?" Yetive asked, her blue eyes beaming with the fun of it all.

"Pooh!" sniffed Beverly. "You have only to consult history to find the excuse. It's the dear old habit of men to make love to queens and get beheaded for it. Besides, he is not expected to make love to me. How in the world did you get that into your head?"

On a day soon after the return of Lorry and Anguish from a trip to the frontier Beverly expressed a desire to visit the monastery of St. Valentine, high on the mountain top. It was a long ride over the circuitous route by which the steep incline was avoided, and it was necessary for the party to make an early start. Yetive rode with Harry Anguish and his wife the countess, while Beverly's companion was the gallant Colonel Quinnox. Baldos, relegated to the background, brought up the rear with Haddan.

For a week or more Beverly had been behaving toward Baldos in the most cavalier fashion. Her friends had been teasing her, and, to her own intense amazement, she resented it. The fact that she felt the sting of their sly taunts was sufficient to arouse in her the distressing conviction that he had become important enough to prove embarrassing. While confessing to herself that it was a bit treacherous and weak she proceeded to ignore Baldos with astonishing persistency. Apart from the teasing, it seemed to her of late that he was growing a shade too confident.

He occasionally forgot his deferential air and relaxed into a very pleasing but highly reprehensible state of friendliness. A touch of the old jauntiness cropped out here and there, a tinge of the old irony marred his otherwise perfect mien as a soldier. His laugh was freer, his eyes less under subjugation, his entire personality more arrogant. It was time, thought she resentfully, that his temerity should meet some sort of check.

And, moreover, she had dreamed of him two nights in succession.

How well her plan succeeded may best be illustrated by saying that she now was in a most uncomfortable frame of mind. Baldos refused to be properly depressed by his misfortune. He retired to the oblivion she provided and seemed disagreeably content. Apparently it made very little difference to him whether he was in or out of favor. Beverly was in high dudgeon and low spirits.

The party rode forth at an early hour in the morning. It was hot in the city, but it looked cold and bleak on the heights. Comfortable wraps were taken along, and provision was made for luncheon at an inn halfway up the slope. Quinnox regaled Beverly with stories in which Grenfall Lorry was the hero and Yetive the heroine. He told her of the days when Lorry, a fugitive with a price upon his head, charged with the assassination of Prince Lorenz, then betrothed to the princess, lay hidden in the monastery while Yetive's own soldiers hunted high and low for him. The narrator dwelt glowingly upon the trip from the monastery to the city walls one dark night when Lorry came down to surrender himself in order to shield the woman he loved, and Quinnox himself piloted him through the underground passage into the very heart of the castle. Then came the exciting scene in which Lorry presented himself as a prisoner, with the denouement that saved the princess and won for the gallant American the desire of his heart.

"What a brave fellow he was!" cried Beverly, who never tired of hearing the romantic story.

"Ah, he was wonderful, Miss Calhoun. I fought him to keep him from surrendering. He beat me, and I was virtually his prisoner when we appeared before the tribunal."

"It's no wonder she loved him and married him."

"He deserved the best that life could give, Miss Calhoun."

"You had better not call me Miss Calhoun, Colonel Quinnox," said she, looking back apprehensively. "I am a highness once in awhile, don't you know?"

"I implore your highness' pardon," said he gayly.

The riders ahead had come to a standstill and were pointing off into the pass to their right. They were eight or ten miles from the city gates and more than halfway up the winding road that ended at the monastery gates. Beverly and Quinnox came up with them and found all eyes centered on a small company of men encamped in the rocky defile a hundred yards from the main road.

It needed but a glance to tell her who comprised the unusual company. The very raggedness of their garments, the unforgettable disregard for consequences, the impudent ease with which they faced poverty and wealth alike, belonged to but one set of men—the vagabonds of the Hawk and Raven. Beverly went a shade whiter. Her interest in everything else flagged, and she was lost in bewilderment. What freak of fortune had sent these men out of the fastnesses into this dangerously open place?

She recognized the ascetic Ravone, with his student's face and beggar's garb. Old Frans was there, and so were others whose faces and heterogeneous garments had become so familiar to her in another day. The tall leader with the red feather, the rakish hat and the black patch alone was missing from the picture.

"It's the strangest looking crew I've ever seen," said Anguish. "They look like pirates."

"Or gypsies," suggested Yetive. "Who are they, Colonel Quinnox? What are they doing here?"

Quinnox was surveying the vagabonds with a critical, suspicious eye.

"They are not robbers or they would be off like rabbits," he said reflectively. "Your highness, there are many roving bands in the hills, but I confess that these men are unlike any I have heard about. With your permission, I will ride down and question them."

"Do, Quinnox. I am most curious."

Beverly sat very still and tense. She was afraid to look at Baldos, who rode up as Quinnox started into the narrow defile, calling to the escort to follow. The keen eyes of the guard caught the situation at once. Miss Calhoun shot a quick glance at him as he rode up beside her. His face was impassive, but she could see his hand clinch the bridle rein, and there was an air of restraint in his whole bearing.

"Remember your promise," he whispered hoarsely. "No harm must come to them." Then he was off into the defile. Anguish was not to be left behind. He followed, and then Beverly, more venturesome and vastly more interested than the others, rode recklessly after. Quinnox was questioning the laconic Ravone when she drew rein. The vagabonds seemed to evince but little interest in the proceedings. They stood away in disdainful aloofness. No sign of recognition passed between them and Baldos.

In broken, jerky sentences Ravone explained to the colonel that they were a party of actors on their way to Edelweiss, but that they had been advised to give the place a wide berth. Now they were making the best of a hard journey to Serros, where they expected but little better success. He produced certain papers of identification, which Quinnox examined and approved, much to Beverly's secret amazement. The princess and the colonel exchanged glances and afterward a few words in subdued tones. Yetive looked furtively at Beverly and then at Baldos, as if to inquire whether these men were the goat hunters she had come to know by word of mouth. The two faces were hopelessly noncommittal.

Suddenly Baldos' horse reared and began to plunge as if in terror, so that the rider kept his seat only by means of adept horsemanship. Ravone leaped forward and at the risk of injury clutched the plunging steed by the bit. Together they partially subdued the animal and Baldos swung to the ground at Ravone's side. Miss Calhoun's horse in the meantime had caught the fever. He pranced off to the roadside before she could get him under control.

She was thus in a position to observe the two men on the ground. Shielded from view by the body of the horse they were able to put the finishing touches to the trick Baldos had cleverly worked. Beverly distinctly saw the guard and the beggar exchange bits of paper, with glances that meant more than the words they were unable to utter.

Baldos pressed into Ravone's hand a note of some bulk and received in exchange a mere slip of paper. The papers disappeared as if by magic, and the guard was remounting his horse before he saw that the act had been detected. The expression of pain and despair in Beverly's face sent a cold chill over him from head to foot.

She turned sick with apprehension. Her faith had received a stunning blow. Mutely she watched the vagabonds withdraw in peace, free to go where they pleased. The excursionists turned to the main road. Baldos fell back to his accustomed place, his imploring look wasted. She was strangely, inexplicably depressed for the rest of the day.

CHAPTER XVII.

SHE was torn by conflicting emotions. That the two friends had surreptitiously exchanged messages, doubtless by an arrangement perfected since he had entered the service—possibly within the week—could not be disputed. When and how had they planned the accidental meeting? What had been their method of communication? And, above all, what were the contents of the messages exchanged? Were they of a purely personal nature or did they comprehend injury to the principality of Graustark? Beverly could not, in her heart, feel that Baldos was doing anything inimical to the country he served, and yet her duty and loyalty to Yetive made it imperative that the transaction should be reported at once. A word to Quinnox and Ravone would be seized and searched for the mysterious paper. This, however, looked utterly unreasonable, for the vagabonds were armed and in force, while Yetive was accompanied by but three men who could be depended upon. Baldos, under the conditions, was not to be reckoned upon for support. On the other hand, if he meant no harm, it would be cruel, even fatal, to expose him to this charge of duplicity. And while she turned these troublesome alternatives over in her mind the opportunity to act was lost. Ravone and his men were gone, and the harm, if any was intended, was done.

From time to time she glanced back at the guard. His face was imperturbable, even sphinx-like in its steadiness. She decided to hold him personally to account. At the earliest available moment she would demand an explanation of his conduct, threatening him if necessary. If he proved obdurate there was but one course left open to her.

She would deliver him up to the justice he had outraged. Hour after hour went by, and Beverly suffered more than she could have told. The damage was done, and the chance to undo it was slipping farther and farther out of her grasp. She began to look upon herself as the vilest of traitors. There was no silver among the clouds that marred her thoughts that afternoon.

It was late in the day when the party returned to the castle tired out. Beverly was the only one who had no longing to seek repose after the fatiguing trip. Her mind was full of unrest. It was necessary to question Baldos at once. There could be no peace for her until she learned the truth from him. The strain became so great that at last she sent word for him to attend her in the park. He was to accompany the men who carried the sedan chair, in which she had learned to sit with a delightful feeling of being in the eighteenth century.

In a far corner of the grounds, now gray in the early dusk, Beverly bade the bearers to set down her chair and leave her in quiet for a few minutes. The two men withdrew to a respectful distance, whereupon she called Baldos to her side. Her face was flushed with anxiety.

"You must tell me the truth about that transaction with Ravone," she said, coming straight to the point.

"I was expecting this, your highness," said he quietly. The shadows of night were falling, but she could distinguish the look of anxiety in his dark eyes.

"Well?" she insisted impatiently.

"You saw the notes exchanged?"

"Yes, yes, and I command you to tell me what they contained. It was the most daring thing I"—

"Your highness, I cannot tell you what passed between us. It would be treacherous," he said firmly. Beverly gasped in sheer amazement.

"Treacherous? Good heaven, sir! To whom do you owe allegiance—to me or to Ravone and that band of tramps?" she cried, with eyes afire.

"To both, your highness," he answered so fairly that she was for the moment abashed. "I am loyal to you—loyal to the heart's core—and yet I am loyal to that unhappy band of tramps, as you choose to call them. They are my friends. You are only my sovereign."

"And you won't tell me what passed between you?" she said, angered by this epigrammatic remark.

"I cannot and be true to myself."

LONDON, April 15.—London cables are steady at 12c to 13½c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10⅜c per pound.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 15.—(Special.)—About 300 head of butchers' cattle, 55 milch cows and springers, 1000 calves, 100 sheep and lambs and 800 hogs were offered for sale to-day. Trade was rather dull all round, but the prices of cattle were steady. There were only a few really prime beeves on the market, and these sold at 5¼c to 6c per lb.; pretty good cattle, 4½c to 5c, and the common stock at 3¼c to 4c per lb., with the milkmen's strippers at 3½c to 4½c per lb. Milch cows sold at $25 to $60 each.

A few superior veal calves were sold at 6c to 8c per lb., but the great bulk of the offerings were young veals, which sold at from $2 to $4 each, or 3c to 4c per lb. There were only a few sheep in sight, and they were shorn of their fleeces, they sold at 5c to 6c per lb. There were about 20 spring lambs on the market, and prices ranged from $4 to $7 each.

The market for hogs was steady, owing to comparatively small supplies, for which the demand was good from packers, and sales of selected lots were made at 7c per lb., weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, April 15.—Cattle—Steady; prime steers, $6.60 to $7.

Veals—Receipts, 1400 head; active and steady.

TWO FINED AND TWO DISMISSED

Four Men Charged With Disorderly Conduct in Court To-day

Fred Raper, John Armstrong, Darcy Dunlop, jr., and Bert. Findlay were each charged with being drunk and disorderly on Saturday last at the police court this morning. Findlay and Dunlop pleaded guilty, and were fined two dollars, but Raper and Armstrong pleaded not guilty, and there was not sufficient evidence against them to make a conviction, so they were dismissed.

It appears that Raper and a lad by the name of Young were quarrelling out in front of the New Oxford hotel on Saturday when Dunlop who was passing by, thought that Young was not getting fair play and rushed to his assistance. Armstrong, it was stated, was also mixed up in the row.

DROWNED IN ST. LAWRENCE

Launch Capsized and the Two Occupants Met Their Death

Brockville, April 16.—Thos. Haselton and James Chimere were drowned in the St. Lawrence river about ten miles west of here last night. They left Alexandra Bay in a small gasoline skiff and had got about as far as Goose Bay when a storm of sleet and snow struck them, instantly capsizing their boat. Haselton was married, but Chimere was single.

SEATS FOUND EASILY NOW

The installation of a couple of lights in the Crystal is a happy idea, the lights being placed in the centre of the theatorium, and making the seats in every part of the house visible. The added illumination, however in no way interferes with the pictures.

The lights are used in the daytime principally, when one coming from the bright outside would be liable to have some difficulty to finding a seat in the comparative darkness.

CANADIAN GEN. ELEC. MEETING

Surplus of Undivided Profits and Premium of $1,763,663 Carried Forward

Toronto, April 15.—At the annual meeting of the Canadian General Electric Company today, Mr. W. R. Brock, the president, alluded to the recent reduction in the dividend, which, after having stood at ten per cent for nine years, was recently placed at seven per cent. It had been considered prudent, he said, to make the reduction, "in view of the present uncertainty of trade conditions."

The company, he added, had between 1899 until the end of 1907, paid out $3,478,469 in dividends. Since 1900, $1,161,594 had been written off. A surplus of undivided profits and premiums on stock issues were carried forward, amounting to $1,763,668, and there was a balance at the credit of profit and loss of $73,906.

"The total of all these items," said Brock, "not including payment of interest on borrowed capital, reaches the sum of $5,477,548, which, we believe, is a most creditable showing for a rapidly expanding industry which charges all experimental and development work to operating expenses."

A license to sell liquor was granted to a dead man in Altoona, Pa. His decease had immediately followed his application.

SERVICES IN THE CHURCHES GOOD FRIDAY

Open Air Service at Central Park in the Afternoon--Massed Choirs Will Sing

The religious significance of Good Friday will not be overlooked in connection with the observance of the holiday in Peterborough. Services will be held in the Anglican Churches and at St. Peter's Cathedral and in the afternoon there will be an open air service at Central Park under the auspices of the Ministerial Association of the city. The service will begin at three o'clock and the speakers will be Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. A. H. Brace and Rev. H. J. Keith. The musical portion of the service will be conducted by the massed choirs of the city.

The services in the churches are as follows:

St. John's— Morning Prayer, 11 a. m.; 7 p.m., devotions to be followed by the rendition of Stainer's "Crucifixion."

All Saints'—Services at 10.30 am. and 8 p.m.

St. Luke's—10.30 o'clock, Morning Prayer: 12 to 3 p.m. three hours' devotional service to commemorate the agony of Jesus Christ on the cross. Addresses will be given by the rector, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, and by Venerable Archdeacon Warren of Toronto.

St. Peter's Cathedral —9 o'clock, Mass of the Pre-Sanctified; 3 p.m. Stations of the Cross; 7 p.m., Stations of the Cross and sermon.

A special meeting will be held at the Salvation Army temple at eight o'clock pm. The band will be in attendance and a large number are expected to be in attendance.

THE FIRST GOOD FRIDAY

And as they came out, they found a man from Cyrene, Simon by name: him they compelled to bear His cross. And when they were come unto a place called Golgotha, that is to say, a place of a skull, they gave Him vinegar to drink mingled with gall: and when He had tasted thereof He would not drink and they crucified Him and parted his garments, casting lots; that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet. They parted My garments among them, and upon My vesture did they cast lots. And sitting down they watched him there; And set up over His head His accusation written, THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS. Then there were two thieves crucified with Him, one on the right hand, and another on the left. And they that passed by reviled Him, wagging their heads. Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour. Jesus, when he had cried again with a loud voice, yielded up the ghost. And, behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake, and the rocks rent; And the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept arose.

JESUS' CROSS AND CROWN

Mr. Douglas Russell, the evangelist, who is now in Peterborough, is the author of a number of poems of much beauty. The Review to-day publishes one of them entitled:

JESUS' CROSS AND CROWN.

Under the gloom of a lowering sky,
Bearing the doom of our sin must He die,
Now all is past, but oh, who shall say why,
O'er the landscape at noon came the night,
Jesus had nowhere to pillow His head
Till lying low when asleep are the dead,
Resting at last, with the tomb for His bed,
'Mid apparent defeat in the fight.

Dying, bereft, He the foe of its sting,
Harmless hence left He the venomous sting,
Rising victorious from death He will bring
A new life nought of nature can taint.
Freed is the victim and sheathed is the sword.
Who shall depict Him, all conquering Lord,
Worthy and glorious, His name be adored,
Be adored by both angel and saint.

Crowned is He seen, now no longer alone;
Nothing between, those He claims as His own,
Quickened upraised are in Him on the throne,
And have access within the rent vail,
Cast away sadness, and brood not o'er
C wrong,
Serve Him with gladness and laud Him with song,
Loud be He praised, He is sowing ere long,
And will greet us again with "All Hail."

DOUGLAS RUSSELL.

OBITUARY

MRS. F. M. BATES.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Fred M. Bates, who was burned to death in Dunnville recently, took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. Fred M. Bates, 654 Stewart street, to the Little Lake cemetery. A large number were in attendance as the deceased lady was held in the highest esteem by a wide circle of friends.

Mrs. Bates was only 29 years of age. Her maiden name was Miss Ina McIlwain, and she was a daughter of Mr. Matthew McIlwain, now residing in the city. Besides her husband and five children, she is survived by five brothers and five sisters. They are Robert, of Peterborough; William and Matthew, of Lakefield; Herbert, of Rainy River; and James, of Huntsville; Mrs. W. Bates, of Huntsville; Mrs. Shobbrook, of Winnipeg, Mrs. Ed. Conney, and Elizabeth and Effie, of this city.

FLORENCE GUTHRIE.

The death occurred yesterday of Florence Martha Guthrie, only daughter of Robert Guthrie, of Ennismore, at her home. The deceased was in her 15th year, and has been suffering for some time with heart disease.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at two o'clock, and will proceed to the Omemee cemetery.

TO PUT COURT INTO SHAPE

Tennis Will be Revived at Y. M. C. A. This Year

A meeting of those interested in the Y.M.C.A. Tennis Club, was held at the "Y." last night. It was decided to have the cinder courts put into shape and an estimate will be made as to the cost of doing so.

The prospects are good for a flourishing tennis club this year.

REV. C. H. COON WAS SPEAKER

At Street Service To-day at Noon

The last of the series of noon-day street services that have been so successfully conducted by the Ministerial Association, was held today when Rev. C. H. Coon, pastor of Mark street church, gave the address. It was an earnest and forcible appeal that was bound to impress all who heard it. Rev. Robt. A. Pogue of St. Paul's, conducted the opening prayer and announced the hymn and closed with the benediction.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend, of Toronto, is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the Hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted, protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at the Hotel Oriental, on Tuesday, April 21.

Miss Pearl O'Keefe, said to be a niece of a well-known Chicago real estate broker, eloped from Marion, O., with A. E. Bernard, a half-breed Indian.

John Moffatt fell down a shaft in the Beardmore factory at Acton and was killed.

STOCK MARKET QUOTATIONS

New York, April 16.—Early prices were generally strong, reflecting a better tone in London and the firmer element turned to the bull side. The day's news developments were not of any general importance. The declaration of regular dividend on S.C.P. did not stimulate any activity in that issue. We look for an irregular trading market next week and stocks bought on drives should be sold on the rallies. There will be no stock market until Monday next.

Friday fresh easterly winds, fair, a little higher temperature.

FORMER LOCAL BOY GETS RHODES SCHOLARSHIP

Mr. Stanley Fife, of Queen's, Kingston, to go to Oxford—is Visiting Here for a Few Days

The many friends in this city of Mr. Stanley Fife, son of Mr. James Fife of Edmonton, Alta., but formerly on the teaching staff of the local Collegiate Institute, will be pleased to hear that he has been awarded the Rhodes Scholarship for the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. Mr. Fife will go to Oxford University next fall.

On graduating from the Peterborough Collegiate Institute he went to Queen's University, where he studied arts during the scholastic terms of 1907 and 1908. He has been very successful in his studies at Queen's. He was also president of his year.

To be a Rhodes' scholar is a distinct honor, and Peterborough may well feel proud that one of her sons has been chosen to represent Queen's University at Oxford. Mr. Fife will take a two years' course at Oxford University.

The late Cecil Rhodes who amassed great wealth in the Kimberley diamond mines in South Africa, provided universities in Canada and the United States with these scholarships, a student to be chosen each year to represent the university. The one to go to Oxford must be an all round good man, not a specialist in any one line but normally good in the course of study he is pursuing, athletics and other departments of his university training. By this means is brought together an all round body of men at Oxford.

Mr. Fife is quite a young man. He arrived in the city this morning and is the guest of relatives in Ashburnham for a few days, prior to leaving to join his parents in Edmonton.

GOOD FRIDAY IN PETERBORO'

As is the usual rule there will not be much excitement in Peterboro on Good Friday. There will of course be quite a number of persons coming and going on the holiday, visits to and from the city.

In the afternoon there will be two athletic events, a football and baseball match. The football game will be between the Britannias of Toronto and the Quakers, and will be held at the Driving Park. The Brits are a fast bunch, and a good crowd should be on hand as a game worth while is looked for.

The West End and Strathcona ball teams will do battle on the West End ball field. This game will mark the opening of the ball season in Peterborough.

At night a grand exhibition of basketball is assured when the Midland septette and the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. team meet at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium.

Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be put on under the auspices of St. John's choir at St. John's school house Good Friday evening, and the Mission Band concert at George street Methodist church, in which Mrs. Scott-Raff will take part, should be an interesting entertainment.

At the Grand Opera House, Marks Bros. will have both a matinee and night performance. The attraction for the matinee will be "Because She Loved Him So," and for the night, "Jerry the Tramp."

ANOTHER GARSS FIRE PUT OUT

The Fire Brigade responded with their usual promptness to another grass fire call this morning. The fire was on the vacant lot, at the corner of Aylmer and Wolseley streets. One small extinguisher had to be tapped for the occasion. Archie Moore also got in some fine work with the flat side of a board.

FINE SCOTCH INLAID LINOLEUMS

Made Right and Priced Right

Our 1908 line of fine Scoth Linoleums is unmatched in Peterboro' for beauty of designs and durability of quality.

Thes Linoleums are INLAID (not printed)—are made of pure CORK and PURE LINSEED OIL—and are THOROUGHLY SEASONED before leaving the celebrated Scotch Factory for which we are the sole agents in Peterboro'. They WILL NOT CRACK and will withstand any amount of good hard wear.

The beautiful colorings are worked CLEAR THROUGH THE FIBRE in 2 x 3-inch Plank effects and in Tile, Granite, Floral and Block designs of rare attractiveness. The handsome patterns cannot be obliterated until the Linoleum is worn out.

BETTER LINOLEUMS ARE NOT MADE—AND CONSIDERING THE SUPERB WEARING QUALITIES OF THIS SCOTCH MAKE, THEY ARE THE LEAST EXPENSIVE KIND YOU CAN BUY.

John Crowe of Cavan Wanted Pay for Coming to Court

John Crowe of Cavan was a witness at the police court this morning and was much put out because he did not receive any fees for coming and giving his evidence. However, the case in which he was interested was dismissed without costs. He said that he had lost a whole day's work by having to attend court. "The time lost was worth two dollars to me," he said to P. C. Adams after the court was over.

An old man who was with Crowe said "I wouldn't come on any subpoena."

"Then we would arrest you" said P. C. Adams, "and you would have to pay a fine then or go to jail."

"I would go up on the hill," replied the old gentleman.

Mr. Crowe was informed that the highest fee he could get was seventy-five cents and the magistrate was not compelled to grant any witness' fee unless he desired.

THE MARATHON TRIALS ARE TO BE HELD IN TORONTO

Toronto will get both Olympic trial Marathons.

On May 23rd or May 25th the Provincial Marathon trials will be held in conjunction with the Ontario trials at Rosedale athletic field.

On June 6th the final Canadian trial Marathon, which will bring together the winners of the Provincial trial Marathons from coast to coast, will run a full 26 mile course, and the men who make the best showing will go to England.

The announcement made by the C.A.A.U. committee in charge, sets at rest the doubt about the dates of the Marathons, and runners now know just how long they have to round into shape.

The announcement that the Olympic Marathon for Ontario runners will be held May 23rd or 25th put Peter Christopher's Brantford-Hamilton race into the shade, for first-class runners will compete in the Provincial Olympic trial race. If they don't they cannot compete in the final Canadian tryout June 6th.

"How about Christopher's race?" Secretary, Crow of the C.A.A.U., was asked.

"He has no sanction," was the reply. "All he got was verbal word of approval, with the understanding that the Olympic trials would have precedence. We claim precedence, now Christopher must take a back seat."

The winners in the sprints and races under a half mile and the jumps at the Ontario trial meet on May 23rd and 25th will go to Montreal for the final Canadian tryouts, while the winners of the West and East in the other distances, the weights and pole vaults will come here for their final tryout June 6th.

HOAGLAND WRITES THAT HE WILL BE HERE FOR THE WALK

Hoagland, the champion walker of America, is sure to be here for the Brock street tournament, as is shown by the letter he has written to Mr. George N. Graham announcing the fact that he is going to come.

During his stay here he will be Mr. Graham's guest at the Oriental.

The letter is as follows:—

Auburn, N.Y.,
April 14, 1908.

Mr. Geo. N. Graham.

Dear Sir,—

I am about to leave for Peterborough. Will stop one day at Buffalo and one day at Toronto. Will probably arrive in your city Friday. I met a friend of yours last night; his name is John Poole. He met you in Buffalo. Hope to see you soon.

Yours truly,
W. A. HOAGLAND.

The fact that Hoagland is to be here will be news of the most welcome character to the enthusiasts. Blake, the game negro walker, will also be here. Mr. Geo. Stevens is in receipt of a letter from Blake in which the writer states he is coming for the walk.

ATHLETICS ORGANIZED; TEAM WILL BE AMATUER

The Athletic Baseball Club organized last night. The Athletics will apply for admission to the Midland League, and will have an amateur team.

AN AMATEUR TEAM.

The idea of the Athletics is to put a team of local amateurs in the league. The club will do all in its power to give the Peterborough ball players a chance to get into the game and realizes the fact that the young players should be given every encouragement to play the game.

THE OFFICERS.

The officers chosen were as follows;

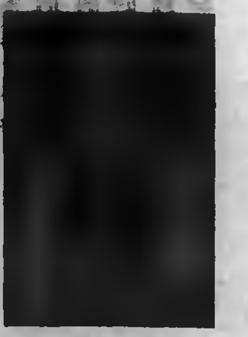
THE WALKING TOURNAMENT OF INTERNATIONAL IMPORT

This is the Opinion of Slater Who is Here for the Pedestrian Meet--Gives Review an Interesting Interview Hartley's Chances Look Good to Him.

The Review had an interesting chat with Tom Slater, the American pedestrian, who is here for the walking tournament and the man who secured second money at the Kansas City walk. Slater is an intelligent young athlete of good address, and talks along general lines, adopting the commendable policy of not unduly boosting himself or registering any unnecessary knocks against anybody else.



TOM SLATER
The American Pedestrian Who Says the Walking Tournament Will be an Event of International Importance

RACING KEEPS HIM FIT.

"What is your special course of training?" Slater was asked by his interviewer.

"I'm not following a strict line of so much that it keep me in thebest so much that it keeps e in the best of condition. I find my racing keeps me fine enough, and there is the danger of becoming overtrained if I take very much special work."

LIKES THE TRACK.

Slater is very much impressed with the track at Brock street rink and thinks the course will be one of the finest ever made for an indoor walking competition. The Brock street rink is larger than most indoor buildings in which pedestrian tournaments are held, there being 13 laps to the mile. Slater says that in the United States the average indoor track is about 18 laps to the mile.

A GREAT EVENT.

"The people of Peterborough," said Slater, "should realize the importance of the tournament. The whole city should wake up to the fact that this is an internationa pedestrian tournament of the greatest importance. Men with such reputations as those who will start here will be able to give the spectators an exhibition of heel and toe walking worth going hundreds of miles to see. It will be one of the most important athletic events of the day."

And considering the personnel of the field, Slater's remarks seem beyond dispute.

HARTLEY IS GAME.

Slater was much impressed with Hartley's showing in Kansas City, and said he made a great race to get inside the money. He regards the Peterborough wonder as a man of great endurance and thinks he will be a dangerous competitor. He thinks he should make a fine showing and be pretty near the top when the last lap is covered.

LIKES PETERBOROUGH.

That Peterborough has an ideal training climate is the opinion of Slater. He finds the air here much more bracing and invigorating than that of the South, where he has trained a great deal and says he will be in keen shape for the race here. On account of the ideal climatic conditions he thinks the time will be very fast, and would not be in the least surprised to see a six day walking record established.

SWIMMING INSTRUCTOR.

Besides being a professional pedestrian Slater is a swimming instructor and conducts a swimming school in Syracuse, N.Y. He has never attempted any great swimming feats, the biggest swim of his life having been one of eight miles in the salt water, from Gloucester, Mass., to Long Beach. It was an exhibition feat against time, and was conducted under the auspices of the Gloucester street railway. An immense throng of people was on hand to see the finish.

MEETING AT THE ORIENTAL

Will be Held at the Oriental To-night--Those Interested in Walk Asked to Attend

A meeting of officers and those interested in the pedestrian tournament will be held to-night at 7.30 at the Oriental. In view of the fact that the walk commences on Monday a big attendance is looked for.

All those intending to start are especially requested to be present.

WILL MAKE TAIT STEP

Donald McCauig, of Hamilton, the vanquisher of Percy Sellen, is looked upon to give Jack Tait a hard run at the three mile Garrison meet in Toronto on April 25th. McCauig is under the care of Billy Sherring.

THE RING

The best bouts in the history of the city are expected in the city amateur boxing championship tourney in Toronto, which commences Thursday night at Mutual street rink and will be continued Friday and Saturday. There are 77 entries.

FAST GAME OF BASKETBALL

Midland's Crack Septette Plays Local "Y" Team To-morrow Night

The basketball game of the season is billed for to-morrow night, when the Peterborough "Y" team and the Midland quintette meet at the local Y.M.C.A. gymnasium.

Peterborough will be repesented by a strong team and as the visitors are heralded as a particularly fast aggregation the contest should be a great one.

The ball will be faced at 8.30 sharp.

FOOTBALL GAME CALLED OFF

The game between the Quakers and the Britannias, which was to have taken place at the Driving Park to-morrow afternoon has been called off as the Brits cannot come here.

PETERBORO' HAS NO CANDIDATE

C.L.A. Convention To-morrow--No Candidate for Council

The C.L.A. convention will be held in Toronto tomorrow and Peterborough has no candidate for the Council this year.

It is to be regretted that this city with its creditable lacrosse career and such a number of players to choose from, should not have a twelve on the field this summer. However, lacrosse is apparently a dead issue in Peterborough this year as far as a C.L.A. team is concerned.

It is up to the enthusiasts to organize a Trent Valley League, as they have proposed doing, and give the public of Peterborough a chance to see something of Canada's national game during the coming summer.

BASEBALL

The Strathcona nine for their game with the West Ends tomorrow at nine o'clock at the West End field will be picked from the following: Wilson, Craig, Dusty, Heaslip, McMillan, Curtis, Ray, Parnell, Weatherstone, Pilling, Allison, Regan.

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

There will be a meeting at the Y.M.C.A. tonight at eight o'clock to organize a junior baseball league. All teams under 18 years of age are asked to have representatives present.

GUARANTEED SECOND-HAND BICYCLES

Every Second-hand Bicycle sold by the Banks Bicycle Works is guaranteed for one year.

BUSY TIME AT LOCAL MARKET

Mr. George Ball, the market clerk, had a busy time for a while this morning. Several loads of hay were weighed. The price of hay remains high, $18 a ton being asked today. Messrs. Stabler also had several loads of hogs weighed at the market, which were afterwards sold to the George Matthews Co.

Boy's Heroic Deed.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, April 16.—A young Niagara-on-the-Lake boy displayed a courage and presence of mind the other day that merits for him a medal from the Royal Humane Society. The young lad in question is Allie Caughill, the young son of John Caughill of this place. While returning home from school, the lad saw Mrs. Stacey, an old lady, who is quite deaf, standing on the Michigan Central Railway tracks. The old lady had stepped onto the track to put on her rubbers, and being very deaf, did not hear a train approaching.

Quick as thought, young Caughill rushed up to the old lady, and was just in time to pull her off the track to a place of safety as the train whizzed by. No doubt the old lady would have been killed but for the prompt and courageous action of Master Caughill.

Not the Woman Wanted.

Brantford, April 16.—Detective A. C. Vaughan arrived in the city yesterday in connection with a case in which Mrs. Mary Logan, a colored woman, who is being held on suspicion of theft of $550 from a Portland (Oregon) man.

The long trip of the officer proved fruitless, as he was unable to identify the woman as Grace Reed, who is wanted in Portland. The case was dismissed. Mrs. Logan resides in London.

Detective Vaughan stated that he had worked on the case from Portland to Salt Lake City and from Toronto to London.

Law Against Big Hats.

Cincinnati, April 16.—At a meeting of the City Council Councilman O'Brien of the sixth ward presented an ordinance providing that any woman wearing a big hat at the National League Ball Park must remove the hat before the game commences in order that those men who have paid to see the game may be able to see it.

The Council referred the resolution back to the committee on law, of which O'Brien is chairman. The proposed ordinance provides for a fine of $50 for each violation of it.

Duffy Sent to Prison.

New York, April 16.—Frank Duffy, an election district captain who had been convicted of having assisted 30 men to register falsely at the last election of the seventeenth assembly district, was sentenced yesterday to not less than two years and three months and not more than four years and three months in prison. The punishment was meted out in spite of more than 200 letters asking for clemency.

Collingwood Will Enter Appeal.

Collingwood, April 16.—At a meeting of the Town Council it was unanimously decided to enter an appeal against the judgment of Justice Britton, quashing the bylaw fixing the license fee for hotels and liquor shops at $2,500.

Mayor Watson and John Birnie, K.C., were appointed to interview Hon. W. J. Hanna in respect to the question Thursday afternoon.

Rennie Was a Multi-Millionaire.

Brockville, April 16.—A cablegram received here by relatives yesterday announces the sudden death at Hong Kong of Alfred H. Rennie, a native of Brockville. He was a multi-millionaire and manager of the Hong Kong Milling Co., the first concern to take Canadian flour to the Orient.

Rennie was for some years private secretary to Hon. John Norquay, Premier of Manitoba, and was a member of the Colonial Government at Hong Kong.

His wife was Miss Moffatt of this town, niece of the late Major Walsh.

Will Investigate Roy Case.

Paris, April 16.—The Department of Justice has ordered M. Boucard, an examining magistrate, to begin an investigation of the case of Paul L. Roy, the Frenchman who is accused by his American wife, known as "Glacia Calla," of killing her brother, G. A. Carkins, last January at Newington, N.H.

Should a formal prosecution in France be decided upon it is understood that the depositions of witnesses would be taken in America and that it would not be necessary for them to come to France.

Fire at Petrolea.

Petrolea, April 16.—Fire early yesterday morning destroyed two small frame buildings at the east end of the town, one owned by Charles McManus of Petrolea and the other by G. A. McGillivray of London. Contents of both buildings were completely destroyed. The cause of the fire is unknown. Insurance is carried on both houses.

Hobson's Amendment Defeated.

Washington, April 16.—Representative Hobson's amendment to the naval appropriation bill, providing for four battleships instead of two, as reported by the naval committee, was defeated by the House, 79 to 190. The result was received with loud applause.

Awarded Rhodes' Scholarship.

Kingston, April 16.—G. F. Fife, a student who graduated at Queen's in 1906, has been awarded a Rhodes' scholarship for the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

DR. BROWETT'S OPHTHALMOMETERS

In estmating the degrees and kind of astigmatism, this eye instrument is most valuable and accurate. Dr. Browett has, during the past fifteen years, taught opticians the use of five different kinds of ophthalmometers, all of which were good instruments, but the one he now uses is conceded to be the most exact and the finest instrument made for the detection and estimation of astigmatism, and the measurements of the curvatures of the cornea of the eye. This and other instruments are used for many examinations daily at our office. We supply modern eye glassese at reasonable prices.

APRIL EDITION OF THE "ECHOES"

Is a Special Ex-pupil's Number—A Creditable Paper

The "College Echoes" for April has just been issued and this month it is a special ex-pupils' number. A page is given to former pupils who are now situated in different parts of Canada, all apparently holding good positions and doing well. On page thirteen an article on the "P.C.I. Graduating Class of 1905," contributed by a member of the class. This class is probably the largest and most successful graduating class in the history of the old Peterborough Collegiate. Out of twenty-seven candidates all but four were successful in the examinations. The class is now scattered, not one of the boys residing in Peterborough at the present time. The writer of the article suggests holding a re-union at the opening of the new Collegiate this summer.

The "Echoes" include several well-chosen and well-prepared subjects that are bound to interest every pupil in the Collegiate. It is splendidly got up and is a credit to the editor and his assistants.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CITY WILL SEND INCURABLE CONSUMPTIVE TO HOSPITAL

Sad Case Brought to Notice of Property Committee—Permission to Hold Concerts in Parks Not Likely to be Granted the Peterborough Concert Party

A meeting of the Property Committee was held last night when there were present, Ald. Bradburn, chairman; Mayor Rush, Ald. Morgan and Gillespie. Considerable business was transacted some of it of a rather important nature.

Letters were received from R. E. Elliott & Co., and Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr, opposing the request of the Peterborough Lumber Company to pile lumber and slabs on Maria street at the south side of Engleburn Ave. The Lumber Company are using the property in question for a piling ground at the present time.

On motion of Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Gillespie it was decided to leave the matter in hand of the Peterborough Lumber Company, they to have the privilege of piling on the ground if they can secure the consent of the property owners who are objecting.

The case of a local man who is an incurable consumptive was brought to the notice of the committee in a letter from Dr. Scott. The communication stated that the man would likely be a burden to the city in a short time as he cannot secure any sustantial means.

The man is at present receiving $4 per week from Court Stanley, Ancient Order of Foresters but this drops to $2 after June. He has no means of support and no one to look after him.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Gillespie that the chairman of the committee make arrangements to place the man in the Toronto Hospital for Consumptives, at the rate of $7 per week, providing Court Stanley agrees to assign and lay over to the city all benefits to which the man is entitled.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and Morgan, the City Treasurer will be authorized to pay Mrs. Martha Reid the sum of $100 in connection with the property purchased from her of the extension of Aylmer street. The members of the committee felt that Mrs. Reid had not received enough for her property compared with that paid others in the same locality.

In connection with the request of the Peterborough Concert Party to give concerts in the parks it was decided not to recommend the council to grant permission to hold concerts as requested as to do so would not be fair to other places of amusements, the proprietors of which have to pay a license. The aldermen appreciate the fact that the concerts would be a fine thing but can not get around the license question.

PUBLIC LIBRARY QUESTION FAR FROM BEING SETTLED

Mr. Richard Hall Objects to Sale of Property on Simcoe Street, Maintaining That it Should be Fitted Up as a Library

All is not smooth sailing in connection with the Public Library question. The city had practically decided on asking Andrew Carnegie for a $25,000 grant, and selling the property on Simcoe street, which was deeded to the city by Mr. Richard Hall, trustee of the Nicholls estate and devoting the money received from both sources towards an up-to-date publi clibrary.

Mr. Hall objects to the city selling the property on Simcoe street. When he gave it to the city he intended it to be used as a public library. He requests that it be used for this purpose, and considers that the claim is not an unjust one in view of the fact that the city has never done anything to perpetuate the memory of Mrs. Nicholls, who has done so much for Peterborough.

Mr. Hall presented these views at a meeting of the Property Committee of the City Council last night, when it was decided to refer the matter back to the Committee of the Committee of the Whole Council for further consideration.

Mr. Hall was present and was asked to appear before the committee.

In the first place Mr. Hall said, he had given the matter careful consideration before deeding the property to the city. He had first taken into consideration the suitability of the building for a library site. It was located in the centre of the city, where it would be convenient for every one. A prominent Toronto architect had told him that it could be made a first class library. He would not have given the building to the city if he had thought the location was not a suitable one. He considered it would be sufficient for the next thirty years, and if the property had then become too valuable it could be sold. That would be a matter for the coming generation.

Ald. Bradburn asked Mr. Hall if it would not be a better stroke of business for the city to sell the property and secure $25,000 from Carnegie and use the money received from both sources to erect a first-class public library. Tablets to the memory of Mrs. Nicholls and Mr. Carnegie could be placed in the building.

The Mayor said he would hate to lose the opportunity of securing $25,000 from Carnegie, but he wanted to see Mr. Hall satisfied.

"I'm not going to donate my money to support a Carnegie library," said Mr. Hall. "The city has never even put up a shingle to perpetuate Mrs. Nicholls' memory. The library on Simcoe street would be a fine monument to her name."

"I'll take it back altogether," said Mr. Hall, "and give it to the city in some other shape where it will be even more appreciated."

The building Mr. Hall said could be fitted up at a cost of $10,000 or $12,000.

Members of the committee assured Mr. Hall that the donation of the property was greatly appreciated and all were anxious to see the matter settled in a manner satisfactory to Mr. Hall.

Ald. Johnston moved, and Ald. Gillespie seconded, that the matter be referred to the Committee of the Whole Council to be dealt with.—Carried.

LIBERALS HOLD CONVENTION G. A. GILLESPIE NOMINATED

To Oppose Mr. T. E. Bradburn—Meeting in Opera House for Selection of Candidate—Hon. A. G. Mackay Leader of Opposition Speaks—Hon. J. R. Stratton First Got Him Into Politics He Says

The West Riding of Peterborough Reform Association met in the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon to elect officers for the ensuing year and to select a candidate to oppose Mr. Bradburn. There was a fair attendance. Amongst those present were Messrs. G. M. Roger, R. R. Hall, M. P., J. B. McWilliams, J. R. Stratton, P. McNulty, Rich. Hall and J. J. Hartley.

Mr. G. M. Roger, president, occupied the chair. Mr. Stratton advised the Nominating Committee to retire and select officers. This was done and Mr. J. J. Hartley was chosen to succeed Mr. Roger, who has made an efficent and capable officer. Mr. Hartley thanked the members for his selection and hoped that they would give him their support. At the suggestion of Mr. Macfarlane Wilson, a vote of thanks to retiring officers was passed. The usual votes of confidence were moved by Messrs. Roland McWilliams, Joseph Riddell and Macfarlane Wilson. Then Mr. Andrew Macfarlane moved, seconded by Mr. Joseph Duffus, that Mr. G. A. Gillespie be the Reform candidate in the coming elections for the Legislative Assembly. No other nomination being offered Mr. Gillespie received the unanimous endorsation of those present. Mr. Gillespie acknowledged in suitable terms the kindness of his friends in choosing him as their candidate, but he would rather have had another man who could give more time to it. However, he would do his best. Mr. McNulty, the Reform candidate in East Peterborough, for the Assembly, also spoke. He referred to the satisfactory outlook for the success of the Reform party at the coming elections and referred in eloquent terms to the fitness of his leader, Mr. MacKay, and to the unfitness of Hon. Mr. Whitney.

Mr. Stratton said that he would not detain them, as all present were anxious to hear Hon. A. G. MacKay, who he was proud to say, had given up his offices at the speaker's suggestion to enter politics. The Liquor License Act was not strictly carried out and there was none of the improvement boasted of in that respect.

Hon. A. G. MacKay was received with applause. He commended the selection of Messrs. Gillespie and McNulty. He and Mr. Stratton had been colleagues in the late Ross Government. Mr. Stratton had been a good departmental officer and gave a good business supervision of his department. He then attacked the Whitney Government for their handling of the University of Toronto finances. Instead of setting aside a sum each year for the use of the commission, which controlled the University, the Legislature should have retained both money and control. He spoke strongly in favor of a simply majority in local option and opposed the three-fifths clause as unnecessary and unconstitutional. The speaker concluded with an eloquent reference to the Reform party throughout the Dominion and sat down amid loud applause.

Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., spoke briefly upon the issues of the day and the prospects of the party in Ontario, after which the convention concluded with the usual cheers.

EXCELLENT ADDRESSES ON IMPROVED DAIRY METHODS

Dairy Inspector Ward and Miss Rose, of Guelph, Talked to Local Dairymen—Valuable Information Disseminated

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Cheese and Buttermakers' Association was resumed yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, Mr. A. H. Campbell, former President of the Association presided over the meeting and in a short address, expressed pleasure at the increased attendance and was also pleased to welcome the ladies present. Mr. Campbell explained that on account of a mistake in the date, Mr. Publow, whom they had been counting on for an address, was unable to be present.

Inspector Ward, was called upon however and gave an address which proved of value to every dairyman present. Mr. Ward handled the subject of "Cheesemaking and Curing," in a practical manner which could not fail to make an impression on anyone interested in the subject.

In opening, Mr. Ward reviewed last year's work, referring to the unusual conditions prevallent. Stock were in very poor shape at the beginning, but as the year progressed, they improved. The weather conditions became very bad and a detrament to the cheesemaking industry. The present year, however, had a most favorable outlook and Mr. Ward thought this would be one of the best seasons the industry has had for some time.

Peterborough district cheese was n t as smooth last year as in other years, as smooth last year as in other years, and Mr. Ward thought this might be overcome by not salting as heavily as some people did. Two and one-half pounds per thousand pounds of milk was the quantity Mr. Ward would advise.

Then again, curds are very often stirred too much in hot weather, and better results would be obtained by keeping the moisture as far as possible. Another mistake was too high temperature in cooking. The temperature should be kept as low as is possible and at the same time sufficient to cook the curds. The reputation of the Peterborough district had been improved by the last few years' productions and Mr Ward considered that if the effort was put forth this district could beat the standard set by Picton.

Regarding the visiting of patrons by the cheesemakers the speaker stated that it is one of the most important phases of the factory man's work. This work should be done with a certain amount of tact, and if properly attended to, will prove far more beneficial and profitable than trying to keep the cheese market high. Co-operation among all concerned is what is most needed among the cheesemakers.

Mr. Wardalso emphasized the danger of infection of the cheese from flies especially in case any hog or cattle pens are in the vicinity. These should be kept asfar away as possible

The necessity of verycareful testing was touched upon and Mr. Ward states hisexperiences to be that and he is most particular in this direc- he who is most particular in this direction is invariably the most prosperous man. The speaker concluded by emphasizing co-operation between the cheesemaker, patron and buyer, as the chief factor in manufacturing first-class goods.

ADDRESS BY MISS ROSE.

Miss Rose, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, also spoke with much force and eloquence regarding Women's Institutes. Touching upon the organization of the first Institute at Stoney Creek, near Hamilton, in 1897, Miss Rose went on to tell of the chief aims of the Institution. These are a better education and training of domestic science for the housekeeper and a more thorough knowledge of proper foods. This is a most important subject as the proper feeding of children has a great deal to do with the future generation. Many people give children a great deal of starchy food and the child, not getting sufficient protien, is literally starved amid plenty. This causes an unusual taste for sweets, which in after years may develop into a taste for alcoholic stimulants.

These meetings have a great tendency to bring together the different religious denominations, as no discrimination is made between religions or social classes. Any woman by paying a fee of 25c may join.

Miss Rose called to mind the organization of a branch in Lackfield some years ago, when just enough women to fill the offices, remained to organize. Two years later this branch had a membership of eighty, and since that time has steadily grown and is doing great work.

In addressing the dairymen, Miss Rose explained that the first thing to be observed was honesty. A great temptation comes to many makers, to give readings of milk wrong. This is a great mistake, and if any doubt is held regarding a reading, the patron should invariably be given the benefit of that doubt as he is the producer, and the cream of the profit should go to him.

Making butter from whey was spoken of, and Miss Rose stated that a first class and cheap article can be made from the butter fat in whey. Although with a slightly different flavor from cream butter, its flavor is still delicate and in the speaker's opinion just as good as the other.

Butter making cannot be carried on profitably however, except in very large factories, as it requires one thousand pounds of whey to produce from two and a half to three punds from two and a half to three pounds of butter.

The meeting was closed by a vote of thanks being tendered Miss Rose for her most interesting and profitable address.

A resolution was also passed, thanking Mr. Ward and Mr. Cameron, the speaker of the morning.

All kinds of tea deteriorates with age. The flavor consists in an essential oil which decays. Take only fresh tea, and it only in the sealed lead packets of the "Salada" Tea Company. On account of its delicious strength a pound of "Salada" will go as far as a pound and a quarter of other teas.

IN MEMORIAM

In memoriam of Joseph H. Elmhirst, who died March 28th, 1908, aged 28 years.

My brother, oh why did you leave us.
Our hearts were in step with your own,
Your going doth greatly bereave us,
We each walk in the shadow alone.

As we stand beside the casket,
Looking on a face we loved,
Of a friend whose work is finished,
Who has passed to rest above.

Words cannot express our sorrow,
Language fails to tell our loss
Brother, friend and Christian soldier.
Who can ever fill his place.

Yet our sorrow is not hopeless.
There willcome a glorious morn.
When thedead in Christ will meet us,
As 'tis written in God's word.

Let us then fulfil our duty,
In the work assigned to us,
Do our part by toiling, praying.
So to be with him at last.

And as nearer draws the morning,
When we'll meet on yonder shore,
Still continue watching, praying.
Until time shall be no more.

L. Hope.

THEATRICAL

"THE IRISH DETECTIVE"

Tom Marks and his company again pleased their audience at the Grand last night in the presentation of the comedy drama "The Irish Detective." The illustrated songs, as usual were received with much applause.

To-night the play will be "A Rash Marriage."

Two couples have signified their intention of getting married on the stage on Friday night, when Mr. Marks has promised to give $25 to any pair that will consent to be inducted into matrimonial bliss before the footlights.

"PARSIFAL"

One of the most striking and beautiful features in the spectacle of "Parsifal," which comes to the Grand Monday, April 20th, is the Flower Garden scene with its fascinating Flower Maidens. This garden is the creation of Klingsor for the deliberate purpose of seducing the Knights of the Holy Grail from their lives of rectitude and holiness. But it is in the attempted destruction of the soul of the hero himself, Parsifal, where Klingsor puts forth his greatest effort, and the Flower Garden and its occupants are made to play their most important part. The garden itself is fairy-like and enchanting. Its luxuriant foliage and tropical plants and flowers of gorgeous and varied colors are sufficient to dazzle the eye and bewilder the senses with their splendor and penetrating perfume. Then again, in and out among this sea of Oriental color and luxuriousness, there appears a number of young and lovely maidens who rival in beauty of face and figure the magnificence and charm of their exquisite surroundings. The whole scene blazes with irridescent grandeur in the brilliant sunlight. It is into this vortex of sensuous creation that the innocent and guileless Parsifal is lured by Klingsor, intent upon his moral downfall. And yet we see how his noble youth is enabled to resist all the allurements and temptations that beset him. How, even when the arch temptress, Kundry, now transformed into an enchantress of wondrous beauty and voluptuousness, is powerless to attract him. We see these two arch demons, frustrated in their evil machinations, at last resort to physical violence, fearful that Parsifal shall escape them. Klingsor hurls the sacred lance at the head of the valiant youth. It fails to strike him, but miraculously remains suspended over his head. Parsifal grasps the holy relic and with it makes the sign of the Cross. A loud crash of thunder is heard and the magic castle crumbles into ruins; the Flower Garden and all it contains is turned into an arid waste, and Klingsor disappears forever. Kundry is overwhelmed with fright and horror, while Parsifal, holding aloft the holy spear, reveals a striking picture of triumphant good over evil.

WHAT MADE "OCEAN WAVE" MAN LEAVE THE MARKET SQUARE?

Question Was Threshed Out at Meeting of Property Committee Last Night—City Was Not to Blame—No Rebate for Late Market Clerk

The balmy days of last summer when local youngsters disported themselves on the "Ocean Wave," were recalled at the meeting of the Property Committee last night. The visions of bygone days were recalled by a letter from Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle, late market clerk, in which he asked for a rebate from the city on the price paid for the market privileges for 1907-08. He pointed out that he had lost money on the year's business, and enumerated some of the causes of this state of affairs. In the first place, the elements were against him—there had been three rainy Saturdays in succession last summer, and the roads had been so bad during the winter that farmers were not able to come to market. Then there was the short-weight butter episode, which Mr. McIlmoyle claimed, had kept a large number of women from ever coming back to the market. The police, he considered, had not gone about the matter in the right way.

And lastly there was the case of the "Ocean wave." Early in the summer, the man with the "ocean wave" had come to Peterborough, and arranged with Mr. McIlmoyle to have his merry-go-round placed on the market square for a rental of $7 per week. When the man went to see the city clerk about a license he found that it was rather steep and so he cancelled his bargain with Mr. McIlmoyle.

Mr. McIlmoyle appeared before the committee last night, and gave the information noted above.

No action was taken by the committee regarding Mr. McIlmoyle's request. It was pointed out that the city did not control the elements, that all the women but one, arrested for having short weight butter, had been fined, showing that the police department was justified in the action taken, and as for the "Ocean Wave" affair, the man had not been driven off the market by the city. He had placed his merry-go-round on another lot in the city and had paid the regular license fee while it remained in operation. Under these circumstances the committee felt that it could not grant Mr. McIlmoyle any rebate.

ARRANGEMENTS BEING MADE FOR THE BORDEN RECEPTION

Joint Committee Met Last Night and Arranged Further Details—City Grants $100 to Assist in Defraying Expenses

At a meeting of representatives of City Council, Board of Education, Board of Trade and 57th Regiment, held in the City Council Chambers last night arrangements were made for the reception to be tendered Sir Frederick Borden when he visits Peterborough to lay the corner stone of the new armories next Wednesday. An "At Home" will be held in the officers' quarters at the drill shed after the ceremony of laying the stone and at night a banquet will be tendered the distinguished guest at the Oriental hotel.

The following were present at last night's meeting:

Reception Committee City Council—Ald. Elliott, Phelan, McIntyre and Turner.

Committee from the 57th Regiment—Major L. M. Hayes, Capt. McWilliams, Major Clegg.

Board of Education—Mr. Robert Fair and Dr. Burnham.

Board of Trade—Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine.

Citizens—Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P.; T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.; and Mr. J. H. Burnham.

Mr. R. R. Hall gave certain information about the guest and said he proposed to take full charge of Sir Frederick from the time he arrived on the noon train until 2 o'clock when he would hand the guest over to the military authorities.

The following programme was drafted for the banquet to be held at the Oriental hotel.

Chairman of the Banquet Committee—His Worship Mayor Rush.

TOASTS.

The King.

The Governor-General.

Our Guest—Proposed by the chairman—replied to by Sir Frederick Borden.

Dominion House and Local Assembly—Proposed by Mr. J. H. Burnham and replied to by Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., and Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.

Peterborough Garrison—Proposed by Mr. J. R. Stratton—replied to by Lieut.-Col. Stevenson, Major T. W. H. Young and Major Johnston.

A special committee was then appointed to work out the details of the banquet as follows:

Ald. Elliott, Ald. Phelan, Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Turner, representing the City Council.

Major L. M. Hayes, Capt. McWilliams and Major Clegg, representing the 57th Regiment.

Dr. Burnham and Mr. Robt. Fair representing the Board of Education.

Mr. J. H. Burnham and Dr. Morrison and Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, representing the Board of Trade.

The Warden, representing the County of Peterborough.

A letter of regret was read from Mr. J. R. Stratton who was unable to be present.

It was decided to place the tickets for the banquet at $1.50 each and Ald. Elliot, Ald. Phelan and Major Hayes were appointed a committee to arrange with the Oriental hotel for the banquet.

It was decided to ask the City Council for $100 to assist in defraying the expense of the reception.

This has been granted.

NOTICE TO PARSIVAL PATRONS

DO NOT WANT LOCAL OPTION

Mschael Heenan Wants By-law in Hamilton Township Quashed

Special to the Review

Toronto, April 16.—There was a petition before Chief Justice Meredith today to quash the local option bylaw of Hamilton township in Northumberland county. The petitioner is Michael Heenan, and the ground on which application is made is that the petition on which the bylaw was submitted had 25 per cent. of the population based on the voters' list of 1906, whereas the voting took place on the 1907 lists. The motion was enlarged a week.

WILL GIVE WIFE $3 PER WEEK

Domestic in Felicity in Home of William Dickson—Before County Magistrate

William Dickson the Harvey man, whom County Constable Cochran went after yesterday, appeared to-day before Judge Edmison, on the charge of beating his wife. After hearing the evidence, and discussing the matter the prosecution was given the opportunity of changing the charge to one of non-support.

As the couple decided they could no longer live together Mr. Dickson was ordered to give his wife three dollars per week while they live apart. Costs of $10.85 were imposed and paid in cash.

MANY PERMITS ARE TAKEN OUT

Majority of Them for Good Dwelling Houses—Building Trade Outlook Brighter

The building trade has taken on a brighter outlook. Many building permits have been issued at the City during the past ten days, the majority of them for substantial dwelling houses. Among the recent permits are the following;

Herbert McMillen, brick veneer dwelling on Rogers street, $2000.

Mrs. M. F. Reid, refacing foundation of verandah and shingling house on Lansdowne street, $150.

A. Weir, stable at 444 Mark street, $150.

Mark street Methodist church, building new verandah, putting in plumbing and furnace at pastor's house, at 378 Mark street $500.

Jas. Fife, verandah at house at corner of Hunter and Rogers streets, $50.

Alexander Davidson, brick veneer dwelling on Water street, $2,700.

Frank Montgomery, stable on Simcoe street, $2,500.

John Rothwell, roughcast dwelling on Antrim street, $400.

R. G. Hudson, brick veneer dwelling on London street, $1800.

G. Walter Green, brick veneer dwelling on London street, $1800.

Toronto Savings & Loan Co., brick veneer dwelling on Park street, $1900.

ONE OF LARGEST AND BEST BAKERIES IN ONTARIO

Will be in Operation in a Few Days—Is Located at Corner of George and Dublin Streets

The largest and best equipped bakery in Ontario, outside Toronto and Ottawa, will be in operation by the first of June, in this city. The bakery referred to, is that of the Mann Bakery Co., on the corner of Dublin and George streets. A new, two-storey, solid brick structure has been erected, and the company is at present moving from their old premises, corner of George and Edinburgh streets.

In the ground floor, three large brick ovens have been built, by the well-known oven manufacturers, Marsh & Co. of Toronto. The baking capacity of these ovens, is about four thousand loaves and two hundred dozen buns per night, as well as pies, cakes, etc., which are baked during the day.

At a heat of 450 degrees, 700 loaves per hour may be turned out. An endless chain, carries the flour to the first flat, where it is stored, and where it is also mixed, and dropped down a chute to the tables below. A Penrith mixer is being installed, which will divide the batch into loaves, and place it in the moulder, where it is moulded ready for the pans. This dispenses with a great dealing of handling, making conditions very sanitary.

Racks are wheeled into the bake room, in which the finished loaves are placed, and removed to the bread room, out of which a door opens into room, out of which a door opens into the driving room, where the wagons are brought in and backed to the door for loading. Three wagons are already on the road, and another is now being put in commission.

THE BASEMENT.

In the basement a bath has been especially arranged for the employees. This is a sanitary feature which which is not often found. Stone walls divide the basement into three parts, for the storage of fruit, coal and grocery supplies respectively.

A grocery store and ice cream parlor are being opened in connection with the confectionery store in front. The ice cream parlor should prove an especially paying feature, if the Menzie property, which is opposite, is used for a public library.

Furniture and a marble soda fountain are being secured from the Fletcher Mfg. Co., of Toronto.

The stonework on the building was contracted for by Andrew Robinson of this city, while McFadden and Godwin did the brickwork.

The building is being heated by steam, boilers and radiators being supplied by the Gurney Stove Works of Hamilton, and has been installed by R. J. Sutherland of this city.

Six bakers are at present employed in meeting the demand for the whole some dainties turned out by this firm, while a staff of three clerks, and three deliverymen look after the dispensing of them.

George Karr, of Pickering, ex-manager of the Western Bank there is dead, aged 80.

KURDS WERE SCATTERED BY THE RUSSIAN INVADERS

Russian Punitive Force Has Invaded Persian Territory---Action Taken Because of Attack by Raiders Upon Russian Garrison

Tiflis, Trans-Caucasia, April 18.—Russian troops have invaded Persian territory in the vicinity of Lenkoran, a port on the Caspian Sea, for the purpose of punishing Kurdish raiders. This step was taken in consequence of the renewal of the attack upon the Russian garrison at Belesuvar, a frontier post.

The trouble began April 12, when a detachment of Russian troops from Belesuvar met a band of Kurdish brigands and lost several men in the subsequent fighting. The brigands also suffered. They prepared to attack Belesuvar in force in revenge for their treatment by the Russian soldiers, and descended on the garrison in large numbers.

Orders were issued for the garrison, which is supported by artillery, to enter Persian territory and punish the Kurds. The Russians in force then crossed the frontier and destroyed several villages. They also scattered the Kurds, who numbered 4,000. According to the latest reports received at Tiflis, the Russians are still advancing.

The people of Belesuvar have telegraphed to St. Petersburg for immediate protection. Cossacks have been sent into the districts to preserve order. The whole of the frontier is in a state of alarm.

The fight which ensued assumed the proportions of a pitched battle. The Russians were greatly outnumbered, but they pressed the battle with great vigor and routed the Persians, inflicting a loss of 34 men killed and 50 wounded. The remainder of the tribesmen broke and fled.

The Russians lost one officer and seven soldiers were wounded. The cannonade set fire to the village of Belesuvar, the destruction of which was completed by the Cossacks after a ruthless house to house search for the Russian arms stolen during the raid of April 13.

Pressing their advantage, the Russians bombarded the neighboring villages of Kodzhabelu and Serah and razed both. The non-combatants suffered great losses.

Persia Will Co-Operate.

St. Petersburg, April 18.—The Foreign Office has been informed that Persia is sending a military expedition to co-operate with the Russian garrison of Belesuvar, a frontier post which was recently attacked by a large force of Kurdish bandits.

Hopes are held here that order speedily will be restored in the disturbed district.

FRENCH WERE WERE ATTACKED

Berbers and Arabs Tried Surprise Which Proved a Failure

Colomb Bechar, Algeria, April 18.—A French column posted on Talzaza Hill, which commands the Plain of Tamlet, was attacked fiercely at daylight Thursday by a number of Berbers, who, with the Nomad Arabs, have been concentrating for some weeks past on the western frontier of Algeria.

Although surprised the French force rallied and fought desperately and succeeded finally, not only in beating off their adversaries, but in pursuing them for a distance of six miles. So hot was the pursuit that the Arabs abandoned their dead and wounded. Several green flags of the Prophet also fell into the hands of the French.

Twenty-eight of the French troops, including an officer, were killed, and 100, including ten officers, wounded.

The losses were the greatest in the foreign legion. The Berber losses were much heavier, 125 dead bodies being found by the French troops. The French pursuit was stopped by darkness.

Australian Remounts.

Manila, April 18.—Major William Brown of the Third Cavalry has returned from Australia with 108 Australian remounts for the cavalry, making a total of 598 for the army bought in six months. This is an experiment to prove whether it will be possible to stop bringing American horses here. The Australians are smaller, supposedly hardier and better suited to the tropics than those now in use throughout the islands.

These animals give good service, but they need a test of a year to prove that they will be permanently valuable They are mostly bought unbroken, as the cavalry prefer to start fresh with them. The average price is $125 in Queensland, Victoria and New South Wales, much less than the American prices.

MANY PERSONS STILL MISSING

List of Dead in Chelsea Fire Grows Every Day

Boston, April 18.—The state police began a preliminary investigation yesterday of the causes leading to the fire in Chelsea last Sunday and of the reports that there was considerable incendiarism in various parts of the city during the progress of the fire. Deputy Chief Neal rode about the city and on Tuesday will hear witnesses at the state house. The tenth body recovered from the ruins was uncovered in a cellar near the corner of Gerish avenue and Broadway about noon yesterday. Like several of the others it was burned beyond recognition and was sent to the morgue in Boston for possible identification.

The police fear that further search in the hundreds of cellars will disclose others bodies, as the list of persons missing is still large. The missing lists, however, vary, ranging from 30 to 70. Many persons who could not be found early in the week have turned up, but at least 40 are still unaccounted for. There has been no systematic search of the cellars of the burned houses. It is expected that as soon as the streets have been thoroughly cleared the authorities will make an effort to search the cellars systematically.

Several Treaties Ratified.

Washington, April 18.—The Senate yesterday ratified treaties as follows:

For general arbitration with Norway and Portugal; two conventions negotiated at the conference at The Hague relating to the rights and duties of neutral powers in naval war and the limitation of the employment of force in the recovery of contract debts; between the Uniter States and Great Britain concerning fisheries in waters contiguous to the United States and Canada and for extradition between the United States and the Republic of San Marino (in Italy).

CONGO TREATY WAS DISCUSSED

In Belgian Chamber of Deputies Now in Session.

Brussels, April 18.—The discussion on the question of the annexation of the Congo Independent State began in the Chamber of Deputies, which was called Wednesday. Very little progress was made beyond the clearing up of preliminary matters.

After a sharp attack on the part of the Socialists, who accused the Government of a wish to rush a vote on the annexation treaty and then shelve the colonial bill, the Premier summed up the benefits which Belgium would derive from the annexation of the Congo Independent State, and M. Davignon, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, followed with an explanation of the International situation arising out of the question which the United States and Great Britain had submitted asking what steps were being taken to carry out the terms of the Berlin treaty with regard to the rights of the natives and the liberty of commerce. While it was impossible to give details of what was being accomplished, the Foreign Minister said that he could give assurance that the Belgian Government was neglecting nothing.

It was decided that the debate on the treaty should continue without interruption until May 9, when the Chamber rises for the elections.

Attack on King Leopold.

Brussels, April 18.—A feature of the debate on the Congo question in the Chamber of Deputies was the violent attacks made on King Leopold by the Socialist deputy, M. Bertram, who accused the King of squandering millions on palaces and in restaurants, which ought to be devoted to the needs of the natives of the Congo Independent State.

Favor Japanese Boycott.

New York, April 18.—A cable despatch to The Herald from Hong Kong says: In the present boycott extremity the Japanese discover that they enjoy no sympathy at the hands of their British allies. On the contrary, the British, while not openly indorsing the boycott, condemn the action of Japan which provoked the Chinese retaliation and gave the movement moral support.

The situation serves to emphasize the universal unpopularity of the Anglo-Japanese alliance among the English in the Orient. This unpopularity prevails not only among commercial men but all classes. Officers of the army and navy criticize their Government's attitude only under pledge of secrecy, but the representatives of great commercial interests which have created British prestige in the Orient are outspoken wherever English foregather.

There is criticism of the Japanese, criticism of the blindness of British capitalists loaning Japan money with which to cut the throat of British commerce, and criticism particularly of the alliance, which they hold responsible for all the subsequent evils. Practically there are no defenders.

Four Japanese Killed.

Winnipeg, April 18.—The latest information available at the C.P.R. offices here concerning the snowslide at Albert Canyon is to the effect that the radius of the accident was local, near Downey station, on the coast division of the C.P.R. main line, and that four Japanese belonging to a construction gang were hurled from their boarding-car down the side of a steep mountain and killed outright. Ten others were so seriously injured that they will have to be taken to the company's hospital nearby. Little hope is held out for their recovery.

Sentenced Priest Slayer.

Rome, April 18.—The anarchist, De Sanctio, who stabbed to death in Rome Rev. Antonio Corsi, in June, 1906, has been condemned to thirty years' imprisonment. Experts declared the insanity symptoms were feigned.

No political question was touched on in the interview between Pope Pius and the German Imperial Chancellor, Prince von Buelow.

THE KETCHECUM HUNT CLUB AND SOME OF ITS MEMBERS

Rod and Gun Contains Reference to Well Known Local Organization—Great Sport in the Northern Woods in the Autumn.

The following appeared in the April number of Rod and Gun in which was also published the two excellent cuts of Messrs. H. LeBrun and H. Winch, which are herewith reproduced in the Review:

MR. HARRY WINCH
A Popular Member of the Ketchecum Hunt Club.

The sportsmen of Peterborough, Ont. are fortunate in being able to enjoy their sport not too far from home. A drive of forty miles from their fine city takes them to a great chain of beautiful lakes where they are in the wilds of nature, and can fish and shoot as much as the laws allow them. For thirty years some of the best known sportsmen of the city have been fishing and hunting around the lakes which are named Ketchecum, Spencer and Bottle and these give them the finest of scenery as well as the best of fishing.

Almost fifteen years ago the sportsmen frequenting the place, formed themselves into a club entitled the Ketchecum Club. They have built a club house, a large boat house and taken other means to secure their own comfort while enjoying the outdoor life to the full.

The club house is open in early October when the members enjoy fine trout fishing. They can visit the club as they please, usually staying a week or to the average number at the camp at one time being a dozen Success has generally attended the hunters and last season they obtained twenty deer.

The president of the Club, Mr. Harry Winch, is a veteran hunter, and well known amongst sportsmen, as indeed he should be, having hunted big game for forty-four years. Mr. Winch is as famous a fisherman as he is a hunter. Horses and dogs are his delight and he never has less than a dozen of the latter about him. He is likewise a successful breeder of fancy poultry. As showing the benefits to be gained from the open air Mr. Winch in appearance has not aged a day since he was thirty and time has apparently passed him by untouched.

The captain of the club, Mr. H. LeBrun has been hunting for thirty years and we have the pleasure of giving his portrait, accompanied by his fine dogs.

Mr. Alex. Simpson has started the dogs for some of the party for over thirty years.

There are many advantages to be gained from a club of this character. Circumstances often forbid a long trip and in such cases the sportsmen can take advantage of hunting territory well within range of civilization. Others can no longer venture to incur hardships and feel that though the day in the open may be strenuous enough, they are sure of good food and shelter at night. Of course, sportsmen in many centres are not so well situated as those of Peterborough and in the course of the many years they have been visiting this territory they have things pretty well fixed up. It must not be inferred from this that Peterborough sportsmen are in any sense desirous of obtaining their sport without the discomforts usually attendant upon the same, but the comfortable club house at night is more appreciated.

DREAMERS THINK NON-MEMBERS SHOULD ALL BE DESTROYED

Sensational Evidence Given at Trial---What This Curious Sect Believes---Regard All Who Refuse to Accept Their Creed as Objects of Divine Wrath---Must be Wiped Out---Narrow Escape of Lehr Family

Medicine Hat, Alta., April 18.—The preliminary hearing which is being given members of the sect known as the "Dreamers," on a charge of burning the house of John Lehr, St. Josephsburg district, forty miles south of here, promises to be tedious and drawn out for a considerable length of time.

It was exceedingly difficult to get the prisoners to give evidence when being in the witness box against Frederick Neiman yesterday, their memories proving defective on certain points until the prosecution finally cornered them.

The first witness in the afternoon was Christina Lehr, wife of John Lehr, whose house was destroyed by fire. Her evidence corroborated that of her husband in telling of the narrow escape the family had from death, all having to leave the house through a window. She stated in addition that the prisoner had told her during the winter that if the devil set fire to the place stupid people would lay the blame to the "Dreamers."

Mrs. Schneider, a neighbor, gave evidence of a sensational nature concerning the belief of the Dreamers. She at one time had been a member of the congregation. She stated that the sect believed in destroying all who were not members of their church and executing their dreams, providing they were not found out by the Government. At the meetings they discussed the best methods of carrying out their ends. She told a tale concerning an offence against the law committed by the prisoner which thrilled the crowd. Against the rules of the order, Neiman had purchased goods at an auction sale, for which he gave a note for $60. To rectify his mistake, he asked for Geo. Meyers, who had the note for it, and said he would pay it immediately. Meyers produced the note, and Neiman tore it up. He was arrested for this and had to pay $120 to settle.. Neiman went to god, Jacob Merkal, who told him he should take revenge. It was discussed at the meeting of the Dreamers, and it was decided that when Meyers and his wife were away the family and the house would be destroyed by fire, Neiman was to do it. He afterwards burned Meyers' barns and cattle, using coal oil.

He could get no material to start a fire at the house, and, besides, he was afraid to go too close, as a light was kept burning on account of a sick child. There was some snow on the ground, and he had to be careful in hiding his tracks by keeping off it. The Dreamers, she stated, always carried firearms about their person. Albert Neiman, son of the prisoner, was then called, but stated that he could tell nothing about the Dreamers; that he had not been converted and did not dream, although he attended the meetings. He was excluded when dreams were being related. Karl Otto, another prisoner, stated that the previous witness was not excluded from any part of the meetings.

Threw Child Into Sea.

New York, April 18.—An extraordinary tale of the burial at sea of a child which may have been alive when thrown overboard was told by the officers of the steamer Statendam when that steamer arrived yesterday from Rotterdam. The child is said to have been thrown overboard by her own mother, Mrs. Bertha Lzbyck of Holland. She was coming to America with two children, the youngest of whom, Elsa, was about a year old. On the way over the child was taken ill with convulsions during a gale and in about an hour was apparently dead. The other passengers of the steerage objected to the presence of the body on board, and informed the mother that unless the child was thrown overboard a storm would overwhelm the steamer. About midnight the body of the child was thrown into the sea. Officers of the steamer soon discovered what had happened, and the ship's surgeon, who made inquires, is said to have expressed the fear that the child was merely in a comatose condition, and might have been revived under medical treatment. Mrs. Lzbyck was taken to Ellis Island.

The Floods In Montana.

Great Falls, Mont., April 18.—The flood waters from Hauser Lake have reached here and are passing without inflicting any great damage. Dynamiting has deepened the river channel so that the water has risen to a height no greater than during the spring floods. General Manager Goodall of the Boston-Montana Co. says the company's large smelting plant will suffer absolutely no injury. The flood resulted in the practical destruction of the town of Craig. The inhabitants, 100 in number, have found a temporary refuge on the hillsides. The railroad for several miles is torn up in stretches. Many ranch buildings and haystacks were washed away. The repair of the dam has begun. The work will take six months and will cost $200,000.

Scandal In French Army.

Paris, April 18.—A butcher of Bar le Duc named Levy has been sentenced to one year's imprisonment on the charge of having furnished bad meat to the army. An investigation was ordered recently by the Minister of War, M. Picquart, as a result of the allegation that the commissary department of the army was involved in scandals in the purveying of stores.

Earl Grey In the South.

Washington, April 18.—Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada, and Lady Grey, who for several days have been the guests of the British Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, left Washington last night for Biltmore, North Carolina, where they are to be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt.

Uncovered Seam of Coal.

Kamloops, B.C., April 18.—The recent slide in a deep ravine near Campbell Creek, near here, has uncovered a 14-foot seam of bituminous coal.

Japs to Fight Standard Oil.

San Francisco, Cal., April 18.—Motojiro Shiraishi, managing director of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, who arrived here yesterday on the Hong Kong Maru, announced that Japanese capitalists are preparing to fight the Standard Oil Co.'s monopoly of the refined oil business in the far east with the California product.

King Aids Biarritz Poor.

Biarritz, April 18.—It became known yesterday that King Edward, who left here Thursday after a stay of several weeks, made a parting gift of 2,000 francs ($400) to be distributed among the poor of the city.

Harden's Lawyer Now Sued.

Berlin, April 18.—Max Bernstein, Herr Harden's advocate, who Thursday published the announcement that up to date Prince Philip zu Eulenberg had not taken any proceedings against him, was yesterday served with notice to appear in due course to answer charges of libel which the prince decided to bring against him.

Herr Bernstein has publicly announced that he will not shield himself behind the plea of professional immunity, but will meet the charges as an ordinary individual. If the fiery Bavarian lawyer sticks to his word and speaks with his immense resourcefulness and oratorical power, it is more than likely that another highly sensational case is within view.

HUNDREDS HAVE VERY NARROW ESCAPE FROM BEING KILLED

Stampede of Fighting Bulls in the Streets of Mexico City—Beasts Escape from Railway Yards and Do Considerable Damage

Mexico City, April 18.—A sensation was created last evening when 15 bulls of the Nonoalpam fighting breed, which were intended for next Sunday's corrida in the Condesa ring, escaped from the Central Railroad yards and stampeded through the principal streets of the capital, causing severe injuries to over a score of persons, including an aged woman, killing a mule, which was drawing a cart, goring a cab horse and creating a general panic.

Pursued by vadueros, the bulls headed down the Puente de Alvarado toward the Alameda, one of the principal avenues of the capital, where hundreds of persons were buying holiday toys at a booth. Two of the bulls were lassoed and thrown to the ground in front of the Church of San Juan de Dios.

The traditional "bull in a china shop" could not possibly have accomplished more damage than one great brute, when he plunged through a booth filled with effigies of Judas, which were to be burned next Saturday.

Two plate glass windows in the Calle de la Independencia were smashed by another bull, which a few minutes later met with disaster beneath the wheels of a street car of the San Angel line.

It was 11 o'clock when the last of the bulls that escaped was finally corralled by the vadueros in the Alameda.

RIOT CAUSES BLOODSHED

Attempt to Run Street Cars at Chester P. A. During Strike ---Shots Fired

Chester, Pa., April 18.—Riot and bloodshed marked the third day of the street car strike here Thursday when the Chester Traction Co. attempted to operate its cars with imported strikebreakers. The strikers and their sympathizers stormed the trolley car that was started out of the barns and in the melee two men were shot. William Griesemer, a claims agent for the company, was struck in the arm by a bullet, and William Borgmann, the motorman, who had charge of the car, was struck in the foot by another bullet. He was dragged from the car and beaten and was rescued with difficulty. The local police were unable to hold the mob of a thousand men in check and two troops of state constabulary were asked for and sent in.

The trolley officials are determined to operate the cars, and the entire city is in a state of fear and expectancy, believing that there will be bloodshed and probably much property damaged.

Troops at Chester, Pa.

Chester, Pa., April 18.—Three troops of state police and 200 private detectives arrived here yesterday to deal with the street car strike situation.

Bandits Rob Bank.

Cherryvale, Kas., April 18.—The Citizens' State Bank at Chautauqua, 25 miles west of Coffeeville, was robbed of about $3,000 yesterday by two men.

The men entered the bank at Chautauqua and forced Cashier C. C. Walterhouse and Del Easley, a business man, to go into the vault. The bandits locked them in, secured all the currency in sight and escaped into the Osage hills, across the line, in Oklahoma.

Four posses are in pursuit. The fugitives secured half an hour's start.

Fell to His Death.

Quebec, April 18.—Missing his footing while on the top of a scaffolding and falling to the ground, a young man met instant death at Ancienne Lorette yesterday. The unfortunate victim was Ernest Dechene, aged 27 years, of that place. He, with others, was engaged on work in connection with the construction of the new church, which is being erected at Ancienne Lorette, and in some manner made a mis-step and fell to the ground, killing himself instantly.

$7,000 Missing.

Edmonton, April 18.—Capt. Harbottle, collector of inland revenue, and at one time regarded as a wealthy citizen, is missing, and a shortage of $7,000 in his accounts is reported. He was formerly connected with the Winnipeg office, but since coming here has taken a very prominent place in social, commercial and military affairs.

HIS CATTLE WERE LEFT TO STARVE

The Inhuman Act of an Elmsley Township Farmer---Revolting Cruelty

Brockville, April 18.—The story of the inhumanity of an Elmsley township farmer has just come to light here, the details of which are shocking and most revolting in their cruelty.

The man lives about fifteen miles from here, in the northern part of the county. He had thirteen head of cattle, eleven cows, two yearlings, two horses, a colt and one pig. He was not a prosperous farmer, and not only was his farm mortgaged, but so was all his stock. Like many others in this section, he had a poor hay crop last year, and feed was scarce. A few days ago he was in town, and when asked if he was going away laughed at the idea and denied it.

The next day he and his sister, who lived with him, left, and, it is said, have gone to Dakota.

When the holders of the cattle mortgage heard that he had gone they made an investigation, which disclosed one of the most revolting stories of man's inhumanity to dumb animals that has been heard for many a day. When they drove to the farm house there were no signs of life about the place. In one stable they found six cows lying dead, five more cows and two heifers on the barn floor, two horses in another place, and the colt and the pig in another. All were dead.

The bodies were little more than skeletons, and their protruding bones and emaciated forms told the story of the slow starvation that had come to them. Six of the cows were lying fastened in the stalls, the colt had climbed into the granary, evidently in quest of something to eat, but of food for any kind of stock there was not a particle to be found about the place.

Cruelty to Cattle.

Chicago, April 18.—Sixty-two suits against eight railroads, charging violation of the 28-hour law providing for the protection of cattle, sheep and hogs transported in cattle cars, were filed yesterday in the United States District Court by District Attorney Sims.

In the cases filed yesterday, fines aggregating $31,000 are possible, and the district attorney asserted it was the intention of the Government to demand a maximum penalty in every case.

Morning Post Congratulates.

London, April 18.—(C.A.P.)—The Morning Post heartily congratulates Ambassador Bryce and his Canadian advisers on the ratification of the Canadian fisheries treaty.

Will Buy Italian Cruiser.

Montevideo, via Galveston, Texas, April 18.—It is asserted that the Government is about to purchase the Italian cruiser Fieramosca, which is in this port at present.

GIRLS WHO WORK

Girls who work for their living are especially exposed to the dangers of organic feminine disorders. Standing all day, or sitting in cramped positions; walking to and from their places of employment in bad weather all tend to break down their delicate feminine organism.

No class of women are in need of greater assistance, and thousands of letters like the following demonstrate the fact that restores the feminine system to a strong, healthy, normal condition.

Miss Abby F. Barrows, of Nelsonville, Ohio, writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I was very sick, had dull headaches, pain in my back, and a feminine weakness. I had been to several doctors and they did me no good. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong, and I can do most any kind of work. I am in better health than I ever was, and it is all due to your medicine."

Miss Lillian Ross, of 530 E. 84th St., New York, writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I had a female trouble, nervous headaches, and was tired all the time, and could not sleep. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me feel so much better that I hope every woman who suffers as I did will try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for feminine ills, and has positively cured thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice.

CHRISTIAN UNITY

The closing week has witnessed the first real manifestation of practical Christian unity in Peterborough. The earnestness and power of the various clergymen have been a revelation. Such a union forbids narrowness and where there is breadth and strength there must be naturally not only a greater but a much finer effect. A union of sentiment on one point portends a greater degree of union on others, and augurs well for the future improvement of more than one variety of human life and conduct.

A WORD TO THE WISE

Wages in woollen manufactories in Great Britain are all the way, from 60 per cent to 130 per cent. less, according to a fair comparison, than wages in similar factories in Canada. A preference to the British reduces by so much our protection against similar conditions. The loss to Canada in the rate of wages as a direct consequence is enormous. A fair tariff is not only a protection of the wage-payer, but of the wage-earner as well. In Germany wages are still lower. Woollen-workers' wages are as follows:—

Up to 16 years of age...	$2.47 a week
16 to 21 year of age...	3.08 a week
22 to 55 years of age...	3.83 a week
55 and over...	3.18 a week

Families live on $4.00 per week, including rent, clothing, food, fuel, etc. They live in two rooms and work 60 1-2 hours per day. A "preference" for Germany would soon reduce us toward that level. It might as well be understood first as last that the Conservative policy will never be in favor of reducing Canadian wage-earners to the level of their European competitors. We have begun here by giving the artizan and workingman wages enough to enable him and his family to have a nice home, fresh air, good food, a fair education and an intelligent and happy life. It will not be changed, all preferences leaning to free trade to the contrary notwithstanding. "Canada for the Canadians" is the Conservative motto, and not Canada for Japs, Hindoos and Douks. The naked doukhobor might well be taken as a typical product of the preference. That is what it is coming to.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Mackay complains of Whitney's commissions. In that respect he is like his leader at Ottawa, who complains of even his own commissions.

A rather good thing was over-heard yesterday by our reporter at the Liberal convention. "Does so-and-so belong to the Liberal party, Casey?" "No, the party belongs to him."

Mr. Stratton is reported to have remarked at the convention on Wednesday afternoon that he was the one who had induced Hon. A. G. Mackay to enter politics. Mr. Stratton once upon a time undertook to recommend Hon. R. Harcourt to the party as leader. This settled it. He was not elected.

Vesselmen are expecting a quiet trade on the lakes.—The Globe.

So is everybody else. But the grand old pirate of Laurier and his huge expenditure still goes on in the Liberal press.

JOKE FROM PUNCH.

Q.—Why is the boot-and-knife boy when he chops?

A.—Because the fire, the hewer.—London Punch.

Don't be discouraged. Keep at it. You'll see the point after a couple of weeks' careful study. — Montreal Star.

The same advice may be tendered to those who heard Hon. A. G. Mackay on Ontario issues. The difference is that Mr. Mackay's joke is unintentional.

The last issue of the Literary Digest has a cartoon by a Des Moines man in which the Grand Old Party in the guise of an elephantine old woman is represented as visiting the White House after Teddy's departure, and on viewing the desolation, remarking, "My! Things is quiet around here since Teddy left." Meanwhile Teddy is represented on the highway to private life with a drum, a big stick, a huge horn, a rifle, a revolver, etc., and what looks like a genuine western jag on.

It is a significant fact that at the convention of the Canadian Federation of Textile Workers, held in Montreal a few days ago, the statement was made by one of the speakers that strikes had been too easily declared. The result of a growing feeling to this effect was that in future it was decided to require a two-thirds vote of the local union and then refer it to the Executive before a strike could be called.—Canadian Textile Journal.

Here is a case where a body deliberately adopts a two-third clause. It is realized that the more general an opinion the more likely it is to be correct and timely. To make sure two-thirds or three-fifths is better than repenting at leisure.

HEALTH FOR THE BABY

A mother who has once used Baby's Own Tablets for her children will always use them for the minor ailments that come to all little ones. The Tablets are the best medicine in the world for the cure of indigestion, colic, constipation, diarrhoea, teething troubles and breaking up colds. And the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine contains no poisonous opiate or narcotic. Mrs. Wm. F. Gay, St. Eleanors, P. E. I., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets with the best of results and know of nothing to equal them for the cure of stomach and bowel troubles. I do not feel safe unless I have a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OTONABEE HAS RISEN EIGHT FEET

Water Has Come Right up to Rye's Boathouse

The Otonabee river below the locks presents a rampant spectacle these days. It has risen fairly eight feet during the past few days. The water has come right up to Rye's boathouse and it would be quite easy to launch the yachts. The water has risen so high that one standing on the river bank has only to extend his foot to get it wet. The river at the present time is just three feet deeper than it was last November.

PLANT FOODS.

Farmer's Opportunity to Save on the Fertilizer Bill.

By R. J. DAVIDSON, Virginia experiment station.

The elements necessary to the growth of plants may be divided into the following groups:

First.—Those that are furnished in abundance from air and water.

Second.—Those which are furnished in abundance from the soil.

Third.—Those which are not usually furnished in abundance in an available form from air, water or soil, as nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium.

Nitrogen is found in large quantities, chiefly in the uncombined or free state. It constitutes about four-fifths of our atmosphere. In this form it is only available to leguminous plants, such as peas, beans, clover, alfalfa, etc., through the influence of micro-organisms found in soils and living in nodules on the roots of plants of this family. In the case of all other plants the nitrogen is taken in only in combination with other elements. Combined with hydrogen it forms ammonia, which may be taken up in small quantities. With oxygen it forms nitric acid, and this combined with some elements in the soil forms nitrates. These are readily taken up by plants and form the principal source of the plant's nitrogen.

Expensive to Purchase.

Nitrogen is the most expensive element the farmer has to purchase. It costs at least three times as much as the phosphorus or potassium. It is also the element most likely to be deficient in the soil, as it is readily converted into soluble nitrates and in addition to being used up by plants is sometimes leached out of the soil. There is a large quantity of free nitrogen in the air. By growing leguminous crops we can obtain a portion of this nitrogen and store it up in the soil in fixed and available forms in the roots and stubble or in the whole crop turned under. We can thus repair in large measure the loss to the soil of this element without any cost and in addition obtain an excellent food for stock in the form of clover hay, alfalfa hay, etc. It will thus be seen how important it is for the farmer to grow one or more of these nitrogen gathering crops on his land as often as his system of rotation will permit and thus save purchasing this most expensive element of plant food. It is poor economy to buy what we can have for the taking, especially when the taking costs nothing.

SEEDLESS TOMATOES.

A Medium Small Variety With Flesh of Particularly Fine Flavor.

The production of any vegetable novelty always arouses interest among seed growers and gardeners. More or less of this work has been done by the experiment stations. For a number of years breeding experiments with vegetables have been carried on by Professor Halsted and his associates at the New Jersey experiment stations. Among the distinct and valuable productions secured in this work is a nearly seedless tomato. As is well known, each fruit of the ordinary tomato contains hundreds of seeds, while the form which Professor Halsted has developed seldom contains more than fifty seeds, and frequently there are not more than five or six and often none.

This variety has become pretty well established now and has been called Giant because of the very large size that the plant attains. It originated five or six years ago as a result of a cross of Golden Sunrise upon Dwarf Champion.

The flower clusters are small; flowers cup shaped, light lemon yellow, and the fruits few, medium small, light yellow and nearly seedless.

The flesh is particularly fine flavored. The plants flowered up to the killing frosts.

The type appears to be well fixed. Attempts to cross other sorts upon it have uniformly failed. Seedless fruits have also been produced by Professor Halsted on several varieties and crosses of tomatoes, due probably primarily to nonpollination with other conditions favorable to the stimulation of fruit production.

These crosses were quite uniformly dwarfed in size, many in a cluster being not larger than peas, but solid fleshed and often of good quality. In one instance the fruit had the flavor of the strawberry. Currant crossed upon Stone produced such fruit; likewise

Frank Inconsistency.

John Hunter, one of the pioneers in the practice of medicine over a century ago, was absolutely blind to any theory unsupported by facts. While many men were guessing out things he was seeking to prove them.

"I love to think," he said to one of his colleagues, though he afterward qualified the statement by an almost contradictory one:

"But why think? Why not make the experiment?"

Like other men of real genius, he was not afraid of seeming inconsistent. Sir Astley Cooper once asked him, with some surprise, if he had not once stated an opinion directly at variance with one he had just put forth, and he replied:

"Very likely. I hope I grow wiser every year."

Again a pupil inquired if he had not written to a certain effect.

"Never ask me what I have said," he returned, "or what I have written. But if you ask me what my present opinions are I will tell you."

Sometimes, too, he would say to pupils who were taking down notes: "You had better not write down that observation. Very likely I shall think differently next year."

A license to sell liquor was granted to a dead man in Altoona, Pa. His decease had immediately followed his application.

SECRETS OF THE TOMB

HISTORIC OCCASIONS ON WHICH GRAVES HAVE BEEN OPENED.

Morbid Curiosity Often the Only Reason For Desecrating the Last Resting Place of Notable Persons—Cupidity Another Strong Motive—Coffin of King Charles I. Opened to Decide Wager.

Some rather unnecessary sentiment, not to say sensationalism, may be suspected as having been lavished on the recent opening of the Druce grave in Highgate cemetery, England, more especially as that exhumation was dictated by the law and rendered imperative in the interests of justice to two accused men. That reason at all events was far removed from the sheer curiosity which in all ages—has been of itself a sufficient motive for the unearthing and bringing to light of the mortal remains of great and famous men and women in their habit as they died and were buried.

The Bodies of Kings.

It is only a few years ago since a royal commission of specialists and scholars was appointed by the Bavarian Government to undertake the excavation of the Imperial Tombs in Speyer Cathedral to see what relics, if any were left after the rifling of the tombs by the French in 1690, and again at the time of the revolution. One discovery was the body of Conrad II., the founder of the cathedral in 1030 A.D. A large copper crown surmounted the dust into which the skull, as also the bones, had crumbled, but his brain, which first conceived the idea of an hereditary Empire of Germany, had strangely escaped the ravages of time, being shrunk but not decayed, remaining a porous mummified substance like a dried sponge. Other remains discovered were those of Gisilla, wife of Conrad II., the bodies of Henry II. and Henry V., and the bones of Emperor Henry IV., on whose right hand was the worthy relic of the exhumation—a heavy, beautifully-carved gold ring, set with a large rock crystal and three pearls in exquisite filigree.

The Burial of Columbus.

Still more recently, in 1903, in fact, the remains of Columbus were buried for the fifth time, after being alternately exhumed and enshrined in various cities in Spain and in the New World. The great discoverer died in 1506, and was interred in Valladolid. In 1513 he was transferred to Las Cuevas, near Seville. In 1536 his dying wishes were regarded, and Columbus again voyaged across the Atlantic to be nobly buried in the cathedral at St. Domingo, the island of his great discovery of the New World. There he remained in peace until, in 1795, when the half of the island containing his tomb was ceded to France, his remains were again unearthed and carried to Cuba for reburial on Spanish soil in Santiago Cathedral. Yet again in 1898, when Cuba, by the intervention of the United States, passed from the Spanish crown, a movement was set on foot to rescue Columbus from his tomb among aliens, and the coffin again crossed the Atlantic to be buried in Seville Cathedral three years ago. As it is, however, legend declares that one half of his bones still lie in St. Domingo, for the ecclesiastics opened and rifled the tomb of half his skeleton to prevent their cathedral's loss of all the glory attached to his place of sepulchre. Thus, in all probability the bones of Columbus rest one half in Spain and the rest in St. Domingo.

Again, in 1900, the charred bones of Buddha himself were unearthed from the stupa in which they had lain for over 2,500 years, and the King of Siam sent a stately mission to Calcutta to receive the sacred remains for solemn and splendid enshrinement at Bangkok.

Subsided Into Dust.

In all, though it is declared not in recent years, Edward the Confessor's shrine has been opened six times, the last in 1865, when the covering being broken by the scaffolding erected for the coronation of James II., "Charles Taylor gently put his hand into the hole and, turning over the bones, drew from underneath the shoulder bones a crucifix and a gold chain, which he showed round." For the satisfaction of a mere wager George IV. disinterred the remains of Charles I. at Windsor. For a moment after the opening of the coffin the dead King was seen exactly as represented in Vandyke's portraits, but under the influence of the atmosphere the features subsided into dust and exposed the bare skull. The same experience marked the exhumation of Henry IV. in Canterbury Cathedral in 1832. About the same time Robert the Bruce's grave was opened at Dunfermline, and Dr. Gregory, professor of medicine at Edinburgh and inventor of the famous "Gregory's powder," took a cast of the skull, which bore evidence to the truth of the legend that the conqueror of Bannockburn died of leprosy. The breast bone of the corpse was found also to have been severed, thus confirming the tradition that Robert Bruce ordered his heart to be removed and carried to Palestine by Douglas for burial in Jerusalem.

Milton Disentombed.

It is remarkable, indeed, in how many instances the results of European embalming compare with even those of ancient Egypt. When the tomb of Canute was opened in 1760 the corpse was described as "remarkably well preserved, a wreath round his head, a silver penny in his hand, several ornaments of gold and silver, and a ring with a remarkably large, fine stone in it." This was the time when Horace Walpole, writing of the exhumed English monarchs, expressed the hope that all the royal dead would be examined and described. In 1794 the churchwardens of St. Giles, Cripplegate, disentombed Milton's body for public exhibition, and not content with this source of revenue, the poet's teeth, jawbone, right hand, and part of his hair were sold to relic hunters. Such disastrous vandalism and desecration as this would, happily, be impossible to-day.

Feet of the Ancient Greeks.

A walk through the British museum and a close examination of the pedal extremities of ancient art there show they are all bad about the feet. "The Disk Thrower," a celebrated specimen, has particularly bad examples of incipient bunion joints. If the foot of the Farnese Apollo, used as a model in most art schools, represents the foot of the average Greek corns and bunions must have been common in that classical country.

The Earnest Word.

"You never can tell," observed Uncle Allen Sparks, "what lasting results may be accomplished by an earnest word spoken at the right time. Many a man has had the shape of his nose changed for life by calling another man a liar."

Clever Retort.

"Yes, I am going to marry Mr. Bullion."

"Why, he is old enough to be your father!"

"I know he is, but unfortunately he doesn't seem to care for mother."

Black Eyes.

Miffkins—It is said that aggressive, impulsive people usually have black eyes. Biffkins—That's right. If they haven't got them at first they get them later.—Exchange.

"A WOMAN sighs, 'I wish.' A man should say, 'I will.'"

Norris read from an old commonplace book, adding, with a little laugh: "Lord, how this generation discounts that fine piece of Bulwer's sentimentality! Women nowadays have got past sighing anything. Instead they say things, and, behold, the things are done."

"Which means, if anything, that you're dead sore," Marvin retorted, pulling hard at his pipe. "I don't wonder at it," he went on. "You were so immortally certain Baby Curran would make ducks and drakes of her venture, when, lo, she's succeeded in a way to astonish everybody."

"Wrong, as usual," Norris commented. Marvin shook his head, with a lazy laugh, saying: "George, but I'm glad Daddy Curran left nothing but debts and a livery stable to his flock of children. There was nothing for Baby to do except keep on with the business"—

"There was. She might have married me," Norris interrupted. "She knew I'd look out for her stepmother and the kids"—

"No doubt," Marvin broke in, "but that isn't Baby's way. Don't you remember how at school she wouldn't be told in class or have her sums done for her? Honest independence is her ruling passion—so much so, indeed, I feared to have her go to this. Daddy Curran never thought of doubting anybody's word until he had to. I thought Baby was off the same piece. So she is, but she's got something else in her. Her spot cash conscience, she calls it. I heard her explaining to old Major Axtun that the way to avoid bad debts was to have no debts at all and let the bank do all the bookkeeping."

Norris drummed hard on the table. "I'm a fool to keep on caring!" he burst out. "She puts me aside like a last year's bonnet; won't hear to marrying me until the debts are paid and Benny boy through school and ready to step into her shoes. That means four years at least. Meantime there's the devil to pay with my people. They're not purse proud, but who can blame them if they don't want to welcome as a daughter a headstrong young woman who has made herself the talk of the county, not even though she did it with the best intentions in the world? My mother was at me yesterday, asking me if I wanted a wife who had grown sharp at bargaining with half the horse dealers and teamsters in the countryside. It seems Baby is setting up to buy saddle stock"—

"I don't know anybody with a better right. She knows horses better than the most of us," Marvin interposed. "And, all things considered, it is a good thing. She has her market ready made, as it were. Those city folks take everything of class she can find them and pay her a handsome profit."

"You seem to hold a brief for her," Norris said sulkily, a gleam of suspicion in his eyes. "It might be well for you to join hands with her. You might make more at horse dealing than you ever did at the law."

"Very likely—if I had Baby's chance. But certainly I shan't scheme to take it from her," Marvin said steadily; then, flushing a little, he added: "I would be only too glad to join hands with her in anything—and for life. But she has let me know that's out of the question. When she set you free she left herself bound, little as you deserve it."

The last word was flung over his shoulder. He had risen and was striding toward the door. Norris looked after him, half angrily, half shamedly, then glanced about the handsomely appointed office with a scowling sneer. His grandfather had been governor, his father was a senator, his mother led society in Allingham. Naturally she looked high for her only son, much higher than a bankrupt's daughter, who had taken upon her shoulders an unwomanly burden. Still she had not set herself openly against her son's choice. She had even approved, though mildly, his intention of constancy. How, then, should he suspect that she was planning to upset that intention? The hinge of the plan was Miss Althea Roswell—a beauty, Miss Althea, if one could have overlooked her nose. Unfortunately it stood out so boldly overlooking it was impossible, even in the effulgence of her many dollars. It was the nose as much as anything else that had made Granville Norris feel so much at ease with her. She had come for a long visit, and Allingham was making much of her, yet somehow she had not been brought face to face with Baby, who had nowadays little time and less money for ruffling it in the town gayeties. Norris himself saw her but in little snatches. She went and came so uncertainly and at such odd times he could not waylay her and calls were out of the question. The little new home was so crowded it was impossible to say anything there without having it reach all ears. Norris felt that there was much which ought to be said, but somehow had not yet brought himself to the pitch of saying it.

He glanced out of the window, his eyes brightening as they fell upon his mother, driving her pony chaise, with Althea snug beside her. He rushed out to greet them and almost dragged them inside. Very shortly thereafter he went away with them—upon an errand he did not in the least relish. Miss Althea had heard of Baby Curran's venture; further, she had lost her heart to a fine saddle mare Baby had just bought and sent out to exercise. She meant to have the creature at almost any price, so Norris, perforce, went along to see the bargaining. He did not go quite blindly. Though he had never let himself acknowledge it, he was not insensible to what he would gain if he could bring himself to marry Miss Roswell. If he meant ever to do that it was well not to set the new fancy beside the old. He writhed at the thought, hoping against hope for some miraculous chance to take Baby away. But, most inconsistently, he felt a flooding gladness at sight of her, smiling a welcome from the door of the neat dingy office.

She was sorry, dreadfully sorry, but Black Leezy was not to be bought. She had been bought, indeed, upon a special order from the city stable and would be sent there as soon as ever she got a little wonted to the bustle of streets. Yes, she had got a fine commission. No, Miss Roswell could not have the mare by doubling, trebling, quadrupling it—not for anything at all. She (Baby) was sorry to seem disobliging, but she could do nothing else. She had given her word and must keep it; had promised the dealer the best horse to be found and, having found one without a match, was bound to let him have it.

Miss Roswell had been silken soft at the outset. Finding herself thus withstood for the sake of what seemed to her a fine spun scruple, she showed a temper as high as her nose and flounced across the stall front, saying to Mrs. Norris in pretended aside: "Isn't it lucky? I didn't really want the mare—only to see what a woman horse jockey is like. She's not bad looking either. You might take her to be quite respectable—unless you knew better."

Baby heard every word, as Miss Roswell meant she should. She stepped back a pace, going white, then red, her hands hanging helplessly at her sides. Norris likewise heard; he flushed darkly and made as if to stand by his sweetheart. But his mother was calling him, likewise his duty as a courteous host. With a look half angry, half apologetic, he followed the two retreating figures toward their carriage. Halfway to it he stopped and half turned about, to see Marvin standing with Baby's hand in his, her face raised to his and her eyes wet. Instantly he flung back to them, but Baby waved him away. When he had gone and the carriage was out of hearing, she said to Marvin, with a little hard breath: "Poor Granville! I ought not to blame him. He has maybe caught my faith in spot cash."

Then, most unaccountably, she hid her face in her hands and sobbed hard a minute, but looked up after it, smiling a brave yet piteous smile. Marvin took her hand again and pressed it ever so little, saying in a half whisper: "Honey, cry all you want to between now and the New Year. We are going to get married then and live happy ever after."

Baby's answer was a blush and silence, but the wedding came off duly, a month ahead of the Norris-Roswell affair.

Another Way to Put It.

"A shining example of private virtue and an exalted teacher of good and honest government" is the description of Robert Toombs of Georgia given in "The Brother's War." Toombs was a prominent character for many years before the war and served in the two houses of congress about fifteen years. He was afterward secretary of state in the Confederate government.

He had a wit and a fineness of expression, says the author, which made his phrases and repartee widely quoted and made him the delight of appreciative audiences.

A rival candidate, really conspicuous and celebrated for his little ability, in a stump debate pledged the people that if they would send him to congress he would never leave his post during a session to attend the courts, as he unjustly charged Toombs with habitually doing. Toombs disposed of this fling by merely saying:

"You should consider which will hurt the district the more, his constant presence in or my occasional absence from the house."

LYDIA DARRACH.

Loxley House, Philadelphia, Where She Played Eavesdropper.

One of the favorite stories connected with the Revolution is the tale of Lydia Darrach's patriotism, which story, like others of similar import, has been discredited by the discriminating historian. Notwithstanding the cold douche thrown upon the tradition it remains popular with all who know it. The house where the famous eavesdropping on the part of the Quakeress took place is not so well known.

Those who have heard or read the story of Mrs. Darrach hardly need to be informed that she and her husband lived in what was called the Loxley house, once at the southeast corner of Little Dock and Second streets. Little Dock was the thoroughfare which runs in a southwestern direction from Dock street to Second street. The ground upon which the Loxley house stood was acquired by Benjamin Loxley, a well to do carpenter, who owned practically a whole square in this vicinity, from George Clymer in April, 1759, and the queer little house was erected immediately. It was a speculation, for there is nothing to show that the owner ever lived there.

The house gained its fame from its peculiar facade, which was unlike anything in the city, and from the anecdote which connects Mrs. Darrach with the place. The great preacher Whitefield is said to have addressed the multitudes from the balcony on either his sixth or seventh visit to this country—1763 or 1769.

The Revolution had long since been over and most of the patriots in their graves before the tale of Mrs. Darrach's bold adventure, which is believed to have saved Washington and his army from capture by the British, became known. In the first number of the first volume of the American Quarterly Review, issued in March, 1827, the tale was told for the first time. There it is credited to "Garden's Anecdotes of the American Revolution." The author of the story in the American Quarterly Review, however, must have had access to Major Garden's manuscript, for the story was not published in his book until the second series was issued in the latter part of the year 1828.

UNCLE SAM'S CAMELS.

A Government Experiment of Over Half a Century Ago.

How many modern readers of our newspapers ever knew that Uncle Sam once engaged in the camel business to provide transportation across the burning sands? In 1853 congress appropriated $30,000 for the purchase and importation of camels, looking to the use of that animal as an aid to army transportation across what was then popularly called the Great American desert, embracing California, Arizona, New Mexico and the greater part of northern Texas. Congress was influenced to take this action because of the successful use of the camel in semicivilized warfare by the French in Algeria and by the British in the orient.

It fell to the lot of Jefferson Davis, then secretary of war and later the president of the Confederacy, to carry out the wishes of congress. He detailed Lieutenant (after Admiral) D. D. Porter, U. S. N., and Major Henry C. Payne, U. S. A., to proceed to northern Africa and Asia Minor to buy the beasts. The expedition brought back seventy-five camels, one drove of thirty-one being shipped in the naval store ship Supply and another of forty-one in the United States warship Suwanee. Both vessels landed their live cargoes at Indianola, Tex., Feb. 10, 1857.

They were driven thence to Camp Verde in the care of three Arab camel drivers, who were brought out for the purpose under a year's contract. That year, in response to a request from the senate, Secretary Davis made an elaborate report of the expedition, which was subsequently published as an illustrated volume of 300 pages. The experiment was not a success. Its failure was attributed to the fact that the camels became footsore and stalled as soon as they attempted to travel over the rocky country outside the sandy plains, and it ended in the release of the animals in the Colorado desert to shift for themselves. There the camels thrived and multiplied. One of the herds contained over 100 head.

The miners and prospectors, however, did not take kindly to their presence, because they stampeded pack animals and other domesticated stock whenever they came in sight. It resulted finally in a war of extermination being waged against them as common nuisances, and what few escaped that raid were slaughtered by the Arizona Indians for their flesh. Although this experiment with the camel as a beast of burden failed, it was probably due to a misuse of the animal rather than to any natural shortcoming in it, as its great value as a burden bearer in Africa and Asia is undoubted.—Denver Field and Farm.

To Tunnel Mont Blanc.

The war of tunnels is on in the Alps. The completion of the Simplon route, followed by the tunneling of the Bernese Oberland, now in progress, has revived discussion in France and Italy of the project for a great series of tunnels under Mont Blanc and the Juras. The object would be to prevent the diversion of traffic toward the valley of the Rhine. Engineers have calculated that a tunnel of about eight miles length would suffice to penetrate the giant of the Alps. The cost is placed at $12,000,000, that of piercing the Juras at $23,000,000. The cost for approaches to the Mont Blanc tunnel is estimated at $3,000,000. The shortening of the route between the English channel and northern Italy would be only sufficient to save two hours' time on the railroad, but the friends of the project expect that these two hours would surely give to France the traffic that she now loses.—Youth's Companion.

EXCELLENTLY INTERPRETED

Splendid Singing of Stainer's Crucifixion by St. John's Choir

Good Friday evening has come to be associated with St. John's in connection with the "Crucifixion," which, for the third successive year was solemnly sung last night under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey in the church. The work contains many beautiful numbers, some of them calling for almost dramatic force, especially the tenor solos and recits, which were splendidly rendered by Mr. H. W. Morphet and Mr. Geo. E. Chandler. Mr. N. Greenhalgh, Mr. Lundy and Mr. Flowers accounted for the bass numbers with commendable skill, and in the lovely quartette, "God so loved the world," sung without accompaniment, the well balanced voices were heard to great advantage, the tone and expression being all that could be desired. Mrs. R. J. Devey, Mrs. F. A. Clarke, sopranos; Mrs. Seward and Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, altos; Mr. H. Morphet and Mr. Geo. Chandler, tenor, Mr. N. Greenhalgh and Mr. Lundy, basses, were responsible for the quartette, also for the two quartettes from the Messiah, "For as in Adam all die," and "Since by man came death," which were given just before the last hymn in the "Crucifixion." This fine chorus singers made no mistake about their part of the evening's work. They both knew and sung it well, and numbering about 50 voices produced some grand choral effects. The two "Messiah" choruses, "By man came also," and "Even so in Christ," were splendidly sung, with "Fling wide the gates," and "From the Throne of His Cross" choruses which present more than ordinary difficulty. Mr. R. J. Devey, accompanied on the organ, with great skill, and is to be heartily congratulated on putting on such music with practically all regular choristers, who are proud of their entirely voluntary connection with a choir which is presenting standard choral works.

The Rev. Canon Davidson conducted the devotional exercises before and after the "Crucifixion," which were reverently followed by the very large congregation present.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend, of Toronto, is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods, at his private apartments reserved at the Hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted, protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at the Hotel Oriental, on Tuesday, April 21.

ATTACHED CHAINS TO OTONABEE

Diver Worked on Sunken Steamer Yesterday--Company Expect to Have it Floating in a Few Days

Mr. J. A. Northey the government diver was employed yesterday to attach the chains to the steamer Otonabee for the purpose of raising it. It will be remembered that the Otonabee sank a couple of weeks ago at its moorings in Little Lake near the Ashburnham wharf Nothing but the hurricane deck can now be seen of the sunken boat.

The Otonabee Navigation Company expect to again have the steamer floating in the course of two or three days.

WERE DISORDERLY ON THE HOLIDAY

Five Fellows Appeared Before Magistrate Dumble This Morning

There were at least five fellows who enjoyed yesterday's holiday but carried their hilarity too far and were taken into custody by the police officers.

There was a row in a local restaurant last night, a young man accusing the waiter of taking five dollars from him. There was considerable disorder and the police were called in to settle things. Two were arrested and this morning each were fined two dollars which was paid forthwith.

Another young man whose face was badly battered up pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly yesterday and also paid a fine of two dollars.

Two other disorderly cases were enlarged until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

WAS KILLED AT DENVER

Mr. Hewitt, brother-in-law of Rev. A. W. McKenzie of the Grove school Lakefield, was killed recently in Denver, Colorado, in a coasting accident. He was coasting down hill at a high rate of speed when the coasting gear of the vehicle he was in, got out of shape and he was thrown to the ground with great violence.

Although he was able to telephone shortly after the accident he became unconscious and never rallied.

TEMPLE BAND AT BARRACKS

Salvation Army Services To-morrow---Rev. J. G. Potter to Give an Address

The Temple band of the Salvation Army, in charge of Bandmaster McGrath and Staff-Capt. Walton, arrived in the city this morning and marched through the city streets before proceeding to the Salvation Army barracks. Tonight, after the usual street service, a musical festival will be given by the Temple band, when a programme of rare excellence will be rendered. A large crowd is expected to attend, and everyone is assured of an enjoyable evening.

Tomorrow night the two bands will march out at 6.30 o'clock and at 7 o'clock Rev. J. G. Potter of St. Andrew's church, will give an address at the barracks. Staff-Capt. Walton will speak at both the 11 o'clock and evening services at the barracks tomorrow. In the afternoon the Temple band will again give one of their fine programmes.

The meetings promise to be well attended and no doubt will be interesting and profitable.

SPEAKS HERE ON MONDAY NIGHT

Something About Mrs. Spencer Walton and Miss Ringland Who Will Give Address Here

Mrs. Spencer Walton, who will speak at Bethany Tabernacle next Monday evening is the wife of the late Mr. Spencer Walton, founder of the South Africa General Mission. For eight years Mrs. Walton has superintended the Mission co-ordinately with her husband after which Rev. Andrew Murray became the president Mrs. Walton is also the president of the Durham YWCA. during her absence there. As a refined, spiritual and practical woman she has done effective work in the jail, and has has been a welcome messenger in the hospitals. Mrs. Walton is also an impressive speaker, having addressed many open air services in South African cities, and numerous large gatherings in the various denominations in America. Mrs. Walton has left Africa for Africas sake, that in England and America she might win others to love it for Jesus' sake. Leaving her four daughters in the care of her mother in England, she comes to us to give us her vision of God's longings, for Africa.

This is her third trip to America, the other two having been made in company with her late husband, in which both were greatly owned of God.

Miss Ringland, who accompanies her has also been a devoted missionary for some years in Africa, and has been recently appointed field secretary with headquarters in New York City. Both ladies come highly recommended and should receive a warm welcome. Miss Ringland will speak in the afternoon at 3.30 o'clock and Mrs. Walton in the evening at 8 o'clock. The song service will begin at 7.45.—Com.

EXECUTIVE OF SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION HELD MEETING

Treasurer's Report Showed Balance of $33.72---Election of Officers Took Place---Other Matters Discussed

The executive of the County Sunday School Association met in the Y.M.C.A. yesterday forenoon, the president, Mr. R. C. Heard of Bridgenorth, being in the chair.

The chief business was the reception of reports, and the election of officers.

Mr. Lees reported on behalf of the committee appointed to deal with the matter of organization for the township of Chandos that two meetings had been held, one at Apsley and one at Clydesdale but that the meetings had not been largely attended and that no formal organization had been undertaken.

The general secretary reported that returns had been received almost complete from the district organizations in Otonabee, Asphodel and Dummer, but that for the rest of the county, returns were very incomplete except for the village of Lakefield.

The treasurer's report showed receipts for the year of $268.93, including $34.88 on hand last year. Disbursements $235.21 leaving a balance in the hands of the treasurer at the present time of $33.72.

The question of holding district conventions was considered. Some members were of the opinion that in September would be a better time for them than in May or June as has been the custom.

A committee composed of the President, Secretary and Rev. Harrison, of Keene; Currie, of Warsaw; and Bonar of Gilmour Church, Smith, was appointed to deal with the matter and to make such arrangements as will best suit the convenience of the local organizations.

It was announced that the executive of the City Association at a recent meeting had passed a resolution favoring a separation of the city and county organizations and that the question would be dealt with at the next meeting of the City Association.

THE OFFICERS.

The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows;

Pres.—R. C. Heard, Bridgenorth.

Vice-Pres.—Wm. Borland, Indian River.

Treas.—H. J. Johnston, Peterborough.

General Secretary —Richard Lees, Peterborough.

Superintendents—

Primary—Miss Shain, Lakefield.

Home—Jos. Snell, Peterborough.

Teacher Training —Dr. Metzler, of Bridgenorth, for the West; Rev. D. Thompson, Hastings, for the East.

Representative on the Provincial Executive and delegate to the Provincial Convention which meets at Orillia on Oct. 27th to 29th, inclusive —Dr. Metzler.

SPORTING NEWS

TOURNAMENT LOOKS AS THOUGH IT WILL BE A GREAT SUCCESS

Final General Meeting of Official and Citizens—Walkers Well Pleased—Messrs. Reynolds and Spencely for Refeeres.

The final general meeting of officers and those interested in the walking tournament was held at the Oriental on Thursday night, and a large volume of business was transacted. Mr. R. J. Munro occupied the chair.

The important question of scoring came in for much consideration and the appointment of Mr. F. S. Knapman as scorer by the special committee assigned to that work, was unanimously confirmed. Mr. Knapman was given full authority to select his assistants and generally organize his scoring staff.

It was decided to allow only contestants, their trainers and officials in the ring except in case of overcrowding.

The merchants of the city at their own request were granted the privilege of printing a programme of the tournament and also of distributing the programmes at the rink.

TUG OF WAR.

The Quakers tug of war team were represented at the meeting, and were granted the right of pulling for a cup with any competing teams on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings or on anyone of the above evenings providing only one team accepts the challenge. It was thought the tug of war would prove a feature of interest and any teams wishing to pull with the Quakers may address the secretary of the team or the secretary of the walking tournament, care of the Review.

TICKETS FOR THE CLERGY.

The tournament will be conducted along the strictest and most legitimates lines and the management in view of the fact desire to have their efforts endorsed by the best class of citizens, the secretary was instructed to forward season tickets to every clergyman in the city. They are heartily invited to be present at the walk.

THE REFEREES.

As is generally known Mr. E. S. Clarry was chosen as chief referee at the organization meeting of the tournament. However he was of the opinion that men of wide practical experience should be secured to act in the capacity of referees. Mr. Jas. Reynolds of Port Hope, and Mr. Mark Spencely were decided upon as two reliable and competent officials, and were as a consequence chosen to act as referees.

WALKERS SATISFIED.

There were several of the walkers present and they endorsed the way in which the officials had carried out the preliminary arrangements and expressed every confidence in them. They were all of the opinion that everything in connection with the walk had been conducted in a business-like manner and expressed themselves as confident that the tournament would be a great success from all standpoints.

MESSRS BOYD AND FROST AT DETROIT TOURNAMENT

Are Representing Peterborough Bowlers—Toronto will be Here Friday to do Battle with the Locals

Tom Boyd got away with the cigars last week at the Peterborough Bowling Club alleys for the third consecutive time, with a score of 245. Mr. Boyd is rolling in fine form, and is expected to make a good mark in the Detroit tournament.

This is Canadian day at the tournament, and Messrs. Boyd and Frost are representing this city there. Both men are doing great work, and will give the contestants a close call for the highest score. A special car for the bowlers has been run from Toronto to Detroit.

The C.B.C. team, Toronto, who were held down so closely by the Peterborough team last week, will be down for Friday night, and will give the local rollers a close contest.

Mr. J. B. Hay, manager of the alleys, intends to institute a novice's weekly contest, next week, from which all skilled bowlers will be excluded.

Another contest will be held for all those running up a score of 600 and over during the month. A date will be set, when the contestants will meet, and roll for a $5 gold piece. These are especially interesting features, and the prizes should be closely contested.

Mr. Hay states that bowling is becoming more popular than ever, and says he expects to see them installed in Y.M.C.A.'s all through Canada soon.

MADE ALMOST ENTIRE TRIP TO PETERBOROUGH ON FOOT

J. E. Blake, the Negro Pedestrian, of Syracuse, Arrived in the City at Noon—Walked as far as Locust Hill and Then Took the Train

Mr. J. E. Blake, the negro pedestrian of Syracuse, N.Y., one of the competitors in the big six-day walking tournament at Brock street rink, arrived in the city on the C.P.R. noon train today. Blake came sixth in the six-day walk at Kansas City.

In an interesting chat with a Review reporter, he told of some of his walking experiences. Blake is an intelligent fellow and of a fine physique. He has not figured in many six-day grinds, in fact, the Kansas City contest being his first.

MADE JOURNEY ON FOOT.

With the exception of the distance between Locust Hill and Peterborough, Blake walked every step of his trip to this city. He left Syracuse at 6.30 o'clock on Tuesday morning, and reached Rochester, a distance of 81 miles, at nine o'clock, the same evening. On Wednesday he walked from Rochester to Buffalo, a distance of seventy miles. From Buffalo, Blake tramped it to Niagara, and then to Hamilton, reaching there on Thursday night. He made the trip from Hamilton to Toronto at night, reaching the Queen City about three o'clock yesterday morning.

WAS GUEST OF I.C.A.C.

In Toronto, Mr. Blake was entertained by Tom Flannigan, manager of the Irish Canadian Athletic Club, and was given a most hearty reception. Mr. Flannigan also very kindly assisted the negro pedestrian financially. Blake says that the big walk is the talk of Toronto, and there will be a crowd down from that city. He walked twenty miles east of Toronto, but the roads were so bad, he had to give it up.

FROM KANSAS TO ST. LOUIS.

The Peterborough tournament will only be the second six-day match that Blake has participated in. His walking career has been confined more to long tramps from city to city. Shortly after the contest in Kansas City, the negro walked from that place to St. Louis, a distance of 285 miles. His time was four days, nine hours and 18 minutes.

BASKETBALL

The Peterborough team defeated Midland last night by 45-23 at the local YMCA gymnasium. The winners led by 20-10 at half time. Mr. J. Laing and Mr. H. R. Chant, physical director of the Midland YMCA, refereed satisfactorily.

QUAKERS AND "Y" TEAM TIED

Played Practice Game Yesterday --Toronto Brits Couldn't Come

The Quakers and the Y.M.C.A. team had a good workout in the practice game at the Driving Park yesterday morning.

The Quakers expected to have the Toronto Britannias here for the day, bu ton account of an engagement with Hamilton, the "Hog Town" kickers were obliged to go there.

A number of new men turned out, and, judging from the material shown, both team should put up a strong game this year. Several exhibition games will likely be scheduled between the two teams this season. The game on Friday was closely contested, the score being 4—4. Percy Fitzgerald gave satisfaction as erferee.

WALKING PROGRAMME

The programme of the walking tournament is as follows:—

Monday—7 p.m. to 11 p.m.
Tuesday—7 to 11 p.m.
Wednesday—1 p.m. to 11 p.m.
Thursday—7 p.m. to 11 p.m.
Friday—7 p.m. to 11 p.m.
Saturday—1 p.m. to 11 p.m.

West Ends beat Strathconas on Good Friday by a score fo 6-5.

ORANGE JUICE AND HEALTH

For Stomach and Skin.

Few of us realise what an important part the skin plays in keeping us well or making us ill.

The millions of tiny glands, or pores, are intended to rid the system of waste matter, which the blood brings to the skin. It is a well-known medical fact that the healthy skin carries off more Urea or waste matter than the kidneys. Just think how much poison remains in the system when there is any skin trouble.

The skin and stomach are intimately associated. Find a person with a dry, harsh skin and you will find one who suffers with indigestion or constipation, and both, usually.

Both may be relieved by a judicious use of orange juice. Both can be cured by taking the juice of an orange every morning before breakfast, and taking "Fruit-a-tives" at night. "Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices in tablet form. The fresh juices of oranges, apples, figs and prunes are separated from the pulp, and then combined in such a way that the medicinal action is intensified.

Orange juice alone will not cure Skin, Stomach or Bowel troubles. But when taken in connection with "Fruit-a-tives," a positive cure results. "Fruit-a-tives" may be obtained at all dealers or will be sent on receipt of price—50c a box—6 for $2.50. "Fruit-a-tives" Limited, Ottawa.

AN ATHLETIC EVENT OF THE GREATEST IMPORTANCE

The walking committee is to be congratulated on the manner in which they have handled matters in connection with the big tournament which is to take place at the Brock street rink, commencing Monday. They have left no stone unturned in the way of making arrangements for event, which will be one of the most important, is not the most important athletic event ever held in Peterborough. The citizens should realise that the contest will not simply be a case of a lot of men getting on the track and walking for some prize money, but that it will be a magnificent grind, in which skill and training will count, and will be a battle royal between some of the most celebrated heel and toe walkers in America today. It is certainly going to be a contest worth while, something upon which a great deal of time and money has been spent and something over which such renowned professionals as Hoagland, Slater, Graham and others have grown enthusiastic. These men declare it ought to be one of the best and most interesting pedestrian tournaments ever held, and are delighted with the prospects for a successful meet.

NEW TO PETERBOROUGH.

Of course, a walking tournament is a new thing to Peterborough and the public may not have a proper appreciation of what it means to sport here and to the name for enterprise it will give to the city.

It will be a new feature in athletics in this city and its inauguration should meet with the heartiest approval and support of the public.

CHAMPION OF THE WORLD ARRIVES IN PETERBOROUGH

Hoagland Here for the Tournament—Has Been Professional Pedestrian for Past Twenty Eight Years

Hoagland is here, so the enthusiasts are assured of seeing the world's champion walker stac kup against a select field of starters. The greatest local interest is centred in the winner of the Kansas City walk, and there are numerous people in the city who would be willing to pay the admission price to see him perform alone.

WON AT TRENTON.

The last race in which Hoagland figured was at Trenton, New Jersey. It was a four nights' event from April 1st to 4th and conducted at the Trenton Armoury, two promoters, Messrs. McColloch and Riley having the event in charge. This is the only race in which Hoagland has figured since the Kansas City walk.

28 YEARS A WALKER.

Twenty-eight years a professional walker is Hoagland's record. He has walked in about 300 events altogether and has been very successful. He has never followed any other line of athletics, although he once thought of going in for rowing, but discarded the idea and devoted his energies entirely to pedestrianism.

TAKES CARE OF HIMSELF

Hoagland makes it a point to take care of himself and does quite a bit of road and indoor work. He has for a trainer and manager W. Demont, who accompanies him to the principal events. He is not extra particular as to diet, although he is careful what he eats.

HIS MEASUREMENTS.

Hoagland is a man of good carriage and although unassuming in his manner, looks very likely. He stands 5 feet 11 inches in his stockings and strips at 160 pounds.

His first walk was at Union Springs, New York, his birthplace, on February 28, 1879. It was a ten mile go and was for money.

SCORING SYSTEM WORKED FINE

Was Tried Out at Rink Yesterday --Youngsters Ran and Walked

There was a big crowd at the Brock street rink yesterday afternoon watching the scoring system, in connection with the tournament, in operation. The spectators also had a look around the track and ring. The score process, which was installed by Tom Slater, worked to the best advantage, and the tally will be kept according to the principle involved in the manner of scoring adopted yesterday.

TRIAL RACES.

Just to see how the scoring system worked a run and walk between some of the young boys who were at the rink was held. About 02 youngsters started in each event, both of which proved quite interesting to the crowd. The run was a mile in length and was won by Ken Routley, with Wilfrid Stratton second, while the walk, which was a two mile event, was won by Charlie Hillier in 29 minutes.

TICKETS FOR TOURNAMENT

Season Tickets are $1.00 Each--25c Admission for Each Occasion of Walk

For the benefit of those who wish to see the walking tournament, it might be well to again state the price of the tickets.

The season tickets entitling the holder to admission at any time, with the privilege of coming in or going out as often as the holder pleases, will be sold for $1.00, which the admission fee for each occasion of the walk will be 25 cents.

BLAKE ON WAY HERE FOR WALK

Mr. George Stevens has received the following post card from the wife of Blake, the negro walker:—

719 Washington street,
Syracuse, N.Y.,
April 10, 1908.

Mr. George Stevens,—

Your letter received this morning, and wish to say that Mr. Blake left for Peterborough before your letter arrived, and will be there in time for the walk if nothing happens.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. A. BLAKE.

WALKING

Mr. George N. Graham has received word from Reynolds that he will be here Monday to act as referee at the walking tournament.

A meeting of the committee of the walking tournament will be held at the Oriental on Monday, afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made to have refreshments, sweets, pop corn, soft drinks, etc., served in a booth in the ladies' waiting room at Brock street rink during the tournament.

BOWLING

Considerable excitement has been prevalent lately at the Majestic Bowling Alleys, in connection with the $5 gold prize awarded for the highest three consecutive games for this month. Mr. Harry Fowler held the field until yesterday, when his score went down before the three games rolled by Ami Ruschia, which totalled 561 pins. Mr. Ruschi also rolled the highest single game, running up a score of 244. The cigar competition for the month closes on May 9th, and Mr. Ruschi is beginning to make a noise like a winner of the dusky beauties.

REV. DR. PATTON CHOSEN.

Successor to Rev. Dr. Workman at Wesleyan College.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Governors of Wesleyan College, Rev. Dr. Walter M. Patton of Baldwin University, Kansas, was appointed successor to Rev. Dr. Workman, in the chair of Oriental literature and Old Testiment exegesis. Dr. Patton was a former Montrealer, having held the chair in Wesleyan College in 1902. He is 45 years of age and was born in Toronto. He was educated at the high school Montreal, leaving it to go into business in this city, and afterwards in Chicago. Returning to Montreal, he took up theological studies at Wesleyan College, afterwards going to Europe, where he studied Oriental literature at Leyden and Heidelberg, from the last of which he graduated with the degree of Ph.D. He returned to Montreal to occupy a chair in Wesleyan College during the years 1901 and 1902. In 1902 he took ministerial charge at Beacon's Falls, Connecticut, at the same time assisting Prof. Sanders at Yale in Oriental languages. In 1904 he was appointed to the chair of Oriental literature in Baldwin University, Kansas, which chair he held up to his recent appointment to Wesleyan College. He will assume his new duties on May 1 of this year.

Rotting of Potatoes.

The rotting of potatoes in storage is often a source of serious loss. The infection of the potatoes with the fungus occurs chiefly if not entirely in the field before digging. The infection is usually the result of diseased vines. The disease is transmitted in the majority of cases not directly through the vine, but indirectly through the soil. Potatoes may be infected directly in the field from spores introduced in the manure or from rotten potatoes spread upon or left in the land the preceding year.—C. D. Woods.

DRESSED IN AN ORIGINAL WAY

Peterboro' Hardware Co's. Windows Have Original Display

An original and striking display is on view in the north window of the Peterborough Hardware Co., George street.

The window is divided into three parts with patent wire fencing, and with chicken netting. In the central compartment is a stuffed wild boar, with two live white rabbits, while in those on either side are live chickens. A rustic rail fence is set up in the background. The window was dressed by Mr. J. Squires and is attracting considerable attention. The idea is a most appropriate one for the season.

In the south window is a paint display, as well as a display of boar's hair paint brushes.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Four Men Drowned.

Hardisty, B.C., April 18.—A temporary bridge at the G.T.R. crossing, Battle River, was swept away by ice going out. A scow used to ferry the men to and from work made two trips safely the evening of the 16th, leaving the third trip with a load of six. Three others jumped with the result that the scow was swamped in mid-stream. Three swam ashore. Two regained the scow, rescuing the third. The other three were drowned.

Foreman Readman dived in an effort to save one, but the victim grappled with him and both were drowned. Foreman Readman was engaged to be married shortly to Miss Minns, Brixton, who was going to meet him on the 24th.

The dead are Woodford Readman, Northampton, Eng.; T. Kirby, Homesteader, Alberta; A. Lemmons, St. Boniface; E. Levis, Cambria, France. The bodies have not been recovered.

Incendiary at Work.

London, April 18.—A desperate attempt was made last night to set fire to the frame fruit store and dwelling, 553 Richmond street, occupied at the time of his death recently by Toney Baronna.

The fire was blazing up nicely when discovered by some members of the Travelers' Club, across the street. The fire was extinguished, when it was discovered that quantities of paper, saturated with kerosene, had been placed about the building.

A carriage factory and a number of wooden buildings are in the vicinity, and the result might have been disastrous.

Portugal Quiets Down.

Lisbon, April 18.—The country has quieted down, but anxiety is being felt for April 29, when Parliament reassembles and on which occasion King Manuel must personally appear before that body and take oath to observe the constitution of Portugal.

Raising Price of Drinks.

Calgary, Alta., April 18.—Owing to the fact that the license fees have been raised to $800, and bars must close at 10 o'clock after July 1, Calgary hotelkeepers have raised the price of all mixed drinks to 25c.

Died of His Injuries.

Saskatoon, Sask., April 18.—Henry Barr, who was badly injured by being caught under a falling chimney a few days ago, succumbed to his injuries Thursday night.

Russia and Macedonia.

St. Petersburg, April 18.—Foreign Minister Iswolsky yesterday delivered to the Douma his long-expected statement regarding the Balkan situation.

He said he was not able to chronicle any definite achievement toward the settlement of the Macedonian problem, but that the loyal support of the Russian program by Austria-Hungary, Germany, Italy and France, and its partial approval by Great Britain was full of promise.

The Russian plan, the Foreign Minister continued, contained neither egotistic designs nor dangerous innovations and it could be put into execution without danger of bringing on a great conflict.

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

Everyone Needs a Tonic in Spring to Purify and Build Up the Blood

If you want new health and strength in spring you must build up your blood with a tonic medicine. Indoor life during the long winter months is responsible for the depressed condition and feeling of constant tiredness which affects so many people every spring. This condition means that the blood is impure and watery. That is what causes pimples and unsightly eruptions in some; others have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp, stabbing pains of neuralgia. Poor appetite, frequent headaches and a desire to avoid exertion is also due to bad blood. Any or all of these troubles can be banished by the fair use of such a tonic medicine as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose of this medicine helps to make new, rich, red blood, which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ, strengthens every nerve and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired out, ailing men and women. Here is proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the greatest of all spring medicines. Mr. Henry Baker, Chipman, N.B., says:—"Last spring I was so weak and miserable that I could hardly drag myself about. My appetite was poor, I did not sleep well and dreaded work. My blood was in a terrible condition, which which caused pimples and small boils to break out all over me. These would itch and pain and caused me much trouble. I tried several medicines, but without the least benefit, when one day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He spoke so highly of this medicine that I decided to take his advice and give the pills a trial. I got a half dozen boxes and the result was that by the time they were finished I felt like an altogether different man. They purified my blood, built up my whole system, and I have not had a pimple on my flesh, not a sick day since. For this reason I can highly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a blood builder and purifier." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

STORIES OF TENNYSON.

Showing Some of the Odd Ways of the Famous Poet.

In the memoirs of the late William Allingham, the English poet, appear some interesting reminiscences of Tennyson. Allingham's first sight of him was at Twickenham, where Tennyson was then living. He says: "Soon came in a tall, broad shouldered, swarthy man, slightly stooping, with loose dark hair and beard. He wore spectacles and was obviously very nearsighted. Hollow cheeks and the dark pallor of his skin gave him an unhealthy appearance. He was a strange and almost spectral figure. The great man peered close at me and then shook hands cordially, yet with a profound quietude of manner. He was then about forty-one, but looked much older."

In 1886 Allingham visited Tennyson at the latter's home, Farringford, in Freshwater, Isle of Wight. One morning they were talking on the downs together, and Allingham said that he felt happy. Tennyson said gloomily, "I'm not at all happy—very unhappy." The reason, as Tennyson afterward explained, for his particular unhappiness was his uncertainty regarding the condition and destiny of man. Allingham was very anxious to photograph him on this visit, but Tennyson positively refused. "You make bags under my eyes," he said.

At another time during this visit, as Allingham writes, they talked of dreams. "Tennyson said: 'In my boyhood I had intuitions of immortality—inexpressible! I have never been able to express them. I shall try some day.' I said that I, too, had felt something of that kind, whereat Tennyson, being in one of his less amiable moods, growled: 'I don't believe you have. You say it out of rivalry.'"

Allingham describes Tennyson's fondness for strange antics, such as jumping round and round like a pigeon, and adds, "He is the only person I ever saw who can do the most ludicrous things without any loss of dignity."

His Checks Dishonored.

Montreal, April 18.—W. S. Hartley, a young Scotchman who has been out of work for some time, was found dead last evening in the Westmount Park with a bullet wound in his head, and the revolver by his side.

He left a letter for a friend in which the writer stated that all his cheques drawn on the Bank of Life had been dishonored, hence his desire and determination to quit. He was thirty years of age, was unmarried and had few friends.

Ex-Premier Slowly Failing.

London, April 18.—Another disquieting bulletin was issued at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in Downing street, where Former Premier Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman is lying at death's door. The bulletin is as follows:

"Sir Henry had a restless night and is rather weaker this morning."

Robbers Held Up Train.

Minneapolis, April 18.—A westbound Northern Pacific coast train, which left here Thursday night, was held up by two men just outside the city limits, and $41 and two watches were taken from the passengers.

Panic In Quebec Church.

Quebec, April 18.—The Basilica narrowly escaped being visited with a disastrous fire on Thursday. The venerable building was filled with people attending the services. The procession of the Blessed Sacrament had been finished and the officiating dignitaries had just reached the altar, which was elaborately decorated, when an electric wire ignited one of the lace curtains, which immediately blazed up and enveloped the entire altar in flames.

The scene that followed was frightful. The congregation, mostly composed of women and girls, flocked to the doors, panic-stricken, and many among them fainted. In the meanwhile, however, the sacristans had rushed to the altar, and, regardless of the flames, tore down the burning curtains, and in a few moments the danger was passed and calm was quickly restored among the people, most of whom returned to their pews, and the services continued as if uninterrupted. The firemen, who had been summoned, arrived on the scene, but there was nothing for them to do. The damage caused is estimated at about $50.

Engineer Killed.

Toluca, Ill., April 18.—Engineer E. Coppess of Chicago lost his life in the wreck of a Santa Fe westbound passenger train early yesterday at the east end of the freight yards here, when the train, going in at high speed, ran into an open switch.

The engine ran into a beer warehouse, which it almost demolished.

Four express cars and two coaches were ditched. None of the passengers were injured.

Settled Out of Court.

Leamington, April 18.—The suit of Mrs. Cora Beattie, wife of George Beattie of this town, against the M.C.R. for injuries received in the Essex explosion, has been settled out of court. The railroad company will give her $2,000 damages and $200 costs.

Mrs. Beattie at the time of the explosion sustained three broken ribs and other injuries while seated in her home, near the scene of the explosion.

A DESPERATE FIGHTER

Courage and Daring of Colonel James Bowie.

HIS DEATH IN THE ALAMO.

Dramatic End of This Brave, Generous and Determined Spirit—The Way the Fearless Fighter Once Protected a Preacher In Texas.

One fine summer morning in 1833—the year that Santa Anna seized the presidency of the new republic of Mexico—a small party of horsemen crossed the Sabine river about sixty miles from its mouth and entered Texas territory. Most of them were clad in buckskin and armed with rifle, pistol and knife—a rough, determined looking crowd, with two notable exceptions, one clean shaven, dark skinned, with a bright, restless eye that scanned the woods constantly, as if in search of an enemy, and the other a small, mild mannered man, whose general appearance betokened the preacher. These two were riding in front, talking earnestly of the convention which had just been held at San Felipe de Austin and of the possibility that Texas might one day become an independent state. Suddenly some one in the party behind them started a song with a memorable chorus—

> When other states reject us,
> This is the one that always takes us.

From that jingling rhyme some derive the name "Texas." Certain it is that this great new land took in and sheltered many a fugitive "who left his country for his country's good." That prince of pirates Lafitte had sailed away from Galveston ten years before, and his thousand freebooters were scattered to the four winds, but crowds of adventurers from all parts of the world were pouring in, with many of the better class, to swell the tide of Texas immigration.

The little band jogged on and finally reached the municipality of San Augustine, then a mere collection of rude log huts, with one or two adobe structures built by Spanish missionaries. Here the preacher posted a notice that the Rev. Henry Stephenson of the Methodist denomination would hold a meeting in the evening. At the hour named the house was crowded to overflowing with rough, desperate men, all armed, and ready for any fun or fray that might arise on such a novel occasion. The minister gave out a hymn, and it was sung with spirit. Then came the text, but not another word would the crowd hear. They hooted and yelled, shot off their pistols, crowed and brayed in derision. The tumult was deafening. The quiet little preacher stood his ground bravely, though in his heart wishing he were well out of it. With difficulty his traveling companion forced his way to the front, still carrying his rifle and a huge knife in his belt. The wild cheer that broke from the crowd sounded in the ears of the preacher, now thoroughly alarmed, like the howls of a pack of wolves or the yells of Indians hungry for scalps. But instead of jumping upon him this strange man, with restless eyes flashing and long black hair streaming over his shoulders, jumped on a bench and, throwing his hat to the ground, shouted in a stentorian voice: "Men, this man has come to preach to you! You need preaching to, and I'll be blanked if he shan't preach to you! The next man who disturbs him shall fight me! My name is Jim Bowie!"

The effect was magical. With quiet, respectful attention the rough audience listened to the sermon, joined heartily in the closing hymn, and not a few persons came up to shake hands with the little man and apologize for the rough reception they had given him. A month later at the first camp meeting ever held in Texas some of them became members of the church, and in 1838 the cornerstone of the first Protestant house of worship in the republic was laid in San Augustine.

The man whose timely aid proved so effective was Colonel James Bowie, and the knife in his belt was the noted "bowie knife," given to him by his brother, Rezin P. Bowie. It was made of a large file, strong, of admirable temper and gave its name to a family of terrible weapons not yet extinct. Crockett met Bowie for the first time in the Alamo, and he writes in his journal: "While we were conversing Colonel Bowie had occasion to draw his famous knife, and I wish I may be shot if the bare sight of it wasn't enough to give a man of a squeamish stomach the colic. He saw I was admiring it and said he, 'Colonel, you might tickle a fellow's ribs a long time with this before you'd make him laugh.'"

Brave, generous, determined and enterprising, James Bowie sought adventure for its hazards, and he was naturally among the first to take up arms for Texas independence. Three more desperate men were never brought together than Travis, Crockett and Bowie as they took their last stand within the walls of the Alamo. Sick and helpless in bed on that last terrible day, Jim Bowie died fighting. As a Mexican ran forward to kill him he roused himself by a supreme effort, caught his assailant by the hair, plunged the fatal knife into his heart and fell back dead.

When the story of his death was told to his mother in Louisiana, she said, "I am sure Jim never died with a wound in his back," and, with a quiet smile, turned again to her household duties.—Exchange.

Gratitude is a fine virtue, and yet it is wearisome when carried beyond due bounds.—Le Sage.

THE COMET'S TAIL.

A Plume of Fairy Lightness and Ever Changing Dimensions.

A comet is distinguished usually by a nucleus, by an envelope called the coma, which surrounds the nucleus, and, last, by its luminous tail streaming behind the nucleus for perhaps a hundred million miles and more as the comet swims toward the sun. Occupying a volume thousands of times greater than the sun, the question naturally arises, how can a body with so vast an appendage sweep through the solar system without deranging every planet? Fortunately for the preservation of the solar system, a comet, so far from being a compact mass, is often transparent. Stars have been distinctly seen without perceptible diminution of brightness not only through the tail, but even through the nucleus. In structure the tail is a gossamer of molecules so ghostly that in comparison the filmiest of bridal veils is coarsely dense and the thinnest haze that hovers on the horizon is an impenetrable blanket. Indeed, the earth's atmosphere on the clearest day is far denser. Hundreds of cubic miles of a comet's tail are probably outweighed by a jarful of air. A plume of such fairy lightness can hardly be supposed to remain permanent, and so it is not astonishing to find that during its swift journey around the sun a comet's outlines are incessantly changing. An interval of a few days or perhaps of a few hours may work wonders in its diaphanous texture. Its path is its only permanent characteristic, indeed the only characteristic by which it can be surely identified if it ever returns.

From all the known facts astronomers have concluded that the nucleus of a comet is merely a mass of meteors easily dispersed into small groups or distributed gradually along the orbit until eventually the comet is completely disintegrated and extinguished. Astronomical history offers considerable evidence in support of this hypothesis. Biela's comet, discovered in 1826 and carefully observed on each return, split into two parts and reappeared as a curious double comet in 1846. When it revisited the earth in 1852 the two parts had drifted away from each other and were separated about 1,000,000 miles. Since then the comet has disappeared. Every six and a half years the earth crosses the track of that lost comet. Meteoric showers then rain upon us. In these meteors we see all that is now left of Biela's comet. Similarly, the great comet of 1882 literally lost its head by breaking into four portions, each of which will some day form a separate comet. Another link in this chain of testimony is presented by the chemical composition of meteorites which have found their way to the earth, a composition which agrees exactly with that of a comet.—Waldemar Kaempffert in Cosmopolitan.

Coffee as Remedy For Asthma.

Coffee is a very excellent remedy for asthma. Those who do not know how to cut short their attacks and have not tried coffee should do so by all means. It often succeeds admirably when almost everything else has failed. There are one or two little points to be attended to in taking coffee for asthma. In the first place, it should be very strong, in fact, perfectly black. Weak coffee does more harm than good. If made very strong, much of it need not be taken. A large quantity is a positive disadvantage, for it is less rapidly absorbed and only distends the stomach. Then it should be given without sugar or milk, pure "cafe noir." It should be given on an empty stomach, for when taken on a full stomach it often does harm by putting a stop to the process of digestion.—Family Doctor.

IS ALFRED GREEN BROTHER OF ROSINA GREEN OF BAILIEBORO?

"Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Green and two boys arrived in Peterborough a day or so ago from Reading, Berkshire, England. Mr. Green has been unable to secure any work in this city. He is a brick maker by trade and holds a reference from a large firm in the Old Country. He is industrious and respectable looking, and no doubt, will make a good citizen. The family is at present boarding on Charlotte street."

The above article published in the Review a short time ago has elicited the following letter:

Bailieboro, Ont. April 18.
Editor of the Review;

Dear Sir,—I see today in the Peterborough Review, that a gentleman and lady, named Mr. and Mrs. Alf Green, and as I am English myself, and my name Green, I was wondering if he was a brother of mine. I have a sister named Annie in England and one named Sarah in Toronto and my name is Rosie. I live in Bailieboro. If you are a brother of mine, please answer this right away and I think I can get you a good place.

SPRING OF 1907

The spring of nineteen hundred and seven,
Did seem to go astray,
There was snow and sleet, sometimes rain and heat,
All happened in one day.
And the slushy mud on the cardwheel hub,
Was anything but nice.
And in the night Johnny Frost, did bite,
And freeze all into ice.

In the month of May it is strange to say,
A deep snow came at night,
And on the next day the horse in the sleigh,
Went tripping out all right,
And the farmer's plough that was in the mow,
Was left there all the same,
And the farmer's son, with his rifle gun,
Went out to hunt some game.

The rooster and hen shut up in the pen,
Against their desire,
And the cow and calf had a right good laugh,
In the cosy byre.
Birds of the feather cuddled together
The crows all acted so,
They sat in the pol of the cedar tree
Wondering to see the snow.

THEATRICAL

"RAFFLES" THE AMATEUR CRACKSMAN

From a scenic standpoint "Raffles," which will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House next Wednesday, is the heaviest and most elaborate of any dramatic offering now en tour in this country.

The complete original production is carried intact and two sixty-foot baggage cars are required for its transportation.

The English atmosphere of the play is carefully preserved by the various settings, the scenes being laid in and around present day London.

Notwithstanding the ponderous scenery, it is a question if any production has ever been handled more rapidly and adroitly than has this from the day it went on tour three years ago at the conclusion of its solid year's run at the Princess Theatre, up to the present time.

This is Mr. Samuel Keen's last season in this play, the play in which he has scored the most brilliant success of a really brilliant career.

In the three seasons in which "Raffles" has been "on the road," it has visited every state in the Union and a large part of Canada, and has been witnessed by upwards of two millions of people.

THE COWBOY AND THE SQAW

P. H. Sullivan announces the initial performance of his latest comedy-drama, "The Cowboy and the Squaw," to take place at the Grand next Thursday evening.

This piece is said to depict life in the far West with so much realism as to almost carry one away into the land of the cow boys. It tells of the true love of Bronco Boy for an eastern maid, and the many trials he is forced to endure in order to keep her out of the clutches of a rival cow boy. The great climax of the third act is declared to be so daring and hair raising as to carry the audience off their feet in excitement. It is a race between a wild steer, to which Bronco Boy has been roped by his opponent and a wild bronco which is ridden by a faithful squaw, and who finally succeeds in cutting the ropes and thereby releasing the victim. This scene is worked in full view of the audience and is said to produce the greatest effect ever attempted on the melodramatic stage.

LAST AT HOME OF THE SEASON

Will be held in the T. A. S. hall, Monday evening, April 20th. 2d

A BOY'S HOLIDAYS

The ardent controversy which has been waging in England and America concerning the best way to dispose of school boys in the long summer vacation has prompted the Grand Trunk Railway System to issue a special publication giving suggestions and practical hints to parents, as what to do with the public and preparatory school boy during the months of July and August. The vacation camp is one of the solutions and the publication entitled, "What shall a Boy do with his Vacation," thoroughly covers the ground and solves the problem of the best was for a schoolboy to enjoy his holidays.

NEW MEMBERS FOR THE C.O.O.F.

Special Meeting Thursday---Organizers Doing Fine Work Here

A special meeting was held in the S.O.E. Hall last Thursday evening by the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends, when about forty new members, a great number being good-looking young ladies and gentlemen, were initiated there with what was initiated at former meetings since the organizers Daveys (senior and junior) came on the field, will amount to about eighty. The organizers have had many calls to other places, but have given their consent to stay a few days longer to increase the number of new members here to over one hundred, and then something nice and very unique will take place some night next week in the S.O.E. Hall, that will tax the capacity of the hall to its utmost. The organizers are making special inducements while here for those who wish to join.

25 CARS A DAY BEING ICED BY SWIFT CO.

Busy Season Predicted at Havelock---Latest News From Railroad Town

Special to the Review

Havelock, April 18—Operations at Swift & Company's ice house here are commencing for the year with from 20 to 25 cars a day being iced. Last year was a very busy season and it is likely this season will be just as busy on account of the increase in the number of cars sent over this line that need icing. Last year in the middle of the summer as many as 250 cars have been iced in a week or an average of 36 cars per day. Considering that these cars take from 8 to 15 cakes of ice each according to the business of the ice in the tanks it can be seen that a large amount of that congealed moisture called ice is consumed at this icing station in one season. Although once in a while during the winter months, special cars have to be iced, the regular season commences about April 1st and finishes in November.

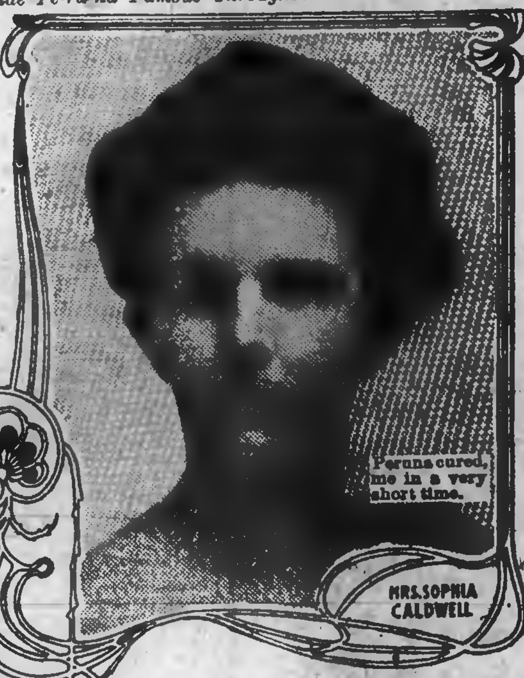
The icing does not stop abruptly but from September until the last of November, the number of cars iced per day lessen as some of the meats and fruits do not need to be kept very cold.

Although Swift & Company ship most of the cars that pass through here there are several other companies which have icing done here. Among them the following: The Armour Packing Company of Chicago, and Kansas City; Nelson Morris, Kansas City; Cudahy Packing Co., Omaha and Kansas City; National Packing Co., Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City; Cold Blast Transportation Co., Chicago and Kansas City; John Morrel, Ottumwa; The C. P.R. Refrigerator Co., and several other smaller companies, whose shipping points are in the United States.

Some of the cars only go as far as Montreal where the contents are transferred to the steamboats by which they are shipped to foreign countries. Other cars go down into the New England States, and others to Providence where they are transfered to the steamers and shipped to other countries.

The regular shipment of provision cars generally comes in on train No. 52, due at Havelock at 12.30 p.m., but cars come in on all trains and sometimes during the night. For night purposes ice is kept in a room level with the platform, already loosened up, which can be pulled on to the platform without the use of a horse. The men who are called out for an hour or so during the night do not have to get around as early as the others in the morning.

The goods that lack quality, the shop-worn, the goods you don't want, are what some grocers are only too willing to offer you as a substitute for fresh tea in the clean, air-tight lead packets of "Salada" Tea. The tea quality made famous.



Peruna cured me in a very short time.
MRS. SOPHIA CALDWELL

Peruna has made me a well and happy girl.
MISS ANNIE HENDREN

HAPPY WOMEN PRAISE PE-RU-NA

It Is Works, Not Words, That Has Made Pe-ru-na Famous Throughout the Land.

The miss and the matron alike praise Peruna. Girls and women have all discovered the value of Peruna. The Miss and Mrs. have been ill, each in her own peculiar way, and have found relief by taking Peruna.

Fair girls and beautiful women, frail daughters and ailing mothers everywhere have taken Peruna and know its value in the relief of ailments peculiar to their sex. From the grandmother to the girl babe the gentler sex are under numerous obligations to Peruna.

All this being true and the woman does not hesitate to tell it, her words win the confidence of other women, and thus the fame of Peruna spreads from household to household, until millions of homes acknowledge Peruna as their favorite and reliable family medicine.

Peruna is good for many minor ills. It can be relied upon to mitigate the many disagreeable effects of colds and irregularities so common among women. All the ailments of a catarrhal nature belong within the scope of Peruna's remedial action.

Mrs. Sophia Caldwell, 1122 McGavock street, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"After doctoring for a year and finding no relief from leucorrhea resulting from prolapsus uteri, and which was sapping my life forces away, I finally tried Peruna and when I found that it was helping me every day it seemed almost too good to be true.

"But, it not only helped me, it cured me and in a very short time. I am now enjoying the best of health. I am strong and free from pain, and I certainly feel that all praise and honor are due to Peruna."

Miss Annie Hendren, Rocklyn, Wash., writes:

"I feel better than I have for over four years. I have taken several bottles of Peruna and one bottle of Manalin. I can now do all of my work in the house, milk the cows, take care of the milk, and so forth.

"I think Peruna is the most wonderful medicine. I believe I would be in bed to-day if I had not written to you for advice. I had taken all kinds of medicine, but none did me any good. Peruna has made me a well and happy girl. I can never say too much for Peruna."

"I suffered with female troubles for thirteen years, and tried the best doctors in Louisville, Ky., without relief. I spent thousands of dollars at the Springs. The doctors desired that I have an operation performed to remove my ovaries, which I would not consent to. I saw an advertisement of your Peruna and bought one bottle, and before I had taken it all I could get out of bed and walk about. After taking three bottles I was as well and hearty as ever. I gained in flesh from one hundred and eighteen to one hundred and eighty-six pounds. If it had not been for your great and wonderful medicine I would now be in my grave. I would advise all women sufferers to try it. I would not be without it for the world."—Anna Mundon, Hollygrove, Ark.

"I was troubled with very serious pelvic weakness, which exhausted me so that I feared I would lose my mind. I suffered agony with my back, the pain extending down my left leg. The pain was so severe that I would have welcomed death as a relief. Peruna cured me of this trouble,—no wonder I recommend it so highly. It will soon be two years since I found relief from the pain and not a sign of it has returned. I am glad that there is a way in which I can speak of this, as many a sufferer may read my testimonial, and not only read, but believe."—Mrs. Wm. Henderson, Craik, N. W. T., Can.

"I feel it my duty to write and tell you of the good Peruna has done me. I was subject to female weakness. For six years I suffered more or less. We consulted various doctors, who gave me relief, but no cure. I have suffered a great deal, and my husband had very large bills to pay.

"In my despair I decided to try Peruna, and the first bottle taken according to your directions gave me relief. I have had no backset since then. Since we have used Peruna, a doctor has seldom been in our house."—Mrs. Martha Fredrich, Central Park, L. I., N. Y.

DO NOT WANT ANY CHANGE IN TORONTO-TWEED TRAIN

Board of Trade Suggests That City Council Send Delegation to wait on C.P.R. at Toronto--Change Would be a Detriment to City

A special meeting of the Railways and Canals Committee of the Board of Trade was held on Wednesday evening to consider the proposed discontinuing of the Toronto—Tweed CPR. train. The president, Dr. Morrison was in the chair. It appears that the CPR. have signified their intention to have the local stop here instead of running on to Tweed, but the Board of Trade realizes that this would mean a loss of considerable business to local merchants as a large quantity of goods is carried on this train from Peterborough to the smaller eastern towns.

After some discussion on the matter, the following resolution was passed:

"That the Board of Trade would suggest that the city council send a delegation to wait on the CPR. at Toronto with the object of inducing the railway authorities to make no change in the present time of running the early morning train from Tweed to Toronto and return, as any change would be detrimental to the interests of the city.

"That the Board of Trade joins with the City Council and sends delegates with this deputation.

The Board of Trade would further suggest that the City Council correspond with the Reeves of Tweed, Ivanhoe, Blairton, Norwood and Indian River, with a view of getting them to co-operate with the city and have them join the deputation to Toronto.

WEDDING BELLS

THACKERY—POLLOCK

At St. Paul's Presbyterian church this afternoon at four o'clock the marriage of Miss Marin Frances Pollock of the pianoforte department of the faculty of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, to Mr. William Makepeace Thackery, was quietly solemnized. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert Pogue and the bridal pair were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Thackery left in the evening on a wedding tour west, which it is understood, will include Toronto, Buffalo and New York. Mrs. Thackery is a pianist of unusual ability, and as a teacher conscientious and successful. Her withdrawal will be a distinct loss to the musical pupils of the Conservatory. However her ideas of honor constrain her to finish the term, and on Mrs. Thackery's return she will resume her classes and continue them till the end of the midsummer term.

MINISTER WALKED FROM LAKEFIELD IN TWO HOURS

Well Known Local Divine Missed Train and Had to Walk to Peterborough—Got Here in Time for Prayer Meeting.

To walk from Lakefield to Peterborough in time to conduct a prayer meeting was what a well-known local minister had to do on Wednesday evening last. This popular divine had been spending the day in the northern village and had tarried too long with his friends. He arrived at the village depot just in time to see his train speeding out of view on its way to Peterborough.

However, he was not to be detained in Lakefield over night, and with the same determination that he exercises in his ministerial duties, he set out on foot for home. It was just about six o'clock when he started on the homeward tramp. He arrived here in time to go and conduct his prayer meeting, his walk of ten miles having been made in two hours.

Save a little foot sore, the walking clergyman is none the worse for his experience and is seriously contemplating entering the big walking tournament at Brock street rink next week.

MRS. SCOTT-RAFF AGAIN WINS LOCAL AUDIENCE'S APPROVAL

Mrs. Scott-Raff, the noted Toronto elocutionist, whose entertainments have proven so popular in this city, delighted another large audience in the Sunday school room of the George street Methodist church last night.

The entertainment was held under the auspices of the Mission Band, whose annual Easter concert invariably proves a great success.

Combined with a most charming personal appearance, Mrs. Scott-Raff possesses the power to deal with the most classic subjects in a manner which makes them clear and intelligible to her audience.

PART I.

Rev. E. A. Pearson, pastor of the church, occupied the chair for the evening, and introduced the first number, by Mrs. Scott-Raff, which was in the form of a reading from the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians.

Miss E. Smith was then heard in a piano solo, which was brilliantly rendered, and in which considerable talent was shown.

Mrs. Scott-Raff's recitation of "My Ship," was greatly enjoyed, and "In the Spring," was recited in a manner which depicted the beauties of Canadian springtime with great effect. After much applause, "A Prayer," a humorous sketch with a strong moral, was given as an encore.

"God's Slumberland," by E. Wheeler Wilcox, was sung by Miss Olive Howell, in a charming manner with Miss Ida Sanderson as accompanist, and elicited much applause.

Mrs. Scott-Raff, in the reading "The Great Divide," depicted in a very realistic manner the pathetic side of the miners' life in the Colorado Hills.

PART II.

A piano and violin duet was rendered by Misses Ida Sanderson and Ethel Girvin, in which great talent and command of technique were shown.

The sketch "Grigsby Station," and "The Transformation" were read by Mrs. Scott-Raff in a charming manner and gave the audience great pleasure.

Miss Sanderson favored the audience with a delightful rendition of "The Palms," in which her excellent voice was heard to advantage.

Mrs. Scott-Raff's final number was Browning's "Pippa Passes," a pathetic Italian tale to which full justice was done.

The programme throughout was a very appropriate one, and was greatly appreciated. The entertainment was closed by singing the National Anthem, and by Mr. Pearson pronouncing the benediction.

A full attendance is asked for and a cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of other auxiliaries to be present.

Easter Day

By... Archdeacon Farrar

With trembling fears and streaming tears
Ere dawned the Easter day,
Slow to the tomb, through the shuddering gloom,
The women made their way.
"The stone is heavy and huge," they cried.
"And the cave is dark and deep.
And the cross towers still on the dreadful hill,
And what can we do but weep?"

The little maid his voice obeyed
By sweet Genesareth's wave,
And Lazarus heard his thrilling word
And came from the rocky grave,
And the youth of Nain to rise was fain,
And his mother wailed no more.
But now the Giver of Life is dead,
And joy and hope are o'er.

FACES AND ANGEL WINGS!

Lo, from the shroud of crimson cloud
The burning sun upsprings!
Lo, in the dawn, on dewy lawn,
Faces and angel wings!
"Why seek ye the living among the dead?
Oh, not in the tomb is he!
He has burst the prison of death," they said;
"Ye shall meet him on Galilee!"

Weep no more, though ye weep so sore,
For the loved in the farther land;
Though the dust be spread on the cherished head,
The soul is in Jesus' hand.
And the mourner knows that his Lord arose
To set his prisoners free,
And the death on earth is a heavenly birth,
And time is eternity.

HORSE WAS KILLED IN RUNAWAY

On Water St. Yesterday Afternoon—Mr. J. Fitzgerald Loses Valuable Animal.

A runaway that resulted fatally occurred yesterday afternoon on Water street, when a team drawing a load of coal belonging to Mr. J. Fitzgerald, became frightened and started off down the street. One of the horses collided with a post and was instantly killed.

The accident occurred between four and five o'clock. The driver of the team had delivered all but two or three bags of the coal to the house at the corner of Water and Murray streets. While away from his team the animals became frightened and ran down the street at an awful rate.

At Brock street, heedless of where they were going, one of the excited horses struck its head against a telegraph post and fell to the ground. Its death was instantaneous, the animal's neck having been broken.

The horse was a valuable one and its death will mean a loss of over two hundred dollars to Mr. Fitzgerald. The waggon was also somewhat damaged in the runaway and the bags of coal were strewn over the road.

MANY EASTER LILIES ARE SOLD IN PETERBOROUGH YEARLY

Local Florists Are Well Supplied for the Coming Week—Where Easter Lilies are Obtained and Their Significance

A reminder is being given of the near approach of Easter by the delicately beautiful and representative token of the season, the Easter lily, bursting into bloom. The lily, by its fairy-like form and color, has long been a figure of purity, and naturally came to be used in Easter festivities. It was first in connection with great Easter celebrations that it was valued, and it is known to the moderns through this medium chiefly.

Every Easter in Peterborough considerable money is spent on lily plants. The greater part of them are used in the decoration of the churches. The local florists are well supplied with Easter blooms and expects to do a large business next week.

The bulbs are brought from Bermuda, the Azores, Formosa and Japan. The people of this last nation, flower lovers and skilled in horticultural matters, have gradually ousted Bermuda from the leading position in the lily trade.

The inhabitants of the Azores are new comers in the field. They have, however, one advantage over Bermuda, in that they can raise flowers without danger and disease, which is killing the plants and the commerce in them, in the West Indian Island. The cause of the disease in the lilies there is that they have to be grown repeatedly on the same ground, owing to the small territory.

There are two popular fallacies respecting the lily and the lily trade. One is that the flower blooms every year of its own accord at Easter tide; the other that there is a large import of lilies yearly, just before the season.

The lily, in truth, is brought to this country in August. The temperature of the hot house is then regulated according to the date of the next Easter. For an early Easter the temperature is high; for a late one, less heat is used. Great care must be used in forcing the plants or they spoil.

When the customer buys the lily bulb from the florist he may have other flowers form in the same year. To do this he must plant it in the garden. If kept in a flower pot it will not have sufficient strength. The following year, too, he will receive flowers from it, but after that it dies, it is said, owing to the unsuitable climate and soil of Canada.

The Easter lily is not raised to any extent in the mainland of North America. There are parts of Florida and California suited for its culture, but the spots in Florida are so humid that white men cannot exist in them. In California the chief obstacle is the high price of labor. This also influences Florida.

Besides lilies large quantities of other flowers are bought by the public. American beauty roses, crimson ramblers and azaleas are among the most popular of these. They are bought chiefly by private individuals, the lilies being bought by the churches.

The lily has long been used as a symbol of purity, not only the white varieties, but also the others. The crimson lily was used on holy days, along with the white lilies, to symbolize the blood of Jesus Christ, while the others symbolized purity.

The lilies whose array Christ declared to have been braver than that of Solomon in all his glory, were of the crimson variety, the white not being known at that time in Judea.

SIGNIFICANCE OF EASTER EGGS

There are many superstitions in connection with Easter and each country has a custom of celebrating it, peculiar to itself, but while each varies, they all unite to observe the spirit of Springtime and all Christians rejoice that the Lord of Life forever won victory over death. Among the many quaint superstitions is the old Aryan one which typifies the return of the sun of Springtime by a golden egg— eggs being the tributed at the early equinox by priests to strengthen the hope of the people that the bleak cold days of Winter might soon cease and a brighter time ensue.

The Persians believed that the earth was hatched from an immense egg on Easter morning; the Aryans also believed the sun to be a large golden egg which was constantly rolling nearer to the earth.

With the Jews, says the April Delineator, the egg became a type of their rescue from the land of bondage and in their Feast of Passover, eggs occupied a conspicuous place in the services. It was their connection with the latter that finally caused them to be used by Christians the world over in celebrating Easter—the egg of resurrection into a new life, bringing a message of life from death, as it were.

The Tyrolese Easter egg is similar to our valentines, for besides being most beautifully tinted they have an unique lettering, mottoes representing appropriate wishes for the recipient.

The priests of Italy bless all eggs brought to service on Easter morning, and each person carries his back home, where they are placed on a kind of altar, arranged for the purpose, surrounded by lighted candles and often flowers; then each member of the family or any guests abiding with them, eat one of these holy eggs as a safeguard against disease and danger. They are hardboiled before being taken to church.

BIG CROWD AT SERVICE IN CENTRAL PARK

Held Yesterday Afternoon—Revs. A. H. Brace and H. J. Keith Gave Addresses

There was an immense attendance at the open air service in Central Park yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by the Ministerial Association, every member of which was present except Rev. J. R. Webb, who was away in Montreal. The service was a success in every way. The day was an ideal one for such an affair and the immense concourse of people who assembled manifested a devout interest and were most reverent throughout the prayers and addresses by the speakers. The hymns sung were familiar ones and the crowd joined heartily in the singing. The addresses were delivered by Revs. A. H. Brace and H. J. Keith, and were appropriate to the day.

After the singing of "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," Rev. Robt. A. Pogue, of St. Paul's church, read the story of the crucifixion, and prayer was offered by Rev. J. G. Potter.

Rev A. H. Brace delivered a powerful address on the tragedy of Good Friday, and the reason for it. The ravages of sin that overspread the world depraved men and rendered them unfit for Heaven. To cure sin, Rev. Mr. Brace said, Christ came into the world and gave His life upon the cross. In that sacrifice which He made upon the cross, is exemplified Christ's inestimable love to man, and the speaker urged his hearers to come to the cross with their sins, cares and sorrows and share in their Saviour's love.

"Jesus, Lover of My Soul" was next sung after which Rev. H. J. Keith, of Knox church, addressed the throng in earnest, appealing terms and his words were bound to be productive of much good.

The meeting was closed with the singing of "Nearer My God, to Thee." and prayer by Rev. Canon Davidson.

Mr. R. J. Devey, organist of St. John's church, very kindly presided at the organ.

OBITUARY

MRS. STANLEY BATES.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Stanley Bates, who was burned to death in Dunnville on Sunday last, took place on Wednesday from the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. F. Bates, Stewart street, to Little Lake cemetery. It will be remembered she met her death while dressing her twin babies before a gas stove, her dress catching fire, and before the blaze could be extinguished she lost her life.

Her funeral was largely attended, the deceased lady having been well known here, and was held in the highest esteem by all who knew her.

Mrs. Bates was only 29 years of age. Her maiden name was Miss Ina McIlwain, and she was a daughter of Mr. Matthew McIlwain, now residing in the city. Besides her husband and five children, she is survived by five brothers and five sisters. They are Robert, of Peterborough; William and Matthew, of Lakefield; Herbert, of Rainy River; and James, of Huntsville; Mrs. W. Bates, of Huntsville; Mrs. Shobbrook, of Winnipeg, Mrs. Ed. Conney, and Elizabeth and Effie, of this city.

BEVERLY OF GRAUSTARK

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON, Author of "Graustark." Copyright 1904, by Dodd, Mead and Company.

"Oh, you are a glorious soldier!" she exclaimed, with fierce sarcasm in her voice. "You speak of being true! I surprise you in the very act of"—

"Stay, your highness!" he said coldly. "You are about to call me a spy and a traitor. Spare me, I implore you, that humiliation. I have sworn to serve you faithfully and loyally. I have not deceived you, and I shall not. Paul Baldos has wronged no man, no woman. What passed between Ravone and myself concerns us only. It had nothing to do with the affairs of Graustark."

"Of course you would say that. You wouldn't be fool enough to tell the truth," cried she hotly. "I am the fool! I have trusted you, and if anything goes wrong I alone am to blame for exposing poor Graustark to danger. Oh, why didn't I cry out this afternoon!"

"I knew you would not," he said, with cool unconcern.

"Insolence! What do you mean by that?" she cried in confusion.

"In your heart you knew I was doing no wrong. You shielded me then, as you have shielded me from the beginning."

"I don't see why I sit here and let you talk to me like that," she said, feeling the symptoms of collapse. "You have not been fair with me, Baldos. You are laughing at me now and calling me a witless little fool. You—you did something today that shakes my faith to the very bottom. I never can trust you again. Good heaven, I hate to confess to—to every one that you are not honest."

"Your highness!" he implored, coming close to the chair and bending over her. "Before God I am honest with you. Believe me when I say that I have done nothing to injure Graustark. I cannot tell you what it was that passed between Ravone and me, but I swear on my soul that I have not been disloyal to my oath. Won't you trust me? Won't you believe?" His breath was fanning her ear, his voice was eager. She could feel the intensity of his eyes.

"Oh, I don't—don't know what to say to you," she murmured. "I have been so wrought up with fear and disappointment. You'll admit that it was very suspicious, won't you?" she cried, almost pleadingly.

"Yes, yes," he answered. His hand touched her arm, perhaps unconsciously. She threw back her head to give him a look of rebuke. Their eyes met, and after a moment both were full of pleading. Her lips parted, but the words would not come. She was afterward more than thankful for this, because his eyes impelled her to give voice to amazing things that suddenly rushed to her head.

"I want to believe you," she whispered softly.

"You must—you do! I would give you my life. You have it now. It is in your keeping and with it my honor. Trust me, I beseech you. I have trusted you."

"I brought you here"— she began, defending him involuntarily. "But, Baldos, you forget that I am the princess!" She drew away in sudden shyness, her cheeks rosy once more, her eyes filling with the most distressingly unreasonable tears. He did not move for what seemed hours to her. She heard the sharp catch of his breath and felt the repression that was mastering some unwelcome emotion in him.

Lights were springing into existence in all parts of the park. Beverly saw the solitary window in the monastery far away, and her eyes fastened on it as if for sustenance in this crisis of her life—this moment of surprise, this moment when she felt him laying hands upon the heart she had not suspected of treason. Twilight was upon them; the sun had set, and night was rushing up to lend unfair advantage to the forces against which they were struggling. The orchestra in the castle was playing something soft and tender—oh, so far away!

"I forget that I am a slave, your highness," he said at last, and his voice thrilled her through and through. She turned quickly and to her utter dismay found his face and eyes still close to hers, glowing in the darkness.

"Those men over there," she whispered helplessly—"they are looking at you!"

"Now I thank God eternally," he cried softly. "You do not punish me; you do not rebuke me. God, there is no night!"

"You—you must not talk like that," she cried, pulling herself together suddenly. "I cannot permit it, Baldos. You forget who you are, sir."

"Ah, yes, your highness," he said before he stood erect. "I forget that I was a suspected traitor. Now I am guilty of leze majesty." Beverly felt herself grow hot with confusion.

"What am I to do with you?" she cried in perplexity, her heart beating shamefully. "You swear you are honest, and yet you won't tell me the truth. Now, don't stand like that! You are as straight as a ramrod, and I know your dignity is terribly offended. I may be foolish, but I do believe you intend no harm to Graustark. You cannot be a traitor."

"I will some day give my life to repay you for those words, your highness," he said. Her hand was resting on the side of the chair. Something warm touched it, and then it was lifted resistlessly. Hot, passionate lips burned themselves into the white fingers, and a glow went into every fiber of her body.

"Oh!" was all she could say. He gently released the hand and threw up his chin resolutely.

"I am almost ready to die," he said. She laughed for the first time since they entered the park.

"I don't know how to treat you," she said in a helpless flutter. "You know a princess has many trials in life."

"Not the least of which is womanhood."

"Baldos," she said after a long pause. Something very disagreeable had just rushed into her brain. "Have you been forgetting all this time that the Princess Yetive is the wife of Grenfall Lorry?"

"It has never left my mind for an instant. From the bottom of my heart I congratulate him. His wife is an angel as well as a princess."

"Well, in the code of morals, is it quite proper to be so loyal to another man's wife?" she asked, and then she trembled. He was supposed to know her as the wife of Grenfall Lorry, and yet he had boldly shown his love for her.

"It depends altogether on the other man's wife," he said, and she looked up quickly. It was too dark to see his face, but something told her to press the point no further. Deep down in her heart she was beginning to rejoice in the belief that he had found her out. If he still believed her to be the real princess, then he was—but the subject of conversation at least had to be changed.

"You say your message to Ravone was of a purely personal nature," she said.

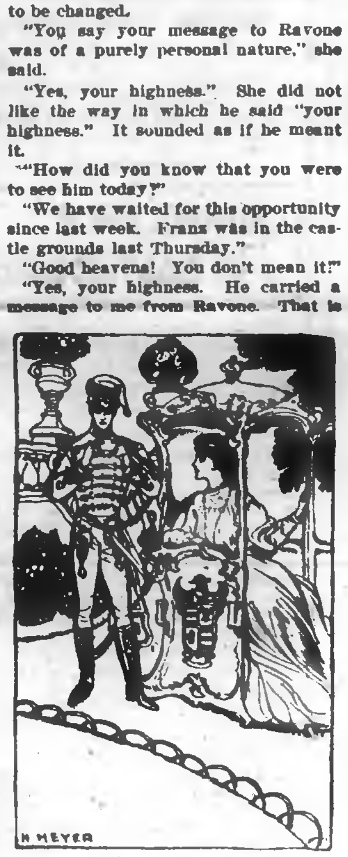
"Yes, your highness." She did not like the way in which he said "your highness." It sounded as if he meant it.

"How did you know that you were to see him today?"

"We have waited for this opportunity since last week. Franz was in the castle grounds last Thursday."

"Good heavens! You don't mean it!"

"Yes, your highness. He carried a message to me from Ravone. That is why Ravone and the others waited for me in the hills."



"Here is what Ravone says."

"You amaze me!"

"I have seen Franz often," he confessed easily. "He is an excellent messenger."

"So it would seem. We must keep a lookout for him. He is the go-between for you all, I see."

"Did you learn to say 'you all' in America?" he asked. Her heart gave a great leap. There was something so subtle in the query that she was vastly relieved.

"Never mind about that, sir. You won't tell me what you said in your note to Ravone."

"I cannot."

"Well, he gave you one in return. If you are perfectly sincere, Baldos, you will hand that note over to me. It shall go no further, I swear to you, if, as you vow, it does not jeopardize Graustark. Now, sir, prove your loyalty and your honesty."

He hesitated for a long time; then from an inner pocket he drew forth a bit of paper.

"I don't see why it has not been destroyed," he said regretfully. "What a neglectful fool I have been!"

"You might have said it had been destroyed," she said, happy because he had not said it.

"But that would have been a lie. Read it, your highness, and return it to me. It must be destroyed."

"It is too dark to read it here." Without a word he handed the paper to her and called the chair bearers, to whom he gave instructions that brought her speedily beneath one of the park lamps. She afterward recalled the guilty impulse which forced her to sit on the telltale note while the men were carrying her along in the driveway. When it was quite safe she slyly opened the missive. His hand closed over hers and the note, and he bent close once more.

"My only fear is that the test will make it impossible for me to [illegible] your hand again," said he in a strained voice. She looked up in surprise.

"Then it is really something disloyal?"

"I have called it a test, your highness," he responded enigmatically.

"Well, we'll see," she said and forthwith turned her eyes to the all important paper. A quick flash crossed her brow; her eyes blinked hopelessly. The note was written in the Graustark language!

"I'll read it later, Baldos. This is no place for me to be reading notes, don't you know; really, it isn't. I'll give it back to you tomorrow," she was in haste to say.

An inscrutable smile came over his face.

"Ravone's information is correct. I am now convinced," he said slowly. "Pray, your highness, glance over it now, that I may destroy it at once," he persisted.

"The light isn't good."

"It seems excellent."

"And I never saw such a miserable scrawl as this. He must have written it on horseback, and at full gallop."

"It is quite legible, your highness."

"I really cannot read the stuff. You know his handwriting. Read it to me. I'll trust you to read it carefully."

"This is embarrassing, your highness, but I obey, of course, if you command. Here is what Ravone says:

> "We have fresh proof that she is not the princess, but the American girl. Be exceedingly careful that she does not lead you into any admissions. The Americans are tricky. Have little to say to her and guard your tongue well. We are all well and are hoping for the best."

CHAPTER XVIII.

BEVERLY was speechless.

"Of course, your highness," said Baldos, deep apology in his voice, "Ravone is woefully misinformed. He is honest in his belief, and you should not misjudge his motives. How he could have been so blind as to confound you with that frisky American girl—but I beg your pardon. She is to be your guest. A thousand pardons, your highness."

She had been struck dumb by the wording of the note, but his apparently sincere apology for his friend set her every emotion into play once more. While he was speaking her wits were forming themselves for conflict. She opened the campaign with a bold attack. "You—you believe me to be the princess, sure enough, don't you?" But with all her bravery she was not able to look him in the face.

"How can you doubt it, your highness? Would I be serving you in the present capacity if I believed you to be any one else?"

"Ravone's warning has not shaken your faith in me?"

"It has strengthened it. Nothing could alter the facts in the case. I have not, since we left Ganlook, been in doubt as to the identity of my benefactress."

"It seems to me that you are beating around the bush. I'll come straight to the point. How long have you known that I am not the Princess of Graustark?"

"What!" he exclaimed, drawing back in well assumed horror. "Do you mean—are you jesting? I beg of you, do not jest. It is very serious with me." His alarm was so genuine that she was completely deceived.

"I am not jesting," she half whispered, turning very cold. "Have you thought all along that I am the princess; that I am Grenfall Lorry's wife?"

"You told me that you were the princess."

"But I've never said that I was—was any one's wife."

There was a piteous appeal in her voice, and he was not slow to notice it and rejoice. Then his heart smote him.

"But what is to become of me if you are not the princess?" he asked after a long pause. "I can no longer serve you. This is my last day in the castle guard."

"You are to go on serving me—I mean you are to retain your place in the service," she hastened to say. "I shall keep my promise to you." How small and humble she was beginning to feel! It did not seem so entertaining after all, this pretty deception of hers. Down in his heart, underneath the gallant exterior, what was his opinion of her? Something was stinging her eyes fiercely, and she closed them to keep back the tears of mortification.

"Miss Calhoun," he said, his manner changing swiftly, "I have felt from the first that you are not the Princess of Graustark. I knew it an hour after I entered Edelweiss. Franz gave me a note at Ganlook, but I did not read it until I was a member of the guard."

"You have known it so long?" she cried joyously. "And you have trusted me? You have not hated me for deceiving you?"

"I have never ceased to regard you as my sovereign," he said softly.

"But just a moment ago you spoke of me as a frisky American girl," she said resentfully.

"I have used that term but once, while I have said 'your highness' a thousand times. Knowing that you were Miss Calhoun, I could not have meant either."

"I fancy I have no right to criticise you," she humbly admitted. "After all, it does not surprise me that you were not deceived. Only an imbecile could have been fooled all these weeks. Every one said that you were no fool. It seems ridiculous that it should have gone to this length, doesn't it?"

"Not at all, your highness. I am not"—

"You have the habit, I see," she smiled.

"I have several months yet to serve as a member of the guard. Besides, I am under orders to regard you as the princess. General Marlanx has given me severe instructions in that respect."

"You are willing to play the game to the end?" she demanded, more gratified than she should have been.

"Assuredly, yes. It is the only safeguard I have. To alter my belief publicly would expose me to—to"—

"To what, Baldos?"

"To ridicule, for one thing, and to the generous mercies of Count Marlanx. Besides, it would deprive me of the privilege I mentioned a moment ago—the right to kiss your hand, to be your slave and to do homage to the only sovereign I can recognize. Surely, you will not subject me to exile from the only joys that life holds for me. You have sought to deceive me, and I have tried to deceive you. Each has found the other out, so we are quits. May we not now combine forces in the very laudable effort to deceive the world? If the world doesn't know that we know, why, the comedy may be long drawn out and the climax be made the more amusing."

"I'm afraid there was a touch of your old time sarcasm in that remark," she said. "Yes, I am willing to continue the comedy. It seems the safest way to protect you—especially from General Marlanx. No one must ever know, Baldos; it would be absolutely pitiful. I am glad, oh, so glad, that you have known all the time. It relieves my mind and my conscience tremendously."

"Yes," he said gently. "I have known all along that you were not Mr. Lorry's wife." He had divined her thoughts, and she flushed hotly. "You are still a princess, however. A poor goat hunter can only look upon the rich American girl as a sovereign whom he must worship from far below."

"Oh, I'm not so rich as all that!" she cried. "Besides, I think it is time for a general clearing up of mysteries. Are you Prince Dantan, Prince Frederic or that other one—Christobal somebody? Come, be fair with me."

"It seems that all Edelweiss look upon me as a prince in disguise. You found me in the hills"—

"No; you found me. I have not forgotten, sir."

"I was a vagabond and a fugitive. My friends are hunted as I am. We have no home. Why every one should suspect me of being a prince I cannot understand. Every roamer in the hills is not a prince. There is a price upon my head, and there is a reward for the capture of every man who was with me in the pass. My name is Paul Baldos, Miss Calhoun. There is no mystery in that. If you were to mention it in a certain city, you would quickly find that the name of Baldos is not unknown to the people who are searching for him. No, your highness; I regret exceedingly that I must destroy the absurd impression that I am of royal blood. Perhaps I am spoiling a pretty romance, but it cannot be helped. I was Baldos the goat hunter; I am now Baldos the guard. Do you think that I would be serving as a Graustark guard if I were any one of the men you mention?"

Beverly listened in wonder and some disappointment, it must be confessed. Somehow a spark of hope was being forever extinguished by this straightforward denial. He was not to be the prince she had seen in dreams. "You are not like any one else," she said. "That is why we thought of you as—as—as"—

"As one of those unhappy creatures they call princes? Thank fortune, your highness, I am not yet reduced to such straits. My exile will come only when you send me away."

They were silent for a long time. Neither was thinking of the hour or the fact that her absence in the castle could not be unnoticed. Night had fallen heavily upon the earth. The two faithful chair bearers, respectful, but with wonder in their souls, stood afar off and waited. Baldos and Beverly were alone in their own little world.

"I think I liked you better when you wore the red feather and that horrid patch of black," she said musingly.

"And was a free hearted vagabond," he added, something imploring in his voice.

"An independent courtier, if you please, sir," she said severely.

"Do you want me to go back to the hills? I have the patch and the feather, and my friends are"—

"No! Don't suggest such a thing—yet." She began the protest eagerly and ended it in confusion.

"Alas, you mean that some day banishment is not unlikely?"

"You don't expect to be a guard all your life, do you?"

"Not to serve the Princess of Graustark, I confess. My aim is much higher. If God lets me choose the crown I would serve I would enlist for life. The crown I would serve is wrought of love, the throne I would kneel before is a heart, the scepter I would follow is in the slender hand of a woman. I could live and die in the service of my own choosing, but I am only the humble goat hunter, whose hopes are phantoms, whose ideals are conceived in impotence."

"That was beautiful," murmured Beverly, looking up, fascinated for the moment.

"Oh, that I had the courage to enlist," he cried, bending low once more. She felt the danger in his voice, half tremulous with something more than loyalty, and drew her hand away from a place of instant jeopardy. It was fire that she was playing with, she realized with a start of consciousness. Sweet as the spell had grown to be she saw that it must be shattered.

"It is getting frightfully late," she sharply exclaimed. "They'll wonder where I've gone to. Why, it's actually dark!"

"It has been dark for half an hour, your highness," said he, drawing himself up with sudden rigidness that distressed her. "Are you going to return to the castle?"

"Yes. They'll have out a searching party pretty soon if I don't appear."

"You have been good to me today," he said thoughtfully. "I shall try to merit the kindness. Let me"—

"Oh, please don't talk in that humble way! It's ridiculous! I'd rather have you absolutely impertinent, I declare upon my honor I would. Don't you remember how you talked when you wore the red feather? Well, I liked it."

Baldos laughed easily, happily. His heart was not very humble, though his voice and manner were.

"Red is the color of insolence, you mean."

"It's a good deal jauntier than blue," she declared.

"Before you call the bearers, Miss—your highness, I wish to retract something I said awhile ago," he said very seriously.

"I should think you would," she responded, utterly misinterpreting his intent.

"You asked me to tell you what my message to Ravone contained and I refused. Subsequently the extent of his message to me led us into a most thorough understanding. It is only just and right that you should know what I said to him."

"I trust you, Baldos," she protested simply.

"That is why I tell this to you. Yesterday, your highness, the castle guard received their month's pay. You may not know how well we are paid, so I will say that it is 10 gavvos to each. The envelope which I gave to Ravone contained my wages for the past six weeks. They need it far more than I do. There was also a short note of good cheer to those poor comrades of mine and the assurance that one day our luck may change and starvation be succeeded by plenty. And, still more, I told him that I knew you to be Miss Calhoun and that you were my angel of inspiration. That was all, your highness."

"Thank you, Baldos, for telling me," she said softly. "You have made me ashamed of myself."

"On the contrary, I fear that I have been indulging in mock heroics. Truth and egotism, like a salad, require a certain amount of dressing."

"Since you are Baldos and not a fairy prince I think you may instruct the men to carry me back, being without the magic tapestry which could transplant me in a whiff. Goodness, who's that?"

Within ten feet of the sedan chair and directly behind the tall guard stood a small group of people. He and Beverly, engrossed in each other, had not heard their approach. How long they had been silent spectators of the little scene only the intruders knew. The startled, abashed eyes of the girl in the chair were not long in distinguishing the newcomers. A pace in front of the others stood the gaunt, shadowy form of Count Marlanx.

Behind him were the Princess Yetive, the old prime minister and Baron Dangloss.

CHAPTER XIX.

"WHY, good evening. Is that you?" struggled somewhat hysterically through Beverly's lips. Not since the dear old days of the stolen jam and sugar bits had she known the feelings of a culprit caught red handed. The light from the park lamps revealed a merry, accusing smile on the face of Yetive, but the faces of the men were serious. Marlanx was the picture of suppressed fury.

"It is the relief expedition, your highness," said Yetive warmly. "We thought you were lost in the wilds of the jungle."

"She is much better protected than we could have imagined," said the Iron Count, malevolently mild and polite.

"Can't I venture into the park without being sent for?" asked Beverly, ready to fly into the proper rage. The pink had left her cheeks white. "I am proud to observe, however, that the relief expedition is composed of the most distinguished people in all Graustark. Is there any significance to be attached to the circumstance?"

"Can't we also go strolling in the park, my dear?" plaintively asked Yetive.

"It depends upon where we stroll, I fancy," suggested Marlanx derisively. Beverly flashed a fierce look at the head of the army. "By the way, Baron Dangloss, where is the incomparable Haddan?"

Baldos shot a startled glance at the two men and in an instant comprehension came to him. He knew the secret of Haddan's constant companionship. An expression of bitter scorn settled upon his mouth. Dangloss mumbled a reply, at which the Iron Count laughed sarcastically.

"I am returning to the castle," said Beverly coldly. "Pray don't let me interfere with your stroll. Or is it possible that you think it necessary to deliver me safely to my nurse now that you have found me?"

"Don't be angry, dear," whispered Yetive, coming close to her side. "I will tell you all about it later on. It was all due to Count Marlanx."

"It was all done to humiliate me," replied Beverly, indignation surpassing confusion at last. "I hate all of you."

"Oh, Beverly!" whispered the princess in distress.

Her Inventive Mind Turns to the Jumper Question

WHAT woman has not suffered pangs of remorse at discarding blouses—silk, linen and even soft wool—perfectly good, with the exception of worn spots too conspicuous for darning or patching? Now comes a use for these half-worn waists, and the scrap bag need no longer bulge with unused materials. Indeed, no gown is considered complete this summer without a jumper—that useful and attractive accessory which had its origin in the suspender idea.

The girl who wishes to feel and appear "dressed up" on all occasions need only add a jumper to her last year's costume, or to the new one, no matter how simple it may be, and straightway the miracle is wrought.

One of our practical girls, who has a genius for dressing on "nothing a year," and who always presents a stylish appearance, designed the jumpers shown on this page. Each one is so simple that it may be easily copied by the home dressmaker, whose only guide need be an ordinary shirtwaist pattern in order to insure accurate shoulder lines.

EASY TO EXPERIMENT

If you have any doubt as to the practicability of this suggestion, invest a few cents in some paper muslin and experiment to your own satisfaction. Any one who is ordinarily handy with the needle will succeed in turning out some attractive "transformations," for that is just what these jumper waists really are.

Have you been trying to think of a use for the old plaid silk waist, much worn under the arms, but otherwise perfectly good, which you discarded because it opened in front, and, worse still, had long, tight sleeves? Well, now is your opportunity. Cut out the sleeves and also the worn portions under the arms, simulating a V to the waist line, facing the edges with silk from the sleeves. The front should be then sewed up and the neck cut down low in the back and front. Match whatever color of silk predominates in the plaid—three-quarters of a yard on the bias will suffice—and bind the neck, also making large, hanging bands on the shoulders. These bands or loops should be two inches wide, and are only attached to the jumper at the shoulder. Little ties of accordion pleated white mull (one-fourth of a yard is sufficient) and buttons of silk soutache braid, which may be purchased for 4 cents a yard, complete this attractive jumper.

USES FOR ODDS AND ENDS

Another use for an old silk waist is to tuck it in squares. This jumper is then banded with one-inch matching satin ribbon, stitched. Small designs in soutache braiding adorn the front and overhanging shoulder tabs. Two bands of the ribbon pass under the arm connecting the front and the back. A girdle of silk, the same shade as the banding, should be worn. If an old waist is not among your possessions, one yard of taffeta will be required for this jumper.

A shaped cape jumper is a stylish arrangement, which may be made of black or any colored taffeta, rajah or foulard to match skirt. The shaped capes are each bound with three-quarter-inch velvet ribbon, and fastened to a stitched girdle, under velvet buttons. The opening is at the front of the girdle. Buttons are also on the shoulders.

A 10-cent lawn dress in a pinkish shade of violet will make the daintiest frock imaginable, and should include a jumper made in solid tucks and finished with stitched lawn bands. Buttons of white linen, with simulated buttonholes of white soutache braid, and a small jabot of lace at the front make an attractive finish to an inexpensive but charming frock.

Odds and ends of silk or a discarded waist will make a unique tucked jumper, strapped and banded in an odd design. Old-style silk remnants, too, flowered, striped, checked or plaided, may be picked up on "bargain days" for a trifle, and they will develop into quaint jumpers to wear with odd skirts. The black and white checks so popular now tuck beautifully, as do also the stripes; and an extra yard will make such a jumper as the one pictured, to be worn with a soft lingerie waist. Bind the sections with three-fourth-inch ribbon, in black or a predominating color. Straps of the ribbon join the sections. Two sizes of buttons, in black or color to match, are used for trimming. Open at the back under straps.

One always needs a jacket for cool summer days, for yachting, mountain and seashore wear, and an extra half yard of serge mohair or voile will make a charming little jacket jumper to include in the summer wardrobe. It is a graceful modification of the kimono sleeve idea, and the hanging fronts and shoulder capes are in one piece, which does not meet under the arm. It is attached to the stitched girdle, back and front, the girdle closing at one side. For a finish, bind the garment on all edges with flat matching ribbon or bias silk. The neck is finished with a silk-covered cord, and two little overhanging tabs of black satin with gilt buttons. The large buttons are of black satin crossed with gold thread.

If you have an odd skirt and no extra material to make a jumper, why not purchase one yard of light blue silk and make a cape arrangement such as is pictured? Tuck the front bands crosswise, and the ruffles over the shoulders halfway; edge with matching soutache braid. Finish the front tabs with blue silk tassels. When worn over an allover lace or a lingerie waist this garment is quaint and attractive.

An old white linen or lawn gown can be made to look quite modern and stylish by adding a jumper made of allover embroidery. This garment should be cut out in a low square front and back, and edged with bands of insertion and a ruffle of narrow embroidery. It is also slashed in an inverted V at the bottom, both front and back, edged with insertion and a ruffle of narrow embroidery. Wider embroidery is used for the oversleeves. This jumper could also be made of lawn embroidered in shadow work or Wallachian. This season shows lawns with imitation shadow work designs—all-white, black-and-white, pink and pale blue—the effect of which is dainty and attractive.

A Dresden ribbon or figured ribbon jumper will be a useful accessory for a "dress-up" arrangement, and it may be made at a small cost. The most beautiful and expensive ribbons show a narrow edge of black satin. This may be simulated by purchasing four yards of five-inch flowered ribbon, such as is shown at daily sales, for about 25 cents a yard, and eight yards of quarter-inch black satin ribbon at 6 cents a yard, stitching the narrow black band on wide ribbon. Arrange three loops over each shoulder in cap effect, using four black satin covered buttons to finish the front. Make a crush-pointed girdle of the same, lining with silk and boning well in the front and back. The girdle should open at the back under the large buttons, below which are ribbon tabs to correspond with the shoulder caps.

Last, but not least, here is a jumper which will cost but 20 cents. It is made from four large handkerchiefs (men's), which cost 5 cents apiece. The one selected had a blue-and-white polka dot border, which was particularly pleasing. The first two form the front and back. The neck is cut out and finished with bordering from the third handkerchief, which also furnishes the point below square in front. The fourth handkerchief is cut in five-inch pieces to form shoulder capes. The latter are narrower at the back. Pleat the fulness at the waist line and wear under the belt at back. Pin to the waist line in front.

Various Time and Money Saving Hints

To Finish the Arm's Eye

THE finishing of the arm's eye is a matter which should be adjusted somewhat in accordance with the material. For thin wash goods, a French seam is all that is necessary. In cases where a French seam is not possible or desirable, a binding of sheerest lawn will serve the purpose. Some merely overcast wash material, but if this method is used, the overcasting should be very close or it will not only look unneat, but, if starched, will form a sort of saw-edge which will rasp the skin and irritate the temper. One of the best methods is to buttonhole the arm's eye with deep, rather close stitches. This is very neat and desirable, and is thinner than any other way. A French seam is, of course, four thicknesses—a buttonhole is practically but two.

With thicker material, unwashable goods, the thin silk binding ribbon which comes for this purpose (as well as for many others) is most desirable and makes a neat finish.

False Economy

IT is no real waste of money to equip one's workroom with the hundred and one conveniences which are such actual time savers. There is no economy in cutting out with half-size scissors, for instance, when a pair of excellent shears can be bought for 50 cents or less, and which will take half the time in the using. There is no economy in using ordinary scissors for cutting buttonholes and running all sorts of risks of ruining the garment by cutting too far or cutting crooked, when a pair of buttonhole scissors will do the work unerringly. A dozen such instances may be cited.

Among the things which each work basket should contain is a marking wheel, and it is a matter of surprise that so few women use or even possess one, as they cost so little and are such a saving of time.

It is quite possible, however, to cut off from a garment already finished an excellent pattern with the aid of a stout pin. The garment is laid over one's paper one piece at a time, regardless of any of the rest of the pieces, and smoothly pinned fast. With the stout pin an outline is then pricked clear through garment and paper. When separated and the paper is held to the light no difficulty is experienced in following the pricked outline and the pattern can then be cut out.

When White Skirts Fray Out

SOMETIMES a frayed white skirt is a problem. It is too good to throw away, perhaps, and not good enough to wear. There are, however, three excellent methods of solving this problem.

The simplest is to cut off the frayed edge all around, turn in a seam and stitch around the bottom. This will be the work of a few moments, comparatively. Only shrunk cotton should be used.

If this cutting off and turning in will make the skirt shorter than desirable, the next step will be to put on a lace edge. The lace need only be one of those excellent cotton imitations, but it should be of the firm variety and less than a two-inch width will not be pretty. Or, if lace is not desired on the edge, inserting may be put in just above the hem. If the latter is used, it should be shrunk first, and should be sewed in with shrunk cotton.

If the skirt is more than ordinarily frayed and should need cutting off pretty well up, say three or four inches, a tucked piece with a hem may be added at the bottom, a tuck being taken in the skirt itself to hide the place where the joining comes. This added tucked piece would best be of half worn muslin sewed with shrunk cotton. It should at least be well shrunk before being used.

For Velvet Trimming

"SHALL I buy bias or straight velvet for my collars and cuffs?" asked one purchaser of another.

"Madam," said the salesman politely, "if you will permit me to advise, bias by all means." And then he gave his reasons, which were all good.

"See!" said he, folding the goods first on the straight and then on the bias. "If you bend the straight it is bound to break and wear in time. The very weave makes that a certainty. But if folded on the bias you go across, and there is no direct break. Another reason," he continued, giving the velvet a dexterous twist to illustrate, "you can pull your cuffs and your collars perfectly smooth. It gives a little here, and if it is a little looser there it draws together and does not show. This makes it possible to fit the cuff perfectly smooth around the hand and the collar perfectly smooth around the back of the neck. Were the material straight, all along the edge, where the bend came would be a succession of little wrinkles."

Just so we humor bias velvet bands on a skirt—the top a little closer, the bottom edge a little stretched, and then all is smooth, and one goes around the curves swimmingly.

What is true of velvet is true of all other materials. They all wear better when folded on the bias.

When Children First Walk

TOO many parents make the mistake of encouraging their children to walk before the little legs are ready to bear the youngster's weight. Backward babies are the exception, and even where they may seem so, it is probable that nature knows best, and that the child will be eager to walk as soon as it is a physical possibility. Nearly all bowleggedness is caused by this over anxiety of parents, and even graver harm may be done to the soft bones and tender muscles.

Once the baby does begin to walk, provide a contrivance of some sort to aid him in his new-found accomplishment. The so-called "baby tenders" are excellent, and serve well during the transition from the creeping to the walking stage.

See, too, that the baby's shoes are of a sort to endure good use. The paper-soled bootees of his earlier days must now be discarded, and tiny leather shoes procured instead. If he has the slightest tendency to weak ankles, buy the specially stiffened shoes made to remedy this, and in this case keep him from walking as far as possible until they become stronger.

Let him walk indoors entirely at first; postpone his first outdoor journey until some warm, pleasant spring or summer day. And let it be a very long time, indeed, before you let him navigate the stairs by himself; the slightest misstep might cause a serious fall.

Shall the Maid Have a Key?

IT IS a grave question whether the one maid employed by most American "middle-class" families should be put quite on a par with her employers by the possession of free ingress to the house. Where the "girl" of today has just superseded her of yesterday, and will in turn soon be succeeded by her of tomorrow, the answer should be a decisive negative.

No woman enjoys the idea of her house being entered at any hour of the night—or early morning—by a servant who may even bring with her the companions with whom she has spent her evening, nor when the cook has "lost" her key, does she relish the thought of the person into whose hands it may have fallen.

On the other hand, it becomes a tedious ordeal indeed to wait up night after night to let the wanderer in. In rural communities the key under the doormat may solve the problem, but in large cities this is hardly practicable. One woman has an understanding with her maid that if the latter return home later than half-past 10 o'clock she need not expect to enter again until morning.

This is all very well if the girl has a home nearby, but such a rule may prove the height of cruelty. Here, as everywhere, circumstances alter cases and the matter is perhaps one for every mistress and every maid. The decision of the question will rest with the character of both.

The Decay of Fine Old Houses

IT IS heartrending to revisit those old mansions which every city contains, once the abode of the elite of the town, but now consigned to cheap lodgings or tenements. The rosewood floors and woodwork, the black walnut staircases, all defaced and ruined by ill treatment; the quaint, old-fashioned windows with panes broken and replaced by an inferior quality of glass, or not replaced at all; the reception room occupied by a green grocer, a cobbler in the basement, a Turkish bath establishment upstairs, and every room beside crowded with lodgers of the variety who live four families to a room and rent out the middle—all this is indescribably painful.

Far better would it be to raze these old houses to the ground when the neighborhood deteriorates and their owners move away or die out. In this way articles of real value would at least be saved from the Goths and Vandals, and much more suitable buildings would take the place of these stately dwelling places of bygone days.

Furthermore, there are everywhere houses of real historical interest which the authorities allow to meet such a fate. There should be some such movement in this country as there is in England, where a society has been organized to look up the "credentials" of and care for just such old houses of local or national interest. It is time that justice should be done them!

STORY of RICHARD WAGNER'S MYSTIC FESTIVAL PLAY

WITH SCENES of MARTIN & EMERY'S PRODUCTION PARSIFAL

ADAPTED BY WILLIAM LYNCH ROBERTS

The First Lift of the Curtain

is on darkness made reverently impressive by the distant call of the watch guards summon to the camp warders. With the summon the rising god of day mounts the pathway of the sky and bids the weary Knights make haste to reach the Grail Castle's keep, lest lingering in the "foul domain of rankest pagan land." the narcotic seduction of insidious delights swerve them from their holy office and its purpose.

The good King Titurel, last of the Cappadocians, is dead. Amfortas, his son and Prince of the Holy Grail, reigns in his stead, but Amfortas, weak in that in which he should have been strong, falls victim to his own wild desire and the blandishment of Kundry's alluring seductiveness, and through his wounded conscience loses the mighty talisman, the Holy Spear. Klingschor's hand of evil thus gaining control of the mighty weapon, looks only to the satiation of his own devilish ambition to win the Holy Cup and with it the soul of the foresworn knightly warder, Amfortas. The smiling face of Sin, flitting before him on that pleasant path of dalliance, ever reminds him of his own downfall and impotence And from his egoism of suffering is born the Sorrow.

AT THE CURTAIN'S SECOND RISE, the blessed beauty of the world's fair morning time gives one kindly greeting. A forest glade, with the shadows sinking backwards to its depths before the radiance of the dawn; a sheltered mountain lake waking from its quiet sleep and smiling at the bright face of morning; a forester, with his attendants on their knees, with hearts uplifted to the giver of good. It is the dear old earth, just as we long ago dreamed it was, robed with beauty, bathed with romance, atmosphered with reverence, a paradise where it was natural for men and God to meet. Very swiftly the clouds that darkened this mortal life began to lower. Whirled as upon a gust of evil energy, the agent through whose instrumentality the master of ill achieves his schemes of ruin, sweeps into view, the pitiful and appealing figure of Kundry. As she flings herself, hopeless and helpless upon the ground, a sad procession winds its way through the forest. A band of knights bear their king upon a litter to the lakeside. A wound that laughs at the resources of royalty burns away his life, and he writhes in an agony that never sleeps. As this melancholy train disappears, a swan, its snowy plumage dabbled with blood, and its graceful form distorted with the death agony, flutters to the ground. The glory of the Summer dawn has quickly grown cold. Discords are flashing through the harmonies of things Against a background of rare natural beauty are already projected the blight of sin. Then the Deliverer appears. A mere youth, utterly untutored in the actualties of life. A company of passing knights at once set ringing in his childish heart a note which has never ceased to vibrate. Some day he hopes to be a knightly man, armored for all chivalrous adventure For such a service far beyond every dream, his schooling now begins.

A storm of reproaches is showered upon him for having inflicted pain and death upon a helpless creature. Pity, for the first time, steals into his heart.

TEMPLE of THE HOLY GRAIL

THE REDEMPTION.

AMFORTAS

THE TEMPTATION

KLINGSOR

KNIGHTS OF THE HOLY GRAIL.

What a world this is into which he has come to play his part! Death and pain hovering over the animal creation; anguish and wretchedness brooding upon men! The sweet call of holy bells knolls through the air. The guardians of the Grail gather in reverent assembly. The wounded king utters a piteous lament. The life-giving chalice is unveiled and exalted, but the sacramental virtue seems to have strangely waned. The youth stands enthralled by the marvelous spectacle Its meaning he cannot fathom. His relation to it he does not discern. Some dim desire of doing something to relieve this incurable distress is now rising into his conciousness.

"Fare forth, thou Guileless One! Thou shalt yet add to the simplicity of the dove, the wisdom of the serpent. Thou art innocent because ignorant; and the Holy Spear, lost in Sin, shall be re-won in Purity and Sacrifice; and thou shalt become to the stricken King and Deliverer for whom he waits."

The curtain rose upon a world apparelled in beauty. It falls upon a world marred and tear-stained. But as its folds descend, in accents like an angel's voice, a promise floats through the air and fills the heart with a glow of hope.

The Deliverer has beheld the Sorrow!

THE THIRD LIFT OF THE CURTAIN reveals the gloomy recesses of that labratory of iniquity, where with devilish alchemy, those energies are brewed which bring destruction. In the shadows of the chamber are discerned the Master of Evil and his sad slave Kundry. Commanded to ply her arts for the ensnaring of the Deliverer she recoils in vain. Her pitiful shrieks for one who will strike off her chains, fall upon deaf ears. By an accursed sorcery, which she is helpless to gainsay, she is hounded to her loathed task. The hero is at hand.

Stung with a determination to win from the foul magician the sacred Spear, the holy talisman of life, and to heal the tortured king, he advances with bared sword into the gloomy haunts of darkness and challenges their defenders. With heroic prowess, he quickly smites the armed sentries who would bar his progress. Then the real struggle begins. Behind the grim fortress walls he discovers a vision of the most alluring beauty. A garden of ravishing delights spreads its enticements before him. This is the arena of mortal conflict. The rich hues of rare flowers, the soft perfumes, the alluring music, the bewitching lovliness of a bevy of laughing girls, afford no outward suggestion of the deadly struggle which is at hand. The champion of the stricken King, seeking the talisman by which alone his task can be achieved, is beckoned within these inviting precincts. The cheer of the place is grateful. The simple sports and melodious voices of the maidens are congenial But their utmost arts cannot swerve him from his knightly quest, and with shrieks of laughter which echo that curdling peal with which Mephisto salutes the rush of Faust to the window of Marguerite, they disperse among the flowers. Like the voice of a herald, giving signal to lay lance in rest, Kundry is heard calling "Parsifal." Instantly sense and spirit grapple. With leonine power the man resists panther-like cunning and serpent-like fascination.

No false note of vulgarity is struck in this marvelous scene. Coarse temptation could find no response in so untainted a soul. Grossness is sedulously masked. Appeal is insiduously made to the purest emotions and the highest motives The solace of sympathetic companionship in life's loneliness, and the stimulus of comradeship in its noble quest, are pictured with magic art and melting persuasiveness. Deftly the tempter's kiss. That kiss burns like a whiff of pit-fire. It kindles a storm of baleful emotion. It illumines the crisis with a lurid glare. The pull of the whirlpool that is coiling about him, the depth and the darkness of the gulf that is yawning before him, leap into consciousness. The sudden realization of personal contact with passion the horror that has blasted the earth, wakens an anguished pang of the very agony which racks the hurt King Through the rising mist which is fast beclouding his faculties, gleam recollections of his unstained boyhood, memories of his sweet mother's love, and the vision of Another, who suffered being tempted.

The struggle comes to closer grips. Like an electrometer in a storm, the whole being of the hero begins to quiver Every passion is aflame. Volcanic emotion begins to play through his veins. Will he, too, be dragged, a pitiful slave, to those fatal caverns where Tannhauser made havoc of his knighthood? The growing intensity of this trial of strength, of which the panting breath, the strained speech, the swollen and corded muscles, the beaded sweat, are the only visible index, is indescribable. The suspense holds one breathless. The weaving of subtle coils goes steadily on; the stratagems of fiendish loveliness are remorselessly plied; deft snares are adroitly set. There is pleading, appealing, insisting, yearning in word, in look, in gesture.

A mighty spasm of heroic self-mastery and victory is superbly won. In the twinkling of an eye the glamor vanishes from evil like the irridescence of a burst bubble. The Temptress falls to the ground, spent and withered. The fair garden is transformed into a barren desert. Rocks and brambles replace the shrubs and flowers The Master of Evil himself appears, and lunges the stolen Spear full at the hero's heart It floats in the air above his head and, grasping it in his eager hand, he becomes the possessor of the shaft which pierced the breast of that glorious Redeemer, in whose footsteps he aspires to walk. Trampling beneath his feet the shattered and hideous relics of sin, the helper of men passes on to his sublime task.

The Deliverer has tasted the suffering.

RHYTHMS OF PAIN, of wistful yearning, and of heart-sickness precede the final lifting of the curtain.

At length the years have wrought out their stern and refining discipline. On a fair Good Friday morning, the Deliverer toils up the castled heights, where the King lies in his agony, companioned by despair. All now are waiting. The attendants wait Kundry, the Enchantress, her foul fetters broken, waits. The King, calling upon death as the only comforter, waits.

For many a day the Grail has remained uncovered. The once unsleeping enthusiasm of the knights has wasted away. The chief of them makes his home in a retired cottage and wears out the years in humblest toils. The once "terribly beautiful" Temptress appears in the guise of an humble penitent.

It is Good Friday, the anniversary of the world's redemption day, and all nature seems to glow with the serene light of innocence, and to be pulsing with a new thrill of hope. Through the bright summer land a mysterious knight, cased in somber armor, draws near. The mystic Spear, the talisman of life, reveals him as Parsifal the long-looked-for Deliverer. The oil of consecration annoints his brow as the Grail King First of gracious acts, he bestows absolution upon the heart-broken penitent. Peace, heaven's holy guest, at last finds lodgment in that lonely, stained, storm-shaken soul, and she sinks to the ground, overwhelmed with a thankfulness that can only utter itself in sobs of joy. The vanished glory begins to steal back into the pain haunted earth. A holy light is brooding over the meadows. The flowers are taking on a freshened loveliness Tree and rock seem waiting to break forth into song For, on this great pardon day, so says the Grail Knight, Nature smiles instead of sorrowing, for the tears of the repentant sinners have besprinkled all her fields with holy dew, and all being is filled with rejoicing.

The Deliverer enters. With a touch of the Spear the hurt of the tortured king is healed. In his hands the crystal Grail glows with light and radiates vigor. The night is gone. The shadows lift. The goal of ages is reached. The dove that brooded over chaos in creation's morning descends. Beneath its white wings a new earth unfolds, from which tears, and stains, and gloom have passed away; and where abide the light of peace, the voice of melody, and the smile of God. And there shall be no more sorrow nor crying. Neither shall there be any more pain. The former things have passed away. The Deliverer has healed the woe of the world.

NINE MORE WORKMEN MEET DEATH BUILDING THE G.T.P.

Terrible Dynamite Explosion at Armagh, Quebec—Three Others Severely Injured—Awful Tragedy on Transcontinental Railway Construction.

Quebec, April 20.—By the premature explosion of a dynamite mine in a rock cut on the Transcontinental Railway, at Armagh, in the County of Bellechasse, about 25 miles below Quebec, on the south shore, Saturday afternoon, nine men were instantly killed and three badly injured.

Armagh lies back some 20 miles from St. Valier station, on the Intercolonial Railway, and only meagre details of the catastrophe have so far been received.

The names of the killed are: Angus Campbell of Iron Mines, N.S.; A. Pinkstone, a native of England; A. Bernard, of France; Adelard Morrisette, Wilfrid Noel, Edouard Langlois, Onesime Gagnon, Emile Charette, all natives of Armagh, and Joseph Roy of St. Philemon, County of Bellechasse.

Many of the bodies of the unfortunate men were badly mutilated some of their limbs being torn off.

A coroner's inquest will be held today.

A Montreal correspondent telegraphs: News of the accident reached Quebec late on Saturday afternoon from St. Valier, but particulars were hard to obtain. Of the six French-Canadians who met death in the explosion one, Emile Charette, was married. A widow and large family survive him. Campbell was foreman of the party. His remains will be sent to New Brunswick. Of the three injured two are not seriously and one has a broken leg. Details as to the cause of the disaster are but meagre, but it is supposed to have been due to a premature blast. A gloom has been cast over the community by the terrible occurrence, which is one of the worst in the history of the county. The scene of the explosion was at the railway construction camp at Messrs. Murdock Bros. at St. Cagetan D'Armagh, Bellechasse county.

TWO BANKS ARE MADE VICTIMS

an Arrested at Sarnia Got $830 by a Check Game.

Sarnia, Ont., April 20.—A man who ave his name as James B. Young, s being held by the police of Sarnia or passing worthless checks on the Bank of Commerce and the Bank of Toronto here.

Last Tuesday Young deposited $50 n the Bank of Commerce. Later he eposited a check for $400 on a bank n Springfield, Mass. On Thursday fternoon he appears with a check for $380, which appears to be certified to y the same Springfield bank. The $380 check was paid, but later, beoming suspicious, the bank telegraphed to Springfield, and found that oth checks were bogus, and the cerification was forged. Last night it eveloped that the Bank of Toronto had been swindled by precisely the ame operation to the amount of [illegible]50, the losses of the two banks agregating $830.

Boys Committed Murder.

Gunnison, Colo., April 20.—Fred Collings, aged 17, and Edward Carver, ged 13, were convicted of the murder of Louis Bruno, near Crested Butte. Collings' conviction is for first degree murder and a life sentence was ecommended. Carver is found guilty of second degree murder. In his case he jury recommended clemency.

The evidence showed that the lads ad fired on Bruno from ambush and hen he ran had followed, shooting im down as he begged for mercy. They robbed him of $57. The defence laimed that Collings is mentally unbalanced and that Carver did no hooting.

Wrecked on 90-Foot Embankment.

Perry, N.Y., April 20.—A light engine running at full speed in a heavy g met the Perry accommodation on he Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg n a head-on collision at Rockglen, ight miles from here Saturday night. Michael Sallon of Perry, fireman on he passenger engine, was crushed and scalded, and may die. He was ushed to Rochester on a relief train. The light engine was trying to make a siding not more than 50 rods from he scene of the wreck. The wreck occurred on a ledge overlooking a 90-oot embankment.

Three Fatalities at Montreal.

Montreal, April 20.—Three fatalities were reported yesterday.

Frank MacKinnon, an Australian, who arrived at the St. James Hotel he other day, was found dead in his oom yesterday morning, everything ndicating a case of suicide by poioning.

Alphonz Champagne was run over nd killed by a street car in the Onario subway.

Mark Cassidy fell into the canal nd was drowned.

Little Girl Badly Burned.

Blenheim, April 20.—Almost a fatal ccident occurred here when Ruby, he 11-year-old daughter of William Marshall, while playing with some ther girls, found several candle-like ffairs for curling mustaches. She lit ne, and after it had almost burned way she threw it on the ground. It et fire to a piece of woolen material here and the girl, not noticing the laze, stooped down for it with the reult that it set fire to her garments.

She ran towards the nearest house, where Peter Earley rolled her in sand nd pulled her clothes off. She was adly burned over a large area of her ody, from hips to head, and most of er hair being burned off and doubts re entertained for her recovery. Earey was also severely burned about he hands and arms, but his condiion is not as serious as the girl's.

Strike at Cumberland.

Cumberland, Md., April 20.—Because of the discharge of two conductors and the refusal of the company o reinstate them, the entire force of motormen and conductors of the Cumberland Electric Railroad went on a strike Saturday, and the system is completely tied up.

The action of the men was unexpected. During the night the feed wires in the narrows were cut and switches were locked and spiked. The Cumberland and Western Port, the interurban system which penetrates the mining region, is affected by the strike.

THE BURGLARS FIRED SHOTS

Man Disturbs Marauders and Volley of Bullets is the Result.

London, April 20.—For several weeks a gang of bold burglars have infested western Ontario. Banks, postoffices and railway stations have been their especial prey, but they have also entered stores and dwellings. They are armed, and do not hesitate to use their weapons.

They have succeeded in terrorizing the southwestern part of the province and seemingly are showing their sneering contempt at the apparently half-hearted and certainly ineffectual efforts of the Attorney-General's Department sleuth to hit their trail.

Three days ago they used explosives on the safe in the Leamington postoffice, but were scared away.

During Friday night two men, supposedly of the same gang, infested the little Village of Wheatley, in Kent County, attempting two burglaries and shooting at James Reynolds.

Two places were entered. The first to be broken into was the hardware store of Richard Dobbin, and five revolvers were stolen. About one o'clock Reynolds heard a noise in his bakeshop below his dwelling, and arising he went to the head of the stairs and asked who was there. Two men, one a short, thick-set fellow, and the other tall, ran to the foot of the stairs, and the tall man fired five shots in succession at him, all of which buried themselves in the wall, but did not hit him. Frightened evidently by their own temerity, the pair took to their heels, the tall man jumping through a plate glass window in the front of the shop, and his companion escaped through the back door. The alarm was raised and the village aroused, with the result that a chase was given, but no trace of the men could be picked up.

Unknown Killed by a Train.

London, April 20.—About 2 o'clock Saturday morning an unknown man was struck by an eastbound freight train on the Grand Trunk, near Cove Bridge, and died a few minutes after being brought to the city. The unfortunate man was walking on the north track when the accident occurred. His description: Dark hair and mustache of the same color, dark skinned, thought to be an Italian, sharp pointed features, weighing about 150 pounds, and about 5 feet 8 inches tall. He was shabbily dressed and his clothes did not indicate that he had done any work in them for some time past.

No Jews For Russian Army.

St. Petersburg, April 20.—The next debate in the Douma will be in regard to the annual contingent of recruits for the army. The Extreme Right will propose that Jews shall be exempt from military service.

The idea of the Rightists is that this will keep out of the army what they regard as a pernicious revolutionary element.

Neck Broken by Fall.

Seaforth, April 20.—While driving towards his home, two and a half miles east of Leadbury, William Dennis was thrown off the wagon and died shortly afterwards. The team took fright at something and, getting beyond control, turned into the ditch with the result that his neck was broken. He was a comparatively young man and very favorably known.

Thought It Was War.

Rio de Janeiro, April 20.—A despatch received here says that an Argentine warship during manoeuvres Saturday night near Montevideo, fired 200 shots from heavy guns and threw their searchlights for a considerable time in all directions over the shores. This resulted in almost a panic among the inhabitants who were for a time unable to understand the nature of the seeming demonstration.

Recently there has been some friction between Uruguay and the Argentine Republic on the question of which country had jurisdiction of the water of the Platte River. A number of Argentine warships at different times entered the harbor of Montevideo without firing the accustomed salute. The Prime Minister of the Argentine Republic in a recent speech declared that all the waters of the River Platte belonged to the Argentine Republic.

ITALY WILL SEND A FLEET IS IN TROUBLE WITH TURKEY

In Regard to Post Office Privileges—Determined to Enforce Treaty Rights—Resent Unfair Treatment by the Porte—Action is a Surprise to Russian Government.

Rome, April 20.—An Italian squadron, under command of Admiral F. Grenet, will set sail probably to-day for the purpose of making a demonstration in Turkish waters. The squadron comprises eleven battleships, and includes the battleship Regina Elena, commanded by the Duke of the Abruzzi. Altogether the vessels will carry 5,095 men, and their objective point will be Asia Minor, some seven hundred miles away.

It has been decided, if it is deemed necessary, also to occupy a small island off that coast, but it is hoped here that Turkey may see the error of her way and give full satisfaction, so that more energetic measures may be avoided.

The difficulty between the two nations arises out of the refusal of the Turkish Government to permit the construction of Italian postoffices in Turkish territory, while at the same time other foreign nations have established, and are conducting, postoffices there without interference.

Considerable irritation has been felt here also over the murder of an Italian missionary in Tripoli, and the persecution by the Ottoman authorities of natives who have sold land to Italians, but the present action of the Italian Government is based primarily on the postoffice question. With regard to this, however, the Turkish ambassador in Rome has pointed out in an interview that his Government has in no instance granted to the countries in question such privileges, although it has "tolerated" the postoffices which they have maintained.

For years it has been felt in Government circles in Rome that Turkey has been taking advantage of the international situation to act in a high-handed manner towards Italians, showing but little respect for Italian rights. This Government, it is stated, has been indulgent, not wishing to cause complications which might endanger the accord of the powers with regard to the Ottoman or the Balkan problems.

In addition, there has been much opposition on the part of Turkey to all peaceful Italian initiative in Tripoli, and matters reached a climax when Italy asked for permission to open postoffices in Turkish territory, where other powers already were established, and met with what is considered by the administration here an unjustifiable refusal, as besides being an acquired right Italy considers that she is entitled to claim it according to treaties between the two countries, granting her the privilege of the most-favored-nation clause.

Apparently Turkey came to the conclusion that the Russian Government would never resort to extreme measures in view of the fact that the Macedonian problem is indispensible, and she went so far as to order detachments of troops to guard the Italian postoffices and thus prevent the work from being carried on.

To this provocation the Italian administration felt that it could only reply with coercive measures in order to protect the dignity of Italy and safeguard her rights. In issuing orders for a demonstration of Italian warships in Turkish waters, Italy desired clearly to show that she did not wish to take advantage of the situation for the purposes of occupying any territory. Thus the demonstration will not occur off Tripoli, nor is it intended to influence the Balkan problems by directing the fleet towards Albania or Macedonia. The squadron will go direct to Asia Minor.

Great satisfaction is felt here, and it is stated that all the powers have approved Italy's decision to take recourse to force if necessary to protect her interests, which is an indication that they believe that Italy has no intention of permanent territorial occupation.

It was learned last night that eight destroyers will join the squadron, bringing the number of men in the fleet up to nearly 7,000, with about 500 big guns.

It is expected that the demonstration will begin on Thursday.

The trouble is regarded as the culmination of numerous irritations, including the situation in the Balkans. Italy has the entire sympathy of Great Britain in the matter.

Surprise to Russia.

St. Petersburg, April 20.—The Italian naval demonstration against Turkey, which was announced here last night, came as a complete surprise to the Russian Government officials, and to the members of the diplomatic corps, as it had not been preceded by any intimation of the existence of a dispute between the two countries.

The various diplomats and the Russian Foreign Office officials heard the news with a great show of interest, the consensus of opinion being that this action on the part of Italy is of great significance, occurring as it does just at the time that the Sultan's best friend, Emperor William of Germany is visiting in the Mediterranean.

The opinion is expressed here that Italy's bold example in dealing with Turkey will lead to more vigorous intervention on the part of Great Britain and Russia in behalf of Macedonia.

France After Turkey, Too.

Constantinople, April 20.—The attempt of the Turkish Government to regain control of coal mines at Eregli, a town of Asia-Minor, 128 miles from Constantinople, in which a French company is interested to the extent of $15,000,000, has led to a serious diplomatic difference. The French Government supports the concessionaries, who decline to entertain the question of a resale of the property until the Porte furnishes proof of its ability to bring forth the purchase money, which, considering the impoverishment of the Turkish treasury, is manifestly impossibly.

Meanwhile France has closed her market to any Turkish loan, and the French embassy has notified the Porte that France will exact an indemnity of $2,500, for every day that settlement is delayed, in addition to a compensation of $2,800,000 for losses to the company incurred by disturbances.

The incident has been the subject of more than ordinary attention because of the attitude of Italy towards Turkey, as shown by the threatened demonstration by Italian warships in Turkish waters.

Bones of British Soldiers.

New York, April 20.—A burial vault, the existence of which was never suspected, has been discovered at Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, containing the bones of some 30 or 40 men, believed to have been British soldiers wounded at the battle of Monmouth Courthouse in June, 1778.

It was known that Sir Henry Clinton, the British commander, succeeded in reaching Sandy Hook after the battle.

Grain Elevator Burned.

Chatham, Ont., April 20.—G. T. Crow's elevator at Prairie Siding, with its contents, was burned to the ground Saturday. The fire was first noticed when it had made such headway as to be beyond control. It is not known how the fire originated unless it was from sparks from a passing railway train.

The elevator contained about $1,700 worth of grain. Both the elevator and contents were heavily insured.

Harcourt Retires.

Welland, April 20.—Hon. Richard Harcourt, for 30 years member of the Legislature for the riding of Monck, has written the officers of the Reform Association in the county advising them of his retirement from active political life. The convention will be held April 29.

J. A. Ross of Wellandport will be the probable choice of the Conservative convention on April 24.

MURDERER OF SERGT. LLOYD HAS NOT YET BEEN CAPTURED

Said to be Crazy Through Eating Cordite—Deed Was Deliberately Done—Has Two Revolvers in His Possession—Seen at St. Mary's.

London, April 20.—Private Moir, orderly at Wolseley Barracks, who at midnight Friday shot and fatally wounded Col.-Sergt. Henry Lloyd of Stratford, has not yet been captured, although he was heard of in the vicinity of Grove Post, and later on he asked a man for food, but didn't get it. He stayed over night and was seen yesterday on the G.T.R. track near St. Mary's. Detectives set out after him on a hand-car.

He has abandoned his rifle, but has two heavy revolvers. He took a child's peak cap in place of his own military one.

Moir is said to have an ugly disposition. He had been drinking during Good Friday, and on returning, Lloyd, who was in command of the guard, reprimanded Moir on his condition, and declared that he would be reported to the commanding officer in the morning for being improperly dressed. Moir became very argumentative, and somewhat abusive, and Lloyd allowed him to go to his quarters without further protest.

Shortly afterwards a noise like that of a rifle shot was heard, and Orderly Officer Lieut. Morris came to Sergt. Lloyd and asked him who was the last man in. As the shot appeared to come from the hospital section, Lieut. Morris asked Lloyd to investigate. He and Morris then went down into the sleeping quarters of the orderlies.

The room was quite dark, but Moir was seen in the corner with a rifle in his hand. Lloyd asked him to lay down the rifle, and he went over towards Moir. The latter raised the rifle. Lloyd saw the movement and jumped towards Moir. There was a report, and Lloyd sank to the floor with a groan.

Morris hurried away to call the guard and Moir escaped.

Moir is an old soldier, so it is said, and was a private in the old Gordon Highlanders. He fought with the regiment through the Boer war. He has also seen service on the frontier.

He always carried firearms, and, it is said, would shoot on provocation.

The revolver he carried was an army revolver. Moir also had another revolver which he borrowed from one of the other soldiers.

Moir evidently determined to commit the deed after the reprimand administered by Sergt. Lloyd. He took down the rifle and loaded it, with a steel-capped cartridge. He then buckled on his bandelero belt, filled with cartridges belonging to Pte. Brady.

"Moir used to drink some, but was not a heavy drinker," said one of the privates, who was well acquainted with Moir. "He used to be a cordite eater. That acts like dope, and it used to make him wild at times. He was particularly bad when he was drinking, as he seemed to be worse."

Cordite eating was somewhat common in South Africa, it is said. The men remove the cartridges and eat the powder. It is a powerful stimulant, and acts much like morphine and other drugs of that sort.

Lloyd was about 25 years of age, fair complexion with a light mustache. His home is in Stratford, and he was attached to the 28th Battalion. For several years past he has been taking courses at the barracks.

BAD FLOODS DO MUCH DAMAGE

Four Lives Lost and Thousands Driven From Their Homes

Fort Worth, Texas, April 20.—Another rise of three feet in Clear and West Forks forced thousands of persons to flee from their homes in East Fort Worth Saturday. So far as known four persons have lost their lives.

The rise was so rapid that people were obliged to leave their furniture and personal effects. At least 3,000 persons have been rendered homeless and all streams are still rising.

Railroad service is badly crippled, and the Texas & Pacific Railroad reports that it will not be able to send out trains west for two or three days. The Fort Worth & Rio Grande and the Sante Fe roads are running but few trains. Five hundred delegates to the state labor convention are water-bound here.

A cloudburst in Parker and Palorinco counties will probably send the Brazos and Trinity rivers two feet higher, and these streams are now higher than in 25 years. North Fort Worth is isolated and 500 houses are submerged. Mineral City, near Weatherford, is under water, and Cleburne, south of here, on the Santa Fe, is surrounded by the flood. Engineer Long and Fireman Allsup were found dead under their engine yesterday. Their train left the track in a washout a mile north of Cleburne.

The flood sufferers have been provided with shelter.

Crops over a large area have been destroyed, and the estimated loss will reach over half a million dollars. All night the police fired a continual volley of shots to warn residents in the flood district.

Leaped Through Train Window.

Casselman, Ont., April 20.—While being taken to the Brockville asylum, John Lalande, an insane man from St. Isidore, in Prescott County, eluded his guard, and three miles east of Morrisburg, on the G.T.R., jumped out of a window of the car while the train was going forty-five miles an hour.

Constable E. Chevrier of Casselman, who was in charge of the demented man, had left him for a few minutes to wash his hands. Lalande was handcuffed at the time, and, curious to say, no bones were broken in his fall.

The man was soon captured, and he is now seriously ill in the Brockville Asylum from the effects of his wild leap.

Opera Singer's Tragedy.

London, April 20.—"Parsifal, Parsifal, your mother is dead." At the Grand Opera House Saturday night, Miss Keating, in the role of Kundry in "Parsifal" was compelled to repeat the above lines three times. There was real tragedy behind her words. Just before the curtain went up she received a telegram from Chicago announcing the death of her mother. The strain was too much for Miss Keating and she fainted three times. She left for Chicago after the performance.

Scant Hope For Bannerman.

London, April 20.—It is stated on Sunday morning that the condition of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the former Premier, is very serious. He passed a bad night.

His weakness increased materially and little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Emigrating to Canada.

London, April 20.—(C.A.P.)—Under the auspices of the Jewish Colonial Society, the headquarters of which are in Paris, emigration of Roumanian Jews to Canada is largely increasing.

THE TRIAL OF THE DREAMERS

More Evidence to Show Lawless Character of the Fanatics.

Medicine Hat, April 20.—Continuing the evidence on Saturday against young Merkel, one of the "Dreamers," witness Lehr stated he would probably share the fate of J. W. Martin, J.P., who is missing and supposedly drowned. Martin was the magistrate who fined the Gill woman for shooting at the Lehr children, and Christian Gill and threatened to do away with him (Lehr) if he got a chance, and had actually drawn a knife on him. On one occasion Merkel carried a rifle.

Adolph and Michael Brost had heard the prisoner make threats that Lehr would die like a beast. Reib Bombach and others had heard Merkel say in Irvine that he would go like Martin.

One Schneider testified that the leader of the Dreamers two years ago told of the belief in destroying the lives and property of those not in sympathy, and of carrying out the interpretations of dreams. The prisoner had dreamed once that his wife had slain her brother and in the morning rode over to his brother-in-law's and shot him, not fatally. He was fined $100 and 30 days in jail. Witness knew the Dreamers had burned buildings as the result of dreams.

Michael Brost repeated the evidence given against former prisoner Nieman, telling of planning a meeting for the prisoner to shoot Michael Gill through the window while Emmanuel Gill kept watch on the dogs. Markel showed him a revolver, with which he intended to shoot if anyone started to talk. Since then the prisoner had told him while passing on the street he would kill him if he ever caught him alone on the prairie.

Quebec Legislature.

Montreal, April 20.—Both the provincial leaders are in town to-day, and it is pretty well understood that the session of the Legislature will be prorogued on Saturday next, to be followed by an early dissolution of the House.

It is said that the redistribution bill to be brought down this week will divide the County of Hochelaga into four counties, instead of one, as today, and that the Counties of Pontiac and Labelle will also be given an additional member.

There will be no increase in the sessional indemnity this session, but it is said that an increase may be given after the elections.

Immigration Agent Arrested.

Chatham, April 20.—James Waugh, ex-immigration agent at Chatham for the Dominion Government, was arrested Saturday on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences.

It has also been ascertained that a Government detective has been at work on the matter for some time. Waugh was released on putting up bail to the amount of $1,000.

He will come up for a preliminary hearing in the Police Court to-day, when he will elect as to whether he will be tried before the police magistrate or go before a judge and jury.

Murderer Cremates Himself.

Seneca, Kas., April 20.—James Lally, charged with murder, was burned to death yesterday in a fire which destroyed the jail here.

Lally is believed to have set fire to his bed with suicidal intent.

Assaulted Landlady.

Stratford, April 20.—Daniel Caverley, local long distance runner, was sentenced Saturday to two months in jail for assaulting his landlady. It is thought he was temporarily deranged.

WOMAN'S POWER

The healthy woman; strong mentally and physically, whose ambition and magnetic influence urge men to deeds of grandeur and heroism; such women are all-powerful.

Weak, sick and ailing women have little ambition; their own troubles occupy all their thoughts. They dwell upon their pains, suffer from nervousness and headaches; often are extremely melancholy, and avoid society. For thirty years has been saving women from this awful condition.

Mrs. John Scott, 480 Grand Trunk St., Montreal, writes Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was very much run down in health from a female trouble, was thin, nervous, very weak, and suffered from bearing down pains. Indeed I did not care whether I lived or died.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me of all my troubles. I gained in flesh, and am free from backache, female trouble, sick headaches, and nervousness.

"I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all women's ailments."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice.

NATIONAL BREAKDOWNS

The Globe has a leader on the cause of the rebellion in the U.S. against democracy. The "triumph of democracy" has not been the triumph of the people as was expected, but the triumph of the moneyed class, which secured control of so much of the machinery of government, and of the means of distribution and transportation that the great mass of toilers and consumers are almost entirely at their mercy. Roosevelt has made a valiant effort to offset them. Stern autocrat-democrat he has been and is an interesting figure. He comes more nearly to the ideal of the "Benevolent despot" who is to centre in himself all power and to do all things well than any man of modern times. But is representative government a failure and must it be? What should we eliminate to enable it to get upon its feet again? The answer is comprised, we may venture to think in the statement that self-seeking men should not be allowed to occupy representative positions. A paid commission is vastly better than a self-seeking sham. However, we shall always have to remember that water cannot go higher than its source. If the people are corrupt their representatives will in all probability be able to squeeze in on that understanding. This condition of affairs is not civilization. It is anarchy. It is a state of the world without God or the fear of death. Such a state is necessarily a hot-bed of vice. When the people of a community get so that they feel comfortable under the circumstances, it may be relied upon, as a shrewd observer said, that the Christians there were only so to the depth of their epidermis. A practical Christian, a true believer, has just as much right to look to the regeneration of the world as his divine Master had. In fact, that was one of Christ's commands. There are several ways of doing it, and the greatest of these lies in the active and practical use of all the privileges and responsibilities of citizenship.

THE POWER POLICY

It is rumored in those circles best informed that there are negotiations on foot between the Government, the Ontario Power Company and the Electrical Development Company, which while giving the control of the rates in a great measure to the Government will yet mean that the ruinous competition which all investors feared as a result of duplications of lines and plants may be avoided.—Toronto Globe.

So, after all the hysterics of the last few weeks the Globe has to admit that it was mistaken that there was no breakdown on Mr. Whitney's part and that he has been true to his trust. Who would expect otherwise or pretend to do so except a Grit politician looking for office? With regard to Mackenzie's CNR. bonds which the Government re-endorsed the explanation is of course equally satisfactory. It was in the first place a renewal of a contract entered into by the late government but a renewal on such terms as to place our security beyond doubt. But Mr. Whitney does not propose to do likewise in any further instances. To blame him for what he has done is hypocritical for it is quite unjust.

EDITORIAL NOTES

We thought we saw a crow this morning but like the maple sugar of the present day, it may have been merely a sham.

At the Tower of Justice Synagogue, on Centre avenue, Shiler Herman pulled Rabbi Levi violently from the altar.—The Star.

This is what will happen in the Department of Marine and Fisheries if things go on as they have been doing there.

This should be framed and sent to the Grit party at Ottawa.

"Death came near to her when she was young and beautiful. "Oh, have mercy," she cried. "I am not prepared to die—there is too much before me."

Death resisted, but returned a few years later. The woman held forth her trembling hands in supplication. "Spare me. Have mercy. I am not prepared to die—there is too much behind me."

"A man is often judged by the clothing he wears."

"Yes and"—

"And what?"

"A lady is often judged by the clothing she doesn't wear."—Exchange.

This is of a piece with that other bit of criticism of woman's apparel in which Shakespeare is made to describe the 1908 hat as being as deep as a well and as broad as a church door. It is unkind.

Instances without number might be cited to illustrate the supreme selfishness and brutal indifference of many motorists and this is said not forgetting that there are some who manifest the most praiseworthy consideration for the rights of others. It is not the latter class we are aiming at now for whom regulations are required. It is the large body of more or less flagrant offenders. Here is a case in point, recited with great gusto, by one of the participants. A touring car, with a party of gentlemen and ladies, (!) was tearing along the road from London to Chatham at thirty miles an hour. Upon its approach, a pair of horses in a pasture field, took fright, jumped the fence, and ran along in front of the machine, which gleefully followed the terrified animals at full speed for a mile or so, as a dog would run down a fox. A woman in a buggy was overtaken by the runaways and pursuing car; her horse took fright, and pitched her into the ditch, while the runaways leaped a fence into a field. Without slackening speed, the motor-car rushed by pell-mell, its occupants laughing and jeering at the fracas they had been able to stir up. For were the roads not made for autoists, and of what account are such primitive creatures as dumb animals and farmers' wives? It is this fiendish tyranny and callousness that maddens the men who made the roads, and who fancied, poor fellows, up till a short time ago, that they had made them for riding and driving.—The Farmer's Advocate.

Such work is inexcusable but it is not confined to motorists. The same callous selfish conduct is characteristic of all mean persons in whatever walk of life.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. MONTREAL AND QUEBEC

A veritable edition de luxe amongst railroad pamphlets has just been issued by the Grand Trunk to proclaim amongst tourists the glories of the cities of Montreal and Quebec. The brochure is beautifully printed, and generally arranged in the artistic style of earlier days, when the ornamentation of a volume was regarded as an important incident of its presentation of reading matter. It is also very well written, and gives an interesting description of the two most interesting cities in Canada, with many illustrations from photographs that have not hitherto been published. IN ORDER TO CORRECT A WRONG AND NOT TO PERPETRATE ONE

Calgary News Would Stain us With the Crimes of Others—No Liberal Protests at the Time—Not a Gerrymander, but a Redistribution—Where is the Wrong?

"The Whitney Government has not helped itself in the estimation of the public by its redistribution bill.

There was no necessity to gerrymander Ontario to keep a Conservative majority solid in that province.

The governmental folly of Hon. G. W. Ross, when premier of Ontario, aided and abetted by the performances of Hon. J. R. Stratton, his provincial secretary had given the Conservatives a straight lease of power for almost as long as they desired to stay decent. The carving up of the constituencies will not extend that term by one iota.

Ontario is Conservative through and through at the present time and there was no necessity for doing anything unfair or dishonest to maintain the provincial government in power. The action of the Whitney government will not strengthen the party, but may have an opposite effect.

We all know the revulsion of public feeling that occurred in 1882, when Sir John Macdonald undertook to legislate out of public life such men as William Paterson, John Charlton, M. C. Cameron, Dr. Landerkin and others by means of the gerrymander bill. The attempt proved to be a failure and acted as a boomerang on the party that proposed it.—Calgary News, (Liberal).

We do not think this reference to Mr. Whitney is a fair one. Not one single protest was received by Mr. Whitney from any of the constituencies concerned in the alleged gerrymander. How then, can the alleged gerrymander have been an impropriety as alleged? The very fact that it was unnecessary from a strategic view-point makes it unlikely. The necessity that put Mr. Whitney there will keep him in power so long as he behaves himself and to seek to make assurance doubly sure by crooked work would be madness and nothing else. The best and surest proof, however, that such was not the case is that in two cases, one of them being in the County of Peterborough in the township of South Monaghan, the kick came from Conservatives, not from Liberals at all. Moreover if there were no redistribution under Mr. Whitney then it was because there was no necessity for it and if no necessity for it the Hon. G. W. Ross must have done well, not ill, in that respect. That the Calgary News is not prepared to acquiesce in such an assumption is, of course, apparent. There was, then a wrong to remedy and if the dividing knife slipped a little, as Saturday Night suggests the error is not irreparable. But that Mr. Whitney and his cabinet intended to perpetrate any wrong we emphatically deny. Both motive and necessity were wholly wanting. Moreover they are above it. The era of the greedy small boy in politics is at an end as is that of the politician who laughs at both right and wrong. Whatever happens to Mr. Whitney at the next election, one thing is certain, There will be no return to either parliament or power of the crude makeshifts who masqueraded in men's clothes. Conservatives and Liberals alike, have ceased to be the playthings of party managers and woe to him who would further trespass upon their integrity or good nature.

CANDIDATES FOR THE MINISTRY

Examinations for Probationers at George Street Methodist Church To-morrow

Examinations for candidates desiring to enter the Methodist ministry will be held in the George street Methodist church tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday. One commences tomorrow at 9.30 o'clock and it is expected that there will be seven or eight candidates. Rev. J. G. Lewis, of Picton, secretary of the Board of Examiners, will preside and it is likely that several other members of the Board will be present.

The number of young men who now try the examinations at local points is not as large as in past years. The majority of those desiring to enter the ministry prepare themselves at the college supported by the church for that purpose.

THE VALUE OF ACCIDENT INSURANCE

DEATHS from accident are stated by the Census Officials, Washington, to have been 57,513 in 1902. The percentage of deaths from accident is 5.76, which is more than ten years ago. The "Insurance Press" in giving details from the Census, says, "An Inspection of the Census Tables showing causes of death brings out the fact that a person is more liable to meet death by accidental injuries than by any other single cause except consumption, pneumonia or heart disease

—From Financial Chronicle, Montreal.

The Utopia Policy issued by the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada, provides indemnity for disability, resulting from accident or sickness. It is in all respects a model policy.

Beverly of Graustark

By
GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark"

Copyright, 1904, by Dodd, Mead and Company

"Well, perhaps you were led into it," retracted Beverly, half mollified. "Look at that old villain whispering over there. No wonder his wives up and died. They just had to do it. I hate all but you and Count Halfont and Baron Dangloss," which left but one condemned.

"And Baldos?" added Yetive, patting her hand.

"I wish you'd be sensible," cried Beverly most ungraciously, and Yetive's soft laugh irritated her. "How long had you been listening to us?"

"Not so much as the tiniest part of a minute," said Yetive, recalling another disastrous eavesdropping. "I am much wiser than when Baldos first came to serve you. We were quite a distance behind Count Marlanx, I assure you."

"Then he heard something?" asked Beverly anxiously.

"He has been in a detestable mood ever since we rejoined him. Could he have heard anything disagreeable?"

"No; on the contrary, it was quite agreeable."

All this time Baldos was standing at attention a few paces off, a model soldier despite the angry shifting of his black eyes. He saw that they had been caught in a most unfortunate position. No amount of explaining could remove the impression that had been forced upon the witnesses, voluntary or involuntary, as the case might be. Baldos could do nothing to help her, while she was compelled to face the suspicions of her best friends. At best it could be considered nothing short of a clandestine meeting, the consequences of which she must suffer, not he. In his heated brain he was beginning to picture scandal with all the disgusting details that grow out of evil misrepresentation.

Count Halfont separated himself from the group of three and advanced to the sedan chair. Marlanx and Dangloss were arguing earnestly in low tones.

"Shall we return, your highness?" asked Halfont, addressing both with one of his rarest smiles. "If I remember aright, we were to dine en famille tonight, and it is well upon the hour. Besides, Count Marlanx is a little distressed by your absentmindedness, Miss Beverly, and I fancy he is eager to have it out with you."

"My absentmindedness? What is it that I have forgotten?" asked Beverly, puckering her brow.

"That's the trouble, dear," said Yetive. "You forgot your promise to teach him how to play that awful game called poker. He has waited for you at the castle since 6 o'clock. It is now 8. Is it any wonder that he led the searching party? He has been on nettles for an hour and a half."

"Goodness, I'll wager he's in a temper!" exclaimed Beverly, with no remorse, but some apprehension.

"It would be wisdom to apologize to him," suggested Yetive, and her uncle nodded earnestly.

"All right. I think I can get him into good humor without half trying. Oh, Count Marlanx! Come here, please. You aren't angry with me, are you? Wasn't it awful for me to run away and leave you to play solitaire instead of poker? But, don't you know, I was so wretchedly tired after the ride, and I knew you wouldn't mind if I"— and so she ran glibly on, completely forestalling him, to the secret amusement of the others. Nevertheless, she was nervous and embarrassed over the situation. There was every reason to fear that the Iron Count had heard and seen enough to form a pretty good opinion of what had passed between herself and Baldos in this remote corner of the park. A deep sense of shame was taking possession of her.

Marlanx, smiling significantly, looked into her brave little face and permitted her to talk on until she had run out of breath and composure. Then he bowed with exaggerated gallantry and informed her that he was here to command and that it was not for him to forgive, but to accept whatever was her gracious pleasure. He called upon the chair bearers, and they took up their burden. Beverly promptly changed her mind and concluded to walk to the castle. And so they started off, the chair going ahead as if out of commission forever. Despite her efforts to do so the American girl—feeling very much abused, by the way—was unsuccessful in the attempt to keep the princess at her side. Yetive deliberately walked ahead with Halfont and Dangloss. It seemed to Beverly that they walked unnecessarily fast and that Marlanx was provokingly slow. Baldos was twenty paces behind, as was his custom.

"Is it necessary for me to ask you to double the number of lessons I am to have?" Marlanx asked. He was quite too close to her side to please Beverly.

"Can't you learn in one lesson? Most Americans think they know all about poker after the first game."

"I am not so quick witted, your highness."

"Far be it from me to accelerate your wits, Count Marlanx. It might not be profitable."

"You might profit by losing, you know," he ventured, leaning still closer. "Poker is not the only game of chance. It was chance that gave me a winning hand this evening."

"I don't understand."

"It shall be my pleasure to teach you in return for instructions I am to have. I have tried to teach your excellent guard one phase of the game. He has not profited, I fear. He has been blind enough to pick a losing hand in spite of my advice. It is the game of hearts." Beverly could not but understand. She shrank away with a shudder. Her wits did not desert her, however.

"I know the game," she said steadily. "One's object is to cast off all the hearts. I have been very lucky at the game, Count Marlanx."

"Dump!" was his ironical comment.

"Ah, isn't this a night for lovers?" he went on, changing tack suddenly. "To stroll in the shadows, where even the moon is blind, is a joy that love alone provides. Come, fair mistress, share this joy with me."

With that his hand closed over her soft arm above the elbow, and she was drawn close to his side. Beverly's first shock of revulsion was succeeded by the distressing certainty that Baldos was a helpless witness of this indignity. She tried to jerk her arm away, but he held it tight.

"Release my arm, sir!" she cried, hoarse with passion.

"Call your champion, my lady. It will mean his death. I have evidence that will insure his conviction and execution within an hour. Nothing could save him. Call him, I say, and"—

"I will call him. He is my sworn protector, and I will command him to knock you down if you don't go away," she flared, stopping decisively.

"At his peril"—

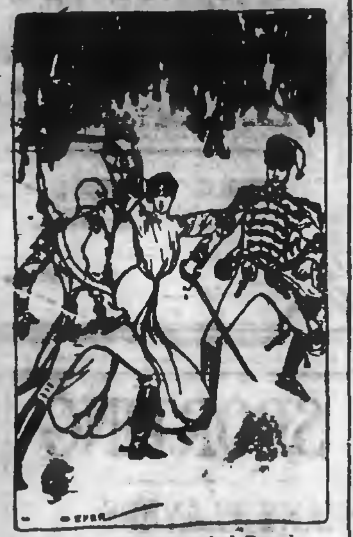
"Baldos!" she called, without a second's hesitation. The guard came up with a rush just as Marlanx released her arm and fell away with a muttered imprecation.

"Your highness!" cried Baldos, who had witnessed everything.

"Are you afraid to die?" she demanded briefly and clearly.

"No!"

"That is all," she said, suddenly calm. "I merely wanted to prove it to Count Marlanx." Tact had come to her relief most opportunely. Like a flash she saw that a conflict between the commander of the army and a guard could have but one result, and that disastrous to the latter. One word from her would have ended everything for Baldos. She saw through the Iron Count's ruse as if by divine inspiration and profited where he least expected her to excel in shrewdness. Marlanx had deliberately invited the assault by the guard. His object had been to snare Baldos into his own undoing, and a horrible undoing it would have been. One blow would have secured the desired result. Nothing could have saved the guard who had struck his superior officer, but Beverly thought in time.



"Stop!" almost shrieked Beverly.

"To die is easy, your highness. You have but to ask it of me!" said Baldos, whose face was white and drawn.

"She has no intention of demanding such a pleasant sacrifice," observed Count Marlanx, covering his failure skillfully. "Later on, perhaps, she may sign your death warrant. I am proud to hear, sir, that a member of my corps has the courage to face the inevitable, even though he be an alien and unwilling to die on the field of battle. You have my compliments, sir. You have been on irksome duty for several hours and must be fatigued as well as hungry. A soldier suffers many deprivations, not the least of which is starvation in pursuit of his calling. Mess is not an unwelcome relief to you after all these arduous hours. You may return to the barracks at once. The princess is under my care for the remainder of the campaign."

Baldos looked first at her and then at the sarcastic old general. Yetive and her companions were waiting for them at the fountain a hundred yards ahead.

"You may go, Baldos," said Beverly in low tones.

"I am not fatigued nor"— he began eagerly.

"Go!" snarled Marlanx. "Am I to repeat a command to you? Do you ignore the word of your mistress?" There was a significant sneer in the way he said it.

"Mistress?" gasped Baldos, his eye blazing, his arm half raised.

"Count Marlanx!" implored Beverly, drawing herself to her full height and staring at him like a wounded thing.

"I humbly implore you not to misconstrue the meaning of the term, your highness," said the count affably. "Ah, you have dropped something. Permit me. It is a note of some description, I think."

He stooped quickly—too quickly—and recovered from the ground at her feet the bit of paper which had fallen from her hand. It was the note from Ravone to Baldos, which Beverly had forgotten in the excitement of the encounter.

"Count Marlanx, give me that paper!" demanded Beverly breathlessly.

"Is it a love letter? Perhaps it is intended for me. At any rate, your highness, it is safe against my heart for the time being. When we reach the castle I shall be happy to restore it. It is safer with me. Come, we go one way and—have you not gone, sir?" in his most sarcastic tone to the guard. Beverly was trembling.

"No, I have not, and I shall not go until I see you obey the command of her highness. She has asked you for that piece of paper," said Baldos, standing squarely in front of Marlanx.

"Insolent dog! Do you mean to question my"—

"Give over that paper!"

"If you strike me, fellow, it will be"—

"If I strike you it will be to kill, Count Marlanx. The paper, sir." Baldos towered over the Iron Count, and there was danger in his daredevil voice. "Surely, sir, I am but obeying your own instructions. 'Protect the princess and all that is hers with your life,' you have said to me."

"Oh, I wish you hadn't done this, Baldos!" cried Beverly, panic stricken.

"You have threatened my life. I shall not forget it, fool! Here is the precious note, your highness, with my condolences to the writer." Marlanx passed the note to her and then looked triumphantly at the guard. "I dare say you have done all you can, sir. Do you wish to add anything more?"

"What can one do when dealing with his superior and finds him a despicable coward?" said Baldos, with cool irony. "You are reputed to be a brave soldier. I know that to be false or I would ask you to draw the sword you carry and"— He was drawing his sword as he spoke.

"Baldos!" implored Beverly. Her evident concern infuriated Marlanx. In his heart he knew Baldos to be a man of superior birth and a foeman not to be despised from his own station. Carried away by passion, he flashed his sword from its sheath.

"You have drawn on me, sir," he snarled. "I must defend myself against even such as you. You will find that I am no coward. Time is short for your gallant lover, madam."

Before she could utter a word of protest the blades had clashed, and they were hungry for blood. It was dark in the shadows of the trees, and the trio were quite alone with their tragedy. She heard Baldos laugh recklessly in response to Marlanx's cry of:

"Oh, the shame of fighting with such carrion as you!"

"Don't jest at a time like this, count," said the guard softly. "Remember that I lose, no matter which way it goes. If you kill me I lose, if I beat you I lose. Remember, you can still have me shot for insubordination and conduct unbecoming"—

"Stop!" almost shrieked Beverly. At the risk of personal injury she rushed between the two swordsmen. Both drew back and dropped their points. Not a dozen passes had been made.

"I beg your highness' pardon," murmured Baldos, but he did not sheathe his sword.

"He forced it upon me," cried Marlanx triumphantly. "You were witness to it all. I was a fool to let it go as far as this. Put up your sword until another day—if that day ever comes to you."

"He will have you shot for this, Baldos," cried Beverly in her terror. Baldos laughed bitterly.

"Tied and blindfolded, too, your highness, to prove that he is a brave man and not a coward. It was short, but it was sweet. Would that you had let the play go on. There was a spice in it that made life worth living and death worth the dying. Have you other commands for me, your highness?" His manner was so cool and defiant that she felt the tears spring to her eyes.

"Only that you put up your sword and end this miserable affair by going to your—your room."

"It is punishment enough. Tomorrow's execution can be no harder."

Marlanx had been thinking all this time. Into his soul came the thrill of triumph, the consciousness of a mighty power. He saw the chance to benefit by the sudden clash, and he was not slow to seize it.

"Never fear, my man," he said easily; "it won't be as bad as that. I can well afford to overlook your indiscretion of tonight. There will be no execution, as you call it. This was an affair between men, not between man and the state. Our gracious referee is to be our judge. It is for her to pardon and to condemn. It was very pretty while it lasted, and you are too good a swordsman to be shot. Go your way, Baldos, and remember me as Marlanx the man, not Marlanx the general. As your superior officer, I congratulate and commend you upon the manner in which you serve the princess."

"You will always find me ready to fight and to die for her," said Baldos gravely. "Do you think you can remember that, Count Marlanx?"

"I have an excellent memory," said the count steadily. With a graceful salute to Beverly, Baldos turned and walked away in the darkness.

"A perfect gentleman, Miss Calhoun, but a wretched soldier," said Marlanx grimly.

"He is a hero," she said quietly, a great calmness coming over her. "Do you mean it when you say you are not going to have him punished? He did only what a man should do, and I glory in his folly."

"I may as well tell you point blank that you alone can save him. He does not deserve leniency. It is in my power and it is my province to have him utterly destroyed not only for this night's work, but for other and better reasons. I have positive proof that he is a spy. He knows I have this proof. That is why he would have killed me just now. It is for you to say whether he shall meet the fate of a spy or go unscathed. You have but to exchange promises with me, and the estimable guardsman goes free—but he goes from Edelweiss forever. Today he met the enemy's scouts in the hills, as you know quite well. Messages were exchanged secretly, which you do not know, of course. Before another day is gone I expect to see the results of his treachery. There may be manifestations tonight. You do not believe me, but wait and see if I am not right. He is one of Gabriel's cleverest spies."

"I do not believe it. You shall not accuse him of such things," she cried. "Besides, if he is a spy why should you shield him for my sake? Don't you owe it to Graustark to expose"—

"Here is the princess," said he serenely. "Your highness," addressing Yetive, "Miss Calhoun has a note which she refuses to let any one read but you. Now, my dear young lady, you may give it directly into the hands of her highness."

Beverly gave him a look of scorn, but without a second's hesitation placed the missive in Yetive's hand. The Iron Count's jaw dropped, and he moistened his lips with his tongue two or three times. Something told him that a valuable chance had gone.

"I shall be only too happy to have your highness read the result of my first lesson in the Graustark language," she said, smiling gayly upon the count.

Two men in uniform came rushing up to the party manifestly excited. Saluting the general, both began to speak at once.

"One at a time," commanded the count. "What is it?"

Other officers of the guard and a few noblemen from the castle came up, out of breath.

"We have discerned signal fires in the hills, your excellency," said one of the men from the fort. "There is a circle of fires, and they mean something important. For half an hour they have been burning near the monastery; also in the valley below and on the mountains to the south."

There was an instant of deathly silence, as if the hearers awaited a crash. Marlanx looked steadily at Beverly's face, and she saw the triumphant, accusing gleam in his eyes. Helplessly she stared into the crowd of faces. Her eyes fell upon Baldos, who suddenly appeared in the background. His face wore a hunted, imploring look. The next instant he disappeared among the shadows.

CHAPTER XX.

"THERE is no time to be lost," exclaimed Count Marlanx. "Ask Colonel Braze to report to me at the eastern gate with a detail of picked troopers—a hundred of them. I will meet him there in half an hour." He gave other sharp, imperative commands, and in the twinkling of an eye the peaceful atmosphere was transformed into the turbulent, exciting rush of activity. The significance of the fires seen in the hills could not be cheaply held. Instant action was demanded. The city was filled with the commotion of alarm; the army was brought to its feet with a jerk that startled even the most ambitious.

The first thing that General Marlanx did was to instruct Quinnox to set a vigilant watch over Baldos. He was not to be arrested, but it was understood that the surveillance should be but little short of incarceration. He was found at the barracks shortly after the report concerning the signal fires and told in plain words that General Marlanx had ordered a guard placed over him for the time being, pending the result of an investigation. Baldos had confidently expected to be thrown into a dungeon for his affront. He did not know that Grenfall Lorry stood firm in his conviction that Baldos was no spy and was supported by others in high authority.

Marlanx was bottling his wrath and holding back his revenge for a distinct purpose. Apart from the existence of a strong, healthy prejudice in the guard's favor, what the old general believed and what he could prove were two distinct propositions. He was crafty enough, however, to take advantage of a condition unknown to Beverly Calhoun, the innocent cause of all his bitterness toward Baldos.

As he hastened from the council chamber his eyes swept the crowd of eager, excited women in the grand hall. From among them he picked Beverly and advanced upon her without regard for time and consequence. Despite her animation he was keen enough to see that she was sorely troubled. She did not shrink from him, as he had half expected, but met him with bold disdain in her eyes.

"This is the work of your champion," he said in tones that did not reach ears other than her own. "I prophesied it, you must remember. Are you satisfied now that you have been deceived in him?"

"I have implicit confidence in him. I suppose you have ordered his arrest?" she asked, with quiet scorn.

IS LEAVING FOR WESTERN CANADA

Mr. Chas. Morrien Honored by Royal Scarlet Chapter of West Peterboro'

On Saturday evening, Mr. Chas. Morrien was presented with two handsome gifts by Royal Scarlet Chapter of West Peterborough. The presentation took place in the Orange hall, Simcoe street when a large number of the companions of the chapter, were present. Mr. Morrien and family are leaving for the West in the near future. Mr. Morrien was presented with a set of dishes and a book, "Heart of the Rockies," accompanied by an address read by Mr. W. G. Bartley, Companion Scribe. It was as follows;

To Chas. Morrien, Esq.,
Peterborough, Ont.,

Dear Companion,—We, your fellow companions of the Royal Scarlet Chapter of West Peterborough, desire to take this opportunity on thee ve of your departure for the "Golden West" to express our appreciation of the services which you have on all occasions so willingly and ably rendered to this Chapter and to our Order at large, since you first became connected with it.

Since then our Chapter has made rapid strides towards success, as has also all other branches of our Association in this county. It is with no ordinary amount of pleasure that we note the spirit of revival which has recently been taken hold of our members in this locality and that we have good reason for hoping that this is but the commencement of a new era in the history of Orangeism in the county of West Peterborough. We are conscious of the fact that much of this prosperity is due to your devotion and untiring zeal on behalf of the institution whose principles we all have so much at heart, and which we are satisfied will yet become more universal and better understood as the years roll by.

To allow the present occasion to pass without, in some way, recognizing services so valuable as yours would be very ungrateful on our part, we therefore, ask you and Mrs. McBrien to accept these small presents as a token of the esteem and regard in which you are held by the brethren and companions of this Chapter. Trusting that they will serve to remind you of the many happy occasions on which we have been brought together and the many pleasant hours spent in the Chapter room. And wishing you and your family every success in your new home, we beg to remain,

Faithfully and fraternally yours,
D. HAMILTON,
W. C in C.
WM. G. BARTLEY,
Companion Scribe.
Orange Hall, Peterborough, April 18.

Mr. Morrien made a suitable reply, expressing his thanks for the handsome gifts. A social time was afterwards spent.

HARRY ADAMS

HUM OF SEEDING MACHINES IS NOW HEARD IN THE WEST

Mr. "Sandy" Hall Home From Quill Lake, Sask.—Seeding Was in Progress When He Left for the East

Mr. Sandford Hall has returned from Quill Lake, Man., where he has been in charge of the Bank of Toronto. When interviewed by a Review representative this afternoon, Mr. Hall stated that the West is an ideal country, both as regards climatic conditions and mercantile possibilities.

When Mr. Hall left Quill Lake on the 11th inst., seeding operations had already begun, and with good weather, all spring wheat should be in this week.

The soil in the Quill Lake district is ideal for wheat production. There is about eighteen inches of black loam on the surface so that the supply of nutriment is practically inexhaustible.

Last year's crop, Mr. Hall states, was a banner one, but was spoiled to a great extent by the early frost. Prospects are much brighter for this year, and from present appearances a crop heretofore unequalled should be harvested in the district referred to.

The saleable land in Quill Plains is chiefly held by speculators, at from $10 to $20 per acre. Mr. Hall states that these prices frighten a great many landseekers, who do not take the trouble of going over the land, but, as a rule, those who do make an inspection of the soil, buy immediately.

The weather during the past winter has been very favorable in the Quill Lake district, the temperature seldom going below 40 degrees, and the average temperature being about zero. This comprises a delightful winter in the West, with its clear, sunny days and dry atmosphere.

Then again, the cost of supplies is very little higher in Quill Lake than in eastern places, and in some cases is even lower.

Dr. Prust, a former Peterborough resident, was in Quill Lake for some time and assisted in instituting a Board of Trade of which Mr. Hall was president.

Mr. Hall states that he likes the West very much, and intends to return at a not far distant date.

NEW POTATOES ALREADY MRS. BARCLAY WINS PRIZE

Mrs. John Barclay, of upper George street, has won the Review gold medal for the earliest new potatoes this year. Mrs. Barclay brought them in this morning. She grew them without earth or water on the cleanest of cellar floors. They are of the Molly Doolan variety, but are potatoes all the same. Their size is perhaps against them, as they might be mistaken for marbles or filberts. When the Review undertook to encourage horticulture it was aware what encouragement will do for industry, but this success is almost too much. The potatoes are on exhibition in the Review window. Crowds are inspecting them closely, as they cannot be seen very well at a distance.

WORK SOON TO BE COMMENCED ON ERECTION OF BLEACHERS

In a few days work will be commenced on the erection of bleachers at Riverside Park. Plans have been commenced and work would be already under way were it not for the fact that a portion of the park is under water as a result of the rising of the Otonabee river. It is learned that the bleachers will be commodious and will be located at the west side of the park on the site of the grandstand that was destroyed by fire. A high fence will be built at the back to keep off the sun in the afternoon.

With two senior ball teams in the city, Riverside Park should be patronized this season more than ever before. The erection of the bleachers is a wise move on the part of the directors.

IMPROPER LITERATURE

To the Editor of the Review.

Peterborough, April 20, '08.

Dear Sir,—When the postal rates on American publications were placed at a prohibitive figure, it was argued that the adoption of such a course would have the effect of getting the readers of Canada in the way of reading the English magazines and periodicals which are generally considered to be of a higher tone than their American contemporaries. Much good has resulted from the measure, but still there are old country publications, as well as American ones, that should be weeded out, and not be allowed to pollute the minds of young Canadian readers.

UNDESIRABLE PUBLICATIONS.

The Police Gazette and Vanity Fair were barred from the Canadian mails because of their degenerate character and quite properly so. But why should the sale of such publications Photo Fun and Photo Bits be tolerated in Canada. They are most harmful and suggestive and simply because they are published in England is no reason why newsdealers should be allowed to sell them. Photo Fun and Photo Bits are sold in Peterborough. Vanity Fair and the Police Gazette are not.

Yours truly,
READER

GRAND HOTEL WAS ENTERED BY BURGLARS

Broke Open Cellar Door—Did Not Get into Main Part of Building

Early Saturday morning the Grand Hotel was entered, but it could not be learned whether there was anything carried away or not. An entrance was forced through the cellar window at the rear of the building. Next morning the cellar door was found standing open and from the appearance of things, it looked as though someone had been ransacking the place, however, the burglars confined their searches to the cellar.

EVERYTHING IS NOW READY

Complete arrangements have been made for the reception of Sir Frederick Borden, the Minister of Militia, who comes here on Wednesday for the laying of the corner stone.

A fitting reception will be given Sir Frederick by both the civic and military authorities.

A BOY'S HOLIDAYS

The ardent controversy which has been waging in England and America concerning the best way to dispose of school boys in the long summer vacation has prompted the Grand Trunk Railway System to issue a special publication giving suggestions and practical hints to parents, as what to do with the public and preparatory school boy during the months of July and August. The vacation camp is one of the solutions and the publication entitled, "What shall a Boy do with his Vacation," thoroughly covers the ground and solves the problem of the best way for a schoolboy to enjoy his holidays.

OBITUARY

The sad death of Martha L. Stephens occurred at the home of Mr. A. J. Johnston, 19 Denistoun Ave., last night. The deceased was widely known in musical circles throughout the city, and her death will come as a shock to her many friends.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday to the Little Lake cemetery. The deceased leaves one brother, Harry, and three sisters, Mrs. W. H. Eastland, Winnipeg; Mrs. A. J. Johnston and Miss Eva Stephens, both of this city, to mourn her loss.

PRESENTATION TO A SOLOIST

Miss Clara Belleghem Honored by Charlotte St. Choir and Congregation

Miss Clara Belleghem, soloist of the Charlotte street Methodist church, whose marriage to Mr. Bruce Hughes takes place on April 25th, was the recipient of a pleasing pre-nuptial presentation on Friday evening. The gift of the choir was a "tin shower," and that of the congregation a set of Limoges china. An address from the choir was read by Mr. Walter Stocker, and Mr. Collier spoke on behalf of the congregation, expressing appreciation of Miss Belleghem's services. The recipient of the gifts made an appropriate reply acknowledging the kindness of the members of the choir, and congregation.

Miss Belleghem has been soloist of Charlotte street church for several years and having a vocal of unusual ability has assisted greatly in the musical services and in the other departments of the work of the church.

Messrs. Frost and Boyd who are representing this city in the Detroit bowling tournament are doing great work there. Windsor was defeated by them on Saturday by a score of 2781 against 2650. A telegraph to this effect was received by Mr. J. B. Hay, manager of the Peterborough bowling alleys today.

COMMENDABLE AMATEURISM

Professional Lacrosse and Hockey Have Not Proved Their Fitness

Professional lacrosse and hockey have not yet proved their fitness in this country. Mr. J. D. Pratt, of the Winnipeg Rowing Club went so far in a speech the other evening as to state that some of the professional hockey matches in Winnipeg during the past season were decided before they were played. The same accusation has been made in most places where professionalism has found a lodging-place.

The Victoria Hockey Club of Montreal, an amateur organization, has shown an entirely different spirit and one which puts professionalism in a class by itself. This club had had a most successful and profitable season and has donated $1700 to the hospitals of the city. This is an example which might be kept in mind by all ambitious amateur sporting organisations. It is almost ideal in its conception and reflects great credit on the executive officers of the Victoria Hockey Club.—Canadian Courier.

NEWS NOTES FROM BETHEL, EMILY

Special to the Review.

Bethel, April 20.—While our pastor was returning from his morning charge last Sunday he was taken suddenly ill. However, Dr. Thompson very kindly came and conducted the service, in a manner pleasing to all present. We hope Rev. Mr. Buckler will soon be in his usual good health again.

A number of gentlemen of this community have been receiving Leap Year poems, which at first glimpse are eagerly accepted, but, alas, the ladies' names are only forged by person or persons of their own sex.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Switzer intend spending the Easter holidays with their daughters in Midland.

Many of our young gentlemen are at present enjoying pleasant evenings around the sugar bush.

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kerr, sr., on Wednesday, April 1st, at 4 o'clock p.m., when their youngest daughter, Francis, was married to Robert, elder son of Mr. George Ruth, of Omemee. The Rev. R. McCullough, pastor of the Omemee Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of only immediate relatives. The young couple left at a late hour for their new home near Fowler's Corners. We join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Ruth many years of wedded bliss.

YOU ARE THE MAN WE WANT TO SHOE!

SOME MEN, who don't know, have an idea that all Shoes are alike. They think that when they pay $3.00, $3.50, $4.00 or $5.00 for a pair of Shoes that it doesn't make much difference where they buy them, that a shoe is a shoe, and that's all there is to it.

These Men Are Mistaken

It's true that all shoe prices sound about the same, but there is as much difference in the shoes as there is in the men who wear them.

ASKED TO BE SENT BACK TO THE GAOL

Francis McGirr Wanted Another Six Months --- Wish Was Granted

Francis McGirr was at the Police Court this morning and asked his Worship to again send him to gaol for six months. McGirr is without money, home or friends, and for the past two years has resided at Castle Nesbitt. Regularly every six months he is let out, as his term never exceeds the half year. He then has to back to the magistrate to have his run renewed. McGirr is 67 years of age and was born in New Brunswick. He says that he is too weak to work.

His Worship complied with his wish and McGirr after procuring the necessary papers, returned to the gaol.

WOMAN DARED POLICEMAN TO ARREST HER

Man and Wife in Police Court for Disorderly Conduct---Man Was Fined

Disorderly cases seem to be the most popular ones in the police court these days

George Sady and his wife, Jessie Sady, were drunk and disorderly at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer Sts. on Saturday evening. Sady pleaded guilty but his wife positively denied the charge.

P. C. Newhall was called and stated that a large crowd had gathered at the corner and the Sadys were making an awful disturbance. Mrs. Sady threatened to strike the policeman in the face with an umbrella if he dared to arrest her.

"Well, I am not guilty," interjected Mrs. Sady. "I would have walked along all right if the officer had not dragged me."

His Worship fined the husband two dollars and costs, amounting to $5.85 to be paid in ten days. Mrs. Sady was discharged.

Two men that are blacklisted in the local hotels were drunk and disorderly on Good Friday. How they obtained their liquor is not known. One of them was fined two dollars while the other was discharged.

"Had these informations been made out under the new law, regarding blacklisted men," said His Worship, "you both would go to jail."

CHILDREN ARE WELL BROUGHT UP

Five Members of One Family Win Sunday School Prizes

In St. John's Sunday school yesterday afternoon prizes were awarded for general proficiency between Christmas and Easter, Sunday to a number of scholars. A peculiar feature, noted by Superintendent Poe, was that five children all of different classes, but all belonging to the one family won a prize each. The children winning the rewards for regular attendance, good behavior and general proficiency are members of the family of ex-Alderman and Mrs. Crowe. Mr. Poe, in making known the awards to five children of the same family spoke in high terms of the manner in which the children must have been brought up and trained by their parents. Three children of another family by name of Collinson, also were awarded prizes of a similar nature.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS IN THE CITY

Over Two Hundred Attended Mass at St. Peter's This Morning

About one hundred Knights of Columbus are in the city to-day and initiation meetings are being held this afternoon and evening. This morning the local members and visitors, numbering about two hundred, marched to St. Peter's Cathedral, where mass was celebrated by Rev. Dr. O'Brien. Rev. Father Hurley, of St. Michaels' College, Toronto, acted as deacon, and Rev. Father Zinger, President of St. Jerome's College, Berlin, officiated as sub-deacon.

The delegates will leave for home again this evening.

HIS MEMORY IS REVERED

Kingston Friends Send Beautiful Cross to St. John's Church in Remembrance of Rev. W. Tandy

At St. John's church yesterday a large and beautifully arranged floral cross about two feet six inches in length, that was placed at the entrance to the pulpit. This cross was sent to Peterborough as an Easter offering by friends of the departed clergyman, living in Kingston. It will be remembered that the late Mr. Tandy was appointed curate of St. John's church during 1906, but unfortunately contracted the illness that resulted in death after only filling the position for a short time.

CHAMPIONSHIP PEDESTRIAN TOURNAMENT COMMENCES AT BROCK-ST. RINK TO-NIGHT

A CLUSTER OF STARS THAT WOULD BE HARD TO OUTSHINE

Will Start at tournament To-night—The Best of Three Countries—Will Mark Epoch in Peterborough Athletic History.

Tonight marks the opening of an event that has probably caused more comment than any other athletic event ever scheduled to take place or that ever has taken place in Peterborough —the championship pedestrian tournament at the Brock street rink. A big bunch will get away to the starter's signal at 7 o'clock —a much bigger one it is safer to say than will cross the scratch at the conclusion of the tournament on Saturday night.

OF UNPARALLELED IMPORTANCE

As an athletic event it is safe to say that nothing so important has ever been planned for Peterborough. To use the words of Tom Slater, it will be an athletic event of international importance. The foremost of America's professional walkers will take part in the tournament.

TO PICK A WINNER

To pick a winner would be almost an impossible task. By reason of his past performances Hoagland is naturally looked upon as the most likely man but even he is not by any means certain of winning. He says so himself. There are many men who will start who are absolutely unknown to him and may spring as a big a surprise as Hartley did when he astonished the Dominion by making such splendid showings in pedestrianism.

CREAM OF THE LAND

The cream of the United States, Canada and England will participate in the tournament. All three countries will be most worthily represented and the race will be a struggle for supremacy between the worthiest exponents of heel and toe walking that are in the business today.

HOW ABOUT HARTLEY?

The citizens of Peterborough are naturally greatly interested in Hartley and there is much inquiry concerning the chances Hartley has against the famous pedestrians he will have to face. In Kansas City he did some marvellous work on the last day of the walk there and by Herculean efforts succeeded in getting inside the money after having been sick and unfit to walk for quite a portion of the race.

CANADA'S CHAMPION.

At the present time he is looked upon as the champion of Canada. He will have to go some to hold the title if he even does not win the race or comes within the money. It's pretty safe to predict however, that the painter pedestrian will be within the money when the grind is completed. He has the best wishes of the people of Peterborough who would like nothing better than to see him win.

COMPLETE PREPARATIONS

All preparations have been made for the tournament and the public are assured of seeing it conducted on a thoroughly satisfactory and business like way. The walkers are eminently satisfied with the arrangements and not a single complaint has been made by them. They have expressed every confidence in the management and think the tournament will be a most successful one.

THE TICKETS

The price of the season tickets are $1 and these will admit the holder to the rink at any time during the walk. They are the cheapest means of admission. The general admission tickets is 25c.

It should be distinctly understood that the season tickets are not transferable and entitle the holder only, to admission to the tournament

THE PROGRAMME

The programme of the walk has been published on a couple of occasions but is again given below for ready reference;

Monday—7 pm to 11 pm.
Tuesday—7 pm. to 11 pm.
Wednesday—1 pm. to 11 pm.
Thursday—7 pm. to 11 pm.
Friday—7 pm. to 11 pm.
Saturday—1 pm. to 11 pm.

DAVID HARTLEY
Peterborough's Champion Walker.

THE INJUNCTION TROUBLE IS SATISFACTORILY SETTLED

Everything has been satisfactorily settled between the Peterborough Hockey Club, Limited, and Sheridan and Henderson regarding the use of the Brock street rink for the walking match. The case was argued before His Honor Judge Weller this afternoon and an order was given cancelling the lease of the rink held by Sheridan and Henderson and ordering that no further action may be taken by either party. Mr. A. P. Poussette, KC., appeared for Sheridan and Henderson and Hall, Medd and Davidson for the Hockey Club.

In connection with the case it may be stated that Sheridan and Henderson leased the rink for the purpose of converting it into a roller rink for the summer months. This was not done, however, and the rent was only paid for three months. The Hockey Club then took action to secure the rent for the remaining months of the lease and secured judgment against the roller rink people.

The lease, however, was not cancelled nor was the amount contained in the judgment, paid.

When the Hockey Club rented the rink for the walking tournament this spring, Sheridan and Henderson took out an injunction to prevent it being used for that purpose. Judge Weller's ruling this afternoon was that the lease be cancelled and that the plaintiffs in the present case need not pay the amount of the judgment secured against them last fall.

COOPER APPEARS DANGEROUS; BRILLIANT ENGLISH WALKER

Jack Cooper, who arrived in the city from Toronto, Saturday night, should make the walkers travel some for the first night at any rate! Cooper is an Englishman by birth and a former member of the Surrey and Essex Walking Clubs of London, England.

MADE GOOD IN ENGLAND.

He has been in a large number of important amateur walks in England and in one professional contest. He has made a splendid reputation for himself and is looked upon as a likely competitor. He has not tried his luck at long distance walking, but has proved a brilliant pedestrian in shorter distance events.

25 MILES IN FOUR HOURS.

Twenty-five miles in four hours is exceptionally good time. And that accomplishment Cooper can lay just claim to. For this reason he is looked upon as a formidable first-nighter. About twenty-two miles is looked upon as being the limit for the opening night of the week at Brock street rink. Some of the more optimistic have doped out that twenty-four miles will be covered. This is covering the distance at six miles an hour for the whole four hours and means a whirlwind clip.

THINKS HE CAN STAY.

Cooper thinks he will get away with some almost unbeatable ones in Hoagland, Slater, Hartley and the rest of them, but is in fine fettle for the battle and has trained so as to take no chances. He thinks he will be able to stand the grind and in view of his record in the Old Land his performance here will be watched with interest.

DR. JOHNSTON'S "UNKNOWN" IS FORMER STAR RUNNER

Dr. Johnston's "Unknown" is no longer unknown, but is none other than R. J. Hatton, of Toronto, who was one of Canada's crack runners. He has not walked, however, since 1890, but the news of the great tournament to be held here awoke the old fire in his veins again and he steadied down to train for walk.

He has been in many heel and toe and go-as-you-please contests and participated with a measure of success in some noteworthy events.

HAS RUN A GREAT DEAL.

Rather than walking, however, Hatton's long suit has been running. He has defeated such men as Ed. Alburta and Jack Rain, of Ottawa; Dave Woods, of Galt and other first rank Canadian steppers and several good ones from across the line.

IS 50 YEARS OF AGE.

Hatton was born in Beaton, Ont., 50 years ago last 13th of December, and went to Toronto in 1879. He is 5 feet 6 inches in height and weighs 125 pounds in walking trim.

"I am not out for my health," said Hatton, "and will win if possible. I will be there at the finish next Saturday night."

BOY WALKER FROM AUBURN WILL TRY FOR THE MONEY

Ray Fenton, from Auburn, NY., is the youngest walker here from a distance. Fenton says he is 19 years of age and although he looks slightly older it is well known that appearances are often deceptive. Fenton is of slim build, standing 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighing about 140 pounds. He has been training for nine years although he has only taken part in actual contests for the past three years figuring in nine, altogether four of which were amateur and five professional. He has walked mostly at Auburn, his home town, in events from one to three miles.

FENTON'S RECORD

Fenton's professional record is as follows;

December 11th, 1907 — Walked against Jack Baston, of Auburn, the latter being on roller skates. Fenton was given a mile and a half handicap while in a three mile event Baston doing the distance on roller skates, Fenton won by a very few feet.

January 23rd—Beat Rose, of Syracuse in a one mile race, winning by three laps.

Feb. 7th—Won by less than a foot from Frank Holihand in a mile walk

Feb. 11th—Lost to George Brown by half a lap in a three mile race.

Feb. 22nd—In a three mile race he was beaten by Brown by 5 feet.

FIRST BIG RACE.

The tournament at Brock street will be the first big race in which Fenton will have ever taken part. He says he is in good condition and realizes that he is up against a field that will make him travel at a limit clip.

Despite the fact that he has had no experience in such events he is anxious to get into the game in a big way and so is willing to take his chances against America's best.

Teacher—What is the meaning of elocution, Harold? Pupil: It is the way people are put to death in the States.

NO PRACTICE THIS EVENING

The Buglers and Drummers of the 57th, will not practice to-night. They are requested, however, to be at the drill shed on Tuesday night at 7.15.

By order,
Sergts. Hughes and Miles.

STRATHCONAS WILL SCORE

The members of the Strathconas who have been asked to score to-night at the walk have kindly consented to do so. They were asked to officiate in that capacity by Mr. J. S. Knapman, the chief scorer.

ORGANIZED A BASEBALL NINE

Jr. Brotherhood Chapter of St John's Have Team

The Junior Brotherhood Chapter of John's church have organized a baseball nine and are prepared to meet teams of their own age.

The officers elected are as follows;

President—Mr. J. S. Bell.
Vice-President—Percy Parrington.
Sec.-Treas.—J. F. Linton.
Manager—Frank Halpany.

The team committee consists of the officers.

ANOTHER FROM OLD ENGLAND

Walter Harrow Has Arrived for Championship Tournament

Walter Harrow, of Sudbury, who lays claim to be being an English walker of note is in the city for the tournament. Harrow is one of the first men who forwarded his entry and expressed himself as being particularly anxious to start.

The field is ever increasing and it will be a large and fast bunch that will get away to the starter's word.

ABOUT THE WALK

Those will start:—Hartley, Stevens, Brooks, Graham, Hoagland, Slater, Cooper, Blake, Hatton, Skinner, Harrison, Naughton, Fenton and others have yet to call at the rink to make final arrangements.

The doors open at six o'clock. The band will play in front of the rink at 6.45. The walkers start in tiers of three at 7.

MR. EASTWOOD IS SELECTED

As Representative for the Walkers---Were After Their Share of the Money

At a meeting of the walkers Mr. Vincent Eastwood, manager of the Royal Bank was selected as their representative and treasurer and will look after their share of the receipts. Mr. Eastwood will receive the walkers' money after each day of the race and will deposit it in the Royal Bank for division after the walk on conditions agreed upon. Mr. David Hartley was in the chair and Mr. Tom Slater acted as secretary.

THE CONDITIONS.

The conditions that were agreed upon the division of the prize money are as follows;

Any starter to get inside the money must walk 162 miles.

If only one man goes the limit he will receive all; if two go the limit the purse will be divided at 60 and 40 per cent.; if three go, at 50, 30 and 20 per cent.; if four go, at 50, 25, 15 and 6 per cent., the remaining 4 per cent. to be divided between the second, third and fourth finishers. If five finish the division will be 50, 25, 15, 6 and 4 per cent.

GIVEN TO TREASURER

The conditions were written out and handed to the treasurer of the tournament, Mr. C. G. Graham. The money will be paid over at the conclusion of the walk by the walkers' representative, Mr. Eastwood by order from Mr. Graham.

Numbers were issued to each of the walkers and will correspond with numbers used to represent them for scoring purposes.

LACROSSE

Ottawa, April 18.—Ald. Wm. Foran, chairman of the lacrosse committee of the Olympic sports, says that there is no chance of the Vancouver of New Westminster teams being sent to represent Canada at London this summer.

The British Columbia teams, it appears, have declared themselves amateurs and suggested that the pick of their men be sent across the water. A request to this effect is understood to be on the way east now.

Mr. Foran, however, states that the team to be picked is a thoroughly representative one from all parts of the Dominion where lacrosse is played.

FOUR TEAMS IN MIDLAND LEAGUE

There will be four teams in the Midland League this year. Peterborough Ball Club, Peterborough Athletics, Cobourg and Port Hope. These teams were entered at the annual meeting of the Midland League at Port Hope on Friday afternoon. The Athletics were admitted on motion of Messrs. A. Johnston and Corney Burns.

Two local men were elected to office, Messrs. Barry Morgan and Fred A. Clarke being chosen as first and second vice-president respectively.

MAYOR RUSH WILL ATTEND

His Worship and Several of the Council Will be at Walk To-night

His Worship Mayor Rush will be present at the opening of the walking tournament tonight. Several members of the council have also stated that they will be present. It is pleasing to see the head of this city and his public spirited advisers taking such an interest in the event.

REYNOLDS HERE TO REFEREE

Port Hope Barber and Spencely to Handle Race

Jimmy Reynolds, of Port Hope, arrived in the city this morning to act as referee for the tournament in conjunction with Mark Spencley.

Reynolds is a man who understands the game thoroughly and should make an ideal referee. His assistant, Mark Spencley, has figured in various pedestrian events and is capable and square.

DOG TURNED AND BIT HIS RESCUER

Local Ball Player Gets Poor Reward for Kindly Act

"That's gratitude," is the way "Friz" O'Brien, the fast fielder of the Peterborough Baseball Club, is singing these days. And the reason why hangs a tale. "Friz" was out walking yesterday with a friend and was strolling in the vicinity of Little Lake. A little dog had fallen into the water and would have been drowned had not "Friz" come to the rescue. He leaned over and, catching the dog by the back of the neck, pulled him out. The canine resented the liberties the ball player was taking, and while he was pulling him out bit his rescuer on the hand. The injury is a most painful one, but "Friz" expects to be able to play ball just as soon as the season opens.

THEY WILL TALK ABOUT MISSIONS

Interesting Addresses Will be Given at Bethany Tabernacle

Miss Alice Kirkland of South Africa, arrived on the noon train to give a missionary address at Bethany Tabernacle this afternoon on "Opportunities in South Africa." Mrs. Spencer Walton will arrive in time for the evening service. Both ladies have acted a prominent part in missions and should receive a hearty welcome in Peterborough. The song service will begin at 7.45. The public generally is cordially invited.

RECIPE FOR CATARRH

Easily Eradicated by Using Simple Home-Made Mixture.

Here is a sample prescription which drives from the blood and system every vestige of catarrhal poison with remarkable promptness. To prepare the mixture: Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon and three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This is a harmless mixture, which has a peculiar action upon the eliminative tissues in the kidneys, assisting them to filter and strain from the blood and system the catarrhal poisons, which, if not eradicated, are absorbed by the mucous membrane, and an open sore or catarrh is the result.

This remarkably simple recipe has been the means of relieving thousands of men and women of this foul and dangerous disease, and every sufferer here should give it a test, as it is not expensive nor unpleasant to the taste.

Prepare some and try it, anyway, as it is certain to do much good, if only to purify and sweeten the blood; though it may prove just what your system requires to overcome the catarrhal condition.

LORD'S DAY ACT IN YUKON.

Mounted Police Ordered Not to Prosecute Offenders.

The question of prosecuting for violations of the Lord's Day Act in the Yukon came before the Department of Justice during the past summer on reference from the Mounted Police authorities, and the correspondence was laid before the House of Commons recently. A number of complaints were sent to Ottawa by the police officers at Dawson with reference to work or business done on Sunday in that city. Mr. Newcombe, Deputy Minister of Justice, writing to Col White, said: The Minister does not consider that the police officers are under any larger obligation with regard to the enforcement of the Lord's Day Act than as to any other criminal statute, and in his opinion the duty of those charged with the enforcement of the criminal law in the Yukon Territory will be discharged if adequate attention is paid to any complaint that may be preferred. The procedure under the Lord's Day Act differs from the procedure under the ordinary criminal statutes, inasmuch as it is provided that no action or prosecution for a violation of the Act shall be commenced without the leave of the Attorney-General. Consequently, when any complaint is made of any violation of this Act it may be referred to this Department for consideration, and the complainant should be required to state carefully the particulars of the offence and the ground upon which he seeks leave to institute prosecution. He should also give due notice to the person against whom it is desired to proceed, so that the latter may have an opportunity to present any fact or circumstances which he may desire as showing that it is unjust or inexpedient to authorize a prosecution. Upon receipt of any such complaint and statement with evidence of notice the matter will be duly considered by this Department and the consent of the Attorney-General given or withheld as the circumstances seem to require.

SITE OF QUEBEC BRIDGE.

Scene of Disaster Has Many Historical Associations.

There are few more historic sites in Canada than that of the late ill-fated Quebec bridge. Its abutment on the one side is close to the mouth of the famous Chaudiere, down which descended Arnold's army in its unsuccessful expedition against Quebec in 1775, while that on the other is between the historic settlements of Sillery, M. de Maisonneuve and Mademoiselle Mance spent their first Canadian winter with the colonists intended to found Montreal. At Sillery Cove the Jesuit Fathers were wont to assemble and instruct the Algonquin and Montagnais Indians who were desirous of becoming Christians. It was from that spot that the neophytes carried the faith to the depths of the forest. It was here that the missionaries congregated before starting with the joyous message for the country of the Hurons, for the shores of the Mississippi, or for the frozen regions of Hudson Bay. Thence went Father P. Druillettes, the bearer of words of peace on behalf of the Christians of Sillery to the Abenaquis of Kennebec, and to the Puritans of Boston. Near this same mission of Sillery Friar Liegeois was massacred by the Iroquois, whilst Father Poncet was carried away a captive by these barbarous tribes. It was also at Cap Rouge that Jacques Cartier established his quarters, close to the water's edge, during the second winter he spent in Canada, and was succeeded in the same spot by Roberval, at the head of his ephemeral colony. Near the mouth of the Chaudiere, on the opposite shore of the river stood the tents of the Abenaquis, the Etchemins, and the Souriquois Indians, when they came from the shores of New England by way of the Chaudiere to smoke the calumet of peace with their French allies.

Passing of the Old Landmarks.

One by one the towering tops and gnarled trunks of the trees which were familiar landmarks to the boys and girls of a past generation have disappeared from side road and concession. The giant elm that was second "bunk" in the ball ground at the corners near the seventh line school trembled a moment in the gale of one stormy autumn, the weakened roots yielded to the strain, and a resounding crash was heard above the roaring gale as the hoary veteran passed into the shadows whence it had come. The beech on the side road, from the limbs of which the children of a thousand yesterday had gathered nuts, and that carried on its trunk the scars left by knives in hands now far away, was shivered by a bolt in one of those fierce electric storms which form such a striking contrast to the usual calm of a Canadian summer. One by one the branches withered and decayed on the towering pine that in years gone by stood out against the sky-line where the road began its descent into the valley of the river on the other side of the hill, and at last the dry trunk yielded to the fire enemy it had defied in its vigorous growth. To-day the grassy sward, with its mantle of white, hides even the site on which these kings of the forest once stood.

Other trees there are now. Long lines of spruce break the force of the north wind, and for mile after mile the road is lined with a double row of maples. These will grow into and become a part of the lives of the young whose journey has but begun; but for those whose shadows are lengthening beneath the setting sun, the landscape has lost in the passing of the old landmarks something which can never be replaced.—Toronto Weekly Sun.

Walrus Whiskers.

Nature has armed the walrus with bushy whiskers of amazing stiffness. These when dried form the most perfect of natural toothpicks, and quite an industry has grown up in their collection and sale. They are expensive, costing, wholesale, a penny apiece.

Wild horses in thousands are overrunning the National forests of Nevada.

SHAW SAYS DESPOT MUST DIE.

Irishman Analyzes Causes of Political Assassinations.

George Bernard Shaw, writing about the appalling frequency of political assassinations, after reviewing those since Alexander II. of Russia and referring to that of Charles I., says:

"Let me try to bring the question home to England. For 200 years our monarchs have run no risks. Our kings have adopted a liberal attitude so completely that we have forgotten that it still is possible for kings to do what the late King of Portugal did.

"Our revolutions have been the general elections, swinging the pendulum between the Whigs and Tories, but the twentieth century brings a new force into the field—Socialism. Private property at present is supreme over both King and Parliament, and may, within the lifetime of many now living, be defending is last ditch.

"Suppose the next four general elections show such a steady increase of Socialists in Parliament as to make it a practical certainty that the fifth general election would place them in majority.

"Suppose the only way of averting that would be to repeal the last two great reform acts or the introduction of the three class system, with the establishment of a Franco dictatorship to suppress public demonstrations against the measures.

"Suppose the propertied classes of the Government of the day should compel the reigning monarch to countenance these proceedings.

"Suppose he, having taken a political bias, not like Edward in the heyday of Victorian liberalism, but in the heyday of jingo Imperialism, and were to throw himself heart and soul into the attack on democracy.

"What should we do? What would our remedy be against the King?

"The English answer so far is 'kill him.'

"The French answer so far is 'kill him.'

"The Russian answer so far is 'kill him.'

"The Portuguese answer so far is 'kill him.'

"The ancient Roman answer glorified to the utmost of his power by our greatest poet was 'kill him.'

"No sane humane person can be satisfied with that answer, but it stands and will continue to stand until a better one is found."

Silent Maxim Gun.

A remarkable apparatus has been invented by an Indian official, which seems likely to revolutionize machine gun fire. The object of the invention is to silence the tell-tale noise of the machine gun, thus increasing its value in the field.

The inventor is Mr. Alfred Thompson, who is serving on the Indian establishment as chief examiner of machine guns.

The instant crack of the Maxim is reduced by the invention to a slight detonation, which is indistinguishable beyond a range of 500 yards. At present machine gun fire can be heard thousands of yards off, and no matter how good or rapid it may be, the field batteries discover the guns and rout them before they can become a danger.

The role of the machine gun is, therefore, one of secret opportunity to strike a body of troops by surprise with 600 shots per minute, as with the Maxim, and then lie low. But if the gun can operate in silence its possibilities are sensibly widened, not only by reason of its demoralizing effect, but because a steady, non-overheating discharge of 100 a minute can be maintained from time to time throughout an action.

Mr. Thompson's apparatus can be attached to a Maxim in a couple of minutes. It weighs 16 pounds, and is less than a foot in length. The Maxim authorities have submitted it to the Home Government.

Lion Liked Kilts.

A droll sensation, if the description may be pardoned, was witnessed at Collins' Fun City, Old Gill street market, Liverpool, when Miss Carrie Baker, a barmaid, entered the den in which a magnificent lion, by name Wallace, was confined. The young lady was dressed in Highland costume, and to win a wager of $250 she was to dance for Wallace. She entered the cage boldly, and started a hornpipe, going through her steps with conspicuous skill and ability. Scottish bagpipes played lively tunes in the arena, but Wallace bore up well, merely roaring his applause. Miss Baker was accompanied into the lion's den by Maccomo, the tamer. After Miss Baker had gone through her act she came quietly out of the den, the lion glancing sadly at the retreating kilts. So successful was the exhibition that the proprietors decided at once to engage Miss Baker to enter the lion's den nightly until further notice. Miss Baker, of course, won the wager, and was presented by the proprietor with a check for that amount. When an attempt was made by another person to enter the adjoining den of a tigress the result was not so peaceful, though happily no ill results followed.

Will Sacrifice Beard.

When it was noticed that Oliver Cromwell was to be excluded from the list of characters figuring in the London pageant W. T. Stead entered a protest, vigorously telling the committee that this would boycott "the greatest man in English history." The committee replied it would include Cromwell if Stead would appear in a part. Stead gladly consented, though it involves the sacrifice of an ample beard which has never yet known a razor and was never even trimmed till Stead was past 40, but Stead declares he would shave his head.

London Workingmen Walk.

Directors of the London (Eng.) underground tubes railways are baffled to find an explanation of the decrease in traffic. As the surface systems, trains, and buses make the same complaint, competition does not seem a sufficient explanation. During the same time the total decrease in passengers on the railways within London was 13,000,000.

Thomas Honeysett of Hamilton was sentenced to six months for refusing to support his wife.

CURIOUS TRIBAL CUSTOMS.

Wild Race of Papua In Which Women Have Much Influence.

A Methodist missionary in British New Guinea—now known as Papua—Rev. W. E. Brownlow, has added to the world's knowledge of the curious and little brown races of the great north Pacific island by the discovery and partial taming of a new tribe.

The race in question consists of about 20,000 blacks, living at a place called Dobu. The customs of the race are most curious. The immigration policy is more drastic than that of "White Australia," for all strangers have either to become full members of the tribe or be eaten. When dealing with Mr. Brownlow, however, the difficulty was got over by making him a father of the tribe.

In an interview in Sydney Mr. Brownlow gave some interesting particulars of the Dobuans' standard of civilization. The Dobuan land laws, he said, were an example to modern countries. Each tribe and each family had their own land and no portion was allowed to go out of their possession except as a loan for a season's crop. The men married out of their own tribe and on their death their land became the property of their sisters' children, and so it was handed down from generation to generation within the tribe.

Women have great influence in the affairs of the tribe, and their duties are quite distinct from those of the men. The men clear the bush and dig the ground, then the women prepare it and plant yams, the crop being theirs. If a man wanted any yams he had to ask for them. The banana patch, however, was his own property. Wives were obtained by purchase. If a man paid well for his wife he could thrash her occasionally, but she could leave him if she did not like it and go back to her own village, where she still had a home.

In the religion of the people, continued Mr. Brownlow, there was something of ancestral worship. A deceased relative was regarded as sacred and his name must not be mentioned on pain of death. An exception was made in the case of any one being ill and given up by the medicine man. The latter might then call upon the name of an ancestor, invoking him to bring back the spirit of the dying man. Their heaven was a place where the healthy, strong and good-looking went. All the others went to hell. They believe in a being who created them, but left them alone afterward.

Czar Names Ambassador.

St. Petersburg, April 20.—Emperor Nicholas has approved the appointment of Senator Malevsky-Malavitch to be Russian Ambassador to Japan. The diplomatic post at Tokio has just been raised from a legation to an embassy.

Robbed of $5,000.

Montreal, April 20.—Samuel Sleichman of Duluth, Minn., arrived in the city yesterday in search of a man who, he says, robbed him of $5,000 in a card game. Sleichman claims that in a meeting with two other men in an hotel in Duluth, one of the strangers suggested a few hands of poker. This he agreed to, but soon found he was being beaten out of every dollar he had.

After the game, Sleichman claims he discovered the cards were marked. He placed the case in the hands of the Duluth police, but nothing being done, he began the search himself.

The only clue for him to work on was a letter addressed from one of the card sharps to his wife in Montreal. Sleichman is confident he will find his man.

Miners to Resume.

Pittsburg, April 20.—The miners and operators of the Pittsburg district arrived home from Toledo, Ohio, yesterday. Both sides are well pleased that the trouble has been brought to a conclusion. President Feehan of the miners said:

"Work will be started to-day by the miners of the district pending the final adjustment of the scale. Between 32,900 and 34,000 men will go back to the mines this week, and I have every reason to believe that they will stay there for the next two years. The operators appeared to be quite fair, and were desirous of having harmony prevail."

Welcome the Fleet.

Los Angeles, Calif., April 20.—Los Angeles sent more than 100,000 of its residents to the oceanside Saturday to welcome the American battleship fleet, which steamed into San Pedro harbor, 22 miles away, in the full radiance of a midsummer sun and dropped anchor at 3.30 p.m.

Last night the fleet was illuminated, hulls, superstructures, turrets and yard arms being outlined in electric bulbs.

Opium Sellers Draw Lots.

Shanghai, April 20.—The Chinese opium sellers drew lots among themselves yesterday to decide which of them should close on July 1, according to the resolution passed by the taxpayers on March 21.

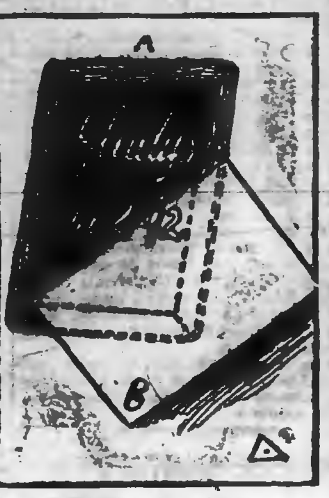
It is understood that all of the shops will be closed by the end of the year.

Young Folks

TRICK WITH A SLATE.

A Simple Yet Mystifying Feat of Parlor Magic.

An ordinary slate, such as children write on, is shown to the audience. To prove that nothing is written upon it both sides are rubbed with a wet sponge. A chair is brought to the foreground, the seat of which is covered with a black cloth. Then the performer asks any girl in the audience to be kind enough to give her first name and offers to let the slate guess the date of her birth. After the name is given the performer places the slate on the chair and lays a piece of chalk upon it. After making a few motions over the slate to indicate that the writing is going on the performer lifts up the slate, and, behold, one side of the slate shows the correct name and date of birth.



SLATE AND COVER SHEET.

This seems to be a trick hard to explain, but nevertheless it is a very simple one. Take a plain slate, on one side of which the name and the date are previously written. A friend of the performer is instructed to call the name so quickly that no one else can get ahead of him. All that is left to do is to secrete the name and date on the slate until it is time for it to appear. To do this you will have to get a piece of cardboard fitting exactly over the black part of the slate, both sides of which are covered smoothly with black slate paper. Sheet B is laid over the side of the slate, with the writing on it (A). Place the slate, with the sheet over it, face down on the chair. When you are going to show the secret writing to the audience, lift the slate in such a way that the sheet stays upon the black cloth, where it, being black, too, cannot be discerned.—Washington Star.

FACTS ABOUT THE SUN.

How It Compares With the Earth in Size and Density.

Children, when you feel the warmth and see the light of the mysterious body we call sun do you know that its density does not compare with that of our own world? The sun in size equals 1,300,000 of our planet, while in weight it would take only about 332,000 earths to weigh it down to an even balance. Thus you will readily see that our earth is of much heavier substance than is the sun. In fact, the latter body is not much denser than water.

Some conception of the immensity of the sun's distance from us may first be gained from Professor Mendenhall's whimsical illustration. Sensation, according to Helmholtz's experiments, travels at the rate of about 100 feet per second. If, then, an infant were born with an arm long enough to reach to the sun and on the day of his birth he were to exercise this amazing limb by putting his finger upon the solar surface he would die in blissful ignorance of the fact that he had been burned, for the sensation of burning would take 150 years to travel along that stupendous arm.

In diameter the sun is about 866,000 miles, and were it hollowed out till its crust remained but a shell our own earth could be placed in its center, allowing room for our moon to travel in its regular orbit, which is distant from the earth 244,000 miles, and outside of which another satellite could have an orbit at a distance of 190,000 miles from the moon.—Washington Post.

Taking the cents of the meeting. Passing around the hat.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Rotting of Potatoes.

The rotting of potatoes in storage is often a source of serious loss. The infection of the potatoes with the fungus occurs chiefly if not entirely in the field before digging. The infection is usually the result of diseased vines. The disease is transmitted in the majority of cases not directly through the vine, but indirectly through the soil. Potatoes may be infected directly in the field from spores introduced in the manure or from rotten potatoes spread upon or left in the land the preceding year.—C. D. Woods.

The No Grog Law.

In July, 1862, congress revolutionized the American navy by passing the historic law providing:

"That from and after the 1st day of September, 1862, the spirit ration in the navy of the United States shall forever cease, and thereafter no distilled spirituous liquors shall be admitted on board of vessels of war except as medical stores and upon the order and under the control of the medical officers of such vessels and to be used only for medical purposes.

"From and after the 1st day of September next there shall be allowed and paid to each person in the navy now entitled to the spirit ration 5 cents per day in commutation and lieu thereof, which shall be in addition to the present pay."

And since that day there has been no "grog" in the United States navy.

Where She Comes In.

"I suppose," said Mrs. Jawback, "that you think it's fun for me to sit up and wait for you every night like this."

"Nope," answered Jawback. "I'm having my fun while you're waiting. You have yours when I get home."—Cleveland Leader.

TEMPLE BAND CONCERTS DREW LARGE AUDIENCE

S.A. Barracks Was Crowded on Saturday Evening—Excellent Programme Rendered—A Splendid Musical Organization.

The Salvation Army barracks was crowded to the doors last evening, when an excellently rendered programme was given by the Temple Band, of Toronto. The band is recognized as one of the finest musical organizations in the Dominion, and they certainly evidenced this last night. The programme was given in two parts, and every number was given in such splendid manner that they called forth rounds of applause from the audience. So excellently rendered was each selection that it would be unfair to especially refer to any particular one.

Bandmaster McGrath is to be congratulated on the splendid band which he has gotten together, and under his continued training it is bound to attain its high standing among the finest musical organizations in Canada.

Staff-Capt. Walton, who is in charge of the Temple Band, conducted the opening devotional exercises at the musical festival last evening.

The programme rendered was as follows:—

PART I.

EASTER MUSIC AT ST. PETERS

Was the Best Ever Given by St. Peters Choir---Miss Doherty Deserves Much Credit

At the Pontifical High Mass at 10.30 the choir sang in a very brilliant manner, Festival Mass by Wiegand, the solos being sung with expression and sweetness morning and evening by Misses L. Hallihan, A. Simons, E. Primeau, M. Young, J. Delaire, A. Primeau, N. Simons and L. Kelly.

The male singers rendered the various selections admirably.

Messrs. J. Wyer, E. Keon, J. King, J. Picard, J. Hay, H. Quinlan and J. Mervier.

The ofertory number deserves special mention, it being a trio, "Jesu Dei Vivi," by Verdi. Misses L. Hallihan, A. Simons and Mr. J. King, taking the solo parts. In the evening at 7 Tedescos' Musical Vespers were sung.

Hymn. Regina Coeli, Lambillotte, O. Salutaris. Male quartette composed of Messrs. J. Hay, J. Wyer, E. Keon, J. King, this number given splendidly, their voices blending in a very harmonious manner.

Tantum Ergo, by Millard, solo by Miss L. Hallihan, whose beautiful soprano voices was heard to great advantage, chorus by the whole choir.

The Easter music was superior to any heard for some time at St. Peter's, the choir exceeding themselves at both services.

Miss M. Doherty, the organist and choir leader, deserves much credit for the success of the music at yesterday's services.

EASTER SUNDAY AT ST. LUKE'S

Large Congregations at the Services---Music Was Excellent

Yesterday was a red letter day at St. Luke's church, and the Easter services were attended by large congregations. The Holy Eucharist was celebrated by the Rector at 7 and 8 and at 12, and about 250 people partook of the Holy Sacrament. Baptismal service was held at 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., and several children were baptized.

The Rector preached at the 11 a. a. service on the "Significance of the Resurrection," and at the evening service he spoke on "The Bright and Morning Star," which he applied to the Resurrection of Christ, as heralding the "Son in its Strength" at the second advent.

The choir under the able leadership of Miss Charlotte English, rendered joyful music. The anthem, "Break Forth Into Joy," was exceptionally well sung, owing to the splendid training the choir had received from Mr. Rupert Gliddon of the Conservatory. Miss Ruth Dawson and Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., took the solo parts in splendid manner. Both at morning and evening prayer, Miss Ruth Dawson sang "Eastertide," in excellent voice.

The ofertory, as is the custom at St. Luke's, was most generous, $425 being given during the day, not counting the special self-denial offerings given on each Sunday during Lent. The Rector, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, had a busy day. He officiated at various services at St. Luke's, at 7, 8, 10, 12, 6 and 7, and also officiated at St. Mark's, Otonabee, at 3 p. m.

The Easter vestry meeting at St. Luke's church will be held to-night at 8 o'clock. A large attendance is requested. St. Luke's would appear to be in an exceptionally prosperous condition.

LITANY DESK WAS DEDICATED

At Morning Service at All Saints' Church Yesterday

A Litany desk was dedicated by Rev. Wm. Major at the morning service at All Saints' church yesterday. It is made of solid oak, handsomely finished and is the gift of a member of the congregation. It is a valuable addition to the church furniture.

MEN'S MEETING AT THE Y.M.C.A.

Three Young Men Gave Addresses Yesterday

The men's meeting yesterday afternoon was not as well attended as usual, although a fairly large number was present.

Short addresses on personal work were delivered by Messrs. W. Warne, "Sandy" Hall and Dr. Middleton.

The first speaker's theme was "Individual work for the individual," mentioning three classes of persons who might be approached, regarding spiritual matters. (a) Skeptics. (b) Children, who are more easily reached and therefore more encouraging for the worker and (c) Fellows our own age.

Mr. Hall pressed the point that all persons were willing to discuss religious subjects and mentioned his experience with Western Canadians, who would not tolerate anything sensational, but always gave a hearing to a strong quiet speaker.

Dr. Middleton dealt with the view of many Christians, that they were unfit personally. He showed they were not offering themselves, but Christ, and therefore should not hesitate to point men to the better way.

CROWDS WERE TURNED AWAY FROM BARRACKS

Most Successful Day in History of Local S. A. Corps---Rev. J. G. Potter Gave Address at Early Morning Service

Yesterday was an exceedingly busy day at the Salvation Army barracks, four splendid meetings having been held, and each one was attended with great success. Staff Captain Walton conducted all the services and the Temple band again in the afternoon gave one of their excellent concerts.

Each day was well begun by local Salvationists. At 6.30 in the morning a large turnout of the corps paraded the streets with the local and visiting bands. At 7 o'clock a largely attended service was held at the barracks, at which the Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's church, delivered an earnest and forcible address. Rev. Mr. Potter's remarks were very interesting and were much enjoyed by those who heard him. The members of the corps are looking forward with pleasure to the time when Mr. Potter will again consent to speak to them.

At 11 o'clock yesterday morning Staff.-Capt. Walton spoke on "Holiness."

Not for some time has the barracks been so crowded as it was yesterday afternoon. Every seat was taken, and many were obliged to stand. The Temple band gave an excellent programme of sacred selections that was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present.

Again last night the barracks was packed to the doors, when a meeting that was productive of much good was conducted. At the close there were three who came to the front and signified their intention to lead a better life. Staff.-Capt. Walton spoke at this service, dealing with the Bible story of "Christ at Jacob's Well." He drew from it many lessons which gave to his hearers in an interesting manner, urging sinners to repentance, to come to Christ and drink of that life giving stream in which was found redemption and forgiveness for all sin.

The people responded liberally to the cause of the Army yesterday, the total collections amounting to over one hundred dollars.

AT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Yesterdays Services Were Especially Interesting

The subject yesterday at the First Church of Christ, Scientists, 378 Aylmer street, was "Doctrine of Atonement." The lesson text was from Romans, chap. 8. The scripture lesson read was John chap. 20, Benediction, Romans, 5, 1-2. The music consisted of three hymns from the Christian Science Hymnal: "Saw, ye my Saviour," written by Mary B. G. Eddy, "alone from sin and death we flee," and No. 27, "Take up thy cross, the Saviour said, if thou wouldst my disciple be."

After the announcements a solo was very acceptably rendered by Miss Gracie Todd, "Christ has opened Paradise," C. B. Hawley.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES

TRAPPERS HAVE VERY GOOD LUCK

Many Muskrats Being Caught Along the Scugog

The trapping season which commenced the other day, it is said by those in the business, is likely to be one of the best in years. Messrs. Dickson and Bushnell have already secured some 180 rat skins and one large and very valuable mink. Fifty-eight rats were secured in one night.

Harry Bryans has secured over a hundred rat skins, and Taylor, the Indian, has 120 up to date. There are altogether some fifty trappers on the waters who expect to have a very successful season. They are incidentally losing no time in view of the fact that the season ends May 1st.—Lindsay Post.

SCENE FROM "RAFFLES, THE AMATEUR CRACKSMAN."

"Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman" the interesting play which will serve to introduce S. Miller Kent to his friends at the Grand next Wednesday is not merely a study in criminology. Nor are the four acts after the disappearance of Lady Melrose's $1,000,000 diamond necklace taken up entirely with the battle of craft and cunning between the gentleman burglar and Captain Bedford, the detective. Along with the exciting physchological exposition of a man's responsibility—or lack of it—for wrong-doing, is a love story of unusual romance and tenderness. Although Raffles is a thief he has a heart which he loses to Gwendolyn Conron. Raffles has a struggle with himself on this account which renders the character dramatic to a point of pathos, and of irresistable fascination for the spectator. A born criminal, with an inherited cerebral affliction, craving excitement that ordinary life cannot give, yet with the longings and hopes born of innate refinement and gentility, he sees in the love of a good woman his best chance of redemption. Gwendolyn loves Raffles even before she is sure he loves her. It is an intensely powerful scene when their mutual love is confessed and Raffles reveals to the amazed girl his real identity. Handsome, graceful and subtle, Kent, with his polished art, splendid figure and features, is an ideal Raffles. The erotic element in the play is complicated by the facts that Raffles' chum "Bunny" loves Gwendolyn and the burglar feeling his own unworthiness, at first pleads Bunny's cause with the girl. But, as in the case of Miles Standish and Priscilla, the Puritan maiden, the proxy is finally induced to speak for himself.

KILLED IN TRAIN SMASH; BAD EXCURSION WRECK

Excursionists Meet Death in Collision Near Melbourne—Disaster in Australia—Forty-one Killed and Sixty Injured—Wreckage Took Fire.

Melbourne, Australia, April 21—Two excursion trains collided Sunday night at Braybrook Junction, a village about seven miles west of this city.

Several carriages were telescoped and it is believed that 27 people were killed and about 40 injured.

The actual number has not been definitely ascertained, as the wreckage took fire and was almost completely consumed. Nineteen bodies have been recovered.

A later cable says: Two trains from Ballarat and Bendigo, respectively, collided late Sunday night at Braybrook Junction, about eight miles from Melbourne, 41 persons being killed and 60 injured. The Bendigo train, with two heavy engines, crashed into the rear of the Ballarat train. Five cars of the latter train were wrecked. The wreckage took fire and was almost completely consumed. Many of the bodies were unrecognizable when recovered.

The Bendigo train suffered but little damage, but the two engines were piled on top of the rear coaches of the other train. Terrible scenes followed the accident, many of the injured being caught in the wreckage, and with difficulty rescued. It was a long time before doctors and nurses arrived on the scene, and, as a consequence, intense suffering prevailed among the injured.

RACE WAR AMONG SEVERAL WOMEN

Quarrelled Over Children — Negroes Shot to Death.

Memphis, Tenn., April 21.—Following a desperate struggle between white and negro women, growing out of a quarrel regarding the playing together of children of the two races, Mrs. James Wright of this city yesterday shot and instantly killed Leilla Gordon, a negress.

Mrs. Wright used a single-barreled shotgun. She reloaded the weapon and started in pursuit of Mary Davis, another negress, and fired at the Davis woman, but the charge went wild. Mrs. John Wright, a sister-in-law of Mrs. James Wright, who lives with her, received a bad beating at the hands of the negro women.

Moir Wanted at Guelph.

Guelph, April 21.—The local police say that Private Moir, the man who, at Wolseley Barracks, London, on Friday, shot and killed Col.-Sergt. Lloyd, was once a resident of Guelph, and that while in this city he displayed his over-readiness to use a gun. Moir lived in Guelph about two years ago. He boarded at an hotel, and was employed in the pipe works. The first time he drew attention was when he was seized with a fit and had to be removed from the hotel at which he boarded to the City Hospital. One year ago last fall a warrant was issued for Moir's arrest for shooting at a Jew named Samuels, near Little Germany. Warrants were issued for the arrest of two other men—Pointer and Hill—on the same charge. Pointer and Hill were arrested by the police, and, on being found guilty, were fined by the magistrate. Moir was never located. He is still wanted here for the shooting, for which a warrant is out for his arrest.

Blames Former Secretary.

London, April 21.—(C.A.P.)—The Morning Post editorially strongly refers to the report from Washington that the Senate will reject the proposal to send the Newfoundland fisheries question to The Hague. After reviewing the negotiations The Post says: "In none of these things could the figure of the ex-Colonial Secretary hide the hand which directed the ugliest episodes in the modern annals of the British Empire."

Take Him Dead or Alive.

London, April 21.—The police who have been searching for the fugitive murderer, Private Moir, returned last night and secured warrants for the man, and then set out again for the Stratford-St. Mary's district in search of their man. They have reason to believe he is in that locality. The officers have instructions to take their man dead or alive.

Russian General Dying.

St. Petersburg, April 21.—The condition of Lieut.-Gen. Linevitch, aide-de-camp to Emperor Nicholas, and former commander-in-chief of the Russian army in Manchuria, who is ill with pneumonia, is now critical.

King and Queen Leave London.

London, April 21.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra left London yesterday morning for a visit to Copenhagen, Stockholm and Christiania, where they will be the guests of the royal families at these capitals.

Turkey Surrenders.

Rome, April 21.—Turkey has ceded to the Italian demand for Italian postoffices in Turkish territory in order to avoid a naval demonstration in her waters.

Furthermore the Porte has practically acknowledged the other Italian claims in the matter of the right of Italians freely to purchase property on Turkish territory, and with regard to coast navigation.

As a result of these concessions the Italian Government has issued orders to the fleet that was about to depart for Turkey to remain in Italian waters, and the incident is regarded as closed.

Investigate Pulp Question.

Washington, April 21.—Speaker Cannon yesterday introduced a resolution for the appointment by himself of a select committee of six members of the House to investigate in all of its many phases the woodpulp and print paper question, and to report on the necessity of legislation to relieve the conditions complained of by the print paper users of the country.

The resolution was referred to the committee on rules, of which the Speaker is chairman.

DEAL WITH HOME RULE QUESTION

Winston Churchill Makes Statement During Campaign.

Manchester, April 21.—Winston Spencer Churchill, who is seeking re-election, on his recent appointment to the Cabinet, made a notable speech here last night, which has been awaited by the followers of John Redmond before they undertook to counsel the Nationalists as to how they should vote. Mr. Churchill announced that he had the concurrence of Premier Asquih in saying that at the close of the present Parliament the Liberal party would claim full authority and a free hand to deal with the problem of Irish self-government without being restricted by mere measures of devolution like the abandoned Irish councils bill.

Mr. Churchill said that his recent vote in support of John Redmond's home rule resolution in the House of Commons was no mere perfunctory proceeding.

"It constituted on my part," he said, "a distant acceptance of an advanced position in the Irish question. My opinion ripened during the last two years I frankly admit. I have become convinced that a national settlement of the Irish question on broad and generous lines is indispensible to a harmonious conception of Liberalism, and I have a great object lesson in my own experience in the matter of South Africa. There they run a risk far greater. I hope some day for a settlement in a similar spirit in Ireland."

Late last night Mr. Redmond's decision was still awaited.

Fell Into the Flume.

Smith's Falls, April 21.—Henry McDonald, an employe of the woollen mill at Burritt's Rapids, a short distance below Smith's Falls, had an experience Sunday that few men live to tell of. He was doing some work at the flume when he fell in and was carried its full length and under the bridge.

The water is very high at that point at present, and the force of it almost carried him into the wheel. Just as he reached it, however, the current, as if by a miracle, tossed him to one side and he was carried away in the overflow to a point below the mill, where a fellow workman rescued him. He was pulled out more dead than alive, apparently, but in a short time he had recovered and was but little the worse of his thrilling experience.

Freight Train Derailed.

Smith's Falls, April 21.—A C.P.R. freight going east was derailed at Monklands yesterday. The tender of engine and six cars went off the track, but there was little damage done to rolling stock. The train had a cargo of cattle, but only four of them were killed.

The accident was caused by a plate of the engine getting caught in the switch. The main line was blocked for several hours as a result of the mishap.

Brought News of Rebellion.

Calgary, Alta., April 21.—James Mosley died yesterday at the age of ninety.

He was the first man to bring the news to Toronto of the rising of the rebels, and was the only man who passed down Yonge street on the morning before the battle of Dec. 7, 1837.

He was born in Toronto in 1818, near St. Lawrence Market, and when a young man went to Aurora to keep store.

Guarded by Detectives.

New York, April 21.—The Herald says: "In place of the one man who did similar service on Sunday of last week, six private detectives acted as a bodyguard for John D. Rockefeller on Sunday when he walked with his two grandchildren—Fowler and Muriel McCormick—to and from the Fifth avenue Baptist church.

Thinks Orchard Should Hang.

Washington, D.C., April 21.—Senator Borah of Idaho, who conducted the prosecution of W. E. Haywood, in his maiden speech in the Senate yesterday, expressed disapproval of any effort to secure leniency for Harry Orchard.

Crushed Between Rollers.

Rome, N.Y., April 21.—John Vito, aged 33, employed in the Rome Brass & Copper Co., while working around a set of rolls used for rolling sheets of brass, was drawn through a space of only ten inches, crushing the life out of him.

MADE ATTEMPT TO WRECK TRAIN

Japanese Aroused by Growth of Chinese Boycott.

Shanghai, April 21.—The Korean insurgents yesterday made an unsuccessful attempt to wreck the Seoul train, containing Marquis Ito.

Hundreds of Koreans are crossing the frontier to escape the cruelties of the Japanese, and are becoming Chinese subjects.

Japanese newspapers are accusing British merchants in Hong Kong of secretly fomenting the boycott which is causing increasing alarm to Japan. Viscount Hayashi, the Foreign Minister, again warned China that she will be held responsible for merchants' losses, but the southern people are not amenable to the Pekin Government's commands.

The movement has up to now been conducted with the greatest orderliness, although Japanese agents provocateurs are attempting to provoke trouble by endeavoring to force the Cantonese to purchase goods and quarrelling when they refuse.

The twenty-five-mile railway from Shanghai to Sungkeank, constructed entirely by Chinese engineers and capital, was opened to traffic Sunday.

Entire Family Drowns.

Edmonton, April 21.—While traveling with dog train on the ice Saturday, six miles from Athabasca Landing, the ice broke, precipitating Emile Michel Desjarlais into the icy stream. Desjarlais, with great difficulty, escaped. The other three were swept under the ice.

Rushed the Squatters.

New York, April 21.—Under orders, soldiers yesterday seized and ousted squatters from the beach, and rush orders have been received for the construction of new fortifications, which are imperatively needed to protect New York.

Alberta's Revenue Will Suffer.

Regina, April 21.—Alberta's revenue will suffer heavily as a result of the hail insurance legislation, the province being required to put up $114,000 deficit. This will likely lead to a material amendment to the act.

ARE MENACED BY BRIGANDS

Expeditionary Force May be Wiped Out—Russian Troops Cross Persian Frontier.

Tiflis, April 21.—An alarming report has just been received here setting forth the critical situation of a small Russian expeditionary force in Persia, which is menaced by a vastly superior body of Persian brigands. The Russian troops penetrated the frontier in the neighborhood of Beleseuvar in pursuit of Kurdish brigands, who had committed depredations in Russian territory. In following this course Russia is acting on the rights accorded her for the maintenance of order in Northern Persia by the recent Anglo-Russian agreement.

The Russian commander has sent out a messenger demanding reinforcements of infantry, artillery and cavalry.

The Persians, who have been joined by a warlike tribe of nomads, surrounding the Russians. The sending in of Russian reinforcements is made particularly difficult by the flooded condition of the country.

Sunday the Russians had three men killed and ten wounded in various minor engagements with the Persians.

Towed Into Halifax Harbor.

Halifax, April 21.—After drifting helpless around the Atlantic for nine days with a broken propeller, the German oil tank steamer Burgermeister Petersen was towed into port yesterday by the Leland liner Columbian, which picked her up on Saturday off Sable Island and brought her safely into port, despite the heavy gale of Sunday.

Several steamers were seen by the Petersen while she was drifting disabled, and one of them, after replying to her signals of distress, steamed past without offering any assistance.

On April 8, when sixteen days out from Shields for Philadelphia, the steamer was abreast of Sable Island, when all four blades of her propeller suddenly snapped off.

Will Not Visit England.

London, April 21.—It has been decided definitely that the United States fleet of battleships will not call at any European port on its way home, with the exception of certain points in the Mediterranean, where it is necessary to stop for coal. This information is conveyed in the American reply to the invitation extended to Great Britain, that the fleet come to England.

Buffalo Switchman Shot.

Buffalo, N.Y., April 21.—Patrick McKeown, 39 years old, of this city, a switchman for the Lehigh Valley, was shot and fatally injured in the William street yards of the Lehigh early yesterday by Dan Reardon, a Lehigh detective. Reardon made a statement in which he said he discovered McKeown and two other men pilfering a car.

Judge Lynch the Relentless.

Fort Worth, Texas, April 21.—Jasper Douglas, a negro of Atlanta, Texas, was charged in a warrant sworn to Saturday, with having criminally assaulted his stepsister, a girl of 12 years. Sunday morning his body was found hanging to the limb of a tree.

PRESENT CONDITION OF THE CANADIAN WOOLLEN INDUSTRY

What Amateur Tariff-Tinkers Can Do—A Preference That Destroys—Montreal Herald and Peterborough Examiner Please Copy.

It is a safe and wholesome rule that a business man should look upon the bright side of things and talk hopefully to his fellow-mortals, even when the sky is overcast. For this reason, the "Canadian Textile Journal," when the tariff was settled last year, determined to preach neither jehads nor jeremiads, but would encourage the woollen manufacturers to brace up and make the best of the situation. There is nothing to be gained, however, by shutting one's eyes to the situation disclosed at the meeting of manufacturers held in Montreal on the 9th inst., especially as the counsel of that meeting is not a counsel of despair, but rather one born of a new determination.

Many textile manufacturers who were strong Liberals in politics, held that if the Government's sympathy towards them were always imputed to to hem more would be gained by a clamorous appeal to the cold facts, bet at the present meeting it was admitted that this policy has been barren of results, while one of the oldest and heretofore most stable of the countries industries has been steadily beaten down by a peculiarly inequitable form of competition, which has not only injured the woolen manufacturers, but brought demoralization into the clothing trade, which it was supposed to benefit.

It was true that some consideration appeared to have been given to the woolen mill people in regard to textile machinery, but this afterwards turned out to be a gold brick, because, instead of putting on the free list textile machinery of a kind not made in Canada, it was made duitable at 01 per cent., and was limited in practice to spinning and weaving machinery, whole finishing, dyeing and other machines, which were most needed, were shut out.

It was well said by Mr. Willett, the oldest and one of the most clear-headed of the woolen manufacturers of Canada, that in lal the long history of this industry whenever the tariff was fair the business prospered. This was the case even when the protection was only incidental; The protective principle is frankly recognized by the present Government. And that being the case, and the woolen industry having been thus built up to its recent vast dimensions, it seemed a mystery why the millions of capital so embarked in the business should be put under a policy of confiscation, as if it were employed in the liquor traffic or some other demoralizing trade;

It is this sense of injustice which has apparently brought the woolen manufacturers to a determination to sink all questions of party and stand together to rescue their business from ruin. If the present Government will not right the wrong it has done, they will look to another Government to do it for them. They are beginning to see that to "crook the pregnant hinges of the knee where thrift may follow fawning," no longer becomes them as self-respecting electors, since that servile attitude has only been rewarded with callous mockery by the deity they have set up.—Canadian Textile Journal.

MANY PRAIRIE FIRES IN WEST

Some of Them of a Disastrous Nature—Much Damage Done.

Carlyle, Sask., April 21.—The farm residence of D. Thompson, with its contents, was burned by a prairie fire yesterday, which was kindled by a spark from a chimney.

Govan, Sask., April 21.—A disastrous prairie fire swept across the country south of this town on Saturday. W. O'Neill suffered a severe loss in having his barn burned, also losing a valuable team of horses and a large quantity of oats and hay.

Lloydminster, Sask., April 21.—There were two fires on Saturday. One destroyed the private house of E. Morlidge; the other the farm house, furniture, barn, stables, calves and pigs of C. Spurgeon, Ashton.

Qu'Appelle, Sask., April 21.—News is just to hand of a serious prairie fire in the northern part of Springbrook district. Fire swept over the country from the west, destroying grain granaries, feed and other property. James Smith had four horses badly burned, and he himself narrowly escaped death from the flames, suffering many burns.

Mowbray, Man., April 21.—The Imperial elevator and C.P.R. station here were completely destroyed by fire late on Saturday night. Three thousand bushels of wheat in the elevator was destroyed.

"Fired" the Chief.

Nelson, B.C., April 21.—Chief of Police Carroll has been summarily dismissed from the force for reasons which are not disclosed, but which he himself confesses to have been "highly reprehensible conduct."

To the Rescue.

Montreal, April 21.—Harry Evers, a young plumber of Toronto, who is here temporarily on a piece of work, Sunday night prevented a young woman from being criminally assaulted, driving the miscreant away.

LAYING OF THE CORNER STONE

SIR FREDERICK BORDEN
Minister of Militia, Who Will Lay the Corner Stone of the New Armouries To-morrow.

S. A. Premiers Cannot Come.

Ottawa, April 21.—The following cable has been received from the high commissioner for South Africa by the Governor-General:

Johannesburg, April 18.—Prime Ministers of Cape Colony, Transvaal, and Orange River Colony much regret that owing to pressure of public business it is impossible for them to visit Quebec for the forthcoming tercentenary celebration, and they have therefore nominated Sir Henry Devilliers, chief justice, Cape Colony, to represent them. They wish me to express their entire sympathy with the object of the gathering with which they are in full accord, and trust that the celebration may be a great success. (Signed) High Commissioner.

THE REGIMENT WILL MARCH OUT

First of the Season Will Take Place To-night

The 57th Regiment will hold the first marchout of the season to-night. Both bands will be in attendance and there should be a large turnout of the corps. It is especially desirable that there should be a full attendance to-night, as the regiment must be in good shape for to-morrow, when Sir Frederick Borden will be here to lay the corner stone of the new Armouries.

WAS DISORDERLY BUT NOT DRUNK

Bert Findlay was fined last week in the Police Court. The Review stated that he was charged with being drunk and disorderly. Mr. Findlay wishes that this statement be contradicted. He says that he was not drunk, but just disorderly. He pleaded guilty to avoid coming to court, as he was never in a Police Court. He emphatically denies being drunk, and the Review makes this correction in justice to Mr. Findlay.

Seven negro families are at Edmonton on their way to homesteads west of the city.

SERIOUS TROUBLE ARISES IN CONNECTION WITH STRIKE

Disorderly Scenes at Buck Stove Works at Brantford—Attack on Union Men Doing Patrol Work—Italians Threaten to Shoot.

Brantford, April 21.—The strike of the union moulders at the Buck Stove Works is beginning to assume a serious aspect. Last night at the closing hour the strikebreakers sallied forth from the shop in an attack on the union men doing patrol work in that vicinity.

George Battye, a striker, was badly used up in the melee, and had to be taken to the hospital. His face was beaten with the butt end of a revolver, and he sustained internal injuries.

The affair was a sequel to some stone-throwing by the union men on the strikebreakers yesterday morning. The latter were on their way to work when they received a fusilade from the tracks of the G.T.R. subway, Clarence street.

One of the strikebreakers had his back injured, necessitating his removal to the hospital. The situation has become such as to require special police service at the shop. About 150 moulders have been on strike for three weeks with prospects of the struggle being a long one.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the strikers dragged a man from a rig on his way to the shop. Manager Parker and Philip Buck came out and succeeded in getting the fellow back into the conveyance, when a second attack was frustrated. Police Court action has been taken by Wm. Buck against several of the strikers, whom he recognized.

Two Italians, Jose and John Belford, were arrested at Blue Lake yesterday afternoon, where they had been holding forth against the Portland Cement Co., refusing to be dispossessed of a small shanty they occupied. The Italians held the place at revolvers point and threatened to shoot anyone interfering with them.

SIR A. P. CARON PASSES AWAY

Ex-Minister of Militia and ex-Postmaster-General Dies Suddenly.

Montreal, April 21.—Sir A. P. Caron, ex-Minister of Militia and ex-Postmaster-General of Canada, died yesterday afternoon at the Royal Victoria Hospital, aged 68 years. Few French-Canadian politicians were better known in the English-speaking provinces than the man who has just passed away, and few had more friends in both political parties than the man who was supremely popular in the City of Quebec, where at one time the name of Caron was synonymous with patriotism, charity and Conservatism.

It was not generally known that Sir Adolphe Caron had been attacked some six months ago with a grave throat trouble that was pronounced fatal by the specialists who attended him. In fact, he almost lost his voice, yet he still attended to his business matters, and it was only on Saturday that a severe cold forced him to remain indoors at his hotel.

Pneumonia developed very rapidly, the sick man was taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, death coming two hours after his admission to that institution.

Jerom Will Oppose.

New York, April 21.—District Attorney Jerome last night, when told that an effort was being made to have Harry K. Thaw released from the Matteawan Asylum for the Insane, said that he and Assistant District Attorney Frank Garvan would go before Justice Morschauser at White Plains, if the latter granted the writ of habeas corpus to James G. Graham of Newburg, one of Thaw's counsel. District Attorney Jerome is opposed to Thaw being released from the asylum.

Brother, Too, a Fugitive.

Edmonton, April 21.—An information has been sworn out here for Capt. Neville Harbottle, the missing collector of inland revenue, and the mounted police are sending out photos and descriptive circulars of the man who is wanted here.

Investigation shows that the amount not accounted for is $6,913.

Capt. Harbottle is a brother of Colin Harbottle of Toronto, arrested in Havana, Cuba.

Left Hand Sawed Off.

Kingston, April 21.—Just a few minutes before quitting time at the locomotive works last night, Enoch Godwin, son of W. H. Godwin, insurance agent, met with a terrible accident. While running a joiner his left hand got in the way and the member was severed at the wrist. He is in a serious condition, but it is thought will recover.

River Highest Since 1890.

Dallas, Tex., April 21.—Trinity river has reached a stage of 39 feet here and is still rising. A number of residents have been forced from their homes in the lowlands, and it is feared a destructive overflow will follow. The present stage is the highest since 1890.

Reprieve For Billek.

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—Governor Deneen, acting on the recommendation of the state board of pardon, yesterday granted a reprieve to Herman Billek, sentenced to hang in Chicago next Friday, to June 12.

How Mails Are Moved.

Little Current, Ont., April 21.—Twenty-five bags of mail for Manitoulin East and four passengers arrived at noon yesterday from Massey over the ice with single horse sleighs. Capt. Ed. MacKay also brought a gang of sawfeed roller weighing over half a ton.

The ice had gone out from the shore, but the drivers secured a large cake of solid ice and got it close enough to shore to drive on to and then moved it out to the main ice, continuing in safety. A strong line and buoy were attached to the roller to prevent loss in case of breaking through while crossing. One or two trips more will end the crossing.

Sandy McIver, mail carrier to Killarney, lost his horse through the ice near Killarney on Sunday. This is the third successive season for him to suffer in the same way.

THEIR CURIOSITY PROVED DEADLY

Men Went Back When Dynamite Failed to Explode in Time.

Quebec, April 21.—The disastrous premature explosion which occurred on the new line of the Transcontinental Railway on Saturday afternoon last, and which hurled nine workmen to instant death, has cast a gloom over the whole County of Bellechasse, but more heavily does the pall hang over the little parish of St. Cagetan, where the disaster occurred, and within a stone's throw of which stood the homes of five of the unfortunate victims. The men were engaged in preparing the roadbed for the ties and were engaged in removing rock which obstructed the way, for which purpose they used dynamite. It was a repetition of the old story which has sent so many to eternity. The fuse was ignited and as the explosion failed to occur within the usual time the men approached to ascertain the cause, but when they were in close proximity the report was heard, and, to the horror of those at a safe distance off, fully a dozen men were blown into space.

News of the disaster was quickly sent to the adjoining villages, and the startled inhabitants flocked to the scene while all the physicians within a radius of thirty miles hastened to render medical aid.

Move to Release Thaw.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., April 21.—The first step toward the release of Harry K. Thaw from the Matteawan Asylum for the Insane was taken yesterday. James G. Graham of Newburg, of Thaw's counsel, made application to Justice Morschauser at White Plains for an order directing the superintendent of the asylum to permit Thaw to sign a formal application for a write of habeas corpus.

The order was granted, and when Thaw has made the application he will probably be brought before a justice for a hearing to determine whether or not he is sane.

Steam Barge Afire.

Cleveland, O., April 21.—A steamer, said to be the Main, towing the barge Emma E. Tyson from Ashtabula, is reported to be afire ten miles out in the lake. A crew of ten men is said to be aboard. The life-saving crew has gone to the rescue. The extent of the damage is unknown. The Main was on route for Cleveland to pick up the barge M. E. Orlan.

Cornice Collapsed; Man Killed.

Ithaca, N.Y., April 21.—John F. Oates of this city died yesterday morning as a result of a peculiar accident Sunday night, in which five men were injured.

The men were standing under the eaves of the four-storey brick building, when suddenly tons of brick in the cornice fell to the pavement, crushing the men to the walk.

Ditched Maritime Express.

Montreal, April 21.—The I.C.R. Maritime Express, due in Montreal Sunday evening from Halifax, was ditched near St. Helene de Baot, between St. Hyacinthe and Drummondville, while running 30 miles an hour. The passengers were tossed about, but none were seriously injured. A porter was hurled through a window into a pool of mud.

Bad Fire at Mowbray.

Mowbray, Man., April 21.—The Imperial elevator and C. P. R. station here were completely destroyed by fire Sunday night. The fire broke out in the elevator, from some cause unknown and spread to the station. Three thousand bushels of wheat stored in the elevator was destroyed. The loss is fully insured.

Message of the Macedonians.

St. Louis, Mo., April 21.—A mass meeting of Macedonians sent a telegram in the name of 10,000 Macedonians to President Roosevelt, requesting him to intercede in behalf of Macedonia autonomy, and thanking him for hospitality extended to Macedonians.

Ransacked the House.

Brockville, April 21.—The home of Mrs. Richard A. Fields has been closed the past winter during her absence in Toronto. Burglars took advantage of this to loot the place, the discovery being accidentally made by children playing around the place.

Suffered 20 Years

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured in 2 Months

St. Raphaels, Ont.

For over twenty years I suffered from Chronic Constipation of the bowels, and I could get no medicine to cure me. I tried doctors and every known purgative, or laxative, medicine known but I was no better. Sometimes, if I did not take medicine, I would go four or five days, without any action of the bowels. During all this time I was weak and suffered from Indigestion constantly.

About a year ago a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives" as they had helped her. I began taking "Fruit-a-tives" and from the outset I began to feel better, and inside of a month the pains were almost gone and the Constipation relieved. In two months I was perfectly well again, no pains, no constipation, and my complexion had lost all that sallow appearance.

(Sgd) MARY A. MCDONELL.

"Fruit-a-tives"—or Fruit Liver Tablets—are the only remedy known to science that actually cure Constipation. They do this by making the liver healthy and active—thus causing more bile to flow into the bowels. 15?

"Fruit-a-tives"—or "Fruit Liver Tablets" are sold by dealers at 50c a box—6 for $2.50—or will be sent on receipt of price. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa

SYMPATHETIC FINANCE

Some of our brightest Liberal contemporaries ask why the U.S. is suffering from depression if protection is a panacea. It is just in such comparisons that the fallacious soidisant "reasoning" of the Liberal theorists usually lies. They have always cried "Give us free trade and we will be happy!" They got free trade and were not happy. To turn to the other extreme in the same desperate state of mind is equally silly. Protection well handled is what its name implies an excellent thing. But with an aftergrowth of illegitimate finance it is turned from its true function. Free trade under certain conditions is good. Under certain others it is absurd. We do not blame Liberals for believing in free trade, but we do blame them for believing in its use at the wrong time. Water on a fire is probably the best remedial agent known. In the piano it is worse than useless. So is it in Canada. We need protection here and written in big letters—not preference. But it is simply worse than nonsense to have Protection with a preference that is wholly a preference for somebody else. Yet while it looks so and works out so it is not altogether so. It paved the way for the French Treaty. It was after all a doubly shrewd move. With the U.S. however, the depression is of another sort. Wall Street rules the U.S. When it wants a new deal it gathers in all the cards and that is what has happened. It is suffering from over-prosperity. In Canada too, we are becoming the mere creatures of finance. We have become a tempting morsel.

MR. GILLESPIE'S OFFER

Mr. Gillespie's open letter to Mr. Bradburn, MPP., is no doubt a sincere expression of his wishes for a clean election. But why associate a penalty with what ought to be a point of honor? In the first place it should be assumable that the political morals of our representative men are equal to the sense of right and wrong and common decency subsisting in the participants in—say, the present walking contest. When a man tries to take an unfair advantage in the boxing ring he is disqualified. In all sports men are made to "play the game," according to the rules. It is easy to steal without being caught. What is it that keeps most men from doing it? Surely a sense of honour. A man who steals an election is a common "hound." Gaol is the place for him and plenty of it. Some people pretend that it is not a serious offence to do things that are required to win an election unfairly, viz., to lie, cheat, swindle, and to be perjured. A nice sense of the proprieties such people have! But it will always be found that these apologists have something to gain by the crookedness. Their vanity or pocket or both are the gainers. We are a simple people, we Canadians, in many respects. It is not a sign of quickwittedness or intellect to [illegible] on any pretence. Customs breakers who are usually assumed to be women have been considered forgivable until caught. White lies are considered quite the thing by many soidisant "good people." All of which goes to show that we are a very simple people—if we think that we can rob banks, plug ballot boxes, steal elections, and lie unsparingly and yet be honest even in the most generous sense. If Mr. Gillespie will meet Mr Bradburn and declare his intentions we have no doubt Mr. Bradburn will reciprocate. Mr. Bradburn did not win his election by crookedness and does not propose to do so. To bind him over to keep honest is unnecessary. People readily learn to distinguish between the upright and the crooked and if "good people" would only take the trouble to come out and vote on election day the crook would find that his work was not "paying" and would stop it. When the people rise up they can cast out even governments that have become entrenched in a very fortress of corruption. We may be sure that in the case of single constituencies the same punishment will follow. To bind oneself to be honest is like binding oneself to be chaste. Honesty like chastity depends on the intention. For has it not been said that he who lusteth in his heart commits adultery. Let us "play the game" according to some code of honor at least. Why a filcher or a welcher in a game of marbles with newsboys would be kicked into the street. Can't we reach even their level?

ST. LUKE'S

There can be no doubt that St. Luke's-upon-the-hill is prospering. By prosperity, we do not of course, mean mere financial gain. The "spirit of the people" is such as ensures a hearty and loyal support of the rector. The two charges, that at St. Luke's, and that at St. Mark's are both within Rev. Dr. Langfeldt's jurisdiction and both are feeling the good effects of his energetic and capable ministry.

IMMIGRATION

Once more this important question comes to the fore. On Mr. Monk's motion to cease paying bonuses to immigrants, the whole subject came up for discussion again. It is a very strange, not to say suicidal, idea, this bonusing of immigrants to this glorious country. If Canada were a plague-stricken spot it might be different. If to work here meant to slave in the mines or the fever-stricken districts of Africa, or where the tsetse destroys all animal life it would be different. In Canada, however, a young nation is arising. Its growth has been slow, but sure. We have hitherto not suffered from the frenzies of an indiscriminate and unholy mob, for which we paid in the sacrifice of neither morals nor money. Now, however, we are taking what the U.S. has forbidden to enter its ports, and —worse than all—paying for it. Some of it may move on to the U.S., but alas! not the worst. In its train also the lowest and the least these. Four dollars a year is what the U.S. charges immigrants to enter that country. It does not even bestow free grant lands upon immigrants any more. That mad policy of other days has been discontinued. But it is not so with us. We pay at the rate of $175,000 a year for the riff-raff of Europe, and then boast of the increase in our population! The class imported brings in its train also the lowest and the worst. Crime and the cost of crime have increased enormously. Life in our cities and indeed in our rural parts is no longer absolutely secure. For the sake of cheap labour our Canadian life is being prostituted. Our wage-earners are invited to lower their wages while our moneyed institutions are increasing their "earnings." In ten years Sir Wilfrid Laurier has expended $900,000 in an attempt to ruin us. Shall he be allowed to succeed?

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Globe to-day says that every effort will be made to prorogue the House of Commons in June.

Immigration throws into our city thousands of people of whom a number are criminals flying from justice.—Le Nationaliste.

As amongst the Chinese, so is it amongst the Japs, all liabilities must be squared up before the year comes to an end. Any violation of this custom is considered an almost unpardonable disgrace. This rule does not seem to prevail to the same extent in Canada.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy will have no difficulty in proving to the Imperial Government that the C P R Steamship Company is able to do all that the "All Red Line" expects to do. In a year or so vessels of 24 and 25knots will plow the Atlantic. Promoters of the "All Red" cannot hope to rival the CPR in the way of progress.—La Patrie.

Mr. A. G. MacKay's invitation to Mr. Stratton to appear on the platform with him is a declaration, open and decisive that the Ontario Opposition is the same old machine with the same old ways.—The Mail and Empire.

There is no evidence that Mr. MacKay asked Mr. Stratton on the platform at all. The Mail and Empire is most probably misinformed.

Mr. R. R. Gamey, MPP who is in great demand as a campaign orator is having phenomenal success. At Cobourg, where he spoke in the interests of Mr. Boggs the Conservative candidate, there was an immense attendance in the celebrated Cobourg city hall. He was presented with bouquets a vote of thanks and other testimonials of regard. His address was unquestionably a very able one. At the finish he received an ovation.

London financiers appear to be more willing to give credit to the Whitney government than Ontario Liberals are.—The Hamilton Herald, Independent.

This is an interesting phase of the political storm. Our provincial loan recently renewed in London was placed on the market on better terms than our Dominion loans. The Province of Ontario at present is "a distinct success." Long may it remain so. It is a pity that Sir Wilfrid did not imitate Mr. Whitney with regard to immigration also.

WEAK MEN AND WOMEN

The Most Perfect Restorative Known and Invigorating Tonic Vitalizer —Greatest Health-Renewer

Nature's greatest cure for weak, pale men and women is Ferrozone. It is invaluable for run-down, overworked, delicate people, and will restore them to robust health more quickly, at smaller expense, than any other tonic you can select.

We quote the following cases to show what Ferrozone has done for others. In your case it will act just as efficiently:—

FOR BUSINESS MEN

The Experience of a Well-known Lawyer Proves Ferrozone an Ideal Tonic.

Mr. N. W. Burke, a well known lawyer in Meriden, says:—"When I first took Ferrozone I was in a nervous run-down condition, almost sick enough to give up work. I lacked strength, and felt as if I could not get down to work. Ferrozone at once gave me a good appetite, and drove away the nervous, apprehensive feelings that formerly made my life miserable. As I continued the use of Ferrozone I grew stronger, and am glad to say it has brought me back to perfect health. I know that Ferrozone is an excellent tonic for business men and people inclined to a sedentary life. I can recommend it to each."

FOR NERVOUS WOMEN

Nothing Compares With the Nerve-Strengthening Power of Ferrozone.

Mrs. R. D. Emmerson, of Centreville, says:—"I am glad to think that there is at least one honest remedy for nervous people. No one can imagine what I suffered with my nerves, and I sometimes wonder at the number of useless prescriptions and medicines I took. But Ferrozone acted differently from all the rest. It built up my system, and gradually the irritability left my nerves, and I got well. Ferrozone cured me by removing the cause of my trouble, and by giving me enough additional strength to overthrow the attack of nervousness. I can recommend Ferrozone strongly."

THOUSANDS ANNUALLY CURED BY FERROZONE

If you want to get well and keep well, by all means use Ferrozone. If you suffer from insomnia, nervousness, debility, loss of appetite, poor digestion, or any other symptom of disordered blood, nothing will tone up and vitalize your system like Ferrozone. Price 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all druggists, or sent safely by mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

GAVE ADDRESS ON MISSIONS

Many Heard Mrs. Walton at Bethany Tabernacle Last Night

The missionary meeting at Bethany Tabernacle last night was a real success—a large and representative audience greeted the speaker. Mrs. Walton is a woman of a warm and attractive personality and gives interesting and impressive accounts of missionary work in South Africa. She represents the field as one of the most inviting and promising in foreign work. Over thirty dollars was voluntarily contributed to the support of the work. Miss Ringland also gave a very helpful address in the afternoon. Both ladies left on the midnight train for Ottawa where they will address several congregations.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address—F. J. CHENEY, & Co,
Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by all Druggists 75c.

THE "LAKE OF BAYS" COUNTRY

A handsome brochure, artistically illustrated has been issued by the Grand Trunk passenger department, telling of the beauties of the Lake of Bays district, in the "Highlands of Ontario." A new feature of this district is the new hotel—the Wawa—at Norway Point. The hotel itself has a page illustration reflecting the summer glories of woodland and water, with a brood of seven wild geese ter, with a brood of seven wild geese soaring skyward beyond the tower. The concise description embodies the story of a charming resort.

The very pretty duo tone photo engravings show the beauties of the new fairy land far more effective than words can do. A copy can be obtained free on application to J. D. McDonald, Union Station, Toronto Ont.

DRILL OF THE 24TH BATTERY

All the members of the 24th Field Battery, Canadian Artillery, are requested to attend a drill on Tuesday evening, in the Ashburnham drill shed at 7.30 o'clock sharp, for the purpose of having a drill preparatory to attending the ceremony of laying of the corner stone of the new armories, which takes place on Wednesday, April 22nd. A full attendance is requested as other arrangements of importance in connection with the event will be made.

By order.
MAJOR YOUNG,
Officer Commanding.

SPRING

WE'VE sped the parting guest, "WINTER" and we turn to make our bow to "SPRING" embodying among other new things the latest evolution of Men's Suit Styles:—

This year we've struck out and away from the beaten path and have distanced all our past accomplishments. All lines making up the new Spring styles combine to spell "GRACE." No angular corners; instead they're softly rounded—the lapels sweep gracefully down over the chest, while the question of button arrangement is answered in a variety of ways

From now on we'll present, from time to time, the proper styles for men, which it will pay you to look over Sir, if you're at all interested in nobby clothes

Beverly of Graustark

By
GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark"

Copyright, 1904, by Dodd, Mead and Company

"He is under surveillance, at my suggestion. For your sake, and yours alone, I am giving him a chance. He is your protege. You are responsible for his conduct. To accuse him would be to place you in an embarrassing position. There is a sickening rumor in court circles that you have more than a merely kind and friendly interest in the rascal. If I believed that, Miss Calhoun, I fear my heart could not be kind to him, but I know it is not true. You have a loftier love to give. He is a clever scoundrel, and there is no telling how much harm he has already done to Graustark. His every move is to be watched and reported to me. It will be impossible for him to escape. To save him from the vengeance of the army I am permitting him to remain in your service, ostensibly at least. His hours of duty have been changed, however. Henceforth he is in the night guard, from midnight till dawn. I am telling you this, Miss Calhoun, because I want you to know that in spite of all the indignity I have suffered you are more to me than any other being in the world, more to me even than my loyalty to Graustark. Do me the honor and justice to remember this. I have suffered much for you. I am a rough, hardened soldier, and you have misconstrued my devotion. Forgive the harsh words my passion may have inspired. Farewell! I must off to undo the damage we all lay at the door of the man you and I are protecting."

He was too wise to give her the chance to reply. A moment later he was mounted and off for the eastern gates, there to direct the movements of Colonel Braze and his scouts. Beverly flew at once to Yetive with her plea for Baldos. She was confronted by a rather sober faced sovereign. The news of the hour was not comforting to the princess and her ministers.

"You don't believe he is a spy?" cried Beverly, stopping just inside the door, presuming selfishly that Baldos alone was the cause for worry. She resolved to tell Yetive of the conflict in the park.

"Dear me, Beverly, I am not thinking of him. We've discussed him jointly and severally and every other way, and he has been settled for the time being. You are the only one who is thinking of him, my dear child. We have weightier things to annoy us."

"Goodness, how you talk! He isn't annoying. Oh, forgive me, Yetive, for I am the silliest, addle patedest goose in the kingdom! And you are so troubled. But do you know that he is being watched? They suspect him. So did I at first; I'll admit it. But I don't—now. Have you read the note I gave to you out there?"

"Yes, dear. It's just as I expected. He has known from the beginning. He knew when he caught Dagmar and me spying behind that abominable curtain. But don't worry me any longer about him, please. Wait here with me until we have reports from the troops. I shall not sleep until I know what those fires meant. Forget Baldos for an hour or two for my sake."

"You dear old princess; I'm an awful brute, sure 'nough. I'll forget him forever for your sake. It won't be hard either. He's just a mere guard. Pooh! He's no prince."

Whereupon, re-enforced by Mrs. Anguish and the Countess Halfont, she proceeded to devote herself to the task of soothing and amusing the distressed princess while the soldiers of Graustark ransacked the moonlit hills. The night passed, and the next day was far on its way to sunset before the scouts came in with tidings. No trace of the mysterious signalers had been found. The embers of the half dozen fires were discovered, but their builders were gone. The search took in miles of territory, but it was unavailing. Not even a straggler was found. The so called troupe of actors, around whom suspicion centered, had been swallowed by the capacious solitude of the hills. Riders from the frontier posts to the south came in with the report that all was quiet in the threatened district. Dawsbergen was lying quiescent, but with the readiness of a skulking dog.

There was absolutely no solution to the mystery connected with the fires on the mountain sides. Baldos was questioned privately and earnestly by Lorry and Dangloss. His reply was simple, but it furnished food for reflection and at the same time no little relief to the troubled leaders.

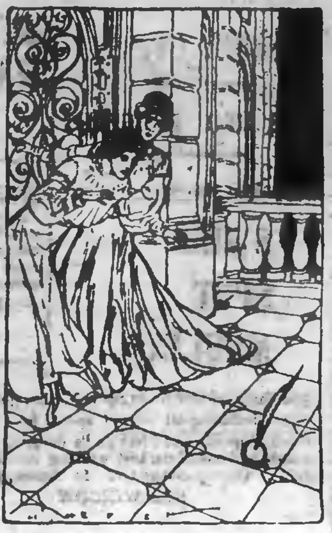
"It is my belief, Mr. Lorry, that the fires were built by brigands and not by your military foes. I have seen these fires in the north, near Axphain, and they were invariably meant to establish communication between separated squads of robbers, all belonging to one band. My friends and I on more than one occasion narrowly escaped disaster by prying into the affairs of these signalers. I take it that the squads have been operating in the south and were brought together last night by means of the fires. Doubtless they have some big project of their own sort on foot."

That night the city looked for a repetition of the fires, but the mountains were black from dusk till dawn. Word reached the castle late in the evening from Ganlook that an Axphainian nobleman and his followers would reach Edelweiss the next day. The visit was a friendly but an important one. The nobleman was no other than the young Duke of Mizrox, intimate friend of the unfortunate Prince Lorenz who met his death at the hand of Prince Gabriel and was the leader of the party which opposed the vengeful plans of Princess Volga. His arrival in Edelweiss was awaited with deep anxiety, for it was suspected that his news would be of the most important character.

Beverly Calhoun sat on the balcony with the princess long after midnight. The sky was black with the clouds of an approaching storm. The air was heavy with foreboding silence. Twice from their darkened corner near the pillar they saw Baldos as he paced steadily past the castle on patrol, with Haddan at his side. Dreamily the watchers in the cool balcony looked down upon the somber park and its occasional guardsman. Neither was in the mood to talk. As they rose at last to go to their rooms something whizzed through the air and dropped with a slight thud in the center of the balcony. The two young women started back in alarm. A faint light from Beverly's window filtered across the stone floor.

"Don't touch it, Beverly!" cried the princess as the girl started forward with an eager exclamation. But Beverly had been thinking of the very object that now quivered before her in the dull light, saucy, aggressive and jaunty as it was the night when she saw it for the first time.

A long, slim red feather bobbed to and fro as if saluting her with soldierly fidelity. Its base was an orange, into which it had been stuck by the hand that tossed it from below. Beverly grasped it with more ecstasy than wisdom and then rushed to the stone railing, Yetive looking on in amazement. Diligently she searched the ground below for the man who had sent the red message, but he was nowhere in sight. Then came the sudden realization that she was revealing a most unmaidenly eagerness, to him as well as to the princess, for she did not doubt that he was watching from the shadows below. She withdrew from the rail in confusion and fled to her bedchamber, followed by her curious companion. There were explanations—none of which struck speaker or listener as logical—and there were giggles which completely simplified the situation. Beverly thrust the slim red feather into her hair and struck an attitude that would have set Baldos wild with joy if he could have seen it. The next day, when she appeared in the park, the feather stood up defiantly from the band of her sailor hat, though womanly perverseness impelled her to ignore Baldos when he passed her on his way to mess.



"Don't touch it, Beverly!"

The Duke of Mizrox came into the city hours after the time set for his arrival. It was quite dark when the escort sent by Colonel Quinnox drew up at the castle gates with the visitor. The duke and his party had been robbed by brigands in the broad daylight and at a point not more than five miles from Edelweiss! And thus the mystery of the signal fires was explained. Count Marlanx did not soon forget the triumphant look he received from Beverly Calhoun when the duke's misfortunes were announced. Shameless as it may seem, she rejoiced exceedingly over the acts of the robbers.

Mizrox announced to the princess and her friends that he was not an emissary from the Axphainian government. Instead he was but little less than a fugitive from the wrath of Volga and the crown adherents. Earlier in the week he had been summoned before Volga and informed that his absence, for a few months at least, from the principality was desirable. The privilege was allowed him of selecting the country which he desired to visit during that period, and he coolly chose Graustark. He was known to have friendly feelings for that state, but no objections were raised. This friendship also gave him a welcome in Edelweiss. Mizrox plainly stated his position to Yetive and the prime minister. He asked for protection, but declined to reveal any of the plans then maturing in his home country. This reluctance to become a traitor, even though he was not in sympathy with his sovereign, was respected by the princess. He announced his willingness to take up arms against Dawsbergen, but would in no way antagonize Axphain from an enemy's camp.

The duke admitted that the feeling in Axphain's upper circles was extremely bitter toward Graustark. The old time war spirit had not died down. Axphain despised her progressive neighbor.

"I may as well inform your highness that the regent holds another and a deeper grudge against Graustark," he said in the audience chamber, where were assembled many of the nobles of the state, late on the night of his arrival. "She insists that you are harboring and even shielding the pretender to our throne, Prince Frederic. It is known that he is in Graustark, and, moreover, it is asserted that he is in direct touch with your government."

Yetive and her companions looked at one another with glances of comprehension. He spoke in English now for the benefit of Beverly Calhoun, an interested spectator, who felt her heart leap suddenly and swiftly into violent insurrection.

"Nothing could be more ridiculous," said Yetive after a pause. "We do not know Frederic, and we are not harboring him."

"I am only saying what is believed to be true by Axphain, your highness. It is reported that he joined you in the mountains in June and since has held a position of trust in your army."

"Would you know Prince Frederic if you were to see him?" quietly asked Lorry.

"I have not seen him since he was a very small boy and then but for a moment—on the day when he and his mother were driven through the streets on their way to exile."

"We have a new man in the castle guard, and there is a mystery attached to him. Would you mind looking at him and telling us if he is what Frederic might be in his manhood?" Lorry put the question, and every one present drew a deep breath of interest.

Mizrox readily consented, and Baldos, intercepted on his rounds, was led unsuspecting into an outer chamber. The duke, accompanied by Lorry and Baron Dangloss, entered the room. They were gone from the assemblage but a few minutes, returning with smiles of uncertainty on their faces.

"It is impossible, your highness, for me to say whether or not it is Frederic," said the duke frankly. "He is what I imagine the pretender might be at his age, but it would be sheer folly for me to speculate. I do not know the man."

Beverly squeezed the Countess Dagmar's arm convulsively.

"Hurrah!" she whispered in great relief. Dagmar looked at her in astonishment. She could not fathom the whimsical American.

"They have been keeping an incessant watch over the home of Frederic's cousin. He is to marry her when the time is propitious," volunteered the young duke. "She is the most beautiful girl in Axphain, and the family is one of the wealthiest. Her parents bitterly oppose the match. They were to have been secretly married some months ago, and there is a rumor to the effect that they did succeed in evading the vigilance of her people."

"You mean that they may be married?" asked Yetive, casting a quick glance at Beverly.

"It is not improbable, your highness. He is known to be a daring young fellow, and he has never failed in a siege against the heart of woman. Report has it that he is the most invincible Lothario that ever donned love's armor." Beverly was conscious of furtive glances in her direction, and a faint pink stole into her temples. "Our fugitive princes are lucky in neither love nor war," went on the duke. "Poor Dantan, who is hiding from Gabriel, is betrothed to the daughter of the present prime minister of Dawsbergen, the beautiful Iolanda. I have seen her. She is glorious, your highness."

"I, too, have seen her," said Yetive, more gravely than she thought. "The report of their betrothal is true, then?"

"His sudden overthrow prevented the nuptials which were to have taken place in a month had not Gabriel returned. Her father, the Duke of Matz, wisely accepted the inevitable and became prime minister to Gabriel. Iolanda, it is said, remains true to him and sends messages to him as he wanders through the mountains."

Beverly's mind instantly reverted to the confessions of Baldos. He had admitted the sending and receiving of messages through Frans. Try as she would, she could not drive the thought from her mind that he was Dantan, and now came the distressing fear that his secret messages were words of love from Iolanda. The audience lasted until late in the night, but she was so occupied with her own thoughts that she knew of but little that transpired.

Of one thing she was sure. She could not go to sleep that night.

CHAPTER XXI.

The next morning Aunt Fanny had a hard time of it. Her mistress was petulant; there was no sunshine in the bright August day as it appeared to her. Toward dawn, after she had counted many millions of black sheep jumping backward over a fence, she had fallen asleep. Aunt Fanny obeyed her usual instructions on this luckless morning. It was Beverly's rule to be called every morning at 7 o'clock. But how was her attendant to know that the graceful young creature, who had kicked the counterpane to the foot of the bed and had mauled the pillow out of all shape, had slept for less than thirty minutes? How was she to know that the flushed face and frown were born in the course of a night of distressing perplexities? She knew only that the sleeping beauty who lay before her was the fairest creature in all the universe. For some minutes Aunt Fanny stood off and admired the rich youthful glory of the sleeper, prophetically reluctant to disturb her happiness. Then she obeyed the impulse of duty and spoke the summoning words.

"Wha—what time is it?" demanded the newcomer from the land of Nod, stretching her fine young body with a splendid but discontented yawn.

"Seben, Miss Bev'ly. Wha' time do yo' s'pose hit is? Hit's d' reg'lah time, o' co'se. Did yo' all have a nice sleep, honey?" and Aunt Fanny went blissfully about the business of the hour.

"I didn't sleep a wink, confound it," grumbled Beverly, rubbing her eyes and turning on her back to glare up at the tapestry above the couch.

"Yo' wasn' winkin' any when Ah fust come into de room, lemme tell yo'," cackled Aunt Fanny, with caustic freedom.

"See here, now, Aunt Fanny, I'm not going to stand any lecture from you this morning. When a fellow hasn't slept a"—

"Who's a-lecturin' anybody, Ah'd lak to know? Ah'm jes' tellin' yo' what yo' was a-doin' when Ah came into de room. Yo' was a-sleepin' p'etty dog-gone tight, lemme tell yo'. Is yo' goin' out fo' yo' walk befo' b'eakfus', honey? 'Cause if yo' is, yo' all 'll be obleeged to climb out'n dat baid maghty quicklike. Yo' baf is ready, Miss Bev'ly."

Beverly splashed the water with unreasonable ferocity for a few minutes, trying to enjoy a diversion that had not failed her until this morning.

"Aunt Fanny," she announced after looking darkly through her window to the mountains above, "if you can't brush my hair—ouch!—any easier than this I'll have some one else do it, that's all. You're a regular old bear."

"Po' lil' honey," was all the complacent bear said in reply, without altering her methods in the least.

"Well," said Beverly threateningly, with a shake of her head, "be careful, that's all. Have you heard the news?"

"Wha' news, Miss Bev'ly?"

"We're going back to Washin'ton."

"Thank de Lawd! When?"

"I don't know. I've just this instant made up my mind. I think we'll start —let's see, this is the 6th of August, isn't it? Well, look and see if you don't know, stupid! The 10th? My goodness! Where has the time gone, anyway? Well, we'll start some time between the 11th and the 12th."

"Of dis monf, Miss Bev'ly?"

"No. September. I want you to look up a time table for me today. We must see about the trains."

"Dey's on'y one leavin' heah daily, an' hit goes at 6 in de mo'nin'. One train a day! Ain' dat scan'lous?"

"I'm sure, Aunt Fanny, it is their business, not ours," said Beverly severely.

"P'raps dey mought be runnin' a excuhsion roun' 'bout Septembeh, Miss Bev'ly," speculated Aunt Fanny consolingly. "Dey gen'ly has 'em in Septembeh."

"You old goose," cried Beverly in spite of herself.

"Ain' yo' habin' er good time, honey?"

"No, I am not."

"Fo' de lan' sake. Ah wouldn' s'picioned hit fo' a minnit. Hit's de gayest place Ah mos' eveh saw—'cept Wash'ton an' Lex'ton an' Vicksbu'g."

"Well, you don't know everything," said Beverly crossly. "I wish you'd take that red feather out of my hat right away."

"Shall Ah frow hit away, Miss Bev'ly?"

"We-ll, no. You needn't do that," said Beverly. "Put it on my dressing table. I'll attend to it."

"Wha's become o' de gemman 'at wo' hit in de fust place? Ah ain' seen him fo' two—three days."

"I'm sure I don't know. He's probably asleep. That class of people never lose sleep over anything."

"'E's er pow'ful good lookin' pusson," suggested Aunt Fanny. Beverly's eyes brightened.

"Oh, do you think so?" she said, quite indifferently. "What are you doing with that hat?"

"Takin' out de featheh—jes' as"—

"Well, leave it alone. Don't disturb my things, Aunt Fanny. How many times must I tell you"—

"Good Lawd!" was all that Aunt Fanny could say.

"Don't forget about the time tables," said Beverly as she sallied forth for her walk in the park.

In the afternoon she went driving with Princess Yetive and the young Duke of Mizrox, upon whose innocent and sufficiently troubled head she was heaping secret abuse because of the news he brought. Later Count Marlanx appeared at the castle for his first lesson in poker. He looked so sure of himself that Beverly hated him to the point of desperation. At the same time she was eager to learn how matters stood with Baldos. The count's threat still hung over her head, veiled by its ridiculous shadow of mercy. She knew him well enough by this time to feel convinced that Baldos would have to account for his temerity sooner or later. It was like the cat and the helpless mouse.

"It's too hot," she protested, when he announced himself ready for the game. "Nobody plays poker when it's 92 in the shade."

"But, your highness," complained the count, "war may break out any day. I cannot concede delay."

"I think there's a game called 'shooting craps,'" suggested she serenely. "It seems to me it would be particularly good for warriors. You could be shooting something all the time."

He went away in a decidedly irascible frame of mind. She did not know it, but Baldos was soon afterward set to work in the garrison stables, a most loathsome occupation, in addition to his duties as a guard by night.

BENJAMIN WAUGH

The Rev. Benjamin Waugh, founder the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, died at Westcliff-on-Sea on Wednesday evening of last week. Mr. Waugh, who was ordained at Airedale College, in Bradford, became minister of a church in Greenwich, and devoted himself early to social work among boys, in which he had the co-operation of the late Rob Roy Macgregor. He became a member of the London School Board and did excellent work. It was in connection with Mr. Stead's efforts for the passage of the Criminal Law Amendment Act that Mr. Waugh became prominently known as a philanthropist, and if we mistake not it was to him that Mr. Stead addressed his earliest letter from prison. Meanwhile Mr. Waugh had accepted the editorship of the Sunday Magazine, then in a flourishing condition. It cannot be said that his heart was in editorial work, and, indeed, he left it largely to others. But he wrote himself charming addresses to children which obtained wide popularity in volume form. He also prepared several compilations, and published a book of verses. With the editing of the Sunday Magazine he combined the work of the London Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and ultimately gave his whole time to the work. A charter of incorporation was conferred on the Society, and it has dealt with over 380,000 cases of ill-treatment. Like other philanthropists, Mr. Waugh was attacked, but a careful inquiry showed the soundness of his work and that of his society. Mr. Waugh was extremely anxious to preserve family life, and he insisted on the discharge of parental supervision. Only in cases of absolute necessity did his society ask and obtain the legal custody of the children. The amazing strength and vigor of the society is now very well known and the beneficence of its work is universally recognized. It is only three years since Mr. Waugh resigned the directorship of the society and accepted the position of consulting director. Mr. Waugh was a man of much emotional intensity and somewhat frail physique. It was a surprise to many that he showed himself possessed of the practical ability and the immense tenacity required for the great work which he lived to achieve. His sympathies were very wide, and he did not take to dogma, but the atmosphere of his mind was from the beginning profoundly religious. He did not cease to own his religious obligations to the religious influences that surrounded him in early days. We remember him telling a story of his father. When he was old and nearing the end, Benjamin urged him to lie still, and told him that God would hear his prayers as readily whether he offered them lying or kneeling. "Benjamin," said the old man, "you must not make so free with the Almighty." It is impossible to exaggerate the far-reaching and deeply penetrating results of the work for which Benjamin Waugh was born into the world.—British Weekly.

EASTER VESTRY MEETINGS IN ANGLICAN CHURCHES

The Easter vestry meetings in the three Anglican churches last evening were most encouraging and closed a year of prosperity and success. The congregations have much to be thankful for, as in none of the meetings last night was there a discouraging feature. On Easter Sunday the special Easter collections were large, enabling the finances of the churches to begin the year without a deficit.

ST. JOHN'S

The Vestry meeting of St. John's church last evening was marked by an encouraging financial report, showing that a very successful year had just been closed. The meeting was well attended. Rev. Canon Davidson presided and conducted the opening devotional exercises.

After routine business Mr. C. H. J. Mitchell, people's Church Warden, stated that the Wardens had appealed to the congregation for an Easter offering of $1,000 to balance a Vestry building account, and that of this the sum of $1,019.27 had been contributed, the principal part in cash, and the balance in the form of written promises, payable before October 15th of this year.

The Wardens' financial statement was read, showing receipts for the year of $4,717.30, and expenditures of $4,407.23, leaving a credit balance of $710.07.

The statement was received and referred to the auditors.

A very cordial vote of thanks was passed in recognition of the faithful and efficient devotion of the organist and choir in connection with the musical portion of the services of the church.

A similar vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Fred L. Roy for his contribution of an excellent framed group photograph of Assistant Bishop Reeve, Rev. Canon Davidson, Dr. E. A. Langfeldt and the two deacons recently ordained in St. John's, the picture having been hung in the rector's room in the Vestry.

A vote of thanks was also passed to the members of the Chancel Guild for their services in connection with the furnishing and decoration of the new Vestry.

The name of Mr. Harry Long was added to the Rectory Building Committee.

The report of the Vestry Building Committee was referred to the auditors.

The meeting adjourned, to meet on Tuesday evening, April 28th, when the new Wardens will be appointed.

At the subsequent meeting of the congregation the following gentlemen were appointed lay delegates to the Synod;—Dr. Boucher, Messrs. Jas. S. Bell and F. R. Yokome.

ALL SAINTS'

The annual vestry meeting of All Saints' church was held last evening when a representative number of the congregation was present. Rev. Wm. Major presided and opened the proceedings. The warden's report read by Mr. Jas. Edgar, showed the finances of the church to be in a very satisfactory condition. After all the operations of the church had been looked after a large surplus has been placed to the building fund.

Reports of the different societies including the Boys' Club, the Girls' Guild, Women's Guild, Sunday School and Men's Association were also presented and were very encouraging.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

People's Warden—Mr. J. Edgar, re-elected.

Rector's Warden—Mr. Frank Dawson.

Lay delegates to the Synod—Messrs. J. H. McClellan, A. Davis and A. E. Wilson.

Auditors—Messrs. A. Davis and Maughan.

Finance Committee—Messrs. W. Butler, T. Hooper, J. Mulholland and the wardens.

Representative to Nicholls Hospital Board—Mr. J. Greenen.

A vote of thanks was passed to the donor of the new Litany desk, and also to the various societies, officers and the choir for their excellent work during the year.

The meeting then adjourned for two weeks to receive the auditors' report.

ST. LUKE'S

At the annual vestry meeting held last night the following gentlemen were elected;—Rector's Warden, Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald (re-appointed by the Rector); People's Warden, Mr. G. R. Browning; Vestry Clerk, Mr. T. H. Adams. Lay delegates to the Synod, Messrs. Frank Adams, Wm. Maxwell and G. F. Warde. About $3,500.00 were raised from all sources.

Col. J. Z. Rogers retired from his office as People's Warden and received a hearty vote of thanks from the rector for his services.

The Vestry adjourned, to meet at the call of the Rector's Warden.

THE HIBERNIANS WILL MEET IN OTTAWA THIS SUMMER

Mr. James Drain has returned from Ottawa, where he attended the meeting of the Provincial Executive of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. An Ottawa despatch has the following about the meeting;—

Ottawa was selected as holding the Provincial Convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in August next at a meeting of the Provincial Executive held this morning at St. Patrick's Hall. The date of the month has not been settled yet.

There was a quantity of routine business disposed of, and it was decided to recommend to the provincial body the revision of the insurance scheme from a flat rate to a graded assessment.

Those present at the meeting today were;—C. J. Forde, Perth, president; ; James McLaughlin, Ottawa, vice-president; A. J. Tobin, Ottawa, treasurer; W. E. O'Meara, Ottawa, secretary; F. J. Walsh, Toronto, insurance secretary and Hon. John Costigan, J. M. Keilty, Brockville; James Drain, Peterborough, and M. Harvey, Arnprior, of the executive.

A CASE OF SACRILEGE BY STRANGERS IN A CHURCH

A case of sacrilege in a church by

Rome, April 20.—From St. Peter to Pius X. the history of the Papacy records no such grave sacrilege as that committed yesterday inside the Vaticans and under the eyes of the Pontiff, who was himself celebrating mass and administering the communion. Three persons, not Catholics, after insistence having obtained through their Ambassador the privilege of being present at the Papal Mass, approached the altar and received communion from the hands of the Pope, afterwards removing the consecrated wafers, one of which was found on the floor. These three persons knelt in the first row of communicants. Next to them was the famous actress, Mary Anderson, and then the sisters and niece of the Pope. When the sacrilege occurred Miss Anderson, who had already received communion, being deeply absorbed, only realized the incident through seeing the sister of the Pope next to her raise horrified hands. Simultaneously the members of the Papal Court, and high prelates noticing the insult, removed the insulters, who, however, justified their action by alluding to their ignorance of the Catholic faith. As the Pope withdrew to his apartment evidently disturbed, he exclaimed, "May God forgive them. They knew not what they did." The incident brings out a peculiar situation in the Holy See. If the sacrilege had occurred in any church in Rome outside the Vatican, Italy would punish the insulters, but the Vatican enjoying the right of extra-territoriality, Italy cannot be applied to.

THEATRICAL

"PARSIFAL"

Parsifal, the most beautiful of poetic dramas, and the most exquisite of poetic themes, was presented last evening at the Grand Opera House, before a large and appreciative audience.

The adaptation used is made by William Signor Roberts and is in the main truthful and poetic.

Almost everyone knows that the story of Parsifal is practically the same as Tennyson's Sir Galahad, the quest for the holy grail, only that Parsifal, pure in heart, a "guileless fool," starts on his hunt for the magic sphere, stolen from Amfortas by Kundry, instead of looking, like Galahad, for the holy grail itself.

Many temptations and difficulties beset his path, but he surmounts them all and returns triumphant, to be crowned King of the Knights of the Holy Grail.

The piece was appropriately costumed, remarkably well set and distinguished by some really beautiful effects in lighting.

Mr. Connor, as Parsifal, never for an instant forgot his role and gave a reverent and sincere interpretation of his part. He seems to be imbued with the spirit of bravery and purity that should animate a Knight of the Grail and was indeed satisfactory in every detail.

Mr. Kelvin, as Klingsor, Black Knight of Necromancy, was most "devilish" and showed excellent dramatic ability, while as Dwenger, his impish servant, Mr. McGillan, did remarkably good work in an exceedingly difficult part.

Miss Keating, as Kundry, looked pretty and played her part admirably. The other members of the company were excellent, the company on the whole being exceptionally good.

Zutoo

Is Used by Thousands.

It would probably surprise you to know how many thousands of people are using Zutoo Tablets who had never before used a headache cure.

This is due to three facts.
They tried the tablets.
The tablets cured their headache.
The tablets did not hurt them.

Like sensible people, they do not suffer from headache any more. They either let Zutoo ward off the headache—nip it in the bud—or assist nature in stopping it. Which do you do? Do you suffer from headache or do you take Zutoo?

THE CHURCH ARMY DEFENCE

Headquarters,
55 Bryanston street,
Marble Arch,
London, W.
10th April, '08

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In his recent report on the subject of immigration from Great Britain by the Charitable Societies, Mr. J. Bruce Walker says concerning the Church Army:—

"This is a Reformatory and charitable organization connected with, and working under the auspices of the Established Church of England. They sent to Canada last year 1595 persons, of whom 1519 received assistance from the Church Army Immigration Fund. This organization is of a many-sided character, embracing the reclamation of the drunkard, the reception of the discharged prisoner, the shelter and food of the homeless, and an asylum for the unemployed. It has a number of cheap night shelters throughout this city and country, and is engaged exclusively in operating amongst the lowest and most degraded classes to be found in England. In pursuance of the reformatory work, they have a farm colony, to which men are sent on probation, and where those two are destined for immigration to Canada are placed for observation and training in actual farming operations, but as these men were originally anything but farmers, or rural citizens, the probation can hardly be called satisfactory; the training is not very practical and the person still retains his aversion to the country and his love of populous places.

"The Church Army also interests itself in the emigration of persons who can pay their fare; young men who are beyond parental control; young men whose relatives believe that removal from old haunts and old associations to a new country would afford a new opportunity for starting life afresh, and rehabilitating themselves in the good opinion of their friends, and I am afraid that not a few of the latter are selected, not from any examination, but from the personal influence of those who are desirous of obtaining the emigration of such persons."

As Chairman of the Emigration Committee of the Church Army I protest most emphatically against this sweeping condemnation of the emigrants sent out to Canada by this organization. Will you allow me in the first place to say that, during the period when the 1595 emigrants referred to were sent to Canada, Mr. Bruce Walker was Assistant Superintendent of Emigration in London. He had no personal knowledge whatever of the emigrants we sent out, although if he had been so minded he might have seen from time to time at the Great Central Railway terminus at Marleybone nearly all the emigrants whom we sent. Mr. Bruce Walker is entirely mistaken in saying that the Church Army interests itself in the emigration of young men who are "sowing their wild oats," young men "who are beyond parental control," or young men whose relations are interested in their getting a fresh start in a new country. The great majority of the men who we emigrated in the year 1907 were persons of the working class, who had always been honest and industrious, but whom from no fault of their own, had become destitute through being out of work a long time. Some of the emigrants and their friends found a part of the cost of emigration, and all the emigrants agreed to repay the money, we advanced to them by instalments spreading over several years. I am glad to say that, whereas £1,715 became payable in November last, we have received over £1,100 already, without exercising any pressure whatever. This, I submit, shows clearly that the men who remitted this money were both honest and industrious, and that they had been fully employed. Many persons who applied for emigration last year were rejected and unfit and cases were only accepted after careful examination, medical inspection and investigation of references. The emigrants were sent out in batches to Canada under the charge of one of our Church Army officers, and on their arrival they went to places procured for them by our agents stationed at Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg. It is quite true that a small proportion we sent last year were men who had been reclaimed through the agency of our Labour Homes. We are informed that they are doing well and we have received grateful letters from them enclosing remittances on account of the cost of emigrating them.

With regard to the emigrants we sent in the year 1906, in an interview with our agent, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said:—

"Your immigrants have done well for themselves and well pay for their employers. There is plenty of work for all you can send out, as the farmers are wanting men and cannot get them. I wish you all success in your work."

As even more care was taken in 1907 in the selection of emigrants, it must be clear to any unprejudiced mind that Mr. Bruce Walker's report, as far as it refers to the Church Army, is wholly incorrect.

I am sir,
Your obedient servant,
WILLIAM HAMILTON,
Hon. Treasurer of the Church Army.

PROTECTION OF DEER

A correspondent writing from the northern part of the County of Peterborough states that in his opinion the law for the protection of deer is not being observed as it should be. He states that hounds are allowed to run at large and that much shooting for amusement is being practiced. People who ought to know better, he asserts, take advantage of the forbearance of true sports who will not kill out of season.

CAMP ALPINE MEETS TO-NIGHT

Several Candidates Will be Initiated --- Banquet Tomorrow Night

A meeting of Camp Alpine, Sons of Scotland, will be held tonight in the Orange hall, Simcoe street. All the members are requested to be present. Several candidates will be initiated and there will also be a social time. Tomorrow night a banquet will be held in the Sons of England hall, Hunter street. A most enjoyable time is expected. Several prominent members of Sons of Scotland camps from outside the city will be here for the function and an interesting time is expected.

LIGHTHOUSES ON THE SCUGOG

Two New Ones are Now Under Construction at Dangerous Places

Lindsay, April 21—Two new lighthouses are under construction for two dangerous passages and bends in the sinuous and treacherous Scugog.

Only those who are navigators of this crooked stream, as bad as the ancient Meander, can appreciate the extreme unpleasantness of sailing these waters by day, let alone by night, without proper means of directing their course.

Several new lighthouses were placed last year at different bends in the river but one of the worst, perhaps, remained unguarded, and for the purpose of safety to the public, these two new silent sentinels are being built. The sharp turn near Douglas' has been a menace to rivermen for years and the scene of more than one drowning.

It was near this, where two recent drownings occurred, and for a long period this has been considered one of the most dangerous points along the river.

Similar spots along other rivers, comparatively free from stumps and other hair raising obstacles would be considered unsafe without some means of warning. But where the navigator has to be continually on the alert in order to keep the channel and avoid the end of a stump finding a resting place in his craft, yachting or boating of all forms becomes hazardous without a sign of what is ahead.

When both the bends above and below Douglas' have been supplied Scugog will, it is confidently expected, be fairly safe for night as well as day navigation. A great deal of credit for this is due the government officials of these waters who evidently desire to safeguard the public in every possible way.

The Scugog is one of the leading arteries of commerce in Canada.

PETERBOROUGH MEN DID GREAT WORK IN THE OPENING NIGHT OF BIG TOURNAMENT

HARRISON, STEVENS AND HARTLEY ALL FINISHED WITHIN THE MONEY

A Magnificent Athletic Spectacle---Hoagland Won, Going 23 Miles 4 Laps With Harrison a Lap Behind---Many Sensational Sprints---Crowd Was Surprised and Delighted---Over a Thousand in Attendance---14 Started 10 Finished.

For three local men to finish within the money on the first night of the six-day international walking grind, which is being held at Brock street rink, is an accomplishment which the city may, with justice, proclaim with pride. And this record was achieved last night at the Brock street rink on the opening night of the big six-day championship walking tournament. The three local men referred to are Harrison, Stevens and Hartley and the greatest recognition is due the Peterborough trio of crack walkers. They were in competition against America's best, and Harrison and Stevens who were not seriously considered as factors in the race, surprised everyone by their really remarkable showing.

1,000 PEOPLE THERE.

The crowd began to come early in the evening and by the time the walk was ready to commence there were about 750 on hand, the crowd increasing to 1,000 before the finish of the evening's walk.

THE AMERICAN FLAG.

The rink was tastily hung with flags and pennants of various kinds among the flags being an American one in a conspicuous place in front of the balcony in honor of the athletes from across the line. And among the various decorations it seems only proper that homage should be paid the splendid pedestrians who have come from Uncle Sam's land to take part in the event.

LOOKS LIKE A GREAT SUCCESS.

The magnificent sport furnished at last night's walk caused the spectators to become greatly excited and enthused and round after round of applause and exclamations of surprise and appreciation were heard from all parts of the rink.

The tournament has all the earmarks of a colossal success and the public will need no urging to support it. The local press has been very optimistic concerning it and the advance notices were borne out by the brilliant success of the opening night.

BIG CROWDS LOOKED FOR.

Everybody was delighted at last night's walk and all expectations for evening of sport and real enjoyment were surpassed. Walking is a new game to Peterborough and is by no means monotonous, as many people who were unfamiliar with top notch pedestrianism thought it would be, but proved a very exhilarating sport that held the attention of the spectators all the time. In fact it is one of the most exciting games on the calendar and possibly a more thoroughly pleased and more agreeably disappointed audience ever assembled in the Brock street rink.

CREDIT TO OFFICIALS.

The officials of the walk deserve much credit. They have had an uphill road to travel in getting up the tournament, receiving little encouragement from the public, the majority of whom seemed to think that it would not "take" in Peterborough. However they were very industrious in the matter of making all arrangements for the event and have spared neither time nor expense to have it carried through to a successful issue. To Mr. George Stevens, the energetic promoter of the walk, a large measure of praise is due for his indefatigable efforts.

WALKERS ARRIVE.

Around seven o'clock the walkers commenced to arrive at the rink last night and accompanied by their trainers, went to their dressing rooms upstairs where they had a rub and got dressed for the track. There were fourteen starters, ten of whom finished. The crowd became anxious for the start shortly after seven and at 7.30 the first walker, Charlie Stevens, appeared on the track. The others followed him and all were given quite a reception. Hartley's appearance was the signal for an outburst of enthusiasm. Hoagland and Slater walked on together, and as soon as the champion appeared he was given an ovation to which he doffed his hat in acknowledgement.

OFFICIALS READY.

Chief Scorer) Kingdon took his place at the table at the starting point and Timer Clark stood beside him in readiness for the start. The tally men took position at their cards in the gallery and everything was ready for the start.

A FLASHLIGHT.

The men lined up at the starting point in rows of threes as follows:—Hartley, Brooks, Stevens, Graham, Hoagland, Slater, Cooper, Blake, Hatton, Stenner, Harrison, Brooks, Fenton and Naugan. Official Tournament Photographer Roy took a flashlight of the men and then the big race was ready to commence.

THEY'RE OFF.

Hartley took the lead and the crowd cheered their favorite to keep going. He kept it for some laps, followed by Stevens and Cooper. Hoagland and Slater, the Yankee cracks, kept about midway in the bunch and walked strong and with that easy effective stride that made it apparent to even the most casual observer that they were men to be feared.

COOPER TAKES LEAD

On the seventh lap of the first mile Cooper passed Hartley and pulled away ahead. Stenner passed Hartley next, leaving Davy in third place. Cooper struck up a whirlwind gait and lapped Graham amid vociferous applause. Stenner passed Hartley next and then pulled ahead of Graham. Blake took an awful splurge getting in third place. He pushed Stenner hard for two or three laps but couldn't pass him the latter spurting magnificently when pressed.

BLAKE LEADS

Blake passed Cooper the second lap of the second mile and was enthusiastically recognized by the audience for his clever work. He soon assumed a good lead with Stenner a fair third. Referee Reynolds cautioned the men a couple of times.

Hoagland and Slater, who were the source of much attraction kept together with Hoagland pacing by about 6 feet. Fenton, the boy walker, took a brace and passed three or four men.

THIRD MILE.

Blake led in the third mile with Cooper second, the third mile being done in exactly thirty minutes. The pace got hot for Bruce who was forced to retire. There were no sensational sprints in this mile.

FOURTH MILE

Stevens commenced to walk at a rapid rate and took the lead, finishing first in the fourth mile. The crowd wildly cheered when they saw him doing so well and passed him out all kinds of encouragement. For lap after lap and well in the middle of the bunch a procession of the four formidables Hoagland, Slater, Harrison and Blake, continued.

SPLENDID SHOWING

Stevens let out in a manner that was really surprising. He walked at a great rate and finished first, the 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th miles. Hoagland at last passed Stevens shortly after the 11th mile. The men then took the position of Hoagland first, Slater second, and Harrison third and Stevens fourth with Stevens, however, in the lead as regard to the scoring.

HOAGLAND COMES UP

Near the 12th mile, Hoagland began to distance considerably on Stevens and got first position on the 13th. Blake picked up considerably and he and Hoagland raced half a lap side by side, Blake taking the lead. Hartley at this stage was walking furiously and passed several men.

W. A. HOAGLAND
Winner of the Kansas City walk and Leader in Tournament

14TH MILE

Hoagland led at the 14th mile, Slater coming second and Harrison third. Blake was in fourth position for the mile, with Stevens fifth and Hartley sixth. The latter gained rapidly on the next lap. Harrison passed Slater and dropped in behind Hoagland.

Hartley was fifth on the next lap and got right after Fenton, the boy was in front of him, though not up to him in the scoring.

15TH MILE

Hoagland finished this mile first. The men took it a little easier, lagging somewhat. The pace had been a strenuous one for the last few laps. There was no sensational work done in this mile and the men seemed content to travel along a little more leisurely, than they had been going.

16TH MILE.

Hoagland, Slater and Harrison swept by the timer for this mile in the order named and with less than ten feet between them. The crowd inside the ropes became so interested in the walkers that they crowded onto the ropes and interfered considerably with the referee who had his work cut out for him in keeping track of the walkers.

Hoagland, Slater and Harrison finished their 17th mile. Fenton dropped out for a short time making the third out of the race, Bruce having quit shortly after the third mile and Brooks after the 15th.

POSITIONS OF MEN

The men within the money and in the order mentioned were Hoagland, Slater, Harrison, Blake and Hartley.

Fenton came onto the track again having covered 16 miles and 4 laps when he dropped out. t Harrison who was travelling third to Hoagland and Slater, broke away and passed them both. The crowd showed its appreciation by tumultuous applause Hoagland was ahead at the 17th mile.

HARRISON COMES UP

Harrison walked by Hoagland and caused great excitement, by beating him out for the 18th mile. Harrison and Hoagland sprinted. Slater had lost considerable ground and appeared ill. He came on the track with the big disadvantage of a heavy cold and was so hoarse he could hardly speak. He took a big chance in starting at all. He did remarkably well considering this handicap and will be at the scratch again tonight.

SLATER LAPPED.

Hoagland led on the 19th mile lapping Slater. Harrison was a sticky second. He also was ahead at the 20th, Harrison getting the 21st. The pace was a hot one and the leaders were going at a much too rapid rate for the balance of the field.

A GREAT GO.

Stevens walked very fast and pulled up in a wonderful manner. For lap after lap he and Hoagland walked side by side with Stevens generally in the lead. The crowd didn't attempt to restrain itself and kept encouraging Stevens.

22ND MILE

Hoagland got this mile with Stevens leading him and having covered 21 miles and 9 laps. Hoagland at last broke away from him and in the grandest sprint of the night beat him half a lap in a lap. It was a surprisingly quick stunt and made the spectators sit up and take notice of the flying American who tore the miles in such easy manner and in such fast time.

THE LAP RECORD

In getting away from Stevens, Hoagland established the track record for the night—40 seconds. Stevens earlier in the evening did the lap in 42 1-5 seconds which time for the distance was next to Hoagland. This is decidedly a feather in the local boy's cap for the outside stars did some mighty tall sprinting at times.

LAST MILE

The men were travelling pretty fair for the last mile. Hoagland making it in the fastest time, 10 1-2 minutes, which was nearly three minutes less twelve seconds short of the mile record of 7.42 made earlier in the evening by Cooper who, however, withdrew on account of the great pace set.

WALKING.

Six or eight of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A members, along with the physical director, are going to walk up to Lindsay on Friday as a test of endurance. They will be the guests of the local Y.M.C.A., and as they will likely be tired, the evening train for home will likely be employed as a means of locomotion to carry them to their destination. "All's well that ends well." —Lindsay Post.

SITE OF QUEBEC BRIDGE.

Scene of Disaster Has Many Historical Associations.

There are few more historic sites in Canada than that of the late ill-fated Quebec bridge. Its abutment on the one side is close to the mouth of the famous Chaudiere, down which descended Arnold's army in its unsuccessful expedition against Quebec in 1775, while that on the other is between the historic settlements of Sillery, M. de Maisonneuve and Mademoiselle Mance spent their first Canadian winter with the colonists intended to found Montreal. At Sillery Cove the Jesuit Fathers were wont to assemble and instruct the Algonquin and Montagnais Indians who were desirous of becoming Christians. It was from that spot that the neophytes carried the faith to the depths of the forest. It was here that the missionaries congregated before starting with the joyous message for the country of the Hurons, for the shores of the Mississippi, or for the frozen regions of Hudson Bay. Thence went Father P. Druillettes, the bearer of words of peace on behalf of the Christians of Sillery to the Abenaquis of Kennebec, and to the Puritans of Boston. Near this same mission of Sillery Friar Liegeois was massacred by the Iroquois, whilst Father Poncet was carried away a captive by these barbarous tribes. It was also at Cap Rouge that Jacques Cartier established his quarters, close to the water's edge, during the second winter he spent in Canada, and was succeeded in the same spot by Roberval, at the head of his ephemeral colony. Near the mouth of the Chaudiere, on the opposite shore of the river stood the tents of the Abenaquis, the Etchemins, and the Souriquois Indians, when they came from the shores of New England by way of the Chaudiere to smoke the calumet of peace with their French allies.

Passing of the Old Landmarks.

One by one the towering tops and gnarled trunks of the trees which were familiar landmarks to the boys and girls of a past generation have disappeared from side road and concession. The giant elm that was second "hunk" in the ball ground at the corners near the seventh line school trembled a moment in the gale of one stormy autumn, the weakened roots yielded to the strain, and a resounding crash was heard above the roaring gale as the hoary veteran passed into the shadows whence it had come. The beech on the side road, from the limbs of which the children of a thousand yesterday had gathered nuts, and that carried on its trunk the scars left by knives in hands now far away, was shivered by a bolt in one of those fierce electric storms which form such a striking contrast to the usual calm of a Canadian summer. One by one the branches withered and decayed on the towering pine that in years gone by stood out against the sky-line where the road began its descent into the valley of the river on the other side of the hill, and at last the dry trunk yielded to the fire enemy it had defied in its vigorous growth. To-day the grassy sward, with its mantle of white, hides even the site on which these kings of the forest once stood.

Other trees there are now. Long lines of spruce break the force of the north wind, and for mile after mile the road is lined with a double row of maples. These will grow into and become a part of the lives of the young whose journey has but begun; but for those whose shadows are lengthening beneath the setting sun, the landscape has lost in the passing of the old landmarks something which can never be replaced.—Toronto Weekly Sun.

IS LEAVING FOR WESTERN CANADA

Mr. Chas. McBrien Honored by Royal Scarlet Chapter of West Peterboro'

On Saturday evening, Mr. Chas. McBrien was presented with 2 handsome gifts by Royal Scarlet Chapter of West Peterborough. The presentation took place in the Orange hall, Simcoe street when a large number of the companions of the chapter were present. Mr. McBrien and family are leaving for the West in the near future. Mr. McBrien was presented with a set of dishes and a book, "Heart of the Rockies," accompanied by an address read by Mr. W. G. Bartley, Companion Scribe. It was as follows:

To Chas. McBrien, Esq.,
Peterborough, Ont.,

Dear Companion,—We, your fellow companions of the Royal Scarlet Chapter of West Peterborough, desire to take this opportunity on the eve of your departure for the "Golden West" to express our appreciation of the services which you have on all occasions so willingly and ably rendered to this Chapter and to our Order at large, since you first became connected with it.

Since then our Chapter has made rapid strides towards success, as has also all other branches of our Association in this county. It is with no ordinary amount of pleasure that we note the spirit of revival which has recently been taken hold of our members in this locality and that we have good reason for hoping that this is but the commencement of a new era in the history of Orangeism in the county of West Peterborough. We are conscious of the fact that much of this prosperity is due to your devotion and untiring zeal on behalf of the institution whose principles we all have so much at heart, and which we are satisfied will yet become more universal and better understood as the years roll by.

To allow the present occasion to pass without, in some way, recognizing services so valuable as yours would be very ungrateful on our part, we therefore, ask you and Mrs. McBrien to accept these small presents as a token of the esteem and regard in which you are held by the brethren and companions of this Chapter. Trusting that they will serve to remind you of the many happy occasions on which we have been brought together and the many pleasant hours spent in the Chapter room. And wishing you and your family every success in your new home, we beg to remain,

Faithfully and fraternally yours,
D. HAMILTON,
W. C in C,
WM. G. BARTLEY,
Companion Scribe.
Orange Hall, Peterborough, April 18.

Mr. McBrien made a suitable reply, expressing his thanks for the handsome gifts. A social time was afterwards spent.

S. Shimizu, Japanese Consul-General, is to succeed T. Nosse, as the Mikado's representative at Ottawa.

The Prince of Wales will arrive at Quebec on July 22nd, and will be received by the British Atlantic fleet,

THE DIVINING ROD.

No Mysterious Virtues Hidden in the Dowser's Wand.

In experiments with a divining rod as used for discovering underground supplies of water one of the geologists of the United States geological survey found that at points it turned downward independently of his will, but more complete tests showed that the down turning resulted from slight and—until watched for—unconscious changes in the inclination of his body, the effects of which were communicated through the arms and wrists to the rod. No movement of the rod from causes outside the body could be detected, and it soon became obvious that the view held by other men of science is correct, that the operation of the "divining rod" is generally due to unconscious movements of the body or of the muscles of the hand. The experiments made show that these movements happen most frequently at places where the operator's experience has led him to believe that water may be found.

The uselessness of the divining rod is indicated by the facts that the rod may be worked at will by the operator that he fails to detect strong currents of water running in tunnels and other channels that afford no surface indications of water and that his locations in limestone regions where water flows in well defined channels are rarely more successful than those dependent on mere guesses. In fact, its operators are successful only in regions in which ground water occurs in a definite sheet in porous material or in more or less clayey deposits, such as the pebbly clay or till, in which, although a few failures occur, wells would get water anywhere.

Ground water occurs under certain definite conditions, and as in humid regions a stream may be predicted whenever a valley is known, so one familiar with rocks and ground water conditions may predict places where ground water can be found. No appliance either electrical or mechanical has yet been successfully used for detecting water in places where plain common sense or mere guessing would not have shown its presence just as well. The only advantage of employing a "water witch," as the operator of the divining rod is sometimes called, is that skilled services are obtained, most men so employed being keener and better observers of the occurrence and movements of ground water than the average person.—Scientific American.

A Pet Bear.

Bears unless hungry or abused are good natured animals and make amusing pets. "When I was in the revenue service at Alaska," said a lieutenant, "we had a pet bear on the boat, and we called him Wineeta. He used to climb to the crosstrees, going up hand over hand by the ratlines. One day he ventured out on the yardarm, and there he stayed. We had to get a rope and haul him down. Once he vaulted over the head of our Chinese cook and went into the lockers, where he helped himself to sugar and butter. We had a tackling made for him, much the same as a harness of a pet pug, and we would drop him overboard, with a rope attached, to take his bath. Once he landed in a native boat and nearly frightened the occupants out of their wits. He was as playful as a kitten, and, although he sometimes disobeyed, he was never treacherous or unkind. When he was lost or hid himself, as he often did, we would look in the dark till we saw two little balls of fire. These were his eyes and gave him away every time."

She Carried a Parcel.

The laugh is on one of the attendants at the Congressional library at Washington. One of the rules is that no one shall be allowed to carry a parcel of any kind into the building. One day a tall young woman appeared at the door, and when the attendant saw that she had a parcel under her arm he told her that it was against the rules for her to take it with her. She demurred and pronounced the rule absurd. There were certain parcels that people should be allowed to carry with them, and so forth, and so forth. But the man insisted that he must enforce the rule and that she would have to leave the parcel with him until she came out. That settled it. The young woman deliberately opened the parcel, took from it three pairs of black stockings that she evidently had just bought, and, hanging them over her arm, she gave the attendant the paper in which they had been wrapped, saying:

"There, please keep that until I come out. I have no parcel now."

What Audiences Believe.

The light suddenly went out during one of my performances in Waterbury. A panic was in prospect. However, I shouted out: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am about to perform a most marvelous trick. I have here a lemon; but, of course, you can't see it. I am about to cut it in two and bring out of it an elephant!"

The audience settled down. Squash! I cut the lemon. "And now," I said, "the elephant has gone. It has walked off the stage. But, of course, you can't see it, but that doesn't matter."

Sure enough, there was heard a slow, shuffling sound quite appropriate, although it was made by the fat stage manager, who was shuffling across the boards in his slippers. The light returned, there was much applause, and all was well. The next day a man stopped me in the street and said he considered that trick the most marvelous he had ever seen and would I be giving it again that night! It's true!—Horace Goldin in Cassell's Magazine.

BORDER INDIAN BANDS.

Mr. J. S. Crate Enters Plea Against Their Demoralization.

The Department of Indian Affairs for the Dominion of Canada is face to face with a problem of gravest import. It involves either the disintegration and utter disappearance of the border Indians on this half of the continent, or their perpetuation and physical and moral salvation.

The race that can produce the administrative and creative qualities of an Oronhyatekha, the literary genius of a Pauline Johnson or the athletic predominance of a Longboat needs no apology from those who have interested themselves in the Indian peoples. The Mohawks, under the influence of the good that is in civilization, have produced many good citizens, professional men and even distinguished figures.

What a chasm there lies, however, between the healthful surroundings made possible in one case and the damning, soul-blighting, death-dealing conditions under which some of the border tribes are forced to exist. The Department knows full well of the ravages of tuberculosis in many of the Indian tribes. If the assurances of the Minister of the Interior may be relied upon the Department will do all that medical science can do for these people. That is part of the campaign, and the time may yet come when the little Indian boys or girls may enter the schools with some slight chance of reaching physical maturity before filling graves in the reservation cemetery.

The Indian Department, while cognizant and doubtless appreciably concerned about these conditions, is also aware of the peculiar difficulties which confront those who are working on behalf of the Indian bands along the Rainy River. There are 14 reservations and eighteen bands in this jurisdiction. Many of the reservations are located along the river directly opposite the state of Minnesota. It is not against the law in that state to sell liquor to a Canadian Indian, and in consequence these unfortunate people have been exploited and degraded almost beyond credence. Men of vicious character have established across the river from the reservations "blind pigs," where whiskey of the most vicious kind is sold. The utter soullessness of the men who lend themselves to this degrading business is almost beyond belief, and the Indians go blindly, even willingly to the slaughter.

In his annual report to the Department, J. P. Wright, Indian agent, tells, for example, of the Hungry Hall bands of Objibways. Their reserves cover 6,280 acres, and much of the land is a rich clay loam. They have no taste, however, for agriculture.

"These Indians," says the agent, "are addicted to the use of intoxicants, which they usually get on the American side."

Again, of the Long Sault bands, he writes: "I regret to state that all the Indians along the Rainy River are very much addicted to the use of intoxicants, which they can easily procure on the American side, for, as the law now stands, there is no penalty for supplying liquor to Canadian Indians on the American side."

In his report of the Little Forks band, the same story is told in other words: "These Indians are intemperate," says the agent, "and as there is a 'blind pig' kept on the American side of the river, opposite the reserve, they can get all the liquor they can pay for, consequently a great deal of their money is spent in liquor. In November last two of these Indians were shot and one seriously wounded in a drunken row with the keeper of this 'blind pig,' but both recovered."

The cold language of the official reports conveys scant information of the demoralizing influences exercised on the lives of these people by conditions across the river from their reservations.

What chance has that little Indian boy who was held up playfully by the guide when I visited one of the border reservations? While his black eyes gleam with laughter now, and in childish play he runs around the tepee, his future is as surely blighted as the flower that withers and falls with the first frost of winter. He is one of those who must grow up and contribute to the men across the river.

These Indian bands range in number from 40 to 110. There are 18 of them in the Rainy River country.

Two things I strongly recommend after making a personal investigation and knowing full well the nature of the information in possession of the Department. Remove the reservations far back from the border. It will help to save these people and will remove at the same time one of the greatest obstacles in the development and settlement of the Rainy River valley. Then, let the Department of Indian Affairs approach the United States and Minnesota authorities with a view to securing their cooperation for the protection of the border tribes of Indians.

The Indian population of Canada is 110,345, of whom 10,267 are pagans. In 1906 the population was 107,637, of whom 10,906 were pagans.

Any inference to be drawn from these figures is left to readers who may be interested in this article.

Czar Enters Lawsuit.

An extraordinary suit at law which is exciting much interest among Manitoba lawyers is now in progress in Winnipeg. No less a person than the Czar of Russia is suing a citizen of the western metropolis. The statement of claim sets forth that one Proskurekoff, passing under the assumed name of Stefan Tudkofski, was formerly treasurer of the Department of the Interior of the Russian Government in the province of Turkeston, and that he absconded with funds to the amount of 340,000 roubles. The alleged unfaithful steward went to Winnipeg, taking with him a Russian lady, pretty and of high degree. There he invested in real estate, and lived luxuriously. Czar Nicholas is now seeking to recover the lost roubles, and asks for the delivery to him of the alleged delinquent's property. Proskurekoff has not been seen since the suit was begun.

C. R. Rabens, a typewriter traveller, was found dead in his room in the Tecumseh House, London.

CURIOUS TRIBAL CUSTOMS.

Wild Race of Papua In Which Women Have Much Influence.

A Methodist missionary in British New Guinea—now known as Papua—Rev. W. E. Brownlow, has added to the world's knowledge of the curious and little brown races of the great north Pacific island by the discovery and partial taming of a new tribe.

The race in question consists of about 20,000 blacks, living at a place called Dobu. The customs of the race are most curious. The immigration policy is more drastic than that of "White Australia," for all strangers have either to become full members of the tribe or be eaten. When dealing with Mr. Brownlow, however, the difficulty was got over by making him a father of the tribe.

In an interview in Sydney Mr. Brownlow gave some interesting particulars of the Dobuans' standard of civilization. The Dobuan land laws, he said, were an example to modern countries. Each tribe and each family had their own land and no portion was allowed to go out of their possession except as a loan for a season's crop. The men married out of their own tribe and on their death their land became the property of their sisters' children, and so it was handed down from generation to generation within the tribe.

Women have great influence in the affairs of the tribe and their duties are quite distinct from those of the men. The men clear the bush and dig the ground, then the women prepare it and plant yams, the crop being theirs. If a man wanted any yams he had to ask for them. The banana patch, however, was his own property. Wives were obtained by purchase. If a man paid well for his wife he could thrash her occasionally, but she could leave him if she did not like it and go back to her own village, where she still had a home.

In the religion of the people, continued Mr. Brownlow, there was something of ancestral worship. A deceased relative was regarded as sacred and his name must not be mentioned on pain of death. An exception was made in the case of any one being ill and given up by the medicine man. The latter might then call upon the name of an ancestor, invoking him to bring back the spirit of the dying man. Their heaven was a place where the healthy, strong and good-looking went. All the others went to hell. They believe in a being who created them, but left them alone afterward.

REV. DR. PATTON CHOSEN.

Successor to Rev. Dr. Workman at Wesleyan College.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Governors of Wesleyan College, Rev. Dr. Walter M. Patton of Baldwin University, Kansas, was appointed successor to Rev. Dr. Workman, in the chair of Oriental literature and Old Testiment exegesis. Dr. Patton was a former Montrealer, having held the chair in Wesleyan College in 1902. He is 45 years of age and was born in Toronto. He was educated at the high school Montreal, leaving it to go into business in this city, and afterwards in Chicago. Returning to Montreal, he took up theological studies at Wesleyan College, afterwards going to Europe, where he studied Oriental literature at Leyden and Heidelberg, from the last of which he graduated with the degree of Ph.D. He returned to Montreal to occupy a chair in Wesleyan College during the years 1901 and 1902. In 1902 he took ministerial charge at Beacon's Falls, Connecticut, at the same time assisting Prof. Sanders at Yale in Oriental languages. In 1904 he was appointed to the chair of Oriental literature in Baldwin University, Kansas, which chair he held up to his recent appointment to Wesleyan College. He will assume his new duties on May 1 of this year.

How to Clean Waxed Floors.

A hardwood floor which has been finished after the French manner, with wax only, is easily cleaned and refinished. In this country such floors instead of being polished with a brush every morning, as is done in good houses in France, are left to themselves for weeks or months. The consequence is that the surface of the wax grows dim and sticky, and dust clings to it, accumulating until it forms blackish streaks or spots, especially under rugs or near windows or in other places exposed to dust. Washing with water or ammonia will not remove these spots and will injure the floor, raising and roughing the grain. Instead of this they should be rubbed with fine sandpaper, No. 1 or No. 0, dipped in turpentine. The turpentine will soften the wax without injuring the floor, and the sandpaper will remove the dust. If the floor is too thickly coated with wax, the sandpaper clogs quickly, and steel wool dipped in turpentine is more convenient, when the fresh dressing of wax may be put on and rubbed in the usual manner. This process can be repeated indefinitely until the floor has been sufficiently cleansed.

LONDON, April 20.—London cables are steady at 12c to 13¼c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at —¼c to 11¼c per pound.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, April 20.—Receipts of live stock at the Junction Market were 21 carloads, composed of 548 cattle, 29 sheep, 62 calves and 120 horses.

Exporters.

Export steers sold at $5 to $6 per cwt.; export bulls, at $4 to $5 per cwt.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots of butchers' cattle sold at $5.50 to $5.80 and an odd one or two of extra choice quality at $6; loads of good at $5.25 to $5.50; medium, $5 to $5.25; common and mixed, $4.60 to $4.85; good cows, $4 to $4.50; common cows, $3.50 to $3.90; canners, $1.50 to $2.50.

Feeders and Stockers.

The only sale reported was a car load of 1000 lb. steers, 21 in number, bought by Wm. Vanstone of Pickering, for Dr. McGillivray at $4.75 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers.

A limited number of milkers and springers sold at $30 to $50 each.

Veal Calves.

The market was weak for the dairy class of veal calves, but as strong as ever for properly fed new milk calves. Common calves, $2 to $4 each per cwt.; good to choice calves, $5 to $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts light, prices firm. Sheep, $5 to $5.50 per cwt.; yearling lambs, $8 to $8.50 per cwt.; spring lambs, $4 to $7.50 each.

Hogs.

Gunns, Limited, reported prices same as last week. Selects, fed and watered at the market, $6.40, and $6.15 to drovers, f.o.b., cars, at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 20.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending April 18 were 3195 cattle, 82 sheep and lambs, 2403 hogs and 1065 calves, while the supply for local consumption this morning consisted of 500 cattle, 1300 hogs and 400 calves. As is always the case, the run of cattle for the first market after Easter was small; but it was ample to fill all requirements, as butchers in most cases had sufficient beef on hand to carry them over until next week; therefore the demand was somewhat limited and trade in this respect was slow. There were no outside buyers present, but some exporters were on the market, who, however, did not show a disposition to operate freely on account of the weaker cable advices received from Liverpool on Saturday, which noted a decline of ½c per lb. in prices for American and Canadian steers as compared with a week ago. The quality of cattle offered was by no means as good as last week, consequently prices ruled lower, but this does not indicate that the market is weaker, for if the same class of stock had come forward just as high prices would have been paid to-day. Choice beeves sold at 5¾c to 6c; good at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 4¾c to 5c, and lower grades at 3c to 4½c per pound. The market for sheep and lambs was dull owing to the fact that there were no arrivals, but the feeling remains firm, with a good enquiry, and the last sales of yearlings were made at 7c to 7½c for choice stock, while good sheep are quoted at 5½c per lb.; a few spring lambs were offered, which met with a ready sale at $4 to $7 each. The demand for good to choice calves continues good, of which a fair supply keeps coming forward, and prices range from $4 to $7 each, but common and inferior ones are not wanted at any figure.

A weaker feeling has developed in the market for live hogs since this day week and prices show a decline of 25c to 50c per 100 lbs. This is due to the increased supply coming forward, coupled with the weaker cable advices on Canadian bacon and the fact that it is reported that one of the local leading packing concerns is about to go out of the business; consequently the demand has not been so keen of late, and the offerings were in excess of the requirements, some round lots having to be held over by packers for slaughter since last Thursday.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, April 20.—Cattle—Receipts, 2500 head; active and 15c to 25c higher; prime steers, $6.75 to $7.10; shipping, $6 to $6.75; butchers', $5.25 to $6.75; heifers, $4.00 to $6.25; cows, $3.50 to $5.65; bulls, $3.50 to $5.50; stockers and feeders, $3.50 to $5; stock heifers, $3.25 to $3.75; fresh cows and springers, active and $2 to $3 higher, $22 to $55.

Hogs—Receipts, 15,300 head; fairly active; good weights, 5c to 10c higher; heavy and mixed, $6.35 to $6.40; yorkers, $6.25 to $6.35; pigs, $4.50 to $5.65; roughs, $5.25 to $5.60; stags, $4 to $4.50; dairies, $6.10 to $6.30.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 15,200 head; active; sheep, steady; lambs, 10c higher; lambs, $5 to $8.25; yearlings and wethers, $7 to $7.25; ewes, $5.25 to $6.50; sheep, mixed, $3 to $6.60.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Beeves—Receipts, 4064. Steers, 10c to 15c higher; fat bulls, firm; others steady to a shade lower; cows, slow to 10c lower; steers, $4.75 to $7; fat oxen, $6; bulls, $3.50 to $4.65; cows, $2.25 to $4.65; few extra fat at higher prices; tail ends, $2. Exports to-morrow, 215 cattle, 900 sheep and 3100 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 7506; market, 25c to 75c off. Veals, $5 to $7; few choice, at $7.25; culls, $4 to $4.50; buttermilks, $3.00 to $3.75.

Coffee as Remedy For Asthma.

Coffee is a very excellent remedy for asthma. Those who do not know how to cut short their attacks and have not tried coffee should do so by all means. It often succeeds admirably when almost everything else has failed. There are one or two little points to be attended to in taking coffee for asthma. In the first place, it should be very strong, in fact, perfectly black. Weak coffee does more harm than good. If made very strong, much of it need not be taken. A large quantity is a positive disadvantage, for it is less rapidly absorbed and only distends the stomach. Then it should be given without sugar or milk, pure "cafe noir." It should be given on an empty stomach, for when taken on a full stomach it often does harm by putting a stop to the process of digestion.—Family Doctor.

Life of Telegraph Poles.

During the past fifty-two years the telegraph department of the German government has experimented with various preservatives to prolong the life of telegraph poles. Records kept of 3,000,000 poles show that creosote is the most useful substance that can be employed to keep the poles from rotting. Impregnated with creosote a pole will last more than twenty years. Corrosive sublimate preserves for thirteen years, and it is the next best thing to prolong the life of wood. Poles which have not been impregnated with any preservative last only seven years.

The Perfect Bride.

A man, however feeble and insignificant, demands from his bride the form of the Venus of Medici, the charm of Mme. Recamier and the prudence of Hannah More. Naturally he does not get these divergent qualities united in one flesh and blood girl, and his disappointment sometimes makes him querulous and unreasonable.—Sketch.

HIGH WATER AND ICE ARE STILL MUCH IN EVIDENCE

All the Wharves are Under Water at Stony Lake—Clear Lake Still Filled With Ice—"Red Cedar" Store Swept Over the Falls.

Not within the memory of Stony Lake cottagers has the water in Stony and Clear Lakes been so high at this season of the year as this spring, and not for years has there been so much ice there at such a late date in the season. All the wharves are under water and some damage has been done by the high water and winds.

Messrs. F. Brownscombe, Ernie Brownscombe and Billy Birrel have just returned from Stony Lake, and Mr. Brownscombe states that he has never seen the water so high at this season of the year. Clear Lake is one solid mass of ice and it will be several weeks before it is all out. The channel from Burleigh to the lighthouse is clear of ice, but Clear Lake and Deer Bay are solidly floored with the stuff that will be selling at ten cents per block next August. A number of Indians are trapping in Deer Bay and are meeting with considerable success.

The water is so high in the lakes, Mr. Brownscombe states, that all the wharves are several feet under water. The new government wharf at Burleigh has fared no better than the smaller ones and is also inundated. The "red cedar" store, which was located at Burleigh last summer, was broken from its moorings above the rocks, and carried over the falls and completely demolished. The timber with which it was constructed is now floating about the lake.

OCTAGON DANCE GREAT SUCCESS

Held in Conservatory Music Hall Last Evening---Many Attended

One of the social events of Easter Monday was the Octagon dance in the Conservatory of Music Hall. It was attended by about fifty couples and passed off very successfully. Excellent music was provided. Bralick's orchestra, of Toronto, furnished music and Mr. Thomas Hooper supplied dainty refreshments.

Mr. Ross Cameron acted as secretary in a very capable manner, and much of the success of the affair is due to his untiring efforts.

Mrs. Mary [illegible], of Hamilton, is dead, aged 79 years.

"NUMBER, PLEASE" TO COME FROM ANOTHER LOCATION

Local Branch of Bell Telephone Company Changed to New Building on Hunter Street To-day—No Interruption to Service.

The sweetly murmured "Number" of the telephone girls will come from another quarter of the city tomorrow. The central office is being transferred this evening from the premises on George street to the company's new building on Hunter street next to Mr. D. Belleghem's residence. The transfer will occasion no interruption of the service. By tomorrow it is expected that everything will be running smoothly in the new and up-to-date premises.

A new switchboard of the latest type, with a capacity of 5000 subscribers has been installed in the operating room on the first flat.

All telephones have been connected with the new switchboard as well as the old, so that the change will be made without interferring in any way with the service.

The local branch at present employs twelve day operators working in relays of six, and two night operators.

The new switchboard is at present equipped to accomodate 1400 subscribers but is of the multiply variety and has a capacity of nearly four times that number.

The new exchange is complete and up-to-date in every detail, and when in operation, Peterborough will be in the same class as regards telephone accommodation with the larger cities.

CORNER STONE OF ARMOURIES WILL BE LAID TO-MORROW

All arrangements have been made for the reception of Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, to-morrow, when he will lay the corner stone of the new armouries.

Upon his arrival in the morning, he will be met at the train by a committee, and will be the guest of Mr. R. R. Hall, until afternoon, when he will become the guest of the local militia.

Sir Frederick will arrive at Central Park at about 2.45 p.m., when he will be received with a salute by a guard of honor, from the 57th Regiment, detachments from the 24th Field Battery, the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons and the Veterans' Association, will also be on parade.

After inspecting the guard of honor Sir Frederick will proceed to the new armouries, where the ceremonies in connection with the laying of the corner stone will take place.

At four o'clock a reception will be given in his honor at the drill shed, by Lieut. Col. Stevenson and the officers of the 57th regiment.

In the evening at eight o'clock a citizens banquet will be tendered the distinguished guest at the Oriental Hotel.

The committee in charge announce that there will be room for all those officially invited, upon the platform at the laying of the corner stone of the new armories tomorrow. Col. W. D. Gordon, of Kingston, commander of the Eastern Military District, has signified his intention to being present.

THE VETERANS WILL TURN OUT

Will Take Part in Laying of Corner Stone To-morrow

A feature of the ceremonies in connection with the laying of the corner stone of the new armouries will be the turning out of the Veterans of 1866. They will parade in a body, and every one of them who is able is requested to turn out. Cards have been sent to all the members of the Veterans' Association by the secretary, Mr. J. D. Collins, but in case any of them do not receive them they should turn out just the same.

At the time of the Fenian troubles in 1866, a company of the volunteers was raised in Peterborough and went to the front. They were not called upon to do any fighting, but did good service to their country in guarding the frontier against the expected attacks of the invaders.

Several years later a Veterans' Association was organized in Peterborough, but of late it has been allowed to die out. There are, however, many of the veterans still residing in the city, and they should all turn out tomorrow.

CUPID'S COURT.

An Adverse Decision, an Appeal and an Oral Argument.

The judge's daughter was perturbed.

"Papa," she said, knitting her pretty brow, "I am in doubt as to whether I have kept to the proper form of procedure. In law one can err in so many little technicalities that I am ever fearful. Now, last evening George"—

The judge looked at her so sharply over his glasses that she involuntarily paused.

"I thought you had sent him about his business," he said.

"I did hand down an adverse decision," she answered, "and he declared that he would appeal. However, I convinced him that I was the court of last resort in a case like that and that no appeal would lie from my decision."

"Possibly the court was assuming a little more power than rightfully belongs to it," said the judge thoughtfully, "but let that pass. What did he do then?"

"He filed a petition for a rehearing."

"The usual course," said the judge, "but it is usually nothing but a mere formality."

"So I thought," returned the girl, "and I was prepared to deny it without argument, but the facts set forth in his petition were sufficient to make me hesitate and wonder whether his case had really been properly presented at the first trial."

"Upon what grounds did he make the application?" asked the judge, scowling.

"Well," she replied, blushing a little, "you see, he proposed by letter, and his contention was that the case was of that peculiar character that cannot be properly presented by briefs, but demands oral arguments. The fact that the latter had been omitted, he held, should be held an error, and the point was such a novel one that I consented to let him argue it. Then his argument was so forceful that I granted his petition and consented to hear the whole case again. Do you think"—

"I think," said the judge, "that the court favors the plaintiff."

MONEY SYSTEMS.

The World's Coinage Muddle and the Range of Units of Value.

Twenty-six different monetary units are used by the forty-eight principal countries of the world. Thus Great Britain uses the sovereign or pound sterling, France and six other countries of Europe use a unit equal to the franc, and Canada and the United States use the dollar.

In value these different units range from 4.4 to 494.83 cents of money of the United States. They are represented in their turn by coins the values of which are either multiples or fractional parts of the value of their own chief units, and there are no doubt at least 200 such sufficient coins not one of which seems to have a value equal to that of any commonly known unit of weight, as the gram, for example, or the ounce of gold, although forty-three of these forty-eight countries have accepted gold as their standard measure of values.

This lack of logical relation of coins to any widely used unit of weight of the precious metals may be due to the fact that money systems seem to have grown up haphazard, under diverse conditions of life, in different parts of the world.

Such diversity in moneys may have been of little moment when millions of people spent their lives knowing nothing of the existence of other millions and there was little traffic. But these differences in monetary units are of importance now that international commerce includes millions of tons of products of the toil of all lands and billions of dollars each year to settle its bills, for such differences put upon trade a wholly unnecessary tax. No account is made here of the burden laid on domestic trade by like variation in the value of such units at home, as of the tael of China, which has sixteen different values within that empire.

"Old Hundred" Scares Birds.

It is a strange but well authenticated fact that the wild creatures of the woods dislike the sound of that solemn hymn "Old Hundred." Muir, the naturalist, proved the truth of this by singing it in the woods of the Sierras to the birds and squirrels, which were very tame from never having been frightened by the report of a gun or other alarming sound. They would come and sit near him upon the branches of trees and listen to any lively tune he might sing, blinking their bright eyes as though they liked it, but at the first sound of "Old Hundred" they would beat a quick retreat to their holes or nests and never appear again until he changed the tune. This experiment was made in different places on various occasions with exactly the same result.

When It Rains in India.

OBITUARY

GEORGE F. POPE

The many friends of the late George Frederick Pope, son of G. G. Pope, local manager of the Federation Life Insurance Company will be deeply grieved to learn of his death last night at his home, 791 Water St.

The deceased was twenty-four years of age and was employed as messenger with the United States Express Company when he became ill with pleurisy about four weeks ago. After three weeks' illness he decided to come home, where his illness developed into congestion of the lungs.

The deceased was born in Peterborough and worked for some time for the Dominion Express Company here. From here he was promoted to Sudbury and finally took up service with the United States Express Company at Rochester. A short time ago he was promoted to messenger, which position he held until his death.

The deceased was always very popular among his fellow employees, and his death will come as a shock to his legion of friends.

Machael Heenan Wants By-law in Hamilton Township Quashed

Toronto, April 16.—There was a petition before Chief Justice Meredith today to quash the local option bylaw of Hamilton township in Northumberland county. The petitioner is Michael Heenan, and the ground on which application is made is that the petition on which the bylaw was submitted had 25 per cent. of the population based on the voters' list of 1906, whereas the voting took place on the 1907 lists. The motion was enlarged a week.

The trapping season which commenced the other day, it is said, by those in the business, is likely to be one of the best in years. Messrs. Dickson and Bushnell have already secured some 180 rat skins and one large and very valuable mink. Fifty-eight rats were secured in one night.

Harry Bryans has secured over a hundred rat skins, and Taylor, the Indian, has 120 up to date. There are altogether some fifty trappers on the waters who expect to have a very successful season. They are incidentally losing no time in view of the fact that the season ends May 1st.—Lindsay Post.

Member for Montmagny Starts Debate on School Question—Government Decides on Dredging Tenders—Opposition Scores Minister of Public Works.

Ottawa, April 22.—R. L. Borden and ome of his followers yesterday had a ost of enquiries for information.

It immediately transpired that since he debate last week the Government as withdrawn from the position taken by Mr. Pugsley and rescinded the rder-in-council awarding contracts r dredging without calling for tenders.

Replying to Mr. Benetnt, who called or the production of the order-in-council awarding contracts for dredging at Midland, Tiffin and Victoria arbor, without calling for tenders, r. Pugsley informed the House that has been decided not to extend the ime for completion of the work, but o call for new tenders. The order-in-council awarding contracts had been escinded.

Mr. Borden again asked concerning e delay in bringing down the treaties recently signed between Great ritain and the United States with ard to the boundary and fisheries.

The Prime Minister replied that e treaties had not been received by e Government and he had telegraphed the British embassy at Washington to enquire the reason.

Mr. Borden then asked the Minister Railways if any intimation had een given the employes of the Intercolonial Railway at Halifax as to how ey shall vote in the coming municipal elections. He understood that rtain officers of the railway were ving directions to voters. Was it t, asked the leader of the Opposition, the policy of the Government at its employes should be allowed vote as they pleased?

Mr. Graham asserted that this was e first intimation he had received of e matter. It was certainly the policy of the Government to permit employes to exercise their full rights as tizens without interference.

Mr. Borden interrogated the Minister of Marine concerning counsel appointed to act in connection with the vestigation before Judge Cassels. hom did they represent? Had counsel been appointed to represent essrs. Courtney, Fyshe and Basin, hose report was to a certain extent der review by the new commission?

Mr. Brodeur stated that Geo. Watson, K.C., and J. L. Perrin, K.C., d been appointed to assist Judge assels. It had been intimated to m that Judge Cassels desired counsel to assist him.

Further questions elicited the information that the appointments ere made at the request of the dge. "These particular gentlemen," id Mr. Brodeur, "were not suggested. I don't know—I think Mr. Watson was mentioned by Judge Cassels."

Mr. Courtney and his colleagues ould not be represented at the enquiry, the Minister said.

"Is Mr. Watson," asked Mr. Northrup, "the same man who was appointed by the late Ontario Government investigate the West Elgin election?"

Mr. Brodeur did not know as to hat.

Mr. Lake drew attention to a despatch that the Deputy Minister of stice had wired the police magistrate at Fort William asking him to "Please report pardon" for 19 Doukhobors who had been sentenced to the ntral Prison for a crime against ecency. He asked if it was true that e Minister had pardoned them or ontemplated doing so; if the Doukhobors were to be sent back to Saskatchewan and at whose expense? On hat grounds was the pardon to be ranted, and further, would the Government undertake to be responsible r their good behavior in the future?

The Minister of Justice was about reply when the Prime Minister eaded him off. This question was ather involved, he said, and Mr. Lake should give notice. It was a arge proposition for the Government give bonds for the future behavior the Doukhobors.

"Under what authority," asked Mr. Lake, "does the Government propose exercise the pardoning power?"

No answer.

Mr. Talbot referred to the disaster n Bellechasse County where nine men was killed on the National Transcontinental Railway. The commission hould take immediate steps to prevent further disasters.

Mr. Graham replied that he had een informed that for the number yards of rock taken out the accidents were less numerous than on ny other railway construction in America. He had learned that the ccident was due to premature explosion. The matter was serious and ould be looked into.

Mr. Smith (Nanaimo) read a newspaper report that conferences between Mr. Bastedo, on behalf of the Dominion, and the British Columbia Government with regard to the fisheries had roved fruitless and that the Provincial Government would take charge of the fisheries and a legal battle would nsue. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries stated that Mr. Bastedo had arrived in Ottawa yesterday morning and made an oral report of his mission. Some claims made by the British Columbia Government were receiving consideration.

Mr. Smith (Nanaimo) introduced a ill to amend the Railway Act. This is a bill to make the work day for despatchers and telegraphers eight hours, but he explained it was not expected that it would be put through this session.

Mr. Lavergne (Montmagny) yesterday moved adjournment to discuss a atter of "urgent public importance," at Deputy Speaker Marcil, who was the chair, was not convinced of urgency and required the mover to produce 20 members who desired the issue raised.

Mr. Lavergne had on his side of the House young Lorenzo Robitaille of Quebec, but 18 Conservatives rose in their places. Thus was a new school question flung into the debate of Parliament.

What Mr. Lavergne proposed to discuss was that on April 13 he asked if the Government was aware that chapters 2 and 25 of the statutes of Saskatchewan respectively, "An Act for raising Money on the Credit General Fund of Saskatchewan," and "An Act to Provide for the Organization and Maintenance of Secondary Educational Sections," contained clauses contrary to the educational clause of the autonomy act of 1907, and if it was proposed to disallow said acts. Mr. Aylesworth returned the monosyllabic "No" to each question.

The first point, said Mr. Lavergne, was that the Government did not know if the statutes were ultra vires or not, and would not disallow them. He complained the Minister of Justice had not taken trouble to look into the laws. When the Province of British Columbia saw fit to exclude a few Asiatics the House saw the Government jumped up immediately and disallow the act, yet is seemed that 40 per cent. of the people of Canada were less, in the estimation of the Government, than a few Japs who had come to the country against the will of a whole province.

It was a fact that the minority of Saskatchewan thought that the statutes were in contravention of the rights granted them by this Parliament two years ago.

Mr. Lavergne was not offering a legal opinion, but it looked to him that the rights of the minority were being jeopardised. "If," he said, "confederation is to go on this way, that there is a superior race and an inferior race, and a superior religion and an inferior religion. I will say that confederation has seen better days."

Mr. Aylesworth replied, first regretting that his answers to questions of Mr. Lavergne should have been deemed pert. What he had intended to say was that the Government was not aware that the statutes of Saskatchewan was opposed to the provisions of the act constituting the new province. The subject had been given most careful consideration of the statutes. Mr. Lavergne himself, an able counsel, was not able to state that they were illegal. All that Mr. Lavergne could say was, they had a distinct flavor of illegality. But the statutes were not to be disallowed for a flavor. Unless it could be clearly seen that provincial legislation overlapped the limits of jurisdiction fixed by section 92 of the British North America Act, there should be no interference by His Excellency in council. The advisability of a provincial act, its justice or injustice even, did not give cause for disallowance.

As to the legislation of British Columbia, it had not been disallowed by Federal authority, but declared invalid by decree of the courts.

Mr. Lavergne was surprised at the result. What would he say to find that when Premier Roblin was trying to do his best for the minority in Manitoba, it was Roman Catholics who spurred on The Winnipeg Free Press to attack him first.

There were more surprises in store for Mr. Lavergne, he predicted. Roman Catholics couldn't go on forever depending upon Protestants, and even Orangemen, to do as they did in 1895-6, when they stood up for the rights of the minority.

Sir Wilfrid replied that this wasn't the first time, inside and outside of the House, he had seen people like Mr. Bergeron trying to be more Catholic than the Pope. That hon. gentleman had boasted of having postponed his meeting in Saskatchewan so as not to interfere with Mr. Turgeon's election, but he forgot to say he had only postponed it until the day after, as he might have done. If Mr. Bergeron didn't realize that this was too thin, he was very much mistaken. As for those Roman Catholics who dropped a tear on Mr. Bergeron's bosom, it was strange if they had any complaint to make that they didn't make it to the Government, who could do them some good, and not to Mr. Bergeron, who couldn't do anything. From the day the act passed until now not one word of complaint had reached the Government from the minority in Saskatchewan. There had been no appeal for disallowance as in the case of Manitoba. Clause 16, number 2 of the autonomy bill had been passed partly with Mr. Bergeron's consent, although not with the consent of the Opposition members who sat beside him.

The Government had done its best for the minority and would have done more if it were possible. Members from Quebec should be especially chary about raising the cry for disallowance.

Mr. Bergeron asked the privilege of making a brief reply, but Sir Wilfrid refused.

Mr. Lavergne spoke briefly in support of his contention as to the alleged unfairness of the new Saskatchewan acts, and this concluded the debate.

Progress was reported on Mr. Fisher's bill to amend the Meat and Canned Goods Act.

Mr. Macpherson (Vancouver) moved an amendment, which was accepted, providing that the first purchaser of canned goods may place his name on the package instead of the packer. This has been asked for by wholesale men.

Another bill to amend the Inspection and Sale Act was reported. It increases the penalties for false marking of fruits and adulteration of cheese. Mr. Fisher explained that one object was to prevent the practice of enclosing love tokens in cheese for export.

Mr. Fielding's dry docks bill was also reported. It provides for payment of subsidies amounting to 3 per cent. of the cost of a dry dock every year for 20 years, the payments not to exceed $45,000 in any one year.

"FOR ST. GEORGE AND MERRIE ENGLAND"

St. George's Day, April 23, Will be Celebrated Throughout the British Empire—An Occasion of General Rejoicing.

April 23rd is the anniversary of the patron saint of England. The day will be celebrated in a variety of ways not only in England itself, but in all countries to which Englishmen have migrated. St. George is to England what St. Patrick is to Ireland and St. Andrew to Scotland. That a people should have an ideal of such a character as a rallying point is beyond doubt beneficial in more ways than one. It serves to remind Englishmen, Irishmen and Scotchmen of the qualities of strength and stability united with sweetness and kindliness for which their patron saints were celebrated and which they themselves, may well aspire to cultivate. The usual bit of brag prevalent on occasions of this sort is excusable. It is a sort of national stocktaking, but it is not allowed to obscure the faults and shortcomings of those who for the moment seem to overlook them. St. George was born in Cappadocia, of Christian parents. He became a soldier under Diocletian who ultimately was the cause of his martyrdom for the Christian faith on April 23, A.D., 303. With the Libyan dragon in the attitude of being done to death, St. George adorns the British coinage. As such he is not so familiar to most people as they could wish, although in early times he was accorded a high place in the affections of the scattered and disturbed states of Britain it was till the year 1347 in the reign of Edward III that he became what is now known as the patron saint of England. A blood red cross on a white ground constitutes the banner of St. George. In Shakespeare's Henry V. we have that monarch exclaiming "God for Harry, England and St. George!" It was with this war cry, too, that the battles of Crecy, Agincourt and Poictiers had been won. The bold buccaneers who swept the Spanish main in the reign of Elizabeth and returned to England laden with spoil and with the welcome of a grateful queen and nation performed their exploits under the flag of St. George. The crosses of St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick make up the Union Jack. The banner of St. George is the British Admiral's flag, while the pennant with St. George's Cross, is borne aloft by all of H. M. ships when in commission.

THE BANNER OF ST. GEORGE.

BY SHAPCOTT WENSLEY.

It comes from the misty ages!
The banner of England's might,
The blood-red cross of the brave St. George,
That burns on a field of white!
It speaks of the deathless heroes
On fame's bright page inscrolled
And bids great England ne'er forget
The glorious deeds of old!

O'er many a cloud of battle
The banner has floated wide;
It shone like a star o'er the valiant hearts
That dashed the Armada's pride!
For ever amid the thunders
The sailor could do or die,
While tongues of flame leaped forth below,
And the flag of St. George was high.

O ne'er may the flag beloved
Unfurled in a strife unblest,
But ever give strength to the righteous arm,
And hope to the hearts oppressed!
It says to the passing ages;
"Be brave if your cause be right,
Like the soldier saint whose cross of red
Still burns on your banner bright."

Great race, whose empire of splendor
Has dazzled the wondering world!
May the flag that floats o'er thy wide domains
Be long to all winds unfurled!
Three crosses in concord blended,
The banner of Britain's might!
But the central gem of the ensign fair
Is the cross of the dauntless Knight!

Adopting Lemieux Act.

Ottawa, April 22.—South Africa has decided to accept the Lemieux Act in regard to the mine disputes in that colony.

Niagara Legislation.

Washington, D.C., April 22.—It is practically assured that there will be no legislation during the present session of Congress affecting the waters of the Niagara River. Some time ago it was intimated that the whole question was to remain in abeyance pending negotiations between this Government and that of Canada.

Since then the subject was referred to a joint commission and it has been the subject of negotiations between the two countries for the past two months. But international affairs of this character are conducted with proverbial slowness and in spite of the desire of those most interested to have the question of the amount of water which may be diverted definitely settled before the adjournment of Congress there is no probability that such a consummation will be reached.

In consequence the committee on rivers and harbors of the House, which has the subject in charge has given up the idea of securing any legislation whatever on this problem before the convening of the next session of Congress in December.

King and Queen In Denmark.

Copenhagen, April 22.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra arrived here yesterday from London on a visit to the Danish royal family. They were welcomed by King Frederick and Queen Louise, the diplomatic corps and the civil and military dignitaries.

The streets through which Their Majesties drove to the palace were gaily decorated and crowded with people.

Dynamite Kills Four.

Heber, Ark., April 22.—A premature explosion of 1,000 pounds of blasting powder and several cases of dynamite at Burke's construction camp, six miles west, resulted in the instant death of four Italian laborers and the serious injury of a score of others.

About 75 men were working in the cut at the time.

On Trail of Husband.

Welland, April 22.—Mrs. Arthur Dewey of Toronto has returned to her home after an ineffectual patrol of Welland in search of her husband.

EVENTS TO-NIGHT

Grand Opera House — S. Miller Kent in "Raffles."

Brock Street Rink —Walking tournament with band in attendance.

Oriental Hotel —Banquet to Sir Frederick Borden.

Sons of Scotland Hall — Sons of Scotland banquet.

Charlotte Street Church — Meeting of Quarterly Board.

RECEIVED VERY BIG SENTENCES

Three Italians Severely Dealt Dealt With at Montreal.

Montreal, April 22.—Yesterday was sentence day in the court of King's Bench. Seventeen prisoners received 115 years among them.

The three heaviest sentences were handed out to Italians, who were arrested during the past month for murderous assaults.

Fortunato Plutino got 18 years for attempted murder on two charges of assault with intent to kill.

Geolino Fasari got 15 years for attempted murder.

Antonio Carboni got 12 years for attempted murder and assault.

Thomas Hudson got ten years for shop-breaking, and his side partner, John Brown, seven years. Other sentences ranged from four years to one year.

In passing sentence Justice Lavergne said:

"For the last year or so crime seems to have become epidemic among Italians of the lower classes. Men with the worst of records in the old country invade our shores and lead here a life of crime. Examples should be made so that the others will not want to do likewise. I could sentence the prisoners for life. One of them has shot at five men, wounding four, and there is no doubt that he intended to kill."

Judgment Was Reserved.

Chatham, April 22.—Thomas Bissell of Dover, aged 17, faced Judge Houston yesterday morning on a serious charge, brought against him by the parents of a girl under 14 years of age, who claimed she had been wronged by him. On account of the peculiar circumstances surrounding the case, judgment was reserved until May 26.

Samuel Eagleson, aged 46, who employed Bissell, came in for a severe censure from the court. It seems that Eagleson had been in the habit of telling the boy of his own escapades and gallantries, and the judge blamed him for putting evil ideas in the young man's head.

Shot at Cabrera.

Washington, April 22.—Through United States Ambassador Thompson, at the City of Mexico, the State Department was informed yesterday of the attempt on the life of President Cabrera, in Guatemala City, as he was going to the National Palace to receive United States Minister Heinke.

While the President was entering the palace several shots were fired and one of them hit the President in the finger. The country is tranquil.

Would Increase Freight Rates.

New York, April 22.—That railroad freight rates should be increased was the consensus of opinion at a conference of the presidents of nearly all of the eastern trunk lines held at the office of the Trunk Line Association Monday.

No final action was taken in the matter, which will be further considered by the individual roads.

George Baer, president of the Reading road, presided at yesterday's conference.

Fined For Duck Shooting.

Bowmanville, April 22.—Arthur B. Werry and Blake O'Kee, two well-to-do farmers of South Darlington, appeared before Magistrate William Horsey yesterday, charegd with shooting ducks out of season at the marsh on shores of Lake Ontario. They were fined $18.75.

Barge June Ashore.

Windsor, April 22.—During a thick fog the steam barge Juno, bound for Pelee Island for stone, ran ashore in five feet of water. Her bottom was injured and she filled with water. A tug carried divers and steam pumps to the scene, and she was pumped out and has been taken to the drydock of the Toledo Shipbuilding Co. The bottom planking is damaged, and quite a job of repairs must be done.

The Juno was sold earlier this year by J. Pulling & Co. of Windsor to Haney & Miller, Toronto, marine contractors.

SURGEONS USE THE KNIFE WHILE ROOF WAS ABLAZE

Doctors and Nurses at Ottawa Showed Remarkable Presence of Mind in Serious Crisis—All Patients Safe—Fire Discovered Early.

Ottawa, April 22.—Fire in the roof of the Protestant Hospital on Sparks street at noon yesterday did damage to the extent of about $600, and was attended by considerable excitement, both at the hospital and among the citizens generally, who soon learned where the fire was. Fortunately the presence of mind of the lady superintendent, house surgeons and nurses and the effect of the systematic fire drills which are in vogue in the institution prevented anything like a panic, and it is not thought that the condition of any of the patients will be seriously affected. The fire was discovered by a charwoman in the attic and she immediately gave the alarm, which was sounded through the hospital and turned into the fire department. In an instant the house surgeons and nurses responded. The house surgeons sprang to the hose, and soon had a stream playing on the fire from the inside. They prevented the fire spreading till the department arrived. Practically the whole brigade responded, as there was a high wind blowing. At the time the alarm was given an operation was in progress, and though those in charge of it was notified they continued just as if nothing was wrong and finished the operation without any excitement. None of the patients had to be moved from the building, although they were hastily transferred from the wing of the hospital in which the fire was.

TROOPS ENTER INTO PERSIA TO AID ENDANGERED FORCES

Bandits Close Trade Road—Caravans Afraid to Venture Out—Scene of Hostilities Remote From Railways—Means Long March.

Tiflis, April 22.—On account of the threatening situation on the Persian frontier and the urgent demand for reinforcements received from the commanders of the Russian forces in that district, 2,000 men have been sent from here into the disturbed territory. These reinforcements will take several days to reach the scene of hostilities, which is 60 miles from the nearest railroad point, through a difficult country.

No further news from the commanders of the detachments at Belesuver and Shirin, which are menaced by the Kurdish brigands, has been received here, but information has come that communication along an important trade route, running southward from the Caspian Sea into Persia, has been interrupted by an uprising of the bandit population. As a result caravans are afraid to venture out of Lenkoran.

St. Petersburg, April 22.—Associated Press despatches setting forth the grave situation of the Russian detachment in Persia are fully confirmed by official reports received at the Foreign Office from the Russian commander at Yelisavetpol, in Trans-Caucasia, 90 miles from Tiflis.

FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

East Luther Girl Gets Five Hundred Dollars.

Orangeville, April 22.—It was in May, 1906, when the leaves were budding forth on the trees and the birds were warbling in the fulness of joy in the spring sunshine that Charlotte Barbaree, a prepossessing and charming young woman of East Luther, met Joseph L. Eaton, a blacksmith of West Luther, and lost her heart.

The young man of 22, a widower without family, paid her marked attention until Jan. 24, 1907. They had previously become engaged, as far back as 1906, and her trosseau was ready for the wedding. Last May the engagement was broken and Miss Barbaree, who is a daughter of J. L. Barbaree, sued for damages.

The defendant did not appear in court, nor was he represented by counsel. Miss Barbaree told her story timidly, encouraged by I. B. Lucas, M.P.P., counsel for the plaintiff. Justice Britton charged in favor of the young lady and the jury awarded damages of $500, costs to be paid by the defendant.

Fell Asleep on the Tracks.

Bunki, La., April 22.—Three men went to sleep on the Texas & Pacific tracks near here shortly before midnight Monday night and as a result two of them are dead and the other so badly mangled that he is expected to died. The dead are:

William Regan of New Haven, Conn., and O. Cole of Buffalo, N.Y.

The injured man is Pat Melis of Creenock, Scotland. He said that he and his companions knew that a train would pass, but expected to be awakened by the noise. He did awaken, but was so late in trying to arouse his companions he himself was struck. He said that all three men were out of work.

Burglars at Cannington.

Cannington, Ont., April 22.—Monday night burglars entered W. A. Mathew's hardware store, where they secured a crowbar and a hatchet. They then went to C. E. Stone's grocery and boot and shoe store, where they got several pairs of boots, and, after helping themselves to some fruit, they left and went to R. L. Corlett's drygoods store, where they took several suits of clothes and about $8 cash out of the till. They left the hatchet at Mr. Corlett's door, and it is supposed drove out of town.

Strikers Fire on Car.

Pensacola, Fla., April 22.—The street car strike situation here took a serious turn yesterday, when a number of strikers attacked a car about five miles out of the city limits and fired a fusilade from rifles. The conductor was wounded, three bullets striking and seriously injuring him. The motorman was not hurt.

Street Cars Run Empty.

Chester, Pa., April 22.—Carrying no passengers, cars manned by non-union men were running yesterday on all of the lines of the Chester Traction Co., the employes of which have been on strike for more than a week. The cars are not accompanied by delegates of the state police, as the strikers and their sympathizers are not molesting the crews. The strikers are advocating a boycott and some of them have busses in operation in competition with the company.

THE PENALTY OF CURIOSITY

German Was Torn by Torpedo at Medicine Hat.

Medicine Hat, Alta., April 22.—At 2 o'clock Monday afternoon Jacob Wanner, a German, reached Irvine and reported at first that he had been shot. Later, he stated that he had heard an explosion along the track, though he saw none. He had remained unconscious for a while, and found himself in the middle of the track when he came round. He walked into Irvine, though his hands and legs were badly shattered, and a piece of metal had entered his body over the heart. The police concluded that it could not be a bullet wound, because of the nature of the injuries, and conjectured that Wanner had found a C.P.R. torpedo.

Roumania For Roumanians.

Bucharest, Roumania, April 22.—The Roumanian Government has laid before the Chamber of Deputies a bill directed against the petroleum combine. This action is a result of the agitation against the Standard Oil Co., which the Roumanian oil dealers have carried on for some time past. Several municipalities in which the Standard company has attempted to establish oil tanks, have made regulations particularly with regard to taxes which have rendered it practically impossible for the Roumanians to conduct business. Minister of Finance Costinescu, speaking in the Chamber in behalf of the proposed measure, said amid unanimous applause:

"The Americans say America for the Americans, we will say Roumania for the Roumanians."

Strikers In Court.

Brantford, April 22.—The Police Court was crowded with striking moulders yesterday, when Rory Farrell, one of the strikebreakers employed at the Buck Stove Works, who was arrested Monday night following the clash between union and non-union factions, was arraigned on the charge of assaulting George Battyne, the union moulder who lies at the hospital with a broken cheekbone and nose.

The injured man was unable to appear, and the case was adjourned until Tuesday, Farrell being released on $100 bail, furnished by the Buck company.

Who Is the Bigamist?

Kingston, April 22.—Magistrate Farrell has received an anonymous letter from a citizen, who claims that Kingston has a bigamist. Names are mentioned, but the magistrate says that nothing can be done unless the facts are placed before him or the crown attorney.

List of Dead Grows.

Chelsea, Mass., April 22.—The number of lives known to have been lost in the fire of April 12 was increased to 15 yesterday by the discovery of two bodies. One was found beneath a pile of brick in the cellar at 54 Watts street.

Farmer Hanged Himself.

Mitchell, April 22.—Charles Smith of Fullarton County went out to the barn, tied a rope around his neck and jumped from a beam. He was found dead an hour later. His mind had been overbalanced.

This woman says that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved her life.

Mme. Emma Chatel, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I want to tell you that without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I would not be alive. For months I suffered with painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the feminine organs. Doctors could do nothing for me, and said I must submit to an operation as I had a tumor. One of my cousins advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had cured her.

"I did so and now I have no pain and am entirely cured. Your remedy is deserving of great praise."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 22, 1908.

ON THE EVE OF BATTLE

It is a bad thing for a party of a province to have candidates retiring wholesale on the eve of battle. Messrs. John A. Macmillan of Calgary, T. H. Preston, of South Brant, Hyslop, of South Huron, and Cameron of West Huron, McCoig, of West Kent, Auld of South Essex, Currie of Prince Edward, Rathbun of East Hastings, McDougall of Ottawa, and Richard Harcourt have all declined to stand again for the Legislative Assembly. They have had enough of Mr. MacKay and are no doubt, satisfied with the Whitney administration. At any rate whatever the cause the Opposition is in a "parlous" state on the eve of a contest, Mr. Whitney stands between the people and spoliation. This is known and realised hence the universal disinclination to court defeat. Ten entrants who have refused to come to the scratch out of a former list of 82 or thereabouts is "something awful."

MR. GILLESPIE'S LETTER

A note of hand made between two candidates as a pledge that they will forego practices which upon the hustings they vehemently denounce, is an absurdity. Mr. Gillespie and Mr. Bradburn are both above the imputation contained in any such contract, personally. The only alternative is a joint reward for the detection of improprieties perpetrated by injudicious or dishonest "friends." But this too is impossible because the bribe is open to very severe punishment under the Election Act, and this will serve to keep his mouth shut we may be sure. The same thing applies to the briber. How then is even a very tempting reward to have its effect? Then too, if the offended party's side has not won power at Ottawa it breeds an indisposition to push matters for a mere seat in opposition. It will be seen that there is really no way to prevent bribery but one, and that lies in the honor of those who might otherwise undertake the part usually played by the lowest in the land.

UNIQUE DANCE LAST EVENING

"Hard Times" Ball Last Evening in Conservatory Music Hall

An interesting social function was held at the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening, when a "hard times" ball was held. This unique unique affair was much enjoyed by the guests present. Excellent music was provided by Mr. Musgrave, of Toronto and refreshments were served by Coleman Bros. Much of the success of the assembly is due to the untiring efforts of Mr. Marlowe, who acted as honorary secretary [illegible]

FOR THE TEA TABLE.

A Smart Linen Doily With Crocheted Edge.

Strike on linen a circle of the size wanted, stitch around it with the sewing machine, then cut a little outside the stitching. Roll back the edge and work all around with close buttonhole stitch or double crochet.

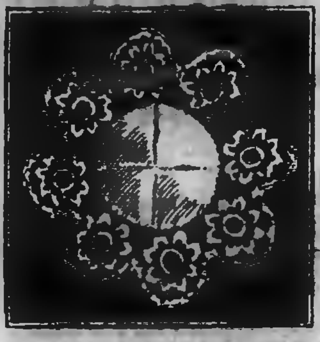
First Row—Chain 5, miss 3 (or sufficient space to equal 3 doubles, if the edge is buttonholed), fasten in net; repeat. Allow 9 loops of 5 chain to each wheel. The wheels are joined to the center as made and are not connected.

Second Row—For a wheel: Chain 5, a treble in first stitch of chain (chain 5, a treble in same stitch) twice, chain 5, and catch with a single in third stitch of first 5 chain.

Third Row—Chain 3 for first treble, * 8 trebles under 5 chains, treble on treble; repeat around and join to top of 3 chain.

Fourth Row—* chain 16, a double in next treble and in each of 5 trebles following, repeat from * around, making 8 loops, each separated by 5 doubles.

Fifth Row—Slip stitch up 3 stitches of first 16 chain, chain 3 for first treble, * 7 trebles under 16 chain, chain 5, 7 trebles under same chain and 1 in third stitch from center, in order to hold the scallops in place, 1 treble in third stitch of next 16 chain, repeat from star around. Join each wheel to the center as you make it by the 5 chain of 2 consecutive scallops, thus: Chain 2, catch in center of 5 chain loop, chain 2, complete scallop as usual, miss 2 loops of center and join next scallop to third loop in like manner. Miss 5 loops of center between wheels.



A PLATE DOILY.

Sixth Row—To connect the wheels, fasten in first 5 chain above where the wheel is joined to center, * chain 7, miss 3 of 8 trebles, a treble in next and in fifth of opposite 8 trebles, making no chain between, chain 7, fasten under 5 chain, repeat from * 4 times, chain 7, a treble in fourth of 8 trebles following, treble in fifth treble in next scallop, chain 4, miss 2 loops of center, fasten in next, chain 4, a treble in fourth treble of scallop of next wheel which is joined to center, a treble in fifth of next scallop, chain 3, catch in middle of 7 chain last made, chain 3, fasten under 5 chain, and repeat from first * around, joining where the row started.

Seventh Row—Slip stitch under 7 chain, chain 4 for first double treble, 8 double trebles under same chain, then make 9 double trebles under every 7 chain all around, joining in top of 4 chain at beginning.

Eighth Row—*, chain 4 fasten in fifth double treble, chain 4, fasten between first and second groups of 9 double trebles (chain 4, fasten in fifth double treble, chain 5, fasten in same place to form a picot, chain 4, fasten between groups, chain 5, fasten in same place) 3 times, chain 4, fasten in fifth double treble, chain 4, fasten between groups, repeat from * around each wheel, joining wheels by first picot made in each, thus: Chain 2, fasten in last picot of previous wheel, chain 2, fasten in stitch where first chain started.

Boots Away Up.

Again the pendulum of taste has swung, and the opposite extreme has been reached.

The craze for oxfords seems no less, but the desire for high tops seems to be more. The so called Napoleon top on women's boots, the result of the tendency toward shorter skirts for out of door wear, is being made very attractive for walking and general outdoor wear as well as for the artistic appearance of the boot and the comfort and support of the ankle. The increased length of the leg of these boots gives a narrower and more slender effect to the foot and at the same time offers increased opportunities for elaborate decorative effects. Fancy toppings of leather and cloth are being used in these boots, and both buttons and laces are in use as fastenings.

A new notion in footwear is a boot with a pocket in the top. The Napoleon topped boot worn by women affords an opportunity to engraft a little purse or pocket on the top of the right boot which is large enough to hold a sum of money securely and more conveniently than the time honored stocking receptacle.

The New Veil.

The new veil for windy weather has come in black or white or colored nets and must be big enough to cover the chapeau back and front. It has a little catch that hooks it at the brim of the hat in the back and then is allowed to flow or may be caught right at the back of the neck with the inevitable veil pin.

These veils are for riding, driving or automobiling and are very becoming. When automobiling the ends may be crossed in the back, then brought to the front and pinned under the chin.

THE C.N.R. AND THE GUARANTEE; FAIR AND FULL EXPLANATION

A Guarantee Not a Gift—The Former Vicious System Superseded—The Last Hour Planit Exploded—Not a Stain on the Whitney Administration

Leader MacKay is making the new provincial guarantee of the bonds of the Canadian Northern from Parry Sound onward into New Ontario one of his features of his campaign against the Whitney Government. He says the proposition was brought down too late in the session and adds that it is improper because it helps the construction of terminals at Toronto. There can be no doubt that it would have been better if the legislation had been laid before the House at an earlier date. But the fact that it came down late did not prevent free and full discussion. There is no time limit on the Legislature and Mr. MacKay could have debated the matter from the day of its introduction until the present moment had he been so disposed. If there was insufficient debate the fault lies with Mr. MacKay himself.

The complaint with reference to the terminals at Toronto is characteristic. Mr. MacKay and his colleagues seem to entertain an unreasoning antipathy to Toronto. While Mr. MacKay makes the criticism referred to regarding the guaranteeing of the bonds, we do not notice that he goes any farther. Nor could he well do so, because this form of assistance is far superior to that given by his own friends when they were in office. What is the Liberal record on this subject? At the outset the party began to give cash to the railway promoters. The grants looked so bad that in 1889 a provincial law was passed to give color to the idea that land, and not money, was being given. Under this Act land was to be set apart in the new districts for railway purposes. From time to time sales were to be made, and from the proceeds the cash subsidies paid to railways were to be provided. The scheme looked very well on paper, but nothing came of it. The cash subsidies were continued and not one cent was derived from land sales for the purpose of covering them. From the date of the introduction of the subsidy plan until the day that the Ross Government went out the amount paid to railways was $10,000,000 in round figures. Much of this money was borrowed, and at the present time it will cost us $6,000,000 to pay that bill. After the money grants had grown to such large amounts, the Ross Government proceeded to give away land with or without money as it felt disposed. To the Algoma Central it gave 7,400 acres per mile for 200 miles, or 1,480,000 acres. To the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway it voted 10,000 acres per mile for 14 miles and 7,400 acres per mile for 205 miles, more, or 2,927,000 acres altogether. To the Thunder Bay, Nepigon and St. Joe Railway it gave 150,000 acres. Then the Grand Trunk Pacific came to the fore and it gave that company for its branch from Fort William to the connection with the main line, $4,000 a mile, and 1,200,000 acres of selected land. The land set apart for the railways named amounted to the following;

	Acres.
Algoma Central	1,840,000
Manitoulin and North Shore	2,927,000
Thunder Bay, Nepigon and St. Joe	1,50,000
Grand Trunk Pacific	1,200,000
Total	5,757,000

It may be said that since the Whitney Government has taken office it has got 525,000 acres of the Grand Trunk Pacific grant returned.

It will be observed that the late Government gave $10,000,000 in cash and 5,757,000 acres of land for railways. But the new Government gives no money and gives no land. All it does is to guarantee or endorse the bonds of the railway company. With that endorsement the company gets the money it has to borrow on easier terms than otherwise would be the case. The province is at no expense, and it will never have to pay out a cent unless the railway should refuse to pay the interest on its bonds, when the province will take possession of the road, and get it for the relatively small sum represented by the bonds. By the plan of the present Government we are experiencing development and progress in Ontario at no cost in cash or land to the people. It would have been better if the matter had been fully discussed in the Legislature; but possibly Mr. MacKay refused to discuss it because he did not want the facts to be known. —The Mail and Empire.

HAVELOCK

Special to the Review.

Havelock, April 22—The "Big 3" ball in the opera house on Monday night under the auspices of the five railroad orders was a grand success. The evening was ideal and a very large number from all over gathered in the spacious building and spent a most delightful night. Dancing commenced at nine o'clock, the music being supplied by a Peterborough orchestra. At midnight a dainty lunch was served in the basement and dancing was continued until the hours grew large again. The railroad Easter ball is always a grand success and was especially so this year under the able management, who are to be congratulated.

Mr. Wm. Foster, employed as head clerk by A. E. Barrett and Co. left for Haileybury, where he has obtained a most lucrative position. He will visit friends in Norwood, Peterborough and Toronto before leaving to take charge of his new position.

Mr. Wright, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto spent the holiday in Toronto.

Messrs. John Paton and W. Barlow spent Monday in Peterborough with friends.

Miss F. Fowler of Peterborough, who has been the guest of her brother Mr. James Fowler, has returned to her home.

Miss Maud Wager, formerly of town, but now of Toronto, is visiting Miss Eva Lancaster.

Mrs. Alex Innis and children spent Easter with friends in Peterborough.

Mr. Oscar Bracken has resumed his position as night operator here.

Mrs. Jesse Campney and Mrs. F. C. McMaster spent Easter with friends in Toronto.

Mr. H. Crawford of Alliston is the guest of Dr. Crawford.

Mr. Wm. Bryans spent Sunday last in Peterborough.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

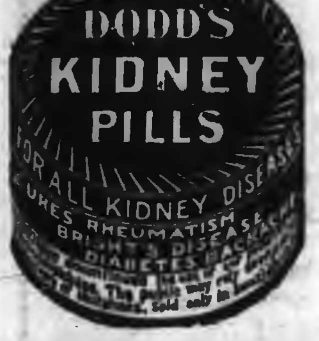
WILL DISCUSS PROPOSITION

Manufacturers' Association of Peterborough and Proposed Change in Fire Brigade

A meeting of the Manufacturers' Association of Peterborough will be held on Thursday evening of this week for the purpose of discussing the recommendation of the Fire, Water and Light Committee to have a permanent fire brigade in Peterborough. All the members of the Association are requested to be present.



THE DAYLIGHT STORE

SPRING

WE'VE sped the parting guest, "WINTER" and we turn to make our bow to "SPRING" embodying among other new things the latest evolution of Men's Suit Styles:—

This year we've struck out and away from the beaten path and have distanced all our past accomplishments. All lines making up the new Spring styles combine to spell "GRACE." No angular corners; instead they're softly rounded—the lapels sweep gracefully down over the chest, while the question of button arrangement is answered in a variety of ways

From now on we'll present, from time to time, the proper styles for men, which it will pay you to look over Sir, if you're at all interested in nobby clothes

HEAD, ARMS AND LEGS COVERED WITH ECZEMA

LITTLE GLADYS ELLIOTT.

Mrs. L. Elliott, of 41 Henry St., St. Catharines, Ont., says: "My little daughter Gladys, 4 years of age, was badly troubled from infancy with eczema on the back of her head, under her hair, the joints of her arms and on the back of her legs This terrible disease first broke out on the side of her head in the form of a red rash and pimples which, if rubbed or scratched sent forth a watery substance, and which later spread to the back of her head, joints of her arms and back of limbs. This proved a rather obstinate case and the child suffered intensely from itching and pain and was very restless and peevish. We tried all kinds of preparations, soaps, etc., but failed to bring about a cure. At last a friend who had been using Zam-Buk for small sores and wounds gave me a portion of her box to try. This seemed so good and showed such an improvement so I bought a supply, and thro' perseverance in using, the disease was soon checked and finally cured. I feel very grateful for the cure Zam-Buk has brought about."

Zam-Buk Cures cuts, burns, chapped hands, cold sores, itch, ulcers, eczema, running sores, catarrh, piles, bad legs, abscesses and all diseases of the skin. Beverly of Graustark

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark"

Copyright, 1904, by Dodd, Mead and Company

After mature deliberation Beverly set herself to the task of writing home to her father. It was her supreme intention to convince him that she would be off for the States in an amazingly short time. The major upon receiving the letter three weeks later found nothing in it to warrant the belief that she was ever coming home. He did observe, however, that she had but little use for the army of Graustark and was especially disappointed in the set of men Yetive retained as her private guard. For the life of her Beverly could not have told why she disapproved of the guard in general or in particular, but she was conscious of the fact after the letter was posted that she had said many things that might have been left unwritten. Besides, it was not Baldos' fault that she could not sleep. It was distinctly her own. He had nothing to do with it.

"I'll bet father will be glad to hear that I am coming home," she said to Yetive after the letter was gone.

"Oh, Beverly, dear, I hate to hear of your going," cried the princess. "When did you tell him you'd start?"

"Why—oh—er—let me see, when did I say? Dash me, as Mr. Anguish would say, I don't believe I gave a date. It seems to me I said soon; that's all."

"You don't know how relieved I am," exclaimed Yetive rapturously, and Beverly was in high dudgeon because of the implied reflection. "I believe you are in a tiff with Baldos," went on Yetive airily.

"Goodness! How foolish you can be at times, Yetive!" was what Beverly gave back to her highness the Princess of Graustark.

Late in the evening couriers came in from the Dawsbergen frontier with reports which created considerable excitement in castle and army circles. Prince Gabriel himself had been seen in the northern part of his domain, accompanied by a large detachment of picked soldiers. Lorry set out that very night for the frontier, happy in the belief that something worth while was about to occur. General Marlanx issued orders for the Edelweiss army corps to mass beyond the southern gates of the city the next morning. Commands were also sent to the outlying garrisons. There was to be a general movement of troops before the end of the week. Graustark was not to be caught napping.

Long after the departure of Lorry and Anguish the princess sat on the balcony with Beverly and the Countess Dagmar. They did not talk much. The mission of these venturesome young American husbands was full of danger. Something in the air had told their wives that the first blows of war were to be struck before they looked again upon the men they loved.

"I think we have been betrayed by some one," said Dagmar after an almost interminable silence. Her companion did not reply. "The couriers say that Gabriel knows where we are weakest at the front and that he knows our every movement. Yetive, there is a spy here after all."

"And that spy has access to the very heart of our deliberations," added Beverly pointedly. "I say this in behalf of the man whom you evidently suspect, countess. He could not know these things."

"I do not say that he does know, Miss Calhoun, but it is not beyond reason that he may be the go-between, the means of transferring information from the main traitor to the messengers who await outside our walls."

"Oh, I don't believe it!" cried Beverly hotly.

"I wonder if these things would have happened if Baldos had never come to Edelweiss," mused the princess. As though by common impulse, both of the Graustark women placed their arms about Beverly.

"It's because we have so much at stake, Beverly, dear," whispered Dagmar. "Forgive me if I have hurt you."

Of course Beverly sobbed a little in the effort to convince them that she did not care whom they accused if he proved to be the right man in the end. They left her alone on the balcony. For an hour after midnight she sat there and dreamed. Every one was ready to turn against Baldos. Even she had been harsh toward him, for had she not seen him relegated to the most obnoxious of duties after promising him a far different life? And now what was he thinking of her? His descent from favor had followed upon the disclosures which made plain to each the identity of the other. No doubt he was attributing his degradation in a sense to the fact that she no longer relished his services, having seen a romantic little ideal shattered by his firm assertions. Of course she knew that General Marlanx was alone instrumental in assigning him to the unpleasant duty he now observed, but how was Baldos to know that she was not the real power behind the Iron Count?

A light drizzle began to fall, cold and disagreeable. There were no stars, no moon. The ground below was black with shadows, but shimmering in spots touched by the feeble park lamps. She retreated through her window, determined to go to bed. Her rebellious brain, however, refused to banish him from her thoughts. She wondered if he were patrolling the castle grounds in the rain in all that lonely darkness. Seized by a sudden inspiration she threw a gossamer about her, grasped an umbrella and ventured out upon the balcony once more. Guiltily she searched the night through the fine, drizzling rain. Her ears listened eagerly for the tread which was so well known to her.

At last he strode beneath a lamp not far away. He looked up, but of course could not see her against the dark wall. For a long time he stood motionless beneath the light. She could not help seeing that he was dejected, tired, unhappy. His shoulders drooped, and there was a general air of listlessness about the figure which had once been so full of courage and of hope. The post light fell directly upon his face. It was somber, despondent, strained. He wore the air of a prisoner. Her heart went out to him like a flash. The debonair knight of the black patch was no more. In his place there stood a sullen slave to discipline.

"Baldos!" she called softly, her voice penetrating the dripping air with the clearness of a bell. He must have been longing for the sound of it, for he started and looked eagerly in her direction. His tall form straightened as he passed his hand over his brow. It was but a voice from his dream, he thought. "Aren't you afraid you'll get wet?" asked the same low, sweet voice, with the suggestion of a laugh behind it. With long strides he crossed the pavement and stood almost directly beneath her.

"Your highness!" he exclaimed gently, joyously. "What are you doing out there?"

"Wondering, Baldos. Wondering what you were thinking of as you stood under the lamp over there."

"I was thinking of your highness," he called up softly.

"No, no!" she protested.

"I, too, was wondering—wondering what you were dreaming of as you slept, for you should be asleep at this hour, your highness, instead of standing out there in the rain."

"Baldos," she called down tremulously, "you don't like this work, do you?"

"It has nothing but darkness in it for me. I never see the light of your eyes. I never feel the"—

"Sh! You must not talk like that. It's not proper, and besides some one may be listening. The night has a thousand ears—or is it eyes? But listen. Tomorrow you shall be restored to your old duties. You surely cannot believe that I had anything to do with the order which compels you to work at this unholy hour."

"I was afraid you were punishing me for my boldness. My heart has been sore—you never can know how sore. I was disgraced, dismissed, forgotten"—

"No, no; you were not! You must not say that. Go away now, Baldos. You will ride with me tomorrow," she cried nervously. "Please go to some place where you won't get dripping wet."

"You forget that I am on guard," he said, with a laugh. "But you are a wise counselor. Is the rain so pleasant to you?"

"I have an umbrella," she protested. "What are you doing?" she cried in alarm. He was coming hand over hand up the trellis work that inclosed the lower veranda.

"I am coming to a place where I won't get dripping wet," he called softly. There was a dangerous ring in his voice, and she drew back in a panic.

"You must not!" she cried desperately. "This is madness! Go down, sir!"

"I am happy enough to fly, but cannot. So I do the next best thing—I climb to you." His arm was across the stone railing by this time, and he was panting from the exertion, not two feet from where she crouched. "Just one minute of heaven before I go back to the shadows of earth. I am happy again. Marlanx told me you had dismissed me. I wonder what he holds in reserve for me. I knew he lied, but it is not until now that I rejoice. Come, you are to shield me from the rain."

"Oh, oh!" she gasped, overwhelmed by his daring passion. "I should die if any one saw you here." Yet she spasmodically extended the umbrella so that it covered him and left her out in the drizzle.

"And so should I," responded he softly. "Listen to me. For hours and hours I have been longing for the dear old hills in which you found me. I wanted to crawl out of Edelweiss and lose myself forever in the rocks and crags. Tonight when you saw me I was trying to say goodby to you forever. I was trying to make up my mind to desert. I could not endure the new order of things. You had cast me off. My friends out there were eager to have me with them. In the city every one is ready to call me a spy—even you, I thought. Life was black and drear. Now, my princess, it is as bright as heaven itself."

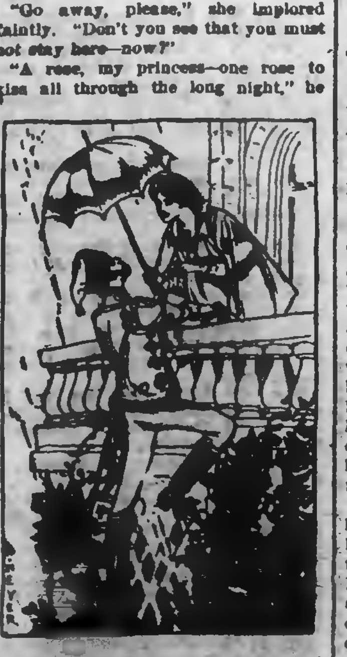
"You must not talk like this," she whispered helplessly. "You are making me sorry I called to you."

"I should have heard you if you had only whispered, my rain princess. I have no right to talk of love—I am a vagabond, but I have a heart, and it is a bold one. Perhaps I dream that I am here beside you—so near that I can touch your face—but it is the sweetest of dreams. But for it I should have left Edelweiss weeks ago. I shall never awaken from this dream. You cannot rob me of the joys of dreaming."

Under the spell of his passion she drew nearer to him as he clung strongly to the rail. The roses at her throat came so close that he could bury his face in them. Her hand touched his cheek, and he kissed its palm again and again, his wet lips stinging her blood to the tips of her toes.

"Go away, please," she implored faintly. "Don't you see that you must not stay here—now?"

"A rose, my princess—one rose to kiss all through the long night," he whispered. She could feel his eyes burning into her heart. With trembling, hurried fingers she tore loose a rose. He could not seize it with his hands because of the position he held, and she laughed tantalizingly. Then she kissed it first and pressed it against his mouth. His lips and teeth closed over the stem, and the rose was his.



"I should die if any one saw you here."

"There are thorns," she whispered ever so softly.

"They are the riches of the poor," he murmured, with difficulty, but she understood.

"Now, go," she said, drawing resolutely away. An instant later his head disappeared below the rail. Peering over the side, she saw his figure spring easily to the ground, and then came the rapid, steady tramp as he went away on his dreary patrol.

"I couldn't help it," she was whispering to herself between joy and shame.

Glancing instinctively out toward the solitary lamp, she saw two men standing in its light. One of them was General Marlanx; the other she knew to be the spy that watched Baldos. Her heart sank like lead when she saw that the two were peering intently toward the blacony where she stood and where Baldos had clung but a moment before.

CHAPTER XXII.

SHE shrank back with a great dread in her heart. Marlanx, of all men! Why was he in the park at this hour of the night? There could be but one answer, and the very thought of it almost suffocated her. He was drawing the net with his own hands, he was spying with his own eyes. For a full minute it seemed to her that her heart would stop beating. How long had he been standing there? What had he seen or heard? Involuntarily she peered over the rail for a glimpse of Baldos. He had gone out into the darkness, missing the men at the lamp post either by choice or through pure good fortune. A throb of thankfulness assailed her heart. She was not thinking of her position, but of his.

Again she drew stealthily away from the rail, possessed of a ridiculous feeling that her form was as plain to the vision as if it were broad daylight. The tread of a man impelled her to glance below once more before fleeing to her room. Marlanx was coming toward the veranda. She fled swiftly, pausing at the window to lower the friendly but forgotten umbrella. From below came the sibilant hiss of a man seeking to attract her attention. Once more she stopped to listen. The "Hist!" was repeated, and then her own name was called softly, but imperatively. It was beyond the power of woman to keep from laughing. It struck her as irresistibly funny that the Iron Count should be standing out there in the rain, signalling to her like a lovesick boy. Once she was inside, however, it did not seem so amusing. Still, it gave her an immense amount of satisfaction to slam the windows loudly, as if in pure defiance. Then she closed the blinds, shutting out the night completely.

Turning up the light at her dressing table, she sat down in a state of sudden collapse. For a long time she stared at her face in the mirror. She saw the red of shame and embarrassment mount to her cheeks, and then she covered her eyes with her hands.

"Oh, what a fool you've been!" she half sobbed, shrinking from the mirror as if it were an accuser.

She prepared for bed with frantic haste. Just as she was about to scramble in and hide her face in the pillows a shocking thought came to her. The next instant she was at the windows, and the slats were closed with a rattle like a volley of firearms. Then she jumped into bed. She wondered if the windows were locked. Out she sprang again like a flash, and her little bare feet scurried across the room, first to the windows and then to the door.

"Now I reckon I'm safe," she murmured a moment later, again getting into bed. "I love to go to sleep with the rain pattering outside like that. Oh, dear, I'm so sorry he has to walk all night in this rain. Poor fellow! I wonder where he is now. Goodness! It's raining cats and dogs!"

But in spite of the rain she could not go to sleep. Vague fears began to take possession of her. Something dreadful told her that Count Marlanx was on the balcony and at her window, notwithstanding the rainpour. The fear became oppressive, maddening. She felt the man's presence almost as strongly as if he were in plain view. He was there; she knew it.

The little revolver that had served her so valiantly at the inn of the Hawk and Raven lay upon a stool near the bedside every night. Consumed by the fear that the window might open slowly at any moment she reached forth and clutched the weapon. Then she shrank back in the bed, her eyes fixed upon the black space across the room. For hours she shivered and waited for the window to open, dozing away time and again, only to come back to wakefulness with a start.

The next morning she confessed to herself that her fears had been silly. Her first act after breakfasting alone in her room was to seek out Colonel Quinnox, commander of the castle guard. In her mind she was greatly troubled over the fate of the bold visitor of the night before. There was a warm, red glow in her face and a quick beat in her heart as she crossed the parade ground. Vagabond though he was he had conquered where princes had failed. Her better judgment told her that she could be nothing to this debonair knight of the road, yet her heart stubbornly resisted all the arguments that her reason put forth.

Colonel Quinnox was pleasant, but he could give Beverly no promise of leniency in regard to Baldos. Instructions had come to him from General Marlanx, and he could not set them aside at will. Her plea that he might once more be assigned to old time duties found the colonel regretfully obdurate. Baldos could not ride with her again until Marlanx withdrew the order which now obtained. Beverly swallowed her pride and resentment diplomatically, smiled her sweetest upon the distressed colonel and marched defiantly back to the castle. Down in her rebellious, insulted heart she was concocting all sorts of plans for revenge. Chief among them was the terrible overthrow of the Iron Count. Her wide scope of vengeance even contemplated the destruction of Graustark if her end could be obtained in no other way.

Full of these bittersweet thoughts, she came to the castle doors before she saw who was waiting for her upon the great veranda. As she mounted the steps, a preoccupied frown upon her fair brow, General Marlanx, lean, crafty and confident, advanced to greet her. The early hour was responsible for the bright solitude which marked the place. But few signs of life were in evidence about the castle.

She stopped with a sharp exclamation of surprise. Then scorn and indignation rushed in to fill the place of astonishment. She faced the smiling old man with anger in her eyes.

"Good morning," he said, extending his hand, which she did not see. She was wondering how much he had seen and heard at midnight.

"I thought the troops were massing this morning," she said coldly. "Don't you mass too?"

"There is time enough for that, my dear. I came to have a talk with you—in private," he said meaningly.

"It is sufficiently private here, Count Marlanx. What have you to say to me?"

"I want to talk about last night. You were very reckless to do what you did."

"Oh, you were playing the spy, then?" she asked scornfully.

"An involuntary observer, believe me—and a jealous one. I had hoped to win the affections of an innocent girl. What I saw last night shocked me beyond expression."

"Well, you shouldn't have looked," she retorted, tossing her chin, and the red feather in her hat bobbed angrily.

"I am surprised that one as clever as you are could have carried on an amour so incautiously," he said blandly.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I saw everything that occurred."

"Well, I'm not ashamed of it," obstinately. "Goodby, Count Marlanx."

"One moment, please. I cannot let you off so easily. What right had you to take that man into your room, a place sacred in the palace of Graustark? Answer me, Miss Calhoun."

Beverly drew back in horror and bewilderment.

"Into my room?" she gasped.

"Let us waste no time in subterfuge. I saw him come from your window, and I saw all that passed between you in the balcony. Love's eyes are keen. What occurred in your chamber I can only"—

"Stop! How dare you say such a thing to me?" she fiercely cried. "You miserable coward! You know he was not in my room. Take it back—take back every word of that lie!" She was white with passion, cold with terror.

"Bah! This is childish. I am not the only one who saw him, my dear. He was in your room—you were in his arms. It's useless to deny it. And to think that I have spared him from death to have it come to this! You need not look so horrified. Your secret is safe with me. I come to make terms with you. My silence in exchange for your beauty. It's worth it to you. One word from me, you are disgraced and Baldos dies. Come, my fair lady, give me your promise. It's a good bargain for both."

Beverly was trembling like a leaf. This phase of his villainy had not occurred to her. She was like a bird trying to avoid the charmed eye of the serpent.

"Oh, you—you miserable wretch!" she cried, hoarse with anger and despair. "What a cur you are! You know you are not speaking the truth. How can you say such things to me? I have never wronged you"— She was almost in tears, impotent with shame and fear.

"It has been a pretty game of love for you and the excellent Baldos. You have deceived those who love you best and trust you most. What will the princess say when she hears of last night's merry escapade? What will she say when she learns who was hostess to a common guardsman at the midnight hour? It is no wonder that you look terrified. It is for you to say whether she is to know or not. You can bind me to silence. You have lost Baldos. Take me and all that I can give you in his stead, and the world never shall know the truth. You love him, I know, and there is but one way to save him. Say the word and he goes free to the hills; decline and his life is not worth a breath of air."

"And pretending to believe this of me, you still ask me to be your wife. What kind of a man are you?" she demanded, scarcely able to speak.

"My wife?" he said harshly. "Oh, no. You are not the wife of Baldos," he added significantly.

"Heavens!" gasped Beverly, crushed by the brutality of it all. "I would sooner die. Would to heaven my father were here. He would shoot you as he would a dog! Oh, how I loathe you! Don't you try to stop me! I shall go to the princess myself. She shall know what manner of beast you are."

She was racing up the steps, flaming with anger and shame.

"Remember, I can prove what I have said. Beware what you do. I love you so much that I now ask you to become my wife. Think well over it. Your honor and his life! It rests with you," he cried eagerly, following her to the door.

"You disgusting old fool," she hissed, turning upon him as she pulled the big brass knocker on the door.

VISITED THE HOUSE OF REFUGE

Mr. Chas. Stapleton Was Given Most Cordial Reception

Mr. Chas. Stapleton, the local auctioneer, was in Lakefield last Friday and had the pleasure of having his dinner at the House of Refuge. He was treated most cordially by Mr. and Mrs. Davis, superintendent of the the home. He stated that everything around the building was scrupulously clean. The House of Refuge is fine and commodious and is an ideal spot for the old men and women of the county to spend their declining days.

MANY GARDENS UNDER WATER

Indian River is on the Rampage at Warsaw

Special to the Review.

Warsaw, April 21.—Archie Hawthorne is spending his High School vacation with his parents here.

William McIntosh, of Fenelon Falls, is here visiting his mother for a short time only.

The Indian River is very high and may go higher. Some of the gardens in Warsaw bordering on the river are being flooded, as well as whole fields a little below Warsaw.

The farmers have not yet commenced seeding. High ground is in better shape than the low land and may in a few days be under the cultivator or drill. The farmers are getting anxious for spring work.

Sugar making is about over. It has been a good year. About three-fourths of the syrup and sugar offered for sale on the Peterborough market comes from Dummer. Fall wheat and red clover on low lands have suffered very much under the severe frosts and may have to be ploughed up.

An Easter social was held in the Town Hall on Easter Monday evening in connection with the Methodist church. We understand that it was a success.

Mr. S. R. Payne, of the firm of Payne & Taylor, millers who has been confined to his home for several months with inflamatory rheumatism, is improving slowly. He has been very much missed in the Church and Sabbath school during the past winter.

The Baptist church has been without a resident minister since the first day of January last, and there are no prospects of one coming.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W., 82, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother, her home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

COUNCIL AT HAVELOCK HAS TWO DIFFICULT PROBLEMS

Some Citizens Refuse to Pay Business Tax on Ground That it is Illegal—Trouble About a School Section

Special to the Review.

Havelock, April 22.—A meeting of the Village Council was held in the Council Chamber on April 13th at 8 p.m. Present Reeve Thompson, and Councillors Campney, Wood, Knox and Phillips, minutes of last meeting were read and adopted.

Moved by Councillor Knox, that Mr. King's request that west half of lot No. 7, in 10th concession, to Belmont be transferred from S.S. No. 15 to S.S. No. 6, Belmont, be complied with, providing the solicitor says it is legal. Seconded by Councillor Wood and carried.

The collector was instructed to collect the business tax unpaid.

Moved by Councillor Knox, seconded by Councillor Phillips, that the whole Council be a committee to interview the Belmont Council per S.S. No 6.

Moved by Councillor Campney, seconded by Councillor Phillips, that the clerk notify Belmont Council per S.S. No. 6, on April 22nd, in the Havelock Council Chamber. Council adjourned.

When old Havelock, comprising part of S.S. No. 6, came into the village of Havelock at first the school section did not change, but it has since been learned that old Havelock was made part of this school section as well as the municipality. Since that time Havelock has been collecting school taxes from old Havelock residents while their children were attending S.S. No. 6. The Belmont Council now wish to recover the school taxes paid by old Havelock and wish to come to a definite understanding with the Havelock Council as to the boundary of the school sections and which school the children should attend. The residents of old Havelock have an interest in the school of school section No. 6, have supported it for several years. The Havelock Council will likely ask some recompense for giving up their interest in the school building. For the purpose of settling this question, the Havelock and Belmont Councils will meet on Wednesday evening.

Another matter which will likely come up and which will create great interest is the business tax. For 1907, those in business in Havelock were assessed according to the assessment law of 1906, which is much higher than that of 1907. Several have paid their business tax, but there are some which are refusing to pay on account of being illegally taxed. At last meeting of Council, the solicitor advised them that they must pay according to what they were assessed, and that they should have appealed at the Court of Revision. Those who who have not yet paid their business tax, contend that they can not make them pay an illegal tax and at the meeting on Wednesday evening, there will likely be some lively doings.

EMPLOYEES OF TELEPHONE CO, HELD ENJOYABLE BANQUET

At Hooper's Last Evening—In Recognition of Efficient Work of Installers—Transferred From Old to New Building at Midnight

At midnight last night the Bell Telephone Company effected the transfer from the old building to the new and today the operators and office staff are settled in their new quarters. The change was made without the least inconvenience to subscribers. The new building contains a most complete equipment, equalling any central station in the Dominion

Previous to the transfer last evening a most enjoyable banquet was held at Hooper's Palm Gardens. There were about thirty present, including Messrs. C. F. Sise, Jr, General Superintendent, Montreal; A. T. Smith, District Superintendent, Toronto; N. A. Lash, Assistant Engineer, Montreal; R. G. Donnelley, Chief Installer of the Northern Electric Co., Montreal and R. T. Hunt, General Foreman, Northern Electric Co., and the employees of the Northern Electric who have been engaged on the work here and the gentlemen members of the local office staff.

After the guests had partaken of the sumptuous repast provided by Mr. Hooper, an interesting toast list was run off, Mr. Sise acting as toastmaster.

The first toast was that to the "King" which was honored in the usual way; Other toats were those to the "President and officials of the Bell Telephone Co." the "Installers of the Northern Electric Co," "Our Subscribers," the "the "Construction Department of the Bell Telephone Co.," and the "Operating Department of the Company."

The banquet was necessarily curtailed owing to the chief officials having to leave on the midnight train for Montreal.

WATER IN OTONABEE RIVER HIGHEST IN TWENTY YEARS

Some Apprehension Regarding the Waterworks Dam —Men Are Watching it.

Not for many years has the water in the Otonabee river been as high as at the present time. All records for the past twenty years have been broken and in some quarters it is stated that the river will be higher yet before the spring is over.

So great is the height of the water that there is some apprehension regarding the waterworks dam. It was feared that the structure might be impaired by the force of the water, and three or four men have been kept at work for several days seeing that nothing went wrong. They have been strengthening the dam in several places, an keeping a close watch lest any trouble should occur.

Superintendent Henderson states that he has never seen the water so high in the Otonabee. As there is yet a large amount of snow in the back country, it is not improbable that the water will be higher still during the next few weeks.

57TH. REGT. PRESENTED FINE APPEARANCE ON PARADE

First Marchout of the Season Held Last Evening—A Big Turnout—Splendid Drill—Orders for the Week Read

The first marchout of the season of the 57th regiment took place last evening and was a great success. The regiment paraded about 270 strong and presented a very fine appearance. A large crowd of civilians lined the streets to watch the parade and the red coats looked exceptionally well as they marched down George street.

The band was out in full force and the bugle band was also well represented. Particular mention must be made of the remarkably fine showing of the signalling corps in charge of Lieut. Higgins.

ORDERS FOR THE WEEK.

Headquarters,
Peterborough, April 21, '08.

Orders by the Commanding Officer of the 57th Regt. Pr. Rangers.

Detail of duty for the week ending April 28th, Capt. for the week, Capt. Hounsell, next for duty Capt. McWilliams, subaltern for the week, Lieut. Hodgson, next for duty, Lieut. Comstock. Referring to regiment order, No. 6 of the 14th inst., it is noted for the information of all concerned, that permission from headquarters has been granted to have the regiment parade as a guard of honor to the Honorable Minister of Militia.

The commanding officer earnestly desires that the parade should be one of the best in the history of the regiment, more especially as the regiment will be inspected by the Hon. Dr. Borden, and the officer commanding the eastern command.

It is again noted that the regiment with both bands, signal and stretcher section, will fall in at 8.15 p.m. sharp at the armouries.

The officers in command of the guard will be Capt. Mills, Capt. Hounsell and Lieuts. Langford, Gemmell and Carruthers. Capt. McWilliams is hereby detailed for special duty in connection with the ceremonies on the 22nd inst. and will report to the company at 2 p.m. that day.

The color party will consist of Lt. Comstock and Gemmell, one sergeant and two privates to be detailed later by the Sergt.-Major. Leave of absence is hereby granted to Capt. McLean.

The commanding officer has been pleased to make the following appointments:—B. Coy, to be corporal provisionally; Pte. E. M. Rouquette.

To be Sergt. Orderly room clerk; Sergt. E. W. Elcome, April 7th, '08.

The following are taken on the strength of the regiment:—B. Coy, Ptes. Hall, J., and Hall, W., Simmons, Parry, Hawkins and Staunton, C. Coy, Pte. Elliott, D. Coy, Pte. Curtis, Sudmore, Drysdale, Smith, Moore, Taylor and Chatten, E. Coy, Pte. Moore.

YOU ARE THE MAN WE WANT TO SHOE!

SOME MEN, who don't know, have an idea that all Shoes are alike. They think that when they pay $3.00, $3.50, $4.00 or $5.00 for a pair of Shoes that it doesn't make much difference where they buy them, that a shoe is a shoe, and that's all there is to it.

These Men Are Mistaken

It's true that all shoe prices sound about the same, but there is as much difference in the shoes as there is in the men who wear them.

OUR MEN'S SHOES ARE THE CHOICE PRODUCT Of the World's Best Shoe Makers

We select the best Shoes that the best makers turn out. There are no better Shoes than ours to be had anywhere.

If you've never worn our sort of Shoes, sir, suppose you test us this Spring. We'll promise you the best Shoes for the money that ever covered your feet.

LOCAL WHARVES WERE INSPECTED

Government Inspector in the City Yesterday

Mr. J. G. Sing, Government engineer of the Public Works Department at Ottawa, was in the city Monday and inspected the Wolfe street and Ashburnham wharves, which were badly in need of repairs.

It is understood that the Wolfe street wharf will be raised a foot, it being at present several inches under water.

The Ashburnham wharf is so badly flooded that no measurements were taken. Mr. Sing, it is understood, promised to send an engineer to take measurements and to furnish estimates as to the probable cost of the repairs needed.

Mr. Sing was accompanied by Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P.; Mayor Rush, Aldermen Elliott and Bradburn, and Mr. W. B. Robertson, president of the Otonabee Navigation Company.

INTERESTING PAPER READ

On "Universal Suffrage" at St. Andrew's Last Evening

A well attended meeting of the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church was held last evening. The president, Mr. Ernie Reid, was in the chair. Among other business transactions it was decided to hold the annual excursion to Stoney Lake on the third Thursday in June.

An interesting paper on "Universal Suffrage" was read by Mr. F. Kerr. It proved very profitable and instructive.

"FROM CHILDHOOD TO MANHOOD"

Subject of Interesting Lecture by Blind Preacher

A fairly large number were in attendance at the lecture at Charlotte street Methodist church last evening when an interesting address was given by Rev. Mr. Coborne, of Toronto, a blind preacher. His subject was "From childhood to manhood without sight." It proved to be profitable and instructive. The chairman of the evening was Rev. H. M. Manning, pastor of Charlotte street Methodist church.

TO PAINT HUNTER STREET BRIDGE

Tenders Will be Asked for---To Raise the Railings

It is likely that the Hunter street bridge over the Otonabee river will be painted in the near future and the railings raised. At the meeting of the Board of Works last night the following motion was passed:

It was moved by Ald. McIntyre, seconded by Ald. Morgan, "That the city engineer advertise for tenders for painting the Hunter street bridge, and report an estimate of the cost of increasing the height of the railings."

GIRLS GUILD HAD SOCIAL

Enjoyable Time Spent at St. John's Church Last Evening

A delightful social evening was spent at St. John's church last night by the members of the Girls' Guild and their friends. Miss Layfield, President of the Guild, presided over the meeting, and after a reading by Miss Roberts, dainty refreshments were served by members of the Guild. The singing was heartily joined in by all present and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Those in charge are to be congratulated on the success of the event.

PRIZES WERE PRESENTED

Semi-Annual Meeting of Curling Association Held in Toronto

Mr. W. G. Ferguson was in Toronto yesterday representing Peterborough at the semi-annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association. Among the features of the gathering was the presentation of the prizes. Lindsay got a banner for winning the Tankard, and Southampton and Peterborough the prizes in connection with the Governor-General's and District Cup competitions respectively.

JUDGMENT OF JUDGE WELLER

In the Case of Sheridan and Henderson vs. Peterboro' Hockey Club, Limited

Below will be found His Honor Judge Weller's judgment in the action of Sheridan and Henderson versus the Peterborough Hockey Club, Limited;

Samuel John Sheridan and John William Henderson, plaintiffs;

And The Peterborough Hockey Club, Limited, defendants;

Upon motion made this day unto this Court on behalf of the plaintiffs for an injunction restraining the defendants from entering upon the premises leased by the defendants to the plaintiffs described in the Indenture of Lease made by the defendants to the plaintiffs dated the 18th day of March, 1907, namely,—Part of Lot number three on the south side of Brock street and west of George street in the City of Peterborough, and also from in any way interfering with the plaintiff's possession of the said premises, and further that the fendants, their servants, workmen and agents, be and they are hereby restrained from holding in the said premises a certain walking match advertised to take place therein upon Monday the 20th day of April, 1908, and five succeeding days, and upon hearing read the affidavit of Samuel John Sheridan, Thomas Henry G. Denne, Sydney Taylor Medd, William H. Hill, Christopher G. Graham and John Thirnbeck, the exhibits therein referred to and the Writ of Summons herein and upon hearing what was alleged by counsel for both plaintiffs and defendants and all parties hereto consenting that this motion be turned into a motion for judgment.

1. It is ordered that the plaintiffs action be and the same is hereby dismissed without costs except as hereinafter provided for.

2. It is further ordered that the aforesaid lease held by the plaintiffs of the defendants premises be forthwith delivered up to be cancelled and that no further action be brought by either party thereto against the other on any of the convenants in said lease contained.

3. It is further ordered that the judgment recovered against the plaintiffs by the defendants in the County Court of the County of Peterborough, on the 15th day of November, A.D. 1907, in a certain action wherein the above named defendants are plaintiffs and the above named plaintiffs are defendants, be and remain in full force and effect and the cancellation of said lease shall in no way effect the plaintiffs rights under said judgment.

It is further ordered that all costs of the plaintiffs motion for an injunction herein be paid by the plaintiffs to the defendants forthwith after taxation thereof.

Judgment entered April 21st, 1908 in Judgment Book C at page 69.

Signed—JOHN MOLONEY

In connection with the above it might be stated that the Review was in error through an inadvertant conception of the judgment as published in Monday's issue.

THEATRICAL

"THE GREAT DIVIDE"

The long awaited great American play, as "The Great Divide" has been called by Metropolitan critics, will be presented by Henry Miller at the "Grand" next Saturday, matinee and night. Our playgoers will see this virile, moving, picturesque drama with its sweep of passion and depth of sentiment, exactly as it was given in New York. "The Great Divide" was written by Wm. Vaughn Moody, the poet. The play takes its name from the section of our country in which the first part of the play is represented as taking place, the Rocky Mountains. The play depicts a struggle between the spirit of the East and the spirit of the West, a fight of tradition and unfettered action. The great division between the conventionality, prudishness and false pride of the old restricted communities and the blunt chivalry and honest of the plains and mountains forms the keynote. Ruth Jordan, descended from a long line of New England ancestors, whose lives and thoughts are reflected in her goes to Arizona and there meets Stephen Ghent, of a shiftless, but with innate nobility and soundness of heart. Their meeting is strange, their wooing more strange, and their life together stranger still. The purpose of the drama is to reconcile these antithetical natures through combined logic and love—the latter, of course, being the main deciding factor. Thus the play is pure drama, the struggle of man and woman, and the triumph of love over birth, environment, custom and all other outward show of discouragement.

HOAGLAND HAD IT ALL HIS OWN WAY

LEAD IN EVERY MILE ON SECOND NIGHT OF WALKING TOURNAMENT---SLATER SHOWS GREAT FORM—LAP RECORD IS 38 SECONDS

THE GRIND GROWS INTERESTING

"It's the best walk seen in this country for years and will never be forgotten."

Those words that Referee Jimmie Reynolds uttered in expressing his opinions of the walking tournament at Brock street rink are as true as any statement ever made. There is no doubt whatever that the walk is one that will long be remembered. And the citizens of Peterborough are beginning to fully realise the great importance of the event from a civic and sporting standpoint. From a civic standpoint it is advertising the city and getting it the name of being a very hospitable place and from a sporting standpoint it is justly getting the town the name of being one of the most enterprising in the Canadian realm of sport.

Last night was the second one of the walk and in the matter of racing a better one. The men were going in earnest and with a full realization of the big proposition they were up against. There was not so much frisking and so many carnival features as on the first night.

The commencement of the real grind was evident and from now on the contest will be one of grim determination on the part of the walkers.

MILES FOR HOAGLAND

Shortly after half past seven the starters left the mark and got away well together and it was not before long that they had spread out considerably. All the men walked pretty briskly and for some time there was not much change the men's position. Hoagland was very fresh and strong and led in the 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th and 29th miles without doing any sensational work or having to walk at an extra fast clip.

A TERRIFIC PACE

Hoagland suddenly took the notion that he would go some, and let out at a very fast rate, followed by Slater. Harrison had been hanging on to the Americans with great tenacity but they got half a lap ahead of him in four and then lapped Blake, Graham and Fenton were lapped and then Hartley. They tore off a beautiful sprint the men walking side by side.

GRAHAM'S FINE STYLE

Fenton, the boy walker from Auburn was apparently becoming fagged He walked along very slowly and showed no form whatever during the entire evening. Stenner and Graham plugged along at a steady clip, the latter walking strong. He has a pretty style walking square heel and toe all the time and is one of the most consistent pedestrians in the tournament.

SLATER PACES HOAGLAND

Harrison objected to Hoagland and Slater getting by him and paced them briskly. Slater pulled away from Hoagland and lapped Blake and Harrison. Hoagland passed also, Harrison and the bunch between himself and Slater and forged ahead of the latter. It was then simply a case of the pair lapping everybody on the track but Stevens who did some merry pacing for a while. The scorer pulled up his cards for Hoagland's 31st mile. Hartley did some lively short sprinting that caused the audience to take notice of him.

SLATER'S FINE WORK

Slater was racing in great form having obtained third place in spite of the big handicap on him from the night before. He had a slight lead on Stevens, who was also travelling well but not as fast as the night before.

STANDING OF MEN

The standing of the men was Hoagland, Harrison, Slater, Blake, Stevens and Hartley. The latter was 7 laps behind Stevens, who was tearing along at high speed.

YANKEE DOODLE

The band struck up "Yankee Doodle" and that was all there was to it. Hoagland was inspired by the familiar air, and chased away from the rest of the bunch, a hum of admiration going round from the big crowd as he negotiated the lap in 38 seconds, which is the record so far, beating his mark of the first night of 40 seconds.

MILES 34, 35, 36, 37.

Hoagland covered the above miles without having much opposition or having to extend himself very much. "My Country 'Tis of Thee," by the band brought another lightning jaunt from this wonderful walking machine, and he shot around the track like a thoroughbred race horse. Graham set the best pace he had during the tournament, and the crowd applauded him loudly.

GAINS HALF A LAP.

Hoagland did his 38th, and another "Yankee Doodle" strain had the effect of getting him going at a record clip, and he drew half a lap ahead of Slater.

The latter up to this time had been hugging him very close.

HARRISON SPRINTS.

The 39th and 40th miles were posted up with Hoagland in the lead. Harrison sprinted, evening up matters considerably. He had been taking it somewhat easily. Slater noticed the revival and got right after him. Just for fun Hoagland rung up a lap in 40 3-4 seconds. All the rest of the miles went to him, leaving him when the bell rang 46 miles, 6 laps, having gone 23 miles two laps during the night, or two laps less than the opening night of the tournament.

The positions of the men at the conclusion of the race was as follows;

	Miles.	Laps
Hoagland	46	6
Harrison	45	9
Slater	45	7
Blake	45	6
Stevens	44	7
Hartley	43	3
Graham	41	1
Stenner	40	12
Hatton	40	4
Fenton	38	6

NOTES.

Slater picked up wonderfully from the night previous.

Another large crowd in attendance. Everybody was more than satisfied with the sport.

Hoagland tears around like a flying machine. He is a man of speed which seemingly knows no set limit.

Jimmy Reynolds, the referee, handles the starters to the mutual satisfaction of the men and the spectators.

ERNIE WILSON HAS ENTERED

Will Run in Three Mile Event at Toronto, Saturday Night

Ernie Wilson, of Peterborough, the man who defeated Tom Ooley, the Hamilton crack, in a three-mile match race last fall at the Armouries, is entered for the three mile Canadian indoor championship at the Armouries Saturday night at the Garrison games. He will meet Jack Tait and Don MaCuaig, of Hamilton.—Toronto News.

BASEBALL

Three applications have already been made for the job of umpire. But when Dinny Burke and Dubby Shea get after those umpires, they'll wish they never applied.—Brantford Expositor.

GREATEST EXCITEMENT AT THE TOURNAMENT TO-DAY

The most exciting racing of the tournament took place this afternoon. Hoagland, Slater and Blake did some remarkable walking, the latter making the prettiest short spurt seen at the rink when he passed Hoagland and Slater. The men set a heartbreaking pace, considering the long ten-hour grind before them and it looks as though there will be big leads made before the day is over.

THE STARTERS.

The following men started at 1.30 before a good-sized crowd:—Hartley, Stevens, Graham, Hoagland, Slater, Blake, Hatton, Stevens, Harrison and Fenton. The men got away fast and kept going at a good jog all the time.

SLATER TAKES PACE.

Slater took the pace, followed by Hoagland and Harrison. He appeared very fresh and has apparently recovered from the effects of the rather severe illness he had on the first night.

TABLE OF RACE.

1.30—The men start.

2.15—Slater overtakes Harison, thus getting second place.

2.25—Slater laps Harrison, thus being a lap ahead of him with Harrison in third place.

2.40—Hoagland takes the pace on a terrific sprint, passing Slater the first time this afternoon, and getting half a lap ahead of him. Slater sets out after him. Harrison and Blake drop behind.

2.45—Blake laps Harrison. He is a lap ahead and in third place. Harrison has lost two positions in the first hour and a quarter of the race, second to Slater and third to Blake.

2.46—Hoagland laps Blake.

2.50—Blake makes finest spurt of the entire walk, passing Hoagland.

STANDING AT 3 O'CLOCK.

HURTUBISE AND KENNEDY

Meet To-night at the Mutual St. Rink---Many Backing "Gene"

Chris. Graham and Gene Hurtubuise left for Toronto this afternoon on the 4.48 C.P.R. train. Tonight Hurtubuise meets Frank Kennedy at the Mutual street rink for a purse of $300 best two in three falls. Art. Edmunds will referee. Many local men are backing Hurtubuise.

Y.M.C.A. GYM NOTES

Fencing class tonight at 8 o'clock sharp.

Senior class will meet immediately after fencing class tonight at 8.30. All members must be in attendance for a final rehearsal.

REPORT OF THE CONFERENCE

Will be at the Y. M. C. A. on Friday Evening at 7.30

A report of the boys' conference of the YMCA's held at Brantford on Good Friday and Saturday will be given to the school boys' and members of the Intermediate department on Friday evening at 7.30 by the delegates, Dr. Middleton and Messrs. Ray Scott and Stanley Wade. The convention was a most interesting and helpful one and the report will be of much interest to all the boys. Mr. Scott invited the convention to Peterborough for next year and it is quite likely the invitation will be accepted and Peterborough have this conference next Good Friday and Saturday.

Sending a War Vessel.

Washington, April 22.—A United States war vessel will be sent to Venezuelan waters, but her mission is to be an entirely peaceful one. The closing of the port of La Guaira because of the existence of what is believed to be bubonic plague there, has made it necessary for the American State Department to have at hand some vessel to be used as a despatch boat by Minister Russell in sending messages to Curacoa or Port of Spain.

Chateau Basin Fire.

Montreal, April 22.—Fire at Chateaugay Basin yesterday morning caused a loss estimated at $20,000. Sampson's Hotel, a large wooden structure, took fire from a defective chimney and was destroyed.

WAS FOUND ASLEEP IN HIS BUGGY

On Alymer St. Last Evening---Young Man Fined for Being Drunk--Another One Told to Leave City

Hartley McConnell was found sleeping in his buggy on Aylmer street last evening and was arrested by P. C. Meagher. A number of small boys were gathered around him and were amusing themselves by teasing him. McConnell resides in Emily. He drove into the city yesterday and indulged too freely of the cup that cheers. He was charged with being drunk and disorderly in the police court this morning. He was fined two dollars to be paid in ten days.

TOLD TO LEAVE CITY

Jos. Davis appeared before the magistrate a week ago and was remanded on a charge of vagrancy. He came up this morning and was ordered to leave the city. "Did you come down to see the walking match?" asked His Worship. Davis explained that he came down here and was around the town selling boot laces. "Then we will fine you for peddling without a license" said the Chief. "You had better get out of the city as these officers are hard to satisfy," said His Worship.

On motion of Ald. Morgan seconded by Ald. Bradburn, George Blodgett's tender for the western district was accepted; on motion of Ald. Butler and Morgan, A. Valois' tender for the eastern district was accepted; on motion of Ald. Butler and Ald. Bradburn, Justus Blodgett's tender for the northern district was accepted and on motion of Ald. Pradburn and Ald. Elliott the matter of the contract for the southern district was left with the chairman and the street commissioner to make the best bargain they can for the work.

GRAYSTOCK

Special to the Review.

Graystock, April 21.—Mr. Wm. Rutherford has returned home after spending the Easter holidays visiting his friends at Fenelon Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Kindred and family spent a few days at Westwood and returned home on Monday.

Mr. Walter Dickson has sold one of his farm horses to a local buyer for a good figure.

Mr. Manley has leased the Stuart farm here for a term.

Miss Mary Corkery is spending a few weeks at Mr. Dan Hayes' this spring.

Mr. Wallace Dickson, of Peterborough, spent Good Friday under the parental roof.

Most of the farmers around here are going to send their cream to the Peterborough factory this summer, as they think it is a money maker, and also a labor saver. Mr. Fred Hamlin will draw for this part and Mr. B. Wood for the other part of the route.

Miss Georgie Heatherley is visiting at Mr. Walter Dickson's this week.

Mrs. E. W. Nesbitt, of Woodstock, is dead.

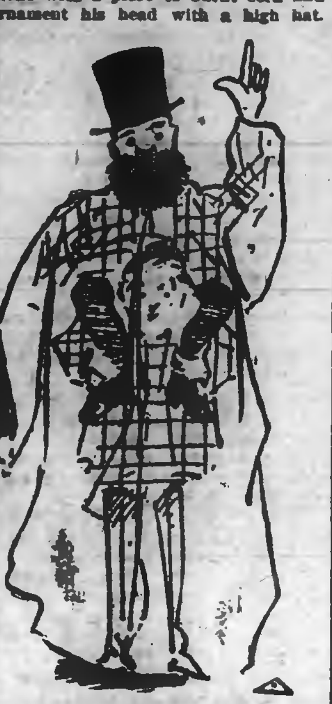
Young Folks

A QUEER GIANT.

Suggestion For a Trick That Will Promote Lots of Merriment.

Some evening when your friends have come in to spend an hour with you and conversation lags you and one of your friends can impersonate this queer looking giant and cause much merriment.

Select a boy much smaller than yourself and seat him astride on your shoulder, draping your combined figures with a shawl or long cloak. Disguise your friend's face by making a mustache with a piece of burnt cork and ornament his head with a high hat.



HOW THE GIANT IS MADE.

The more complete the disguise the more effective is the giant. If some ready witted and genial member of the party will undertake to act as showman and exhibit the giant holding a lively conversation with him and calling attention to his gigantic idiosyncrasies, a great deal of fun may be produced. The joke should not, however, be very long continued, as the feelings of the person carrying the other must be considered.

THE SMOKE OF A CIGAR.

Why It Is Now White and Again Blue Scientifically Explained.

If you will notice a smoker you will see that when he "puffs" vigorously the smoke that comes out of his mouth is whitish, but if he holds the cigar in his hand the smoke that curls up from it is blue. Are any boys and girls close enough observers to have noticed that? And if they have, do they know the reason? It is this: The particles that compose the smoke that comes from the mouth are coarser than those from the end of the cigar. But what, you may ask, has the fineness of the particles to do with it? This: Blue waves of light are the shortest of all the colors, and it is the finer particles that catch and reflect those waves. When the smoke is drawn through the cigar it takes up coarser particles, and when it is thrown out of the mouth those coarser particles reflect all the light waves, thus producing on our eyes the sensation of white. The blue tint of the sky, as was explained to you some time ago, is made by the fine dust particles of the upper air, which catch and reflect the blue light waves.—Chicago News.

Little Jack Horner.

Do you know that Jack Horner of Mother Goose fame was a real person? The story is that the abbot of Glastonbury, hearing that King Henry VIII. had spoken with indignation of his building such a kitchen as the king could not burn down, sent his steward, Jack Horner, to present the king with a bribe or peace offering. This was a pie containing the deeds of twelve manors. Jack, wishing to "take toll" and thus provide himself, lifted the crust of the pie and took out the deed to the manor of Wells, telling the abbot on his return that the king had given it to him; hence the old rhyme:

He put in his trumb
And pulled out a plum,
Saying, "What a brave boy am I!"

Just For Fun.

A painter who fell down while he was carrying a paint pot in each hand remarked, "I came down with flying colors."

A crosseyed man was arrested for burglary. He was found to be straight, although he looked crooked.

I know a man who says he can't sit up and he can't stand up.

Well, if he tells the truth he lies.—Philadelphia Ledger.

All In an Hour.

"Eight o'clock. Why, it's almost school time!"
And Ted looked up at the sun.
"There's really no use in beginning
When you can't get anything done!"
So he wasted a whole long hour.
Tick, tick, it went slowly by.
What wonders he might have accomplished
Had he only the pluck to try!

"An hour! Why, that's sixty minutes!"
Cried Dick, with his face aglow.
"I've time to read over my lessons
And run on an errand or so!"
He blacked father's boots in addition,
Combed Brother Bob's curly brown hair,
Mailed some letters and brought in the eggs
And then had three minutes to spare!

WIZARDS IN FIGURES.

Some Wonderful Feats of Boys Who Became Famous.

GAUSS WAS A RARE GENIUS.

He Was Not Only One of the Greatest Mental Calculators on Record, but He Was a Gifted Mathematician. Dase's Marvelous Mental Work.

When scarcely three years old Gauss, according to an anecdote told by himself, followed mentally a calculation of his father's relative in regard to the wages of some workmen who were to be paid for overtime in proportion to their regular wages, and, detecting a mistake in the account, he called out, "Father, the reckoning is wrong; it makes so much," naming the exact amount. The calculations were repeated, and it turned out that the child was correct, while all who witnessed the performance were greatly surprised. He retained an extraordinary ability for mental calculations throughout life and remembered the first few decimals of the logarithms of all numbers, so that he was able to use the data of a logarithmic table in his mental calculations, and hence he possessed a mental slide rule—a unique possession.

Gauss was not only one of the greatest mental calculators on record, but he excelled equally in all branches of pure and applied mathematics. At the age of twenty he discovered the first rigorous proof of the fundamental theorem of algebra, which affirms that every algebraic equation has as many roots as its degree, and at the age of twenty-four he published his great work on the theory of numbers under the title "Disquisitiones Arithmeticae." Later in life he turned his attention principally to applied mathematics, especially to astronomy and geodesy, and he is generally regarded as the last of the great mathematicians who were pre-eminent in nearly all branches of mathematical knowledge of his day.

While Gauss was both a great mental calculator and a great mathematician and was a real mathematical prodigy, we proceed to consider several who were merely arithmetical prodigies and seemed to have very little general mathematical ability. The greatest of these is Dase, who was born at Hamburg in 1824 and "seems to have been little more than a human calculating machine, able to carry on enormous calculations in his head, but nearly incapable of understanding the principles of mathematics and of very limited ability outside his chosen field." His extraordinary ability in mental calculation is evidenced by the fact that he was able to multiply mentally two numbers, each of which contained 100 figures. It took him eight and three-quarters hours to perform this feat, which stands in a class by itself, as no other arithmetical prodigy is known to have been able to multiply mentally two numbers each consisting of more than thirty-nine figures. Two forty-figure numbers Dase was able to multiply in forty minutes, while he would multiply two eight-figure numbers in less than one minute.

What is most surprising about this greatest calculator on record is that he was stupid in mathematics. Petersen is said to have tried in vain for six weeks to get the first elements of mathematics into his head, and other eminent mathematicians found that he had very little mathematical ability. Fortunately he was advised by some of the leading mathematicians of his day to turn his extraordinary ability to scientific uses instead of going around the country giving public exhibitions, a career upon which he had entered at the age of fifteen. He calculated many useful tables and was engaged on an extensive factor table at the time of his death. The ease and speed with which he could count the numbers of books in a case, the number of sheep in a herd, etc., were almost more surprising that his extraordinary ability as a mental calculator.

Another well known mental calculator, having even less mathematical ability than Dase, is Buxton, who remained illiterate through life, although his father had some education. He had a wonderful memory for numbers and could call off long numbers from right to left or from left to right with equal facility. On one occasion he squared mentally a thirty-nine figure number in two and a half months. He was extremely slow and in this respect resembled a negro of the name of Tom Fuller, who is known as the Virginia calculator. Although entirely illiterate, he was able to reduce mentally years and months to seconds and could multiply two nine-figure numbers.

Darboux has called attention to an infant prodigy. Joseph Bertrand was born in Paris in 1822 and was such a delicate child that his parents did not expect him to arrive at manhood, and hence his early education was partly neglected. At the age of four he was sick for a long time and overheard the lessons which were given his brother in the same room. He knew the letters of the alphabet, but nothing more. When he was convalescent his parents brought him a book to look at the pictures, and he relates in his account of his childhood that he remembers distinctly how he shocked his parents by reading the text fluently. His frightened father snatched the book from him and commanded that under no pretext should he be allowed to do any work.

The manner in which he learned elementary algebra and elementary geometry is still more extraordinary. We reproduce his own account:

"At the age of nine I had the great then defeats her own end by her lack of companionableness.

There's the woman who gets into an intellectual rut. She has all of Maeterlinck's theories at her fingers' ends; the situation at Panama; she can even do long division with six figures at a pinch. Yet, after all, she is a failure.

She never seems to realize that these nuggets of wisdom could not be less valuable for an attractive setting. She cannot comprehend why Rosa Jones, who went to school with her and always paid as much attention to her clothes as she did to natural philosophy, should be the recipient of the attention of extraordinarily cultivated men who never seek her own society a second time. By and by she consoles herself with the conviction that really brainy women are shut off from most companionship because their true worth is misunderstood, and she sinks a little deeper into the rut that really has been her undoing.

There's the woman also who has got into the rut of her work. It may be very nice work, very interesting up to a certain point to her fellow beings, but it has its limitations.

One Year In Central.

Chatham, April 22.—Henry Farby, a local young man, who has been wanted by the police here for over a year for stealing liquors from a Pere Marquette car, was brought before Judge Houston yesterday and sentenced to one year in the Central Prison.

Lots of Work, He Says.

London, April 22.—(C. A. P.)—Col. Lamb, in an interview, declares that there is work now in Canada for everyone who wants it. Though the Salvation Army has been compelled to modify its program, yet it is sending out parties of 60 to 600 weekly.

Hobeika Not Guilty.

Montreal, April 22.—"Hobeika is not guilty."

At 3 o'clock yesterday the jury in the court of King's Bench returned that verdict and there was long applause. The officials had a hard time of it to keep order.

Child Lost on the Prairie.

Medicine Hat, Alberta, April 22.—The two-year-old child of James Norquay, a rancher, wandered away and has been lost on the prairie since Saturday morning. Search was begun an hour after the disappearance.

SET OF TOILET BAGS.

The Handiest Things to Have In the Bedroom:

Once a girl acquires an assortment of bags and receptacles for toilet articles she will never be without a bag for everything. They are handy and help her to keep a room orderly; also they may be fashioned in a way to make them decorative.

One of the most satisfactory to have is a comb and brush bag, which may be hung beside the dresser or chiffonier and leave more space in the drawers for one's other belongings. This bag is made deep enough to hold the brush and comb, and it looks like a section of a shoe bag. The foundation is a long, straight piece of the material, on which is sewed a pocket. The pocket and foundation are bound all around with ribbon or colored tape to match the predominating color in the cretonne silk or tapestry. Two little ribbons, one at each corner of the top, will serve to hang it up by. A bedroom may be made to look very dainty by having all the bags made of pink, blue or yellow flowered chintz or cretonne.

A pocket that will find many uses is made of cretonne laid over an oval shaped piece of cardboard and bound on the edge with a small cord. The lower half of the oval, which is used lengthwise, has a pocket of cretonne shirred to it. The upper edge of the pocket is hemmed and an elastic run through the shirring.

A whisk broom case is another receptacle which may be made ornamental, and, besides this, it is a good thing to have a wall pocket with two sections in which to keep one's shoe brushes and shoe cloths.

Ella Fralich, aged 16, of Tupperville, Ont., was deported from Detroit as an undesirable.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs Lower, Cattle Steady at American Markets.

LONDON, April 21.—London cables are steady at 12c to 13½c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 11¼c to 11½c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, April 21.—Receipts of stock as reported by the railways, were 84 carloads, composed of 1268 cattle, 1747 hogs, 122 sheep, 903 calves and 2 horses.

Exporters.

Not many on sale, but a few were reported at $6, that is, for picked lots. Prices ranged from $5 to $6 for export steers, and $4 to $5 for export bulls.

Butchers.

Choice picked lots of butchers sold at $5.50 to $5.70; loads of good, $5 to $5.40; medium mixed loads of butchers and good cows, $4.50 to $4.90; good cows, $4 to $4.50; common to fair cows, $3.25 to $4; canners and rough cows, $1.50 to $3 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

Stockers and feeders are beginning to be offered in larger numbers. H. & W. Murby reported having got 130 cattle in these classes, and quote the following prices: Stockers, 400 to 700 lbs., sold at $3 to $3.50; steers, 700 to 900 lbs., $3.25 to $4.25, and feeders, 900 to 1100 lbs., $4 to $5 per cwt., according to quality.

Milkers and Springers.

A moderate supply of milkers and springers sold from $30 to $55 each, and one of extra quality brought $60.

Veal Calves.

Deliveries were the largest of the season thus far, over 900 being reported. The quality generally was very poor; in fact, one of the largest dealers stated that 40 per cent. of the calves on sale would not pass inspection at the abattoirs. Prices were lower, being quoted by Mr. Dunn, the largest buyer, at $3 to $5.25 per cwt. for the bulk. Had there been any good to choice calves they would have brought more money. Amongst the lot we did not see one real prime new milk-fed calf.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were light, with prices very firm for any of good quality. Export ewes, $5 to $5.75; rams, $4.50 to $5.25; good yearling lambs sold from $7 to $8, and prime quality at $8.50 and common lean buck lambs $5 to $6 per cwt.; spring lambs, $3 to $6.50 each, with some little scraggy fellows, that ought to be with their mothers, that were almost unsaleable. These small lambs reflect on the poor judgment of the farmers and drovers in not keeping them on the farm.

Hogs.

Over 1700 hogs were reported by the railways as having arrived from all sources, about 1200 of which came on the market. Mr. Harris reported prices unchanged at $6.40 for selects, fed and watered, and $6.15 for lights.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, April 21.—Cattle—Firm; prime steers, $6.75 to $7.10.

Veals—Receipts, 350 head; active and steady; $5 to $7.25.

Hogs—Receipts 1400 head, slow and 10c to 15c lower; heavy and mixed, $6.20 to $6.25, yorkers, $6 to $6.20; pigs, $4.50 to $5.65; rough, $5 to $5.40; stags, $4 to $4.50; dairies, $6 to $6.15.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 400 head; active and steady; lambs, $5 to $7.40; yearlings, $6.75 to $6.55; wethers, $6 to $6.25; ewes, $5.25 to $5.75; sheep, mixed, $3 to $6; all clipped.

MAY IRWIN ON FADS.

What This Jolly, Successful Actress Says on the Subject.

My dear old mother, who was something of a philosopher, used to tell me when I was a youngster, "Don't worry."

She quoted that bit of advice, which is apparently so easy to follow, to us children every time we appeared out of sorts and seemed at all rebellious against the daily events which did not altogether meet with our approval.

"Oh, yes, mother," I would say, "it's easy enough for you to tell us not to worry! But we can't help worrying. What do you know about these childish troubles of ours?"

Then my mother would turn away, and presently we'd hear her voice calling.

When we responded it was always to find that the wise and sweet old soul had devised some little duty about the house for us to do. She very skillfully led us into work; got us interested in the particular task we had to perform.

In a way I think my mother used to bunko us girls. Before we were aware of it she'd have us running races to see who could put up the greater number of cans of preserves, and who could practice longer on the piano, and who could endure longer—"get tired first," she called it—when it came to putting the house in order.

To borrow a foolish expression from the melodrama, "I can see it all now."

I have been a very hard worker all my life, and I can truthfully say that I have been a very happy woman.

Work is the one unbeatable foe of unhappiness.

Work, application, concentration!

In these three words you've got the whole thing.

It is only the man who works who can enjoy a vacation.

It is only the man who works and works hard who finds the true happiness contained in our week's one day of rest.

If you want to be happy, get busy.

Force yourself to get interested in something. If you are deeply interested in some occupation, you won't have time to be unhappy.

Every person, man or woman, must acknowledge this fact.

Somehow I feel as I write these articles that I am directing my words more particularly to the women than to the men. I'll take a chance on having more women readers than men, and I'll risk another observation which may sound trivial at first.

Get a fad. Fads are mighty good things.

Fads have saved many a woman in my profession from being unhappy.—New York Journal.

MANY MATTERS DEALT WITH BY THE BOARD OF WORKS

Busy Session Held Last Night—Sidewalks, Sewers and Drains Wanted—Other Questions Were Considered

The Board of Works had a busy session last night and transacted a large amount of business. The fyle was well filled when the session opened, but no time was wasted and the meeting was over by ten o'clock. There were present, Ald. Phelan, chairman; Mayor Rush, Ald. Morgan, Elliott, Bradburn and McIntyre.

Mr. A. P. Poussette, K.C., appeared before the Board and stated that St. John's church was about to build a rectory at the corner of Bock and Sheridan streets and a house on Sheridan street. On behalf of the church, he asked the city to build a sewer on Hunter street and Sheridan street, or on Hunter street to the western line of the lots on the west side of Sheridan street, as the levels would permit.

The City Engineer was instructed to look into the matter and make a report.

Messrs. R. Fair, R. Davidson and H. Conway were next heard and asked that a sidewalk be constructed on the south side of Murray street, from College street to Dickson street, and on the west side of Dickson st.

The request will be considered.

A letter was read from the Peterborough Light and Power Company asking permission to reconstruct their line on London street, between George and Aylmer streets and on Aylmer street between London and Lock streets, and to build a new line on the west side of Aylmer st., from Lake to Romaine streets. It would require five new poles.

On motion of Ald. Elliott and Ald. Butler, the request was granted, after some discussion.

A DRAIN WANTED.

Dr. Amys addressed the Board and asked that a drain for surface water be constructed on Simcoe street, from the head of that street to the creek to relieve the Charlotte street drain.

On motion of Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Butler, the city engineer was instructed to prepare an estimate of the cost of constructing a drain on Aylmer street from Rubidge street to the creek.

A petition was read from A. A. McIntyre and others for a granolithic sidewalk as a local improvement on the west side of Aylmer street from 177 feet south of Dublin street on McDonnel street.

A letter was read from W. R. Tiffin, superintendent of the Grand Trunk, regarding the diversion of the stream in the north ward.

It was moved by Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Elliott, that the clerk write again to Mr. Tiffin and ask him to expedite an answer as to a contribution from the railway company to the cost of this diversion and it must be proceeded with at once, and the Council must decide whether to carry the diversion by Edinburgh street and that the chairman interview the Peterborough Hydraulic Power Company as to obtaining permission to construct the end of Argyle street through their property to the river.—Caried.

The engineer was instructed to make a report on the request from G. M. Roger and others for sewer accommodation on Park street north to McDonell street and on the west end of London street.

A letter was read from J. F. English, asking to have Park street filled in in front of his property north of Murray street and a sidewalk built.

On motion the street commissioner was authorized to use for filling the street any street scrapings he can use for that purpose.

A letter was read from Samuel Stewart, asking permission to connect a house on Bethune street with the sewer on Aylmer street.—Received.

A letter was read from R. E. Wood asking to have street scrapings deposited on Mrs. Patterson's property on the usual conditions.—Received.

The city engineer was instructed to secure an estimate for overflow pipes which have been recommended as a means of improving the sewer accommodation.

WILL ASK THE GOVERNMENT

To Contribute Towards Cost of Normal School Sewer

The Provincial Government will be asked to contribute towards the cost of the sewer for the Normal School. The city engineer has prepared an estimate for the cost and at the meeting of the Board of Works last night the following resolution was passed:

Moved by Ald. Butler, seconded by Ald. Bradburn, that the chairman and Ald. Elliott see T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P. and ask him to see the Provincial Government with respect to the Government contributing towards the construction of the sewer across the Normal school grounds.

THANK OFFERING WAS GRATIFYING

Successful Meeting of George St. Methodist Church Missionary Society

The annual thank offering service of the Women's Missionary Society of George street Methodist church was held yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Jas. Kendry was in the chair and a large number were in attendance. The programme consisted of an address by Miss Munro, a returned missionary, a reading by Mrs. Turner, solo by Mrs. Davidson and a recitation by Gladys Pentland. The thank offering was most gratifying.

Mrs. Thomas Bodsley, aged 63, of Brantford, is dead.

WILL THERE BE DEVELOPMENTS?

Visit of C.P.R. Official to Peterborough Connected With Grain Route

Developments are expected at an early date in connection with the proposed C.P.R. grain route from Victoria Harbor connecting with the main line near Peterborough. The private business car of Mr. J. G. Sullivan, of the Construction Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was at the local station for two or three days this week and went west this morning on the local. Mr. Sullivan was accompanied by a staff of clerks who appeared to be busy during their stay here.

No information was given out as to the purport of Mr. Sullivan's visit to Peterborough but it is learned that it was in connection with the proposed grain route.

WATER TOWER IS TORN DOWN

Was No Longer of Any Use at Little Lake Cemetery---Many Improvements

Mr. Frank Wise, superintendent of the Little Lake Cemetery, has the necropolis in splendid shape. A gang of men have been working for some time doing the spring cleaning and while the weather has been against them, have succeeded in getting everything in good shape. The grass has been raked and all the plots and walks put in most attractive order.

The old water-tower has been torn down this spring. It has not been used for several years and was no longer necessary. The waterworks system was extended to the cemetery about seven years ago and the water tower has not been used since that time.

The annual spring meeting of the Cemetery Company will be held early in May.

OBITUARY

MISS GRACE ROGERS

Many friends in Peterborough will regret to hear of the death of Miss Grace Rogers, daughter of Mr. Frank Rogers, a former member of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal. She passed away at Lachine on Monday afternoon. The Kingston Whig has the following regarding her death:

Following close on the reassuring word that Miss Grace Rogers was on the mend, came the news that shocked and inexpressibly grieved all who knew her, that her illness was a fatal one, and that she could hold out but a few days. On Monday afternoon the further message came, saying that death had taken her. Her eldest sister, Miss Aileen Rogers, has been down in Lachine nursing her for several weeks, and to her and to her sisters and brother here, is the most tender sympathy given. It is but a few months ago since the mother, Mrs. Francis Rogers, was taken from her family, and now the third daughter has joined her father and mother in the place of rest. Miss Grace was a great favorite here, bright and gentle and sweet and her death, just as she was stepping across the brink of her teens in womanhood, is particularly sad. The burial will take place at Cataraqui cemetery on Wednesday afternoon after the arrival of the afternoon train from the east.

FRANK WHITE

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frank White will be grieved to learn of the death of their infant child, at their home, 552 Bethune street. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon and will proceed to the Little Lake cemetery.

CLAIMED GOOD FOR THE BLOOD

Good Home Made Mixture Said to Make Kidneys Filter Out Impurities

All medical authorities are agreed that the blood is the great source of disease or of health in the human system. If the blood is pure, the individual is strong and healthy, if the blood is impure or diseased, then there is sickness or decay in the whole system.

Rheumatism is strictly a blood disease. It is caused by excessive uric acid. Sores, pimples, etc., mean bad blood. Catarrhal affection must be treated through the blood to get permanent results. To get well, to feel strong, hearty and vigorous one must have good, clean blood, and lots of it. You can't clean the blood thoroughly unless the kidneys are are made active. Bad blood means clogged inactive kidneys and liver, which causes, too, such symptoms as backache, nervousness, bladder and urinary difficulties and other sympathetic troubles.

Here is a simple home remedy and the Recipe for making it is as follows:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime. The ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at small cost

Here the readers of this paper have a simple, yet powerful and effective remedy for all forms of blood, kidney and bladder diseases which should relieve rheumatism and catarrhal affections and replace that weak, worn-out indifferent feeling with strength, vigor and health.

This prescription is considered a fine system renovator and being made of vegetable extracts only is harmless and anyone can mix it at home. Try this anyway before investing in the secret unknown concoctions of the patent medicine manufacturers.

LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE.

Veteran Commander Tells Story of Forty-Three Years' Service.

Forty-three years' sea-service in the mercantile marine must be quite exceptional. Yet that is the record of Capt. Simpson, commander of the Aberdeen White Star liner Moravian. During that long period he has but on one occasion spent a Christmas at home, and the sailing of the Moravian the other day disposes of his chance of passing the approaching Yule-tide in these islands. But such a circumstance in no sense represents a grievance. The commanders of regular liners are quite content to take their luck in such a matter, and fixed sailings must naturally be independent of high days and holidays. One of the most astonishing features of Capt. Simpson's career is that, while he has made no fewer than 75 round voyages to the Antipodes—with only one exception, sailing from London to Sydney — he has never been shipwrecked and has never had a man washed overboard. Further, also with one exception, every voyage has been made under the flag of the Aberdeen-White Star Line.

Sailormen are always shy, and Capt. Simpson, like a true seaman, has a hatred of personal advertisement. Yet it has been possible to obtain some details of a career which, if it may not be wholly unique, is one of peculiar interest. To go back forty years or more is to pass in review the astonishing changes which have come over the means of communication between the Mother Country and the Colonies. Capt. Simpson, of course, began his experience in sailing ship days. He served his time on a well-known clipper ship, the Queen of Nations. In those days the tea clippers, with the first of the new season's tea, raced home from China, carrying those "fancy" sails from which they got an extra knot or two in a favoring breeze.

At that period, or a little earlier, the China seas were by no means clear of the Celestial pirate. The old Queen of Nations, when in the China trade, was armed with half a dozen long brass 12-pounders. It suggests that these eastern pirates were no mean foe, for this was precisely the same armament that Lord Dundonald boasted when he captured a French frigate with his little brig, the Trusty. These half-dozen 12-pounders were, of course, not needed in the Australian trade. To-day Capt Simpson is the senior commander of the Aberdeen-White Star Line steamers. Before he got to that position he served as mate on the Aberdeen, the owners' first boat to possess triple expansion engines.

He had fourteen colonial voyages in command of the steamship Australasian, among his passengers on one of these trips being James Anthony Froude. When the trouble broke out in the Soudan, it was Capt. Simpson's ship which conveyed from Sydney to Suakim the contingent contributed by New South Wales. He was the first master, in fact, to leave an Australian port with colonial troops anxious to fight for the Mother Country. He spent six months in supervising the building of the steamship Thermopylae, at Aberdeen, and afterwards commanded that vessel. He was destined to make no fewer than 15 voyages in her. The Thermopylae, of course, perpetuates the memory of one of the fastest sailing ships which the world has ever seen, and which ran under the flag of the Aberdeen Line. Later, Capt. Simpson superintended the building of the Moravian, his present ship, and in her he has made 22 voyages to Australia and back.

Coolies in South Africa.

Sir Alexander Hosie, Commercial Attache to the British Legation at Pekin, says that many of the provinces of China have a surplus population, and their labor is a valuable export from China, bringing in return into the country the profits derived from foreign lands. Kwangtung and Fuh-kien are the great emigration provinces, but Chihli and Shantung, principally the former, have supplied nearly all the coolies for South Africa, and it may be interesting to give here a summary of the emigration up to Jan. 31, 1907. The total number of coolies shipped from China to South Africa was 63,811, the total number landed at Durban was 63,568, the total distributed to mines was 63,206, and the total employed on Jan. 31, 1907, was 53,828. Up to the same date deaths numbered 2,005, repatriated by purchase 1,433, repatriated as physically unfit, 3,976, repatriated by state aid 768, while 29 were undergoing terms of imprisonment. The percentage of wastage of the number distributed to the mines amounted to 14.80 per cent. Of the total number which sailed from China 62,070 were from the north and 1,741 from the south. The total amount paid by the Chamber of Mines Labor Importation Agency in China to the families and relatives of the emigrants by the allotment system to June 30, 1907, was $1,112,558.05., a sum which of course represents only a part of the miners' savings.

Lions Held Up Station.

Lecturing at Melbourne on East Africa, Mr. V. M. Newland, for several years a resident in Uganda, told an amusing lion story.

Simba, one of the stations on the Uganda railway, is the home of the lion. Last year traffic became disorganized through a troop of lions "holding up" the station. The following telegrams from the stationmaster were the result:

Urgent: Traffic manager. Lion on platform. Please instruct guard and driver to advance cautiously, without signalling; guard advise passengers not get out here.

One man injured six o'clock by lion. Sent to hospital by trolley. Please send ball cartridges; blank cartridges no good.

Extra urgent: Pointsman surrounded by two lions. Has succeeded in climbing to top of telegraph pole near water tank. Immediate succor imperative.

Special of Secretary of Administration is in dead siding, where he just now shot one lion.—London Daily Mail.

Allan Studholme may not have the support of the laborites of East Hamilton.

GRIP VICTIMS RELIEVED

PE-RU-NA Is a Reliable Remedy for the After-Effects of Grip, Such as Indigestion, Prostration and Poor Circulation.

La Grippe Leaves Systemic Catarrh.

Judge Horatio J. Goss, Hartwell, Ga., writes:

"Some five or six years ago I had a very severe spell of grip which left me with systemic catarrh.

"A friend advised me to try your Peruna, which I did, and was immediately benefited.

"The third bottle completed the cure."

The Right Medicine.

Mrs. Henrietta A. S. Marsh, 2128 Reservoir St., Los Angeles, Cal., President Woman's Benevolent Ass'n, writes:

"I suffered with la grippe for seven weeks, and nothing I could do or take helped me until I tried Peruna.

"I felt at once that I had at last secured the right medicine and I kept steadily improving. Within three weeks I was fully restored, and I am glad that I gave that truly great remedy a trial I will never be without it again."

In a letter dated August 31, 1904, Mrs. Marsh says: "I have never yet heard the efficacy of Peruna questioned. We still use it."

Pe-ru-na Recommended by Friends.

Mr. N. Beauchamp, 126 rue Notre Dame, Lachine, P. Q., writes:

"I tried the famous remedy, Peruna, which was recommended to me by one of my friends, R. Pilon.

"I have not been without this valuable remedy for seven months, and now I see that I am entirely cured.

"Formerly on lying down I was unable to breathe through my nose and I never passed a day without headache.

"To-day I experience none of these symptoms and this is due to Peruna."

Head and Stomach Were Affected.

Miss Olivine Perrault, 385 Davidson St., Montreal, Can., writes:

"I write you a word to congratulate you on your famous remedy, Peruna. I tried other remedies, but my cold did not get any better, and I feared I was becoming consumptive.

"The condition of my head and stomach was very annoying. I had coughed day and night for three months as the result of a cold which I had contracted from sudden change of temperature.

"My brother advised me to try Peruna and I did so, for he was cured by Peruna. I took it regularly and improved steadily. I have now taken three bottles of it and am completely cured."

Mr. J. A. Goyer, president La Pharmacie Latoninse, 1089 Berri St., Montreal, Can., writes:

"I can highly recommend your valuable preparation, Peruna, to all those who suffer from the bad after-effects of la grippe.

"Two bottles of Peruna have brought to me a complete cure of that sickness, and it has acted as the best tonic for the system that I have ever experienced."

MR. J. A. GOYER.

PERUNA is a remedy for the after-effects of la grippe.

Nearly every person who has had the grip during the past winter finds himself left with some chronic catarrhal condition more or less intolerable.

It may be a hacking cough, or a tired, all-worn-out feeling.

Sometimes indigestion appears and hangs on in spite of all remedies.

A short course of Peruna removes all these symptoms and puts the patient right again. We have a multitude of testimonials along this line.

Mr. Frank H. Fielder, 212 Pleasant Ave., Montgomery, Ala., formerly principal of Haynesville High School, writes:

"I can truthfully say that Peruna is a splendid remedy for la grippe, and a good tonic for building up the system."

AN IMPORTANT EVENT IN LOCAL MILITARY HISTORY

One of the most important events in the military history of Peterborough took place this afternoon. It was the laying of the corner stone of the new armouries, which took place about three o'clock. Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, arrived here this morning and performed the ceremony of laying the corner stone. There was a guard of honor from the 57th regiment and the 24th Field Battery. Prince of Wales Dragoon Guards, and Veterans' Association were also represented. A large number of citizens turned out and the event was of a brilliant nature.

Tonight the citizens of Peterborough will tender Sir Frederick a complimentary banquet at the Oriental Hotel.

A full report of today's proceedings will appear in tomorrow's issue of the Review.

CHARLOTTE ST. THANK OFFERING

The annual Easter thank offering of the Women's Missionary Society of Charlottte street church was held yesterday afternoon and was very largely attended. Mrs. Kilgour presided and gave an interesting address on "India" was given by Mrs. H. J. Keith. Vocal solos that were much enjoyed were contributed by Mrs. Collier and Miss Francis Manning. The offering amounted to almost thirty dollars.

PROTECTION OF DEER

A correspondent writing from the northern part of the County of Peterborough states that in his opinion the law for the protection of deer is not being observed as it should be. He states that hounds are allowed to run at large and that much shooting for amusement is being practiced. People who ought to know better, he asserts, take advantage of the forbearance of true sports who will not kill out of season.

Over one thousand unemployed are reported at Prince Rupert.

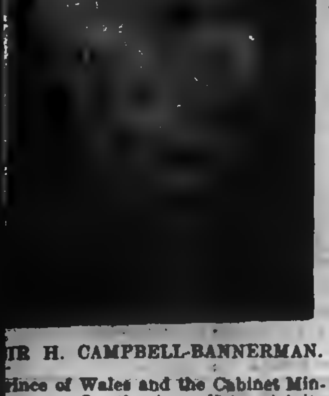
THE PASSING AWAY OF SIR HENRY CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN

Heart Trouble Terminated Fatally—Cares of Office Proved Too Much for Aged Statesman—Sketch of a Busy and Useful Life

London, April 23.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, former British Premier, died at 9.15 yesterday morning, at his official residence in Downing street, after a long illness. The end was peaceful. The cause of Sir Henry's death is officially given as heart failure.

In the death chamber when the ex-Premier breathed his last were his niece, Mrs. Campbell, who had acted as Sir Henry's hostess since the death of Lady Campbell-Bannerman, a little more than a year ago; Dr. Burnet, who was Mr. Campbell-Bannerman's personal physician, and who had been in constant attendance during his long illness, and Sir Henry's butler.

The ex-Premier had been unconscious most of the time during the past two or three days, and his sinking was gradual. A few hours before his death, telegrams were despatched to King Edward, who, with Queen Alexandra, is visiting the Danish royal family at Copenhagen; the Prince of Wales and the Cabinet Ministers. In the immediate vicinity newspaper reporters were keeping vigil before the house of the dying statesman, but the only news handed to them was in the form of a bulletin more than an hour after his death. A few minutes thereafter a crowd assembled in Downing street, but all persons were barred from approaching the house by a cordon of police from Scotland Yard, near by.



IR H. CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's al illness dates from Feb. 12, when he last appeared in the House of Commons, and moved the closure of the Scottish land bills, although he had been ailing since Nov. 13, 1907, when he participated in an entertainment in honor of Emperor William at the Guildhall.

Few invalids have been the object of so much solicitude and attention as was bestowed upon Sir Henry, there having been a constant stream of callers at his Downing street residence, including King Edward, who visited him on two occasions; Queen Alexandra, the Dowager Empress of Russia, the Prince and Princess of Wales and many prominent men in public life.

Sir Henry's last published utterance was a warm letter of thanks to his Scottish friends, who presented him with a portrait of himself.

It is known that the ex-Premier was opposed to a public funeral, and it is believed that he will be buried without ostentation beside the body of his wife at Perthshire, Scotland.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman resigned the office of Prime Minister on April 5. He was born Sept. 7, 1836, the youngest son of the late Sir James Campbell of Stracathro, Forfarshire, once Lord Provost of Glasgow. He assumed the additional name under the will of his maternal uncle, the late Henry Bannerman of Hunton Court, Kent, who bequeathed to him a large estate. He attended Glasgow University and Trinity College, Cambridge. In 1860 he married Charlotte, daughter of Major-General Sir Charles Bruce. She died in 1906, and since then Sir Henry's decline in health may be dated.

For nearly forty years he sat for the same seat—the Stirling Burghs—and his record of office goes back to 1871, when he was Financial Secretray to the War Office, which post he held a second time, from 1880 to 1882. During the next two years he was Secretary to the Admiralty, and in 1884 he succeeded Sir George Trevelyan as Irish Secretary, filling that office ably until the fall of the Gladstone Ministry in 1885, in spite of the fact that the Irishmen described him as "the Scotch sand-bag." In the short Government of 1886 he was Secretary for War, and to that post he returned under the last Liberal Government. The Unionists suggested him as a candidate for the Speakership, to which Mr. Gully was appointed.

He was chosen leader of the Liberal opposition in succession to Sir William Harcourt in February, 1899.

On the resignation of the Balfour administration in December, 1905, Sir Henry was summoned by the King and formed a Liberal Cabinet. The general election followed, and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman entered the new Parliament with the greatest majority ever given to a British Premier.

Henry Block at Rodney Burned.

St. Thomas, April 23.—Fire destroyed the Henry block at Rodney at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. The damage amounted to $10,000.

E PROMISED NOT TO MARRY

ster Sues Brother for Six Thousand Dollars Damages.

Sandwich, Ont., April 23.—At the Spring Assizes beginning next Tuesday, Justice Anglin will be called upon to decide whether a promise to not marry is binding.

A suit has been brought by Miss an Bradley against her brother, a Windsor man. Miss Bradley alleges that in 1895 she gave up a lucrative position in Toronto to become her brother's housekeeper and care for his motherless children upon his promise that he would not again marry, and that he would always provide her with a home. Mr. Bradley married a second time last January, and his sister sues for $6,000 damages, or, failing this, for a salary at the rate of $450 per year for 12 years.

The defence will claim that even if such a promise was made it would not be binding as it would be against public interest, and further, that Miss Bradley still lives in a house owned by her brother and that he still tries to provide her with all necessaries.

Prisoner Confessed Burglaries.

Ottawa, April 23.—A prisoner named Samuel Lester, an Ottawa man now under sentence in Toronto for burglary, has confessed that he was the perpetrator of a series of burglaries last summer and this winter in Ottawa, Toronto, Montreal and Quebec. He has offered to come to Ottawa and reveal where he fenced jewelry to the amount of $4,000 and will be brought to the capital on April 29.

The Ottawa detective struck the trail by the arrest of a Hull jeweler, in whose premises much stolen valuables were found. The Hull prisoner admitted that Lester sold him the jewelry, and identified Lester's picture.

The Ottawa police have a letter from Lester, offering to tell where the proceeds of many thefts are located. The robberies were particularly daring ones, and the confession of Lester has aroused much interest.

Ten Years For Arson.

Toronto, April 23.—David Latta, who on Good Friday night poured gasoline over the porch of Mrs. Kittie essinger's house, at 187 West Adelaide street, and set fire to it, was yesterday sentenced to ten years in Kingston Penitentiary. He is about [illegible] years of age and took the sentence without a murmur.

Latta had been staying at 189 West Adelaide street, and blamed Mrs. essinger for his eviction.

DREAMERS ARE NOW ON TRIAL

Gives General Denial to Charges of Arson---Queer Beliefs.

Medicine Hat, April 23.—In the Dreamers' trial, Emanuel, son of Christian Gill, and also a prisoner, was on the stand against Nieman and Merkel, Jr. He was closely examined as to his doing the night Lehr's house was burned, but stuck to the father's story, that he had returned from the hay field, gone to bed at 9.30 and never rose till the alarm of fire, given at 2 a.m. His mother had shot at Lehr's daughter. He had not shot or poisoned Lehr's dog, but had put out gopher poison. He never threatened to kill Lehr. He was a Dreamer and God would exterminate all others.

Jacob Merkel, Sr., and Almighty God were co-equal and when Merkel gave the word all others would be destroyed.

Justina Gill, mother of the last, was a careful witness. She either did not know or had forgotten nearly everything. She was a Dreamer, but would give no information about beliefs. Merkel was head of the church, because God in Isaiah 2 said so. She did not know if Lehr's name was mentioned by God in Jacob's letters, and refused to tell what was in them. The court had the letters and knew what was in them. She did not know if Lehr's name was discussed in the meeting. She had heard of dreams, but not at the meetings. She remembered the dream of Karl Otto, but had forgotten what it was about. She knew Lehr, but never had any trouble with him and did not shoot at his children. She was before the court, but did not know who sued her. She was fined for shooting at children. She had heard nothing of Emanuel cutting Michael Gill's fence. She knew he was taken to Lethbridge in connection with the affair, but had a poor memory and had forgotten all about it.

Mrs. Daniel Gill denied all knowledge of the Dreamers. She belonged to the congregation of the Children of God. It was the same church that Merkel belonged to. Dreams were never discussed at meetings. She never heard of any dreams. Lehr's name was never mentioned in the meeting. She had spoken to no one since the fire about the arrest of the men. The witness then acknowledged talking over the fire with Mrs. Christian and Mrs. Nieman.

AN OUTSTANDING EVENT IN LOCAL MILITARY HISTORY

CORNER STONE OF NEW ARMOURIES LAID BY SIR FREDERICK BORDEN, K.C.M.G., MINISTER OF MILITIA AND DEFENCE.

Hundreds of Citizens Witnessed the Brilliant Ceremony—Local Garrison Furnished a Splendid Guard of Honor—Minister Says Peterborough is Regarded as an Important Strategic Point—Distinguished Guest Banquetted at Oriental by Citizens.

Not for some years has there been in Peterborough such a function of so great importance as that which took place yesterday afternoon. It was the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of the new armories now under construction. The city was also graced with a visit from Sir Frederick Borden, KC., MC., Minister of Militia, who performed the ceremony of the day. The event passed off most successfully and will long be remembered by the military men as a day, in which, as Lieut, Col. Stevenson remarked in his address, the wish of many years past, was realized.

Long before the hour announced for the ceremony to take place, the street leadin to armouries was lined with a surging, seething crowd intent upon seeing the event and anxious to catch a glimpse of the distinguished visitor. However only those who had received invitations were allowed to protrude farther than the sidewalk, as the way to the temporarily erected platform was well guarded by members of the regiment.

SIR FREDERICK BORDEN K.C.M.G.
Minister of Militia, who was given a royal welcome to Peterborough.

Corner Stone
Laid by the
HON. SIR F. W. BORDEN, K.C.M.G.
Minister of Militia.
April 22/08.

The day being a bright and warm one, enabled many to attend. The weather was threatening looking yesterday morning but by noon the sun was shining and the dark clouds had all disappeared, making the day an ideal one for such a function as took place.

The occasion of yesterday was one, Peterborough citizens should have felt proud to have witnessed. It marked a new era in the military circles in this city. The splendid and intelligent address of Sir Frederick Borden could not fail to impress every man who heard it and bring him to realise the responsibility of their duty to their King and Country. With handsome and commodious armouries in this city the young men are bound to become interested in military affairs and with the training in the art of discipline they shall receive, the regiment will be greatly strengthened.

A FINE SPECTACLE

Shortly before 3 o'clock, Sir Frederick Borden, in company with Mr and Mrs. J. R. Stratton, drove up to Central Park and the 57th Regiment and a number of the 24th Field Battery as they were lined up in the "present arms" position, presented a fine spectacle

The Minister of Militia was greeted by Lieut. Col. Stevenson . As the band played the "Maple Leaf" Sir Frederick with Col. Stevenson, followed by his staff which consisted of Col. W. D. Gordon, Col. Young, DAA, G., Col. Massey, PVS. of Kingston, inspected the regiment and 24th F.B. Capts. Mills and Hounsell had charge of the 57th, and the 57th colors were born by Lieuts. J. Gemmel and M. Comstock. Major T. H. W. Young and Capt. Ackerman were in command of the Battery. The 3rd Prince of Wales' Dragoons was represented by Major T J Johnston of the local squadron and Lieut. R. Cleghorn.

The Veterans of '66 numbering about thirty were also in attendance, in a body.

GUARD OF HONOR

The 57th Regiment was represented by about one hunderd and twenty members. These acted as a guard of honor to their distinguished guest. Following the inspection, the regment escorted the Minister of Militia to the platform erected at the south eastern corner of the new armouries where the stone was about to be laid.

ON THE PLATFORM

The platform was prettily decorated with flags and bunting and hung from tree to tree in the immediate vicinity of the scene of the ceremony were flags. Those seated on the platform were; Sir Frederick Borden, KCMG., Lieut. Col. Stevenson, Col. W. D. Gordon, Col. Young, DAAG., Col. Massey, PVS., Col. McNaughton of the Midland Field Battery, Cobourg Col. H C Rogers, Col. J. Z. Rogers, Col. Miller, Major Halliday. Major L. M. Hays, Major T. H. W. Young, Major P. A. Davey, Capt. W C Ackerman. Lieut T J McDonough, Lieut. R H. Leary, and Messrs. Dr. Burnham, Jas. Stevenson, J R Stratton, R R Hall, MP., T. E Bradburn, MPP., Wm Yelland, Robt. Fair, Sheriff Hall. Ald. Phelan, R. Langford., Mayor Rush, J. E. Belcher and Revs. Dr Langfeldt, J. G. Potter, Wm.. Major, and Alds Gillespie, and Buller. A P Poussette, and Robt. Edmison. The ladies on the platform were Mesdames Arthur Stevenson, E B Clegg, L M. Hays, J. R. Stratton, R R Hall, H. Rush and Misses Marion and Maud Rush, Mrs. J G Potter, Palmer, Miller and Stole Butter From Cars.

Windsor, April 23.—For months past Pere Marquette officials have been trying to track down a gang of car robbers and have at last succeeded.

Lorne Stoneberg, Walter Morneau and Joseph Lesperance were yesterday convicted of stealing butter from a Pere Marquette car and were remanded for sentence.

They were employes of the C.P.R., and broke into a car while it was standing in the yards here. Several tubs of butter were stolen and the trio were arrested in trying to dispose of the same. Pere Marquette officials estimate the losses in the recent robberies at $1,200.

Bridge Collapsed; Broke Pipe.

Windsor, April 23.—Owing to the collapse of a bridge over M.C.R. tracks a water main supplying the west of the city broke yesterday and flooded the tracks to such an extent that traffic was blocked.

The bridge is a wooden structure and signs of collapse were noticed a week ago. One end was jacked up and further work on the new tunnel caused the breakage.

Rescued Shipwreck Crew.

London, April 23.—(C.A.P.)—The Dominion liner Turcoman rescued in mid-Atlantic the crew of 25 of the bark Bearnet-Bretague, bound for Canada and storm-wrecked.

The Marconi Co. intend duplicating the Irish-Canadian installation business, whereon the report states is increasing daily. An issue of $1,250,000 was proposed.

Female Bigamist Recaptured.

Cornwall, April 23.—Mrs. Mary Russell Mason, the alleged bigamist, formerly of Massena Springs, where she was arrested last fall, recently escaped from jail at Malone, N.Y. She was recaptured at St Agnes, near Dundee, and returned to Malone without the formality of extradition proceedings. The woman is in poor health and not very strong mentally.

Father and Son Cremated.

Osmond, Neb., April 23.—L. K. York and his son, Earl, were burned to death near here Tuesday. They took refuge in a hay stack during a thunderstorm. Lightning, which rendered them unconscious, started a fire which partly consumed their bodies.

WAS DESERTED AT THE ALTAR

Woman Cleverly Entraps Her Rival---Story in Real Life.

Detroit, April 23.—"Deserted at the Altar," or how the girl who played the bride in that thriller of sobs and sighs had the same experience in real life, with the climax in Detroit, is the story of Agnes Mullan, actress, aged 21, of Montreal, Que.

Agnes fell into the clutches of the police Tuesday evening, the result of a clever trap set by the wife of the man, with whom she is alleged to have eloped from Toronto five months ago. The man in the case told her his name was Frank Creighton, but the wife says she married him in Buffalo eleven months ago, under the name of Frederick J. Watson.

Watson forced his wife to kiss him good-bye at the point of a revolver, she tells the police. Recently the wife's parents moved from Toronto to Detroit. Agnes was astonished one day last week to meet her husband on the street in company with a girl, and succeeded in worming his address out of him.

"I met Frank in Toronto five months ago," said Agnes. "He proposed marriage right away, but said the ceremony would be performed in the next town. He kept putting it off until I finally learned that he had a wife. Then he said he would never live with her; that he would get a divorce and we would get married. I had faith in him, but I guess he fooled his wife and me."

The wife's maiden name was Kittie Connor. She is an accomplished musician, having taken part in some of the big Toronto concerts. Her father is a contractor. The husband cannot be found by the police. Agnes was turned over to the immigration authorities, and will be deported to Montreal.

Killed on First Ride.

Dearborn, Mich., April 23.—Speeding over country roads, enjoying their first ride in an automobile which they had purchased only a few hours previously, Charles and William Wolcott, brothers, who resided at Milan, were struck by a Michigan Central passenger train, hurled 100 feet and instantly killed.

EVENTS TO-NIGHT

Grand Opera House — "The Cowboy and the Squaw."
Brock Street Rink — Walking tournament with band in attendance.
Y. M. C. A. — Closing exercises at gymnasium.

Unrest In C.P.R. Shops.

Ottawa, April 23.—There appears to be a feeling of dissatisfaction among the mechanical employes in the local shops of both the C.P.R. and the G.T.R. over the fact that the short hours are being continued and that some men are still being dismissed. The feeling of unrest, arising as it does concurrently with the protest meetings being held in Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg, would seem that a crisis was at hand.

Officials of both roads say they have received no intimation from the employes that there is any dissatisfaction, but the men express themselves as being put out at the continued short hours.

Traffic Fight to Finish.

Vancouver, April 23.—The fight between the Inland Navigation Co., a subsidiary corporation of the Alaska Steamship Co. and the C.P.R. over the passenger business between Victoria and Seattle is to be to a finish, according to instructions received from Montreal by the Vancouver officials of the latter company.

Practically the orders from headquarters of the C.P.R. are to stay with the game even if it leads to giving bonuses to people to travel on the Canadian Pacific boats.

Wage Cut at Calgary.

Calgary, April 23.—It is reported here that the C. P. R. Metal Working Union have been served with a notice of reduction in wages running from 2 to 9 cents per hour. The company denies that notice has actually been served, but the belief is that such action at any rate is contemplated. The men claim to have received notice and that fully 25 per cent. of the employes of shops here are affected. If a strike is ordered every man between Fort William and the coast will be called out.

WIFE MURDER IS CHARGED; QUEBEC MAN IS ACCUSED

Corner's Inquest Show That Many Small Doses Were Taken—Prisoner Married Young Girl Twelve Days After Wife's Death

Quebec, April 23.—Evidence in the trial of Omer Rochette for the murder of his wife, Marie Plamondon, was taken in the Criminal Court here yesterday morning before Justice Cross of Montreal, replacing Judge Blanchet, who was taken ill a few days since. The case has aroused profound interest throughout the entire district, and yesterday morning the court room was crowded to its utmost capacity.

Rochette is accused of having administered arsenic to his wife and the evidence elicited at the coroner's inquest showed that doses of poison must have been taken into the system of the deceased in small quantities. The story of Rochette's marriage to a young French-Canadian girl 12 days after his first wife was buried, his subsequent trip to Chicago, followed by his arrest there aud his return to Quebec has been told.

The only witness heard yesterday morning was Dr. Marois, who conducted the autopsy. He declared that he found sufficient poison in the stomach of the deceased to cause her death. He also found traces of arsenic in the brain and intestines, which went to show that the deadly drug had been absorbed by the deceased for several days at different intervals. He declared emphatically that he attributed the death of Rochette's wife to arsenical poisoning. J. N. Greenshields of Montreal is defending the accused.

Rochette, who is a young man of 28 years of age, is tall and fair, and evinces keen interest in the legal battle which his attorney is making to save his life.

The trial was continued in the afternoon. Dr. William Verge gave testimony as to being called on Oct. 26 to visit Mrs. Rochette, who was ill and made several subsequent visits up to Nov. 16, when she died. Dr. Verge told the prisoner at the time that the illness of Mrs. Rochette was probably due to eating canned food, as at that time he had no reason to suspect anything criminal. Mrs. Telesphore Rochette, sister-in-law of the prisoner, and his sister, Miss Valeda Rochette, were examined yesterday afternoon. Both testimonies were strongly in favor of the accused.

BONUS IS DEFENDED IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Immigration Policy Again to the Front at Ottawa—"Our Pioneers Were Immigrants," Said McIntyre—"But Not Doukhobors," Retorted Lavergne.

Ottawa, April 23.—The debate on Mr. Monk's resolution to abolish the bonus system in connection with Canada's immigration policy was continued yesterday and again adjourned. Another Liberal member, Alonzo Robitaille of Quebec County, strongly supported the resolution.

Mr. Lalor was informed that the patronage committee of Dunnville had not nominated W. W. Kirk as inspector of the Port Maitland pier. Replying to Ralph Smith (Nanaimo) Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that six shipping companies doing business on the Pacific coast are receiving subsidies, including Canada and Mexico, $50,600 per annum; Victoria and Skagway, $17,500; Victoria and San Francisco, $3,000; Canada, China and Japan, $73,000; Canada and New Zealand, $50,000; Victoria and Coastwise, $100 per trip.

The Government was not aware that any of these encouraged the immigration of Orientals, but such a practice if it existed would be deemed a violation of the Subsidy Act.

Mr. Monk was informed that of the 1,761 passengers who arrived at St. John, N.B., on the S.S. Montreal, April 5, 19 destined for Canada and 7 destined for the United States were rejected. How many of these would be deported was not yet known. Of the 1,714 destined for Canada, 443 were Bockowians, 961 Galicians and 116 returned Canadians.

Mr. Zimmerman drew attention to several alleged tariff anomalies. He wanted to know why coke, a manufactured article, was free, while coal was taxed; why binder twine makers could import coal free while gas producers had to pay a tax; why coal tar was free while coal for its manufacture was dutiable.

Mr. Fielding replied that it was necessary to consider the tariff as a whole and it would be obviously inconsistent to discuss isolated items.

Mr. Ames was informed that up to Nov. 1, 29,550,179 acres of land had been granted to railways in Manitoba and the Northwest. The total acreage given in homesteads pre-emptions was 31,513,990.

Mr. McIntyre (South Perth) resuming the debate on Mr. Monk's immigration amendment, expressed the hope that Mr. Oliver would carefully guard the inspection regulations, but he quite admitted that Canada had not yet arrived at the stage of her development where she could pick and choose. The best classes did not migrate to Canada. They were content with their cot on the other side of the Atlantic. Mr. McIntyre crossed swords with Armand Lavergne, who had contended that the immigrants who were being brought in by the Government were not of the class which would assimilate with the Canadian people. Mr. McIntyre reminded the House that the pioneers of this country were immigrants.

"But they were not Doukhobors," said Mr. Lavergne.

Mr. Paquet (L'Islet) declared that the present inspection regulations were sufficient if properly enforced, and he suggested that we should amplify our immigration laws by providing for fines on steamship companies for carrying tubercular and other contagious patients if it can be shown that they have omitted taking proper precautions. Our agents in Britain and France should be instructed to cover the rural districts for farm immigrants and he suggested that it would be much easier to repatriate the Canadians now resident in the United States and he would also induce industrial workers in the New England States to come back to our cities. Further Mr. Paquet urged the necessity of requiring the court record of immigrants. He strongly opposed the bonus system.

Dr. McIntyre (Strathcona) defended the bonus system on the ground that the west was only beginning to become settled. The west unanimously endorsed the immigration policy of the Government. He said if Canada had 80,000,000 people he would hold up both hands for the resolution, but at present we had great natural resources which had not been developed.

"Is it the proper thing," asked Mr. Monk, "to bring in the wrong people to develop the country?"

Mr. Robitaille (Liberal, Quebec), who supported the resolution, said the efforts had been made to convey the impression that the opponents of the immigration policy of the Government were anxious to retard the progress of the west.

The bonus system was one of the first causes of bringing in the undesirable element.

Bank Clerk Suicides.

Fergus, April 23.—Percy Perry, a clerk in the Bank of Toronto at Collingwood, shot himself to death in the lavatory of the Grand Trunk station here yesterday morning. He is 20 years of age and the son of Peter Perry, until last week principal of the high school at Waterdown, who recently accepted a position on the high school staff at Fergus.

The motive of the young man's rash act is shrouded in mystery. Until about a week ago he had been a clerk in the Victoria Harbor branch of the bank, and had been transferred to the Collingwood branch, under Manager Copeland. At Victoria Harbor he was popular and reliable. He was not eccentric, nor was there anything to indicate that he was in ill-health. His accounts are also said to be correct.

Strike at Windsor.

Windsor, April 23.—A number of longshoremen employed in loading the Huronic with a cargo of salt went on strike yesterday, because Capt. Nicholson refused to advance their wages from 20c. to 30c. an hour.

Capt. Nicholson made arrangements to fetch men from Sarnia.

Attempt at Suicide Failed.

Davidson, Sask., April 23.—John Vanderburg attempted suicide at his home at Riverview Tuesday. Dr. Craig of this place left for the scene Tuesday night, and was successful in saving his life.

MOIR DROPS FROM SIGHT

Detectives at Sea But Hope to Capture the Fugitive.

Stratford, April 23.—To all appearances William Moir, the slayer of Col.-Sergt. Harry Lloyd at Wolseley Barracks, London, has dropped completely out of sight, and despite the fact that clues galore have been collected, he is yet at liberty, and is thought to be wandering about some section of this county or the adjoining County of Oxford.

Three days have passed without definite word of his whereabouts, and last night the detectives on the chase are very much at sea.

Several times yesterday word came that Moir was seen in certain localities, but invariably the clue turned out to be a false one, or a case of mistaken identity. The latest word was received from St. Jacob's, when it was said a man answering Moir's description had been caught, and Detectives Nickle and Egleton left on the 4.30 train to look up the scent.

Two other detectives left earlier in the afternoon for Centralia, where a stranger, alleged to be in uniform, was seen strolling on the track. Moir has very effectively covered up his tracks, but with his facial disfigurement and other distinguishable marks he is certain to be apprehended before long. [illegible]

"O! MY POOR HEAD"

Stop Those Headaches.

Headache and neuralgia are pronounced signs of blood poisoning. This poisoning of the blood comes from the waste matter of the body being left in the system, instead of being regularly carried off by the bowels, kidneys and skin.

When the bowels do not move regularly, the refuse is absorbed by the blood. Thus, the blood is loaded with foul poisons which irritate the nerves.

Poor skin action also causes headache and neuralgia. Impurities cannot escape through the skin, so the blood must take them up and deposit them on the nerves.

If the bowels and skin are not ridding the system of waste, the kidneys try to do so and are overworked.

There is just one way to cure headaches and neuralgia—to regulate bowels, kidneys and skin so that all the poisons of the body will be properly carried off.

"Fruit-a-tives" keep blood pure and rich—relieve the stomach and kidneys—regulate the bowels; and invigorate the skin to healthy action. "Fruit-a-tives" are a wonderful discovery, being a combination of fruit juices and tonics. 50c a box—six for $2.50. At all dealers, or from "Fruit-a-tives" Limited, Ottawa.

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, APRIL 23, 1908.

THE PREFERENCE

The New York Textile Review does us the honor of taking up the question of the preference as debated by the Montreal Herald and the Peterborough Review and quotes us approvingly. It strongly endorses our attitude and points to the absurd agitation of the Democrats who for a theory that was tried and found wanting would tamper with a tariff that has, if anything, overdeveloped rather than underdeveloped the U.S. The American republic is the great modern wonder of the world and now that Time has shaken all branches of industry into their places the world of trade has there found its balance. True, it is that there is no cure for stress of competition or national nerve breakdowns. Such forms of prostration exist in nations as in individuals but there is a vast difference between an energy and a production that have to be curbed and an energy and a production which barely exist. The one is the excess of life. The other is death. The preference is not free trade. It is only half a dose but it is weakening our energies by destroying our opportunities. We want no more of it. Let it be abolished even as Great Britain has established protection in the battle embargo and the Patents Act. The latter necessitates the manufacture in the United Kingdom of all articles patented there. Little by little the absurdity of jug-handled free trade is palling upon the Old Country But Tariff Reform is spreading.

THE C. N. R. GUARANTEE

The article clipped from the Mail and Empire, published in Wednesday's Review is a refutation full and complete of the recent attacks of the Liberal press upon Mr. Whitney for "his eleventh hour gift to the C.N. R. and Mackenzie and Mann." That it was an eleventh hour affair depended entirely upon Mr. Mackay, the Opposition leader. The House was still in session. The session had been a very short one and there could be no excuse for letting an objectionable measure go through without a scathing criticism and without arousing the country. The explanation of the whole transaction is quite simple. The enormous subsidies of the Ross Government had to be continued in some form. Instead of getting cash and land the C.N.R. and Mackenzie and Mann were told to go ahead, and if they did their best and still needed help to meet their obligations the Government would lend a hand, if necessary, to the extent of a guarantee. Thus the whole obligation of the Government under the Ross Administration contract was satisfied, but satisfied in a way most satisfactory, we should think, to the people of Ontario. It was impossible to repudiate the Ross contract. It was impossible to make a measure a fifth hour instead of an eleventh hour transaction, simply by sitting there and wasting time. Since there was no opposition except from a few Conservatives who disapproved of all subsidies or guarantees whatsoever, there was nothing for it but to bring the session to a close. What more can anyone ask? We may disapprove of subsidies, as we certainly do, and as Mr. Whitney does, but, what else could have been done in this instance? If the Liberal press want something to occupy their attention let them say why it is that Mr. Mackay and his followers declined to support the Whitney Government in its measure for equalization of assessment as between the railway and the farmer. His contention that the railways might retaliate rather puts him we should think outside the pale of people to be taken seriously. He thus admits himself to be a victim of the railway magnate. And yet he aspires to administer the interests of Ontario!

INCONSISTENCY

In view of the approaching elections for the Legislative Assembly it is of course to be expected that the Opposition press will enlarge upon the faults of the Whitney Government and go slow on their own. But it is a little too much to ask of us that we should stand quietly by while charges of increased expenditure are made against that administration without saying what it is for. In the first place education in the province was at a low ebb when the late provincial indebtedness collapsed. The expenditure of the Whitney Government upon this one branch of the public service has been admittedly increased and tremendously so. The efficiency of the work done for the people in this respect is not measurable by the sum involved. The new system of education and cheap school books is the nearest approach to common sense in that direction yet achieved. Formerly the Ross Government, which perhaps, should be allowed to stand alone in this as well as in all other respects of a doubtful character, forwarded its educational system carefully packed, to the various national exhibitions from which it never failed to draw a medal as for a shorthorn bull. But the bull was all hollow, its progeny were stillborn and in time it died of stupidity. The farce ended. Not so thereafter. Making an exhibition of ourselves came to a sudden stop. "Our children shall be the finished product, which we shall put on exhibition," said Mr. Whitney, and lo! a great change was wrought.

City officers are no longer compelled to respect scholars as unworthy of even menial employment. They are being fed on facts and the material of real life not upon canned theories like free trade and the desirability of an adverse balance of trade. Credit for this immense change in our ways and means of daily life must be given to the Whitney Government, while the statutes which fix these expenditures and the names of those who shall expend them, are the cool judgment of the assembly itself, crystalized into lucid statement, not forever, nor even absolutely for any time, except between sessions, but as a much fitter object for the Opposition to play football with periodically than the Public schools and Universities of this country.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Yesterday was a notable one in the history of the city. The reception and banquet in honor of the Minister of Militia were all that could be desired. The afternoon furnished a scene long to be remembered. The evening was a fitting climax.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Special to the Review

Keene, April 21—Mr. Percy Skinner returned from Kingston, where he been attending Queen's University, on Saturday.

Misses Edna Wedlock and Susie Moore, who have been attending High School at Norwood, are spending the holidays with their parents in Keene.

Misses Agnes and Jean Campbell returned from Kingston on Monday.

Mr. Harry Cruikshanks, of Toronto is the guest of Mr. Wm. Campbell.

A party of friends from Norwood visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Miller, Good Friday.

The sale was held Thursday last of the farm stock and implements of Mr. Isaac Fife. Good prices were realized. Mr. John Haggart of Peterborough conducted the sale.

Mrs. Barker is the guest of her mother, Mrs. John Kindred.

Mr. R. J. McCamus spent Monday in Toronto.

Dr. James Campbell of the Toronto General Hospital, visited his parents on Good Friday.

Mr. A. St. A. Smith spent Easter Monday in Peterborough.

Mrs. J. B. McWilliams is the guest of her son, Dr. V. H. McWilliams.

Misses Bessie, May and Marjory Read are the guests of Mrs. J. R. McIntyre.

Mrs. V. H. McWilliams is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. F. M. Dean spent Sunday with relatives in Hamilton.

Messrs. Jas. Thompson and J. Sexsmith spent Wednesday and Thursday in the village.

Master Jack Gillespie, of Peterborough is the guest of his grandfather, Mr. John Lang, ex-MP.

Mr. and Mrs. John McFarlane and Misses Amy and Marion McFarlane, are visiting relatives in Lanark.

Mrs. Purser and Mr. W. Purser, of Cobourg, visited last week at the home of Mrs. A. Campbell.

Mr. Fee, who has been the guest of his son, Mr. A. B. Fee, returned to his home in Mount Pleasant on Thursday.

Miss Pearl McCann is spending the holidays in the village.

Miss Ella McFarlane and Mr. Herbert McFarlane are visiting friends in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Gould, of Campbellford, are the guests of Miss Bella McFarlane.

Miss Kathleen Powell has returned to Keene for the Easter holidays.

Mr. David Eason, Peterborough, spent Monday in the village.

Mr. Harry Smith is spending the holidays in the village.

Miss Annie Connal, Whitby, spent Easter Sunday with her parents.

Mr. Rankin, Collin's Bay, is a guest at the manse.

A patent medicine and concert troupe are giving nightly concerts in the town hall this week.

John R. Clarke lectured in the Town Hall Friday evening, under the auspices of the Epworth League, on "To and Fro in London." The lecturer handled his subject in an able manner. The attendance was rather small.

Friday morning Messrs. A. B. Fee and Frank Dean had the misfortune to run upon a sunken log while attempting to run the rapids above the forks, punching a hole in their canoe and upsetting it. The two young men were obliged to swim for shore and had they both not been expert swimmers, the result might have been more serious. However, they were none the worse for their adventure excepting for a ducking in the ice cold water. The canoe, however was irreparably ruined.

An enthusiastic political meeting was held in the Town Hall on Thursday evening when Messrs. Thompson and Sexsmith, the Conservative candidates for East Peterborough, and Mr. E. Gus Porter, M.P., addressed a good sized audience. Mr. J. C. Read acted as chairman, first introducing Mr. Thompson, who gave a short and interesting address, by Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, who spoke until the arrival of Mr. Porter, who gave an hour's address, severely criticising the Liberal Government for their many scandals in connection with their administration.

Mr. Benjamin Kindred had a very exciting runaway Friday evening. He had just alighted from his buggy at the Methodist church and was about to help Mrs. Kindred out of the buggy when the team took fright and bolted. Mr. Kindred was dragged a considerable distance before he let go the reins. Mrs. Kindred jumped from the rig, and fortunately alighted unhurt. The horses ran about half a mile before they were captured parting company with the buggy in front of Mr. William Miller's residence.

A very enjoyable social was held in the Town Hall on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Presbyterian church Endeavor Society. Games were provided; also a good musical programme was given, after which refreshments were served. Following is the programme:—

Solo—Mr. Norman Taylor.
Recitation—Miss Edna Wedlock.
Duet, Misses Lettie and Stella Shearer.
Chorus—Girls.
Instrumental Duet—Misses Mary and Bella Renwick.
Solo—Mr. F. Weir.
Accompanist, Miss Lillian Campbell.
Rev. D. D. McDonald acted as chairman.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 22.—(Special.)—About 200 head of butchers' cattle, 70 milch cows, 700 calves, 60 fat hogs and a few spring lambs were offered for sale to-day. Trade was slow, but the prices of cattle are firm.

There were only four really prime beeves on the market, and these were held at 6c per lb. Pretty good cattle sold at 4¾c to 5¾c, and the common stock at 3c to 4c per lb. There was a considerable number of rather lean among the milch cows, and these were dull of sale, as the milkmen will not buy such stock. The prices ranged at from $25 to $60 each. The calves were mostly young, which sold at $2 to $4 each; a few of the better sold at $5 to $8 each; a good, superior, 4-months-old calf sold for $20, or 6c per lb. Spring lambs sold at $4 to $6 each. Good lots of fat hogs sold at about 7¼c per lb.

SPRING

WE'VE sped the parting guest, "WINTER" and we turn to make our bow to "SPRING" embodying among other new things the latest evolution of Men's Suit Styles:—

This year we've struck out and away from the beaten path and have distanced all our past accomplishments. All lines making up the new Spring styles combine to spell "GRACE." No angular corners; instead they're softly rounded—the lapels sweep gracefully down over the chest, while the question of button arrangement is answered in a variety of ways

From now on we'll present, from time to time, the proper styles for men, which it will pay you to look over Sir, if you're at all interested in nobby clothes

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Beverly of Graustark

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON,

Author of "Graustark"

Copyright, 1904, by Dodd, Mead and Company

"I must have my answer tonight or you know what will happen," he snarled, but he felt in his heart that he had lost through his eagerness.

She flew to Yetive's boudoir, consumed by rage and mortification. Between sobs and feminine maledictions she poured the whole story, in all its ugliness, into the ears of the princess.

"Now, Yetive, you have to stand by me in this," announced the narrator conclusively, her eyes beaming hopefully through her tears.

"I cannot prevent General Marlanx from preferring serious charges against Baldos, dear. I know he was not in your room last night. You did not have to tell me that, because I saw you both at the balcony rail." Beverly's face took on such a radiant look of rejoicing that Yetive was amply paid for the surprising and gratifying acknowledgment of a second period of eavesdropping. "You may depend upon me to protect you from Marlanx. He can make it very unpleasant for Baldos, but he shall pay dearly for this insult to you. He has gone too far."

"I don't think he has any proof against Baldos," said Beverly, thinking only of the guardsman.

"But it is so easy to manufacture evidence, my dear. The Iron Count has set his heart upon having you, and he is not the man to be turned aside easily."

"He seems to think he can get wives as easily as he gets rid of them, I observe. I was going back to Washington soon, Yetive, but I'll stay on now and see this thing to the end. He can't scare a Calhoun; no sir-ee! I'll telegraph for my brother Dan to come over here and punch his head to pieces."

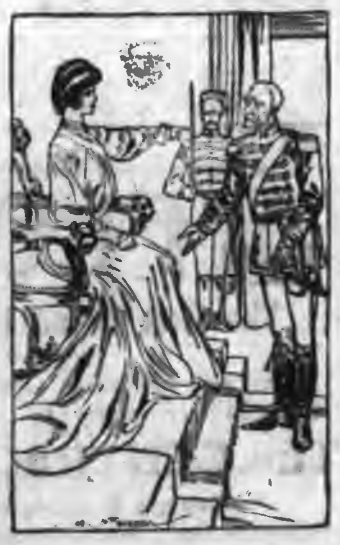
"Now, now, don't be so high and mighty, dear. Let us see how rational we can be," said the princess gently, whereupon the hot headed girl from Dixie suspended hostilities and became a very demure young woman. Before long she was confessing timidly, then boldly, that she loved Baldos better than anything in all the world.

"I can't help it, Yetive. I know I oughtn't to, but what is there to do when one can't help it? There would be an awful row at home if I married him. Of course he hasn't asked me. Maybe he won't. In fact, I'm sure he won't. I shan't give him a chance. But if he does ask me I'll just keep putting him off. I've done it before, you know. You see, for a long, long time I fancied he might be a prince, but he isn't at all. I've had his word for it. He's just an ordinary person, like—like—well, like I am, only he doesn't look so ordinary. Isn't he handsome, Yetive? And, dear me, he is so impulsive! If he had asked me to jump over the balcony rail with him last night I believe I would have done it. Wouldn't that have surprised old Marlanx?" Beverly gave a merry laugh. The troubles of the morning seemed to fade away under the warmth of her humor. Yetive sat back and marveled at the manner in which this blithe young American cast out the "blue devils."

"You must not do anything foolish, Beverly," she cautioned. "Your parents would never forgive me if I allowed you to marry or even to fall in love with any Tom, Dick or Harry over here. Baldos may be the gallant, honest gentleman we believe him to be, but he also may be the worst of adventurers. One can never tell, dear. I wish now that I had not humored you in your plan to bring him to the castle. I'm afraid I have done wrong. You have seen too much of him, and—oh, well, you will be sensible, won't you, dear?" There was real concern in the face of the princess. Beverly kissed her rapturously.

"Don't worry about me, Yetive. I know how to take care of myself. Worry about your old Gabriel, if you like, but don't bother your head about me," she cried airily. "Now let's talk about the war. Marlanx won't do anything until he hears from me. What's the use worrying?"

Nightfall brought General Marlanx in from the camps outside the gates. He came direct to the castle and boldly sent word to Beverly that he must speak to her at once. She promptly answered that she did not want to see him and would not. Without a moment's hesitation he appealed for audience with the princess, and it was granted.



But her hand was pointing to the door.

He proceeded, with irate coolness, to ask how far she believed herself bound to protect the person of Baldos, the guard. He understood that she was under certain obligations to Miss Calhoun, and he wanted to be perfectly sure of his position before taking a step which now seemed imperative. Baldos was a spy in the employ of Dawsbergen. He had sufficient proof to warrant his arrest and execution; there were documents and there was positive knowledge that he had conferred with strangers from time to time, even within the walls of the castle grounds. Marlanx cited instances in which Baldos had been seen talking to a strange old man inside the grounds, and professed to have proof that he had gone so far as to steal away by night to meet men beyond the city walls. He was now ready to seize the guard, but would not do so until he had conferred with his sovereign.

"Miss Calhoun tells me that you have made certain proposals to her, Count Marlanx," said Yetive coldly, her eyes upon his hawkish face.

"I have asked her to be my wife, your highness."

"You have threatened her, Count Marlanx."

"She has exposed herself to you? I would not have told what I saw last night."

"Would it interest you to know that I saw everything that passed on the balcony last night? You will allow me to say, general, that you have behaved in a most outrageous manner in approaching my guest with such fool proposals. Stop, sir! She has told me everything, and I believe her. I believe my own eyes. There is no need to discuss the matter further. You have lost the right to be called a man. For the present I have only to say that you shall be relieved of the command of my army. The man who makes war on women is not fit to serve one. As for Baldos, you are at liberty to prefer the charges. He shall have a fair trial, rest assured."

"Your highness, hear me," implored Marlanx, white to the roots of his hair.

"I will hear what you have to say when my husband is at my side."

"I can but stand condemned, then, your highness, without a hearing. My vindication will come, however. With your permission, I retire to contrive the arrest of this spy. You may depose me, but you cannot ask me to neglect my duty to Graustark. I have tried to save him for Miss Calhoun's sake"—But her hand was pointing to the door.

Ten minutes later Beverly was hearing everything from the lips of the princess, and Marlanx was cursing his way toward the barracks, vengeance in his heart. But a swift messenger from the castle reached the guardroom ahead of him. Colonel Quinnox was reading an official note from the princess when Marlanx strode angrily into the room.

"Bring this fellow Baldos to me, Colonel Quinnox," he said, without greeting.

"I regret to say that I have but this instant received a message from her highness commanding me to send him to the castle," said Quinnox, with a smile.

"The devil! What foolishness is this?" snarled the Iron Count.

"Have a care, sir," said Quinnox stiffly. "It is of the princess you speak."

"Bah! I am here to order the man's arrest. It is more important than"—

"Nevertheless, sir, he goes to the castle first. This note says I am to disregard any command you may give until further notice."

Marlanx fell back amazed and stunned. At this juncture Baldos entered the room. Quinnox handed him an envelope, telling him that it was from the princess and that he was to repair at once to the castle. Baldos glanced at the handwriting, and his face lit up proudly.

"I am ready to go, sir," he said, passing the Iron Count with a most disconcerting smile on his face.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Baldos started off at once for the castle, his heart singing. In the darkness of the night he kissed the message which had come to him from "her highness." The envelope had been closed with the official seal of Yetive, princess of Graustark, and was sacred to the eyes of any one save the man to whom it was directed. The words it contained were burned deep in his brain:

> You are ordered to report for duty in the castle. Come at once. Her highness has sent an official command to Colonel Quinnox. Count Marlanx has been here. You are not expected to desert until you have seen me. There is an underground passage somewhere. B.

Baldos went alone and swiftly. The note to Colonel Quinnox had been imperative. He was to serve as an inner guard until further orders. Some one, it was reported, had tried to enter Miss Calhoun's room from the outside during the rainstorm of the previous night, and a special guard was to be stationed near the door. All of this was unknown to Baldos, but he did not ask for any explanations.

He was halfway to the castle when the sharp report of a gun startled him. A bullet whizzed close to his ear! Baldos broke into a crouching run, but did not change his course. He knew that the shot was intended for him and that its mission was to prevent him from reaching the castle. The attendants at the castle door admitted him, panting and excited, and he was taken immediately to the enchanted boudoir of the princess, which but few men were fortunate enough to enter. There were three women in the room.

"I am here to report, your highness," said he, bowing low before the real princess, with a smile upon his flushed face.

"You are prompt," said the princess. "What have you to report, sir?"

"That an attempt has just been made to kill a member of the castle guard," he coolly answered.

"Impossible!"

"I am quite certain of it, your highness. The bullet almost clipped my ear."

"Good heavens!" gasped the listeners. Then they eagerly plied him with more agitated questions than he could answer.

"And did you not pursue the wretch?" cried the princess.

"No, your highness. I was commanded to report to you at once. Only the success of the assassin could have made me—well, hesitate," said he calmly. "A soldier has but to obey."

"Do you think there was a deliberate attempt to kill you?" asked the Countess Dagmar. Beverly Calhoun was dumb with consternation.

"I cannot say, madame. Possibly it was an accidental discharge. One should not make accusations unsupported. If you have no immediate need of my services, your highness, I will ask you to grant me leave of absence for half an hour. I have a peculiar longing to investigate." There was a determined gleam in his eyes.

"No, no!" cried Beverly. "Don't you dare to go out there again. You are to stay right here in the castle, sir. We have something else for you to do. It was that awful old Marlanx who shot at you. He"—

"I left General Marlanx in Colonel Quinnox's quarters, Miss Calhoun," interposed Baldos grimly. "He could not have fired the shot. For two or three nights, your highness, I have been followed and dogged with humiliating persistence by two men wearing the uniforms of castle guards. They do not sleep at the barracks. May I ask what I have done to be submitted to such treatment?" There was a trace of poorly concealed indignation in his voice.

"I assure you that this is news to me," said Yetive in amazement.

"I am being watched as if I were a common thief," he went on boldly. "These men are not your agents; they are not the agents of Graustark. May I be permitted to say that they are spies set upon me by a man who has an object in disgracing me? Who that man is I leave to your royal conjecture."

"Marlanx?"

"Yes, your highness. He bears me a deadly grudge and yet he fears me. I know full well that he and his agents have built a strong case against me. They are almost ready to close in upon me, and they will have false evidence so craftily prepared that even my truest friends may doubt my loyalty to you and to the cause I serve. Before God, I have been true to my oath. I am loyal to Graustark. It was a sorry day when I left the valley and"—

"Oh," cried Beverly piteously, "don't say that!"

"Alas, Miss Calhoun, it is true," said he sadly. "I am penned up here where I cannot fight back. Treason is laid against me. But, beyond all this, I have permitted my loyalty to mislead my ambition. I have aspired to something I can cherish, but never possess. Better that I never should have tasted of the unattainable than to have the cup withdrawn just as its sweetness begins to intoxicate."

He stood before them, pale with suppressed emotion. The women of Graustark looked involuntarily at Beverly, who sat cold and voiceless, staring at the face of the guard. She knew what he meant; she knew that something was expected of her. A word from her and he would understand that he had not tasted of the unattainable. In one brief moment she saw that she had deliberately led him on, that she had encouraged him, that she actually had proffered him the cup from which he had begun to sip the bitterness. Pride and love were waging a conflict in this hapless southern girl's heart. But she was silent. She could not say the word.

"I think I know what you mean, Baldos," said Yetive, seeing that Beverly would not intervene. "We are sorry. No one trusts to your honor more than I do. My husband believes in you. I will confess that you are to be arrested as a spy tomorrow. Tonight you are to serve as a guard in the castle. This should prove to you that I have unbounded faith in you. Moreover, I believe in you to the extent that I should not be afraid to trust you if you were to go out into the world with every secret which we possess. You came here under a peculiar stress of circumstances, not wholly of your own volition. Believe me, I am your friend."

"I shall revere your highness forever for those words," said he simply. His eyes went hungrily to Beverly's averted face and then assumed a careless gleam which indicated that he had resigned himself to the inevitable.

"I am constrained to ask you one question, sir," went on the princess. "You are not the common goat hunter you assume. Will you tell me in confidence who you really are?" The others held their breath. He hesitated for a moment.

"Will it suffice if I say that I am an unfortunate friend and advocate of Prince Dantan? I have risked everything for his sake, and I fear I have lost everything. I have failed to be of service to him, but through no fault of mine. Fate has been against me."

"You are Christobal!" cried Dagmar eagerly.

He gave her a startled glance, but offered no denial. Beverly's face was a study. If he were Christobal, then what of the game warden's daughter?

"We shall question you no further," said Yetive. "You enlisted to serve Miss Calhoun. It is for her to command you while you are here. May God be with you to the end. Miss Calhoun, will you tell him what his duties are for tonight? Come, my dear."

Yetive and Dagmar walked slowly from the room, leaving Beverly and her guard alone.

"I am at your service, Miss Calhoun," he said easily. His apparent indifference stung her into womanly revolt.

"I was a fool last night," she said abruptly.

"No; I was the fool. I have been the fool from the beginning. You shall not blame yourself, for I do not blame you. It has been a sweet comedy, a summer pastime. Forget what I may have said to you last night, forget what my eyes may have said for weeks and weeks."

"I shall never forget," she said. "You deserve the best in the world. Would that I could give it to you. You have braved many dangers for my sake. I shall not forget. Do you know that we were watched last night?"

"Watched?" he cried incredulously. "Oh, fool that I am! I might have known. And I have subjected you to—to—don't tell me that harsh things have been said to you, Miss Calhoun!" He was deeply disturbed.

"General Marlanx saw you. He has threatened me, Baldos"—

"I will kill him! What do I care for the consequences? He shall pay dearly for"—

"Stop! Where are you going? You are to remain here, sir, and take your commands from me. I don't want you to kill him. They'd hang you, or something just as bad. He's going to be punished, never fear!" Baldos smiled in spite of his dismay. It was impossible to face this confident champion in petticoats without catching her enthusiasm. "What have you done with—with that rose?" she asked suddenly, flushing and diffident. Her eyes glistened with embarrassment.

"It lies next my heart. I love it," he said bravely.

"I think I'll command you to return it to me," vaguely.

"A command to be disobeyed. It is in exchange for my feather," he smiled confidently.

"Well, of course, if you are going to be mean about— Now, let me see," she said confusedly, "what are your duties for tonight? You are to stand guard in the corridor. Once in awhile you will go out upon the balcony and take a look. You see, I am afraid of some one. Oh, Baldos, what's the use of my trifling like this? You are to escape from Edelweiss tonight. That is the whole plan—the whole idea in a nutshell. Don't look like that. Don't you want to go?" Now she was trembling with excitement.

"I do not want to leave you," he cried eagerly. "It would be cowardly. Marlanx would understand that you gave aid and sanction. You would be left to face the charges he would make. Don't you see, Beverly? You would be implicated; you would be accused. Why did you not let me kill him? No; I will not go!" Neither noticed the name by which he had called her.

"But I insist!" she cried weakly. "You must go away from me. I—I command you to"—

"Is it because you want to drive me out of your life forever?" he demanded, sudden understanding coming to him.

"Don't put it that way," she murmured.

"Is it because you care for me that you want me to go?" he insisted, drawing near. "Is it because you fear the love I bear for you?"

"Love! You don't really— Stop! Remember where you are, sir! You must not go on with it, Baldos. Don't come a step nearer. Do go tonight! It is for the best. I have been awfully wicked in letting it run on as it has. Forgive me; please forgive me," she pleaded. He drew back, pale and hurt. A great dignity settled upon his face. His dark eyes crushed her with their quiet scorn.

"I understand, Miss Calhoun. The play is over. You will find the luckless vagabond a gentleman, after all. You ask me to desert the cause I serve. That is enough. I shall go tonight."

The girl was near to surrender. Had it not been for the persistent fear that her proud old father might suffer from her willfulness, she would have thrown down the barrier and risked everything in the choice. Her heart was crying out hungrily for the love of this tall, mysterious soldier of fortune.

"It is best," she murmured finally. Later on she was to know the meaning of the peculiar smile he gave her.

"I go because you dismiss me, not because I fear an enemy. If you choose to remember me at all, be just enough to believe that I am not a shameless coward."

"You are brave and true and good, and I am a miserable, deceitful wretch," she lamented. "You will seek Ravone and the others?"

"Yes; they are my friends. They love my poverty. And now, may it please your highness, when am I to go forth, and in what garb? I should no longer wear the honest uniform of a Graustark guard."

"Leave it to me. Everything shall be arranged. You will be discreet? No one is to know that I am your"—

"Rest assured, Miss Calhoun. I have a close mouth." And he smiled contemptuously.

"I agree with you," said she regretfully. "You know how to hold your tongue." He laughed harshly. "For once in a way will you answer a question?"

"I will not promise."

"You say that you are Dantan's friend. Is it true that he is to marry the daughter of the Duke of Matz, Countess Iolanda?"

"It has been so reported."

"Is she beautiful?"

"Yes; exceedingly."

"But is he to marry her?" she insisted, she knew not why.

"How should I know, your highness?"

DROPPED DEAD WHILE WORKING IN THE FIELD

David Smythe of Fraserville Suddenly Expired This Morning—Fell off the Cultivator as He Was Going Over the Field.

While cultivating on his farm this morning which is situated about a mile north of Fraserville, David Smythe succumbed. The deceased went out to the field about 8 o'clock and it was just 10 o'clock that his wife noticing the horses standing in the field ran out to her husband and was shocked to find him lying over the cultivator dead. Apparently in excellent health, Mr. Smythe went out to his work. His death is attributed to heart failure.

The late Mr. Smythe was forty-six years of age and was most highly esteemed and respected by all who knew him. He was married some years ago to Miss Harcourt of Port Hope who with one daughter Mildred, is left to mourn his loss. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.

The funeral will take place on Saturday at 2 o'clock from lot 22, concession 8, Cavan township, to the Fraserville cemetery.

WALLS IN SHOW CASE CO. BUILDING COLLAPSED

Serious Damage to Rear of Building on Dublin St. This Morning—About 60 Feet of Brick Wall on East and West Sides Fell in.

Between nine and ten o'clock this morning about forty feet of brick wall on the East and West side of the building on Dublin street next to the railway track, collapsed. The structure was a two storey one. The front part was built three years ago but sixty feet of an addition was put up a year ago last winter by the Peterborough Showcase Co. of which Mr Harry J. Dunslow was the manager. However, for the past six months, the rear of the building has been vacated but the front part is occupied by the German Card Mfg. Co. The work of the Card Company is in no way hampered as it was the walls of the north half that fell.

The cause of the collapse is attributed to the exceedingly great pressure against the west wall. The building was built right along side a high bank. In the winter the freezing caused the ground to expand, forcing against the west wall, and the joints were pressed to the east side, with the result the walls bulged out. They have been tottering for some time but this morning the climax was reached when they fell with a crash.

The building was to have been sold next week.

The damage done is estimated at five hundred dollars.

SONS OF SCOTLAND HAD MOST ENJOYABLE BANQUET

Camp Alpine, Sons of Scotland, held a most enjoyable banquet in the Sons of England Hall, Hunter street, last night. Over sixty were in attendance and the affair was most successful in every respect. Excellent arrangements had been made and everything passed off without the slightest hitch. The catering was done by Hooper and Long Bros. and was everything that could be desired.

Chief Bro. Jas. Macpherson was in the chair. After everyone had done ample justice to the good things on the table Bro. R. Grieve, Grand Organizer, sang, "Scots Wha Hae" with violin accompaniment, by Bro. Weatherstone. In the absence of Grand Chieftian Mearns, of Toronto, Bro. Laing came in his place and was the guest of the evening. In a very businesslike way he explained the virtues of belonging to the Sons of Scotland. It was a national society in its aims and although the members carried insurance, that was not the main object.

The toast list was then run off. "The King," was proposed by the chairman and honored in the usual way.

"Sons of Scotland," was proposed by Bro. Dr. McKinnon and responded to by Bro. G. N. Gordon.

"The Ladies," was proposed by Bro. Donald G. Cameron, and responded to by Bro. Glover.

Bro. Bogue, of the Lindsay Camp, Bro. Simpson, Sarnia Camp; Bro. Robertson, Kingston, and members from other camps, all spoke for the welfare of the order.

The musical part of the function was arranged by Bro. S. Stewart and Bro. MacKay. Songs were given by Bros. S. Mackay, S. Stewart, J. Reid and Weatherston; a reading by Bro. J. Reid and a cornet solo by Bro. J. C. Robertson. All were given in a most creditable manner.

The older members, through Bro. F. R. J. Macpherson, gave Bro. Grieve a purse for his services to the camp outside his missionary work and expressed on behalf of the members their satisfaction and asked Bro. Laing to let him stay and further interest the camp.

These remarks were endorsed by Bro. Laing, of the Grand Camp, who spoke of Bro. Grieve's success since becoming an organizer and he would carry back the good wishes to the Grand Executive.

Bro. Grieve made a suitable response.

Other speakers during the evening were Mr. Faulkner and Mr. Carey, who thanked the Peterborough brethren on behalf of the visitors for the kind reception.

RECITAL BY GLADYS SEWARD

Miss Gladys Seward, a girl not yet in her teens will give a piano recital in the Conservatory Hall on Saturday evening next at eight o'clock. She is a daughter of the late Mr. Seward so well remembered as organist of St. John's where he officiated with great acceptance for many years. Miss Seward is a pupil of Mrs. Collins formerly Miss Alice Roger of this city, one of the most brilliant pianists and successful teachers connected with either the Toronto or Peterborough Conservatories of music. The young pianiste is an extremely fine performer. Profs. Field and Welsman expressed the utmost surprise and gratification at her performances. No doubt there will be a large attendance. There is no charge for admission.

The elevator of G. T. Crew at Paris siding on the south shore of Lake St. Clair was burned to the ground. The elevator was full of grain but was covered by insurance.

BUYS STATUE OF "MURCURY"

The Minister of Education has bought the statue of "Mercury," by Miss Wallis, for the Government Museum at Toronto, for the sum of $650.00. Word was received to that effect this morning.

WILL MEET TO-NIGHT

A meeting of the Manufacturers' Association of Peterborough will be held in the city council chamber tonight at eight o'clock for the purpose of discussing the recommendation made by the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council to establish a permanent paid fire brigade in Peterborough.

Singular Coincidence.

In 1884, just after Commodore Schley returned from rescuing the survivors of the Greely arctic expedition, the Massachusetts Humane society presented him with a handsome medal for his achievement, and Benjamin W. Crowninfield, one of the Bay State's great orators, was sent to Washington to make the presentation speech. On the way to the capital Mr. Crowninfield fell in with an old and prominent resident of Boston, who took the privilege of asking the orator what his mission in Washington was. In reply the old gentleman was shown the medal and told what was to be done with it.

"Strange coincidence," mused the venerable gentleman from the Hub. "Forty-four years ago, in 1840, I rode over this same line and met General Winfield Scott. I was as inquisitive then as now and asked him where he was going. He said that a son of his friend, Mr. Schley, had been named for him and that he was going to Maryland to see the baby. Nearly half a century is past, and now I find you going to Washington to carry a medal to the man that General Scott visited when the man was an infant."

"Fond"—Its Two Meanings.

The older meaning of this word was, as is well known, equivalent to foolish. Now it has the meaning of affectionate. The following instance of the use of the word in both senses on the same page of the same work marks the period of transition, when the old sense still lingered while the new sense was coming into use. In Dr. Watts on "The Improvement of the Mind," first edition, 1751, in chapter 15, section 5, on page 119, I find:

"Some are so fond to know a great deal at once and love to talk of things with freedom and boldness before they truly understand them that they scarcely ever allow themselves attention enough to search the matter through and through."

And lower down on the page, in section 7, is:

"A soul inspired with the fondest love of truth and the warmest aspirations after sincere felicity and celestial beatitude will keep all its powers attentive to the incessant pursuit of them."

Also in Coles' English-Latin Dictionary, fifteenth edition, 1749, both meanings are given as follows: "Fond, indulgens," and lower down, "Fond (foolish), stultus."—London Notes and Queries.

Need For Dust Sheets.

Every housekeeper should be amply provided with dust sheets, which can be thrown over upholstered chairs, sofas and other items of furniture when the rooms undergo their periodical "turnout."

Old worn bed linen is often used for this purpose, but when it is very thin and torn it ceases to be a protection, and the dust filters through and spoils covers and paint.

Calico and print are much the best materials to use, and the initial expense involved in investing in stocks of these dust covers is amply repaid over and over again.

Two widths of the material sewed together and hemmed are sufficient for ordinary use, two yards square being of ample size for an armchair.

When the covers are washed they should be well starched and ironed, the glazed surface being most effectual in keeping out dust.

For Shirt Waists.

There is nothing prettier for shirt waists than silk faced poplin, for the goods can be neatly plaited, tucked and made into practically any dainty shirt waist from the plain tailored one to the dressy affair with lace or velvet garniture. The white poplin has countless advantages. It sells for about 50 cents a yard and possesses innumerable good qualities which make it valuable to the economical woman. The material washes beautifully and may be ironed while perfectly dry and has a soft cashmere appearance, or the beautiful tailored effect is produced in starching the goods. It launders as beautifully as fine white linen. Poplins of this kind may be purchased in various colors, though nothing quite takes the place of the white for shirt waists, and the madras effects with white figures are very dainty.

A New Dessert.

For the dessert make a plain, rich cream as usual, but flavor strongly with coffee. The day before the luncheon get from the butcher a little bunch of mint leaves, wash and wipe each one dry and boil a cup of sugar hard with half a cup of water. Cool slightly and then dip the leaves into the sirup and draw each one over granulated sugar on both sides; lay on oiled paper till dry. When the ginger ice cream is in the glasses put two candied mint leaves on top of each glass; the combination of flavors is very good.—Harper's Bazar.

NEGLECTED BAYBERRIES.

Time Was When the Crop Was Eagerly Harvested.

Years ago when the first frosts had come Connecticut people went out to pick the bunches of bayberries to make the pale green wax candles which when burning gave out the aromatic smell of the leaves that the pickers crushed in pulling off.

We no longer pick bayberries for company candles for the winter time. Except a few romantic souls who gather berries enough to make a candle or two for old memories, a few faddists who want to try to make bayberry candles by some discovery or other in a magazine and some stanch old New Englanders who love to get out in the pastures on a crisp fall day—these are all who gather the bayberries now.

Left to themselves, the clumps of bushes have spread out and in some cases overrun whole pastures. In some parts of Connecticut the bushes have grown very tall.

In Branford, on the coast, there are almost bayberry trees, as many can be found growing along the highways ten feet tall and some even taller. These bayberries must be very old. You cannot help wondering how many crops have been picked off them in years past.

As early as 1717 the town records show that the gathering of bayberries on the highways and common was forbidden before Sept. 15. A fine of 10 shillings for each violation was the penalty. It appears that the wax from the berries was used in making a blacking and a salve and that bayberry wax continued an article of trade in Branford down to the last fifty years.

Human nature being about the same one century to another, there was probably in 1717 a great complaining of people who picked the berries "before they were half ripe" or "got up mornings before anybody else had a chance;" hence the regulation and the fine.

But what a breathless, hurried bayberry picking it must have been the morning of Sept. 15!

DANGEROUS FISH.

Ways of the Green Moray of Bermuda and the Devilfish.

When one speaks of dangerous fish the first that come to mind are the shark and the octopus. But neither of these is really formidable to fishermen. The shark never attacks a boat and the octopus very rarely.

A much worse creature than either shark or octopus is the devilfish—a large ray that is common in the warm waters of the Atlantic. This fish grows to a weight of a ton and a half and, besides formidable teeth, is armed with a horrible barbed and poisoned spike in the tail. It has often been known to attack boats.

A fishing party in a launch succeeded in harpooning one of these fish in the bay known as Aransas Pass, Texas. The brute towed them eighteen miles out to sea and very nearly upset the launch. It was twenty-five feet long and weighed 3,000 pounds.

A very nasty customer is the green moray of Bermuda. This rather resembles a conger eel, but is green in color and savage beyond any fish that swims. An English marine officer, fishing off Bermuda a year or two ago, hooked a large specimen and began to pull it in.

His negro boatman, his eyes staring with fright, begged him wildly to cut the line. The officer at first refused, but when he saw the fish turn on itself and with a crunch of saw edged teeth bite a large piece out of its own body he came to the conclusion that it was not a nice thing to have in a small boat.

The swordfish is a dangerous creature. Swordfish are caught for the sake of their oil and flesh, especially along the Atlantic coast of the United States. They are harpooned in the same manner in which whales used to be killed. Quiet enough until attacked, the swordfish then seems to go raving mad and fights with unmatched ferocity.—London Answers.

Hindoo First Steps In English.

A native had been caught at Calcutta scaling the wall of the premises into the compound of No. 3, Chowringhi, dressed in a complete suit of European clothes. The man had on the previous evening concealed himself inside a shop and had employed his time till morning in fitting himself with a complete suit of clothes, including a white shirt, with studs and links; a red tie, carefully put on; black socks, a pair of boots, a watch and chain, handkerchief and even a pocketknife, with a straw hat and stick. He even went the length of writing his name inside the hat. On being caught he said he wanted to learn English and as a preliminary step thought it best to dress himself in sahib's clothes.—Bombay (India) Advocate.

The Difficult Handshake.

It is a difficult matter, this of shaking hands. To start with, it is not always easy to know whether to shake hands or simply bow or even just scatter a gentle smile around. Books of etiquette devote pages to the handshake. However, if one decides to do it, then 'twere well 'twere done quickly. Let the action be swift and brief.—London Globe.

No Resource.

"John, I think I hear a thief in the dark closet beneath the stairs."

"I don't doubt it. I have known it was there for some time."

"Telephone for the police."

"What's the use. You can't arrest a gas meter?"

Wise men say nothing in dangerous times.—Selden.

Seven negro families are at Edmonton on their way to homesteads west of the city.

DIDN'T ASK ENOUGH.

The Lawyer Should Have Probed His Witness a Little Deeper.

A small but distinguished company of English lawyers sat talking over old times. Among them was Mr. S., who told the following story:

"I was retained," he said, "by an ex-soldier to sue for the recovery of £35 which he had lent to a friend. The late Mr. J. was counsel for the defendant. J. cross examined the plaintiff in his usual forcible way.

" 'You lent him the money?' Mr. J. asked.

" 'I did, sir.'

" 'It was your own money?'

" 'It was, sir.'

" 'When did you lend him the money?'

" 'In July.'

" 'Where did you get that money, sir?'

" 'I earned it, sir.'

" 'You earned it, eh? When did you earn it?'

" 'During the Boer war, sir,' he said in a very humble tone.

" 'You earned it during the Boer war? Pray what was your occupation during the war?' Mr. J. inquired.

" 'Fighting, sir,' the man replied modestly.

" 'Oh, fighting!' Mr. J. said, somewhat takendown.

"I smiled triumphantly. Mr. J. was very angry. Well, we went to the jury, and I, of course, had the last to say. I sailed away to glory. I spoke of the war, of the lives which it cost us, of the awful battles which helped to build up the glory of our nation, of the self denial and bravery of our men, who left home and wife and children and father and mother and everything that was dear to them and went forth to the fight. I worked up the jury and got a verdict for the full amount. As we were quitting the courtroom Mr. J. said:

" 'S., your war speech gained you the verdict. If you hadn't discovered through my cross examination that the man had fought in the Boer war, you would have been beaten.'

" 'My friend,' I replied, 'if you had only asked the man which side he fought on you might be going home with a verdict. My client served under the Boer flag.' "

THE SHREWMOUSE.

Superstitions About a Harmless Little Animal.

The shrew, or shrewmouse, as it is commonly called, is found in nearly all parts of the world. It is distinguished by an elongated, pointed muzzle, small eyes, plantigrade, six toed feet and glands that secrete a musky fluid. Altogether it closely resembles a mouse, but it is really not related to the mouse family.

When at home it is either under a pile of rubbish or in a hole which it has burrowed in the earth. It is nocturnal in its habits, but perfectly harmless. Yet at one time it was much disliked and persecuted because it was thought to be a dangerous, mischievous animal. Among the Italians the notion was prevalent that the bite of a shrew was extremely poisonous. The French and the English believed that if a shrew ran over an animal's foot the animal felt great pain and eventually became paralyzed; hence if a horse, a cow or a goat became a little stiff in its limbs the foolish people at once declared it "shrew struck," and the poor shrews had to suffer in consequence.

Of course the "shrew struck" animal had to have something to cure it, so an ash tree was selected and a deep hole was bored into its trunk. Then a shrew was captured, put alive into the hole, the hole was securely plugged, and the innocent little animal was left to die of starvation.

The ignorant believed that after such an act the ash tree had power to cure "shrew struck" animals, and whenever an animal became inactive or a little numb in its limbs its owner hurried to the "shrew ash," cut a switch from it and switched the "shrew struck" beast. The smarting caused by the switching naturally made the helpless animal move about as much as it possibly could, and in a short time it was pronounced "cured."

Equal to the Occasion.

Some time ago a friend of mine got a curious present from a sea captain. It was a fine specimen of the bird which sailors call the "laughing jackass," and he was a little proud of it. As he was carrying it home he met a brawny Irish navvy, who stopped and asked him:

"Thwat kind of a burrd is that, sorr?"

"That's a laughing jackass," explained my friend genially.

The Irishman, thinking he was being made fun of, was equal to the occasion and responded, with a twinkle in the eye:

"It's not yersilf; it's the burrd Oi mane, sorr."—London Answers.

Suitable.

"What would be a suitable birthday present for my little boy?" inquired the fond mother.

"Let me think," returned the star boarder, who occasionally liked to sleep late in the morning. Then, with the glad, confident smile of one who has solved a problem, he added, "How would a gag or a straitjacket do?"

Arousing the Lion.

If we want to educate that sturdy, stolid, unresponsive thing, the British public, a scheme has to be mildly diluted with pleasure, masked by brilliant pictures, like the bitter pill we hide in our children's jam. We have compulsory schooling, of course, but as a nation we are not and do not want to be educated.—London Bystander.

WALKERS STOOD THE LONG GRIND WELL

Eight Were on the Track at End of Ten Hour Grind Yesterday—Hoagland Maintains Good Lead—Over 1,200 in Attendance Last Night

There were a large number of miles ground out at the ten hour-grind at the walking tournament last night. The chief grinder was, of course, Hoagland, the world's champion pedestrian, whose almost miraculous walking is the chief feature of the big event. From 1.30 yesterday afternoon until 11.30 last night he covered 52 miles which is real travelling. He led every mile and took matters comparatively easy at that. Every now and again he took the notion to be advance agent for the rest of them and that was all there was to it. He stepped around the ring in a sensationally rapid manner and the crowds simply hungered to see him sprint. And when he did, as far as the most of the other starters were concerned, it was just like the fast express speeding by the flag stations. Slater and Blake were the only ones who offered him any opposition, the former going in great style and apparently becoming fitter all the time.

SLATER FORCED TO QUIT.

The report of the race from 1.30 to o'clock was published in yesterday's issue of the Review and it was noted that Hatton quit shortly after the commencement of the walk for the ten hour grind. The surprise of the tournament to the most of the spectators was sprung when Slater dropped out shortly before 6.30 in the evening. However, it was not a great surprise to his friends to see the game Oswego boy retire from the race. He caught a cold while arranging the scoring apparatus before the opening of the tournament and it settled on his lungs, making him so hoarse he could hardly speak. On the first night of the walk he was sick and in fact he was in no condition whatever to start. He did great work on the second night and his afternoon performance was racing like lightning. He was very plucky to walk at such a rate under such a disadvantage and kept up the pace when an ordinary walker would have quit. However, he found it almost impossible to breathe yesterday afternoon and was simply forced to retire or he would have collapsed on the track. Slater proved a general favorite with the crowd and an unusually clever walker. In fact he was the only man who stayed right with Hoagland in the champion's great sprints and as he has a reputation for getting stronger as a walk progresses, would have undoubtedly showed up splendidly had he been in a condition that permitted him to walk. Slaters' forced withdrawal will be much regretted by the spectators.

It was a bitter disappointment to Slater to have to leave the field, and he feels much put out over it, as he was certain he would have secured second money had he been able to continue.

HARTLEY OUT.

Late in the afternoon the strain became too much for Davy Hartley, and he had to rest for a while. He was not in good trim by any means and was thinking of leaving the track altogether. However, he gamely went on again until about 10 o'clock in the night when he dropped out. Davy has been feeling rather week of late and stayed in the game until he had to walk against nature and was at length overlapped. He had covered 75 miles and 1 lap when he retired.

THE SUMMARY.

The contestants walked a steady race throughout the evening. Hoagland, Fenton, Stevens and Graham sprinted occasionally. Dave Hartley retired from the race at 10.15 p.m., after going 75 miles and one lap, he being very fatigued.

The ten-hour grind of yesterday changed the position of the walkers considerably. With Slater out of the race Blake moved up to second place, and Harrison went to third. Charlie Stevens is now in fourth place and Graham moved up to fifth position. Fenton walked a far better race yesterday and is steadily gaining on the leaders.

Today's session will be of four hours, commencing at 7.30.

"GENE" HURTUBUISE GOT DECISION OVER KENNEDY

The Longest Battle Ever Seen in Toronto Was the Verdict of Queen City Sports, Concerning the Hurtubuise-Kennedy Match—Will Wrestle here on Wednesday Night.

Speaking of the Hurtubuise-Kennedy bout in Toronto last night, Hurtubuise's manager, Chris. Graham, said it was the general opinion of the audience that it was the toughest battle ever seen in Toronto. The contest was a gruelling one from beginning to end, the men contesting fiercely for supremacy. The crowd was greatly excited all the time and were highly pleased with the Canadian's showing.

WILL WRESTLE HERE.

Kennedy still thinks he can handle "Gene" and as soon as the bout was over wanted to bet $100 and a match was made to suit him, the conditions of which are that no holds be barred. The bout will be pulled off on Wednesday night at the Grand Opera House.

A GREAT CONTEST.

The contest will undoubtedly be the best wrestling match ever seen here. Both Kennedy and Hurtubuise are strong and well scienced wrestlers that keep going hard and fast from the first clang of the bell.

PRELIMINARY BOUTS.

Arrangements are being made to have a splendid athletic programme put on and the spectators are assured of an evening of fast sport.

Two preliminaries will be field between local amateurs of ability, and they are certain to prove of much interest. Full particulars of the programme will be announced later.

HARTLEY WILL START AGAIN

Hartley is game. He hates to quit. Tonight he will start again in the walking tournament and has not yet given up hopes of getting within the money.

BASEBALL

A meeting of the members of the Peterborough Baseball Club will be held at the Examiner office tomorrow night at eight o'clock. All the members are requested to be present, as important business will be considered.

WILL STEP MILE AGAINST TIME

Cooper the English Walker to Provide Speed Treat To-morrow Night

To-morrow night Cooper, the speedy English walker, will do a mile against time at the walking tournament. Cooper was in the walk the first night, making the mile in 7 minutes seconds, which is the tournament record for the distance, his time not having been equalled by Hoagland, Blake, Harrison or any of the other peds.

A VERY FAST WALKER.

Cooper is a very fast walker and covers short distances like a race horse. He has a gazetted record of twenty-five miles in four hours and is feeling in splendid condition for his trial against time tomorrow. It takes place about seven o'clock before the opening of the tournament proper and should prove one of the most interesting sprints ever seen here since the walk commenced. It will be put on as a special attraction and nothing extra will be charged the spectators.

THERE WILL BE BIG TIME AT "Y"

Closing Exercises of Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium This Evening

To-night at 8.15 sharp, the closing exercises of the Y.M.C.A. gym classes will commence. A varied and most interesting programme has been prepared and there will be heaps of fun mingled with difficult and clever performances. Two or three burlesque numbers will be given. As this will be one of the best exhibitions ever given there, a large number of people are expected and it would be well for those desiring good seats to come early. The admission is 25 cents.

The medal won by Ernie Wilson, of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. Harriers, when he defeated Tom Coley in a matched race at Toronto last fall, has arrived and will be presented to-night.

FOURTH NIGHT OF THE WALK

Men Recovered From Effects of Grind---1200 Present Last Night

To-night sees the fourth day of the big tournament. The athletes have recuperated to a great extent from the ten hour grind of yesterday and will step on the track in a condition to battle strongly to get within the money which promises to be large.

The interest is ever increasing and last night the biggest crowd of the week was there, 1,200 being in attendance. Only the select ones are left now and the racing is gilt edged.

Don't fail to see the closing exercises of the Y.M.C.A. Gym classes to-night at 8.15 sharp. Heap of fun mingled with hard and clever performances.

MUST STAY OUT OF THE RING

Only Those With Badge or Trainers Ticket May Enter---Regulation Will be Enforced

Nobody will be allowed in the ring at Brock street rink tonight at the walking tournament without a badge. If anyone enters the ring on the strength of a badge or trainer's ticket which is not his property he will be forced to leave.

The management wish it to be distinctly understood that this regulation will have to be enforced. The spectators will also have to leave the rink by the means provided for them and keep off the track and outside the ring on all occasions.

WALKING

A number of the YMCA members propose taking a tramp tomorrow. They will leave here in the morning by GTR at 8.25 and proceed to Omemee, and from there walk to Lindsay. At Lindsay they will have dinner provided by the YMCA of that town and will return home by the evening train.

OFFICERS AND SADDLES.

Jefferson Davis and a Joke He Did Not Appreciate.

When Jefferson Davis was secretary of war he ordered all his generals to learn to ride horseback. No finer horseman than Jefferson Davis ever lived. He won the love and hand of Zach Taylor's daughter by his distinguished presence in the saddle, as well as by his intrepidity at the cannon's mouth. When secretary of war he noticed that only a few officers in the service were capable horsemen and issued an order something like this:

"A liberal reward will be paid to any officer or private in the army who will offer a satisfactory device for keeping our soldiers from falling out of their saddles. Communications to the secretary of war will be regarded as confidential."

Captain George Horatio Derby, one of the leading army engineers of his day, used to write humorous and witty stories over the pen name of John Phoenix. He received a copy of Secretary Davis' order while improving the harbor of San Diego, Cal., and immediately forwarded the most intricate and accurate designs of his plan for keeping officers and men in the saddle. To the seat of each officer's "pants" he attached a bull ring, and another bull ring was attached to the saddle. The two bull rings were to be lashed together when the officer mounted his steed. "If that doesn't hold, nothing will," wrote Phoenix to the secretary. Davis was furious when he got this proposition and immediately ordered that Captain Derby should be court martialed for "official levity." The secretary felt that the army had been disgraced and wanted Derby severely punished. One of his intimates hastened to him. "Jeff," he whispered, "if you order a court martial for this little pleasantry of John Phoenix, one of the salt of the earth and immensely popular in the army, you will be made a laughingstock. The people will ridicule you out of office. Just laugh it off." Davis took his advice.

MR. AND MRS. DEAN.

The Surprise They Gave a Roomful of Blackguards.

In the early part of the nineteenth century Vauxhall was the resort of many respectable persons, especially of those who came up from the country to see London sights. During one season it was infested by a band of roughs, who made it their occupation to insult and molest the most quiet, decent people, especially any whom they guessed to be country visitors. They became such a nuisance that several men about town, among whom were Lord Alvanley and Keppel Craven, laid a plot to get rid of them.

They hired Mendoza, the famous prize fighter, and dressed him up as a dean, with a shovel hat and apron. Another prize fighter, a short man, was dressed as a middle aged lady and passed as the dean's wife, and one evening they were seated at Vauxhall in a conspicuous position to watch the fireworks. It was not long before the old fashioned, countrified pair attracted the attention of the gang, who assailed them with every kind of coarse raillery and insult, all of which they bore very meekly.

At length one of the persecutors, growing bolder by impunity, stepped up to the dean and squirted an orange into his eye. On this the dean, rising, said in a meek, quiet tone, "Really, gentlemen, I have borne a great deal, but I must put a stop to this." With that his hat went one way and his coat another, and, followed by his "wife," he sprang into the middle of the party, hitting out in all directions. Filled with astonishment and terror, some fled and some tried to show fight, but the handling they got from the prize fighters was too severe for the fracas to last long.

All the time Lord Alvanley and his friends, who were in the boxes, were calling out in delight: "Go it, Mr. Dean! Give it 'em, Mrs. Dean!" An effectual stop was thus put to the annoyance.—London Spectator.

Pearl Banks of Ceylon.

In a report from Colombo the United States consul says that of the world's great fisheries none can compare either in point of antiquity or in the continuity of their prosecution with the pearl fisheries of Ceylon, which he thus describes: "The pearl banks of Ceylon date back to the sixth century before Christ. It is recorded that Vijaya, the first Singhalese king of Ceylon, in the year 550 B. C. presented his father-in-law, the Pandyan king of Madura, 'a gift of pearls,' thus indicating a settled fishery for pearls on the coast of his dominion prior to the historic date."

Long Snoe Shoe Tramp.

After a tramp of nearly 300 miles on snowshoes, from Moose Factory, on James Bay, to MacDougal Chutes, at the northern end of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway, and sleeping out for twelve nights during the recent Arctic weather, with the temperature on one occasion 58 degrees below zero, with only the shelter of a tree and a fur covering, Archdeacon Robert J. Renison, Anglican missionary at Moose Factory, and a graduate of Wycliffe College, arrived in Toronto.

Mr. Renison graduated in 1896, and has been up north for the past ten years, having been south only once in that time.

"My work is chiefly among the Indians," he said. "There are the Crees, at the coast, and the Ojibways, back inland along the rivers. They are not heathen, of course, in the ordinary sense, for the Gospel has been preached for a long time up there. They have all been baptized, and are nominal Christians, at any rate."

Mr. Renison was accompanied to MacDougal Chutes by one of the men from Moose Factory, who will there await his return. They carried their supplies for the journey on a toboggan, one of them tramping ahead to break the trail and the other pulling the toboggan. They made about 25 miles a day, and Mr. Renison says, did not mind the weather or the cooking of their meals and sleeping in the open.

His weather-beaten countenance and robust figure tell of the outdoor life and great amount of traveling done by the missionary in the north.

S.L.C. GAVE DANCE LAST EVENING

Delightful Time in Forester's Hall —Many Attended

The first dance given by the SLC. was held last evening in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, and passed off very successfully. There were about seventy-five couples present, and excellent music was provided by Miss Janet Quinn. Dainty refreshments were served at midnight after which the dancing was continued until about three o'clock when the dancers began to disperse.

The honorary secretary was Miss Beatrice Lavey. So enjoyable was the affair last night that those who were present hope that the time is not far distant when the SLC. decide to hold another dance.

Teas grown at high altitudes on the mountain slopes of Ceylon, where the growth is slower and cultivation more careful than in the warm, humid climate of the valleys, are used in "Salada" Tea. High-grown tea, like "Salada" is not only of a finer quality, but contains more of the essential oil in the leaf than valley-grown tea. This is easily proved by comparing a drawing of "Salada" Tea with any other.

AN OUTSTANDING EVENT IN LOCAL MILITARY HISTORY

Miss Miller, Mrs. F. Schneider, C. H. Coon and Miss Myrtle Coon, Mrs. P. J. Austin, W. C. Austin and Misses Belcher, Lillie and Peck.

CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS

Lieut Col. Stevenson acted as chairman and his opening remarks proved very interesting. He reviewed the history of the 57th Regiment from 1838 when what was then known as the 7th provisional battalion, was formed in Peterborough until the present day.

On behalf of the garrison of the city Col. Stevenson welcomed the large concourse of people. The vast assembly present evidenced the fact that the sympathy of the citizens was with the regiment. The speaker referred to the importance of the day to Peterborough. The laying of the corner stone is a solemn thing but said the Colonel, on this occasion, to those who were members of the regiment twenty years ago, the laying of the corner stone was a gratification.

HISTORY OF LOCAL MILITIA

Referring to the history of the local militia, Lieut. Col. Stevenson stated that it was not a lengthy one. In 1838 the 7th Provisional Battalion was formed. In 1857 the Peterborough Rifle Brigade was organized followed six years later by the organisation of an infantry company. In 1866 the year of the Fenian Raids, a second infantry company was formed. The next year the 57th Battalion was started and shortly after the present drill shed was built. As the call came for men to go forth to fight for their country Peterborough boys were to the front and some gave their lives in their country's cause.

A DEBT OF GRATITUDE.

The speaker thought the occasion of laying the corner stone was most fitting time to publicly express thanks to the citizens, the Mayor and Council of Peterborough, to Mr. R. R. Hall and to Sir Frederick Borden for the gift of the armouries. The Mayor and Council had worked hard to secure them for the city and Mr. R. R. Hall was most indefatigable in his efforts to bear upon the Government the necessity of building armories in Peterborough.

The chairman assured Mr. Hall that he would always be a welcome guest of the officers and men of the 57th Regiment.

Finally the regiment was indebted to Sir Frederick Borden for his unfailing courtesy and the magnificent way he had met their needs. The beautiful structures he had built throughout the country would remain monuments to his zeal long after he had passed away.

MAYOR RUSH'S ADDRESS

His Worship Mayor Rush was called upon and spoke as follows:

"This is an important occasion, not only in the history of Peterborough, but it is not too much to say that it is an important occasion for this district and the Dominion. It is in the interest of the Dominion that the Militia of Canada should be maintained as efficiently as our resources will allow, and every step taken to improve the Militia, especially in the district centres, is an important one. In Peterborough we have a well organized and equipped regiment, and also a field battery and a squadron of cavalry and these different branches are commanded by efficient officers who take a commendable pride in their work and the ranks are filled by loyal citizens of the country. They should have not only respectable, but roomy and comfortable quarters, and we are all pleased that the Minister of the Crown, at the head of the Militia Department, whom we are pleased to have with us today and the Government of which he is a member, are now having erected a building suitable for the purposes of the local militia. The old building which no doubt served the purpose at the time it was erected no longer meets the requirements and the erection of this new, commodious and handsome structure will show those who take an especial interest in the different arms of the militia here that their efforts are appreciated by the Government and by the country.

MAJOR YOUNG.
Commanding Officer of the 24th Field Battery.

When the war drum beats and the battle flag is unfurled, we are united in cheering the gallant men who risk and give their lives to defend our country and to uphold the interests and the honor of the Empire, and I believe we are just as much a unite in desiring that they shall have proper provision made for them in times of peace. We believe that Peterborough, being far enough removed from the border, and being in the centre of an important district and with unexcelled railway communications, and also on a line of navigation from the east to the west, is admirably adapted for a military depot, and the erection of this building we look upon as the beginning of the concentration here of still more important military stores and commands.

On this occasion we unite in welcoming Sir Frederick Borden, the head of the Department of Militia and Defence for Canada, and we wish continued success to the 57th Regiment, the 24th Field Battery and the gallant Dragoons."

MR. R. R. HALL M. P.

Prefacing his remarks, Mr. Hall thanked Col. Stevenson for the kind reference he made to him in his address. He felt proud to be present to see the corner stone of the new armouries laid. They would be, when finished, second to none in Canada. They will be most modernly equipped and no better education in the arts of discipline could be received than within the walls of this building.

From a military and a citizen's standpoint one should feel proud of the armouries. "Our young men will become properly trained and if they are called out to actual warfare," said Mr. Hall, "it will be much better to know that they have been properly prepared." It is important that the buildings should be of fine architectural design. The Romans and Grecians were influenced by architecture and it is necessary that the young men and women be educated along these lines. In conclusion, Mr. Hall said that citizens may well feel proud of the new armouries when finished.

ken for a statement as to the functions of the diplomat, and whether would take over some of the duties w performed by the Secretary of ate and the Prime Minister's office. The Prime Minister promised to ing down the order-in-council. Mr. ackenzie had been appointed clerk imperial and foreign correspondence and would be attached to the fice of the Privy Council. His duties would be to classify, keep and al with this correspondence which d grown to be voluminous.

Col. Sam Hughes read a letter from correspondent who declared a recent accident on the I.C.R. was due rotten ties.

The Minister of Railways declared at the I.C.R. was not immune from cidents, but the roadbed of the C.R. was equal to any in the world. r. Graham asked for the name of e writer.

"I assume the responsibility for ything I read in this House and I nk my name will carry as much ight as that of the Minister of ilways," put in the colonel.

"That is not what Gen. Hutton nks," was the observation of Col. bot.

Mr. Owen (Northumberland) caused rriment by hurling the following ery at the Prime Minister:

"Is it the intention of the Government to come to the rescue of the ollen manufacturings by way of ecific duties?"

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was unable, he s sorry to say, to give a specific swer to-day.

IMPORTANT STRATEGICALLY.

"Peterborough is important strategically," continued the speaker. "The fact that Peterborough was hardly in existence in 1825 and in 1837 took an important step in military affairs, sending troops to the rebellion. The Minister of Militia referred to a strategic movement of local interest that happened during Wm. Lyons McKenzie's time. A meeting was advertised to be held in Cobourg and on the night it was to take place troops went from Peterborough and prevented him holding it.

DISAPPROVES OF MILITARISM.

The Minister of Militia is strongly opposed to militarism or compulsory drill or the keeping of a standing army. The means taken in this country is to prevent militarism. It is for every young man to say whether they will come forward in their country's cause. "We are members of a great Empire," said the speaker, "and our flag is the symbol of freedom, equity and honor." It is a proud thing to the British Empire and our responsibilities be in each one doing his duty to King and country.

THE VALUE OF ACCIDENT INSURANCE

DEATHS from accident are stated by the Census Officials, Washington, to have been 57,513 in 1902. The percentage of deaths from accident is 5.76, which is more than ten years ago. The "Insurance Press" in giving details from the Census, says, "An Inspection of the Census Tables showing causes of death brings out the fact that a person is more liable to meet death by accidental injuries than by any other single cause except consumption, pneumonia or heart disease

OLD TIN CANS.

The Way They Finally Disappear From Human Sight.

Few people realise what becomes of all the old tin cans, tin pans, kettles, buckets, coal hods and the like. They finally disappear from human sight and knowledge and are seen no more. Science shows that they evaporate. When a tin can is cast away and forsaken it begins its downward course by becoming rusty. The tin oxidizes or, in other words, unites with the oxygen surrounding it in the atmosphere, and the oxide of tin gradually takes leave of the iron by evaporating into the air, while some of it is washed away by the rain into the earth. After the tin is gone the iron of the can follows the same course that has been pursued by the tin. It oxidizes and becomes the familiar reddish brown substance known as iron rust. The metals have no wills of their own, no affinities, no understandings, and therefore no intentions as to their present or future course. They do nothing of themselves. But electrical forces do their work for them. These forces unite the atoms of the metals with those of the oxygen. Then the molecules of these oxides are carried away by the atmospheric electricity and disposed of according to circumstances.

If a small bottle or other piece of glass be placed on damp ground and an old wornout tin bucket is turned over it, the particles of iron oxide will be taken away by electric currents from the old bucket and will be deposited partly on the glass, the remainder going into the air and the earth. Deposits of iron and other metals are thus carried around by electricity in the atmosphere from place to place all over the earth. Chlorine by electric power picks up atoms of gold and goes with them to the ocean, where they are as much at home as salt. All metals can exist in a state of vapor; therefore they are to be found not only in the atmosphere around this earth, but also in the atmosphere around the sun and the stars. If a ray of sunlight is bent out of its course, as it is by drops of water in the case of the rainbow, the familiar seven colors of red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet are spread out side by side. When these spectra or streaks of light are scientifically investigated about 500 dark lines are formed also among the colors, and these lines represent shadows cast by elemental substances in the atmospheres of the earth and the sun. Light made artificially and not passing through the atmosphere of the earth and the sun does not have these dark lines.

By means of the spectroscope, a gradually invented instrument now in use, but credited to several scientists, well known elements have been compelled to register their addresses in bands of light. Among the first to write themselves down were sodium, potassium, magnesium, calcium, chromium, nickel and iron. And the same apparatus led to the discovery of new metals, such as cesium, rubidium and thallium. All these are found to be in the sun's atmosphere. By means of the spectroscope the one hundred millionth part of a grain of sodium in common salt becomes as discernible and unmistakable as the side of a house. This wonderful modern instrument has enabled scientists to find out what the people who inhabit the planets in the solar system of the dog star Sirius, for example, have to eat, for without nitrogen they could have no beans or spring peas, without sulpher no mustard, horseradish and water cresses or anything of the kind, although the people would be confined to vegetable diet. They would also be without light biscuit for breakfast or any fermented liquors.

What He Felt Like.

It was the first time he had sung in an Episcopal choir, and he felt strangely out of place in the vestments he wore. The other choristers looked comfortable enough, but the new one was sure he would trip on the skirts of his cassock when he went up the chancel steps, and he knew that if he did not stop perspiring his clean linen cotta would be sadly mussed. The opening prayer had been intoned by the rector, and the singers were in line waiting for the introduction to the processional to be played, when one of the basses whispered in the new man's ear:

"You're a tenor, aren't you?"

"I suppose so," he replied, "but I feel like a twospot."

Picturesque Newfoundland.

Newfoundland has been styled a rough stone with no interior, and doubtless to the passenger on some Atlantic liner, seeing its bold headland jutting out into the ocean, with its weather beaten cliffs standing gray and cold, the description may seem a fitting one. But to those who know it well, who have seen the fir clad valleys, its clear lakes and streams and hillsides tinged with the red and gold of autumn, it is a rough stone with a very fair interior.—London Strand.

A Piece of Homely Truth.

"Do you expect people to believe all that you tell them?"

"That is not the idea," answered the sagacious campaigner. "The way to win the hearts of the people is to tell them what they already believe."

Over one thousand unemployed are reported at Prince Rupert.

Schooner Blown Up.

Vancouver, April 23.—The gasoline fishing schooner Clara C. of Tacoma, was blown up off Cape Scott on Sunday night, and the crew of 11 men had barely time to escape in the dories with nothing but the clothes on their backs.

Capt. Hansen and his crew were picked up by the halibut fishing schooner Celestial Empire of this city, on her return from the north on Tuesday, and brought into New Westminster yesterday.

Farmer Burned to Death.

Dubuc, Sask., April 23.—Michael Manton, a farmer eight miles north of this town, was burned to death yesterday while trying to save his cattle from a stable which had taken fire. He got bewildered while endeavoring to unite the halters and was unable to find his way out. Finally he crawled out, but his injuries were such that death occurred in a few hours.

Engineer Killed.

Roblin, Man., April 23.—A Canadian Northern locomotive, drawing a freight train, jumped the track in a cut and rolled over, crushing the engineer, Edward Rigger, to death. The fireman jumped and escaped without injury. Rigger was a single man.

Burned Saving Furniture.

Minto, Man., April 23.—The residence of Edward Shaw, a farmer, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning.

Mrs. Shaw was badly burned in trying to save the household effects.

Farmer Commits Suicide.

Smith's Fall, April 23.—In March Township, Carleton County, W. A. Younghusband, aged 70, a highly-respected farmer, took his life. His wife, going downstairs at 6 o'clock in the morning, found him dead on a sofa in the dining-room, and a gaping wound in his head with a rifle resting on his breast.

Laid the Corner-Stone.

Peterboro, April 23.—The cornerstone of the new Armories here was laid yesterday afternoon by Hon. Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia. A large number turned out for the function, which was of a brilliant nature. At night Sir Frederick was tendered a banquet by the citizens of Peterboro.

Delaney Long Detained.

New York, April 23.—Daniel R. Delaney, a law clerk, who was convicted of larceny of $541 from his employer, Henry E. Coe, was sentenced yesterday to serve not less than six and a half years, nor more than ten years, in state prison.

Judge Malone, in imposing the sentence, said that Delaney's stealings had amounted to more than $50,000.

To Fight Scott Act.

Fredericton, April 23.—To offset the strong campaign in favor of the Scott Act in this city the license party has engaged W. F. Summerhayes of Toronto to deliver a series of addresses in their behalf. The contest is warm.

YOUNG LADY GAVE DRAMATIC RECITAL

In Toronto---She is Well Known Here.

In yesterday's issue of the Toronto World appeared an account of a dramatic recital by Miss Winnifred Parker, who is well known in this city, she is a niece of Mrs. J. A. Patterson, formerly of Peterborough but now residing in Toronto. Miss Parker is well known here and her many friends will be pleased to hear of her success.

The World had this following to say:—

There was a large audience in the Guild Hall last evening to hear Owen A. Smiley's pupil, Miss Winnifred Parker in dramatic recital. A complete success was the result of her efforts and Miss Parker may feel emboldened to take up the career of which last night's appearance was the initial trial, in every vein the young and pretty debutant was charming, whether in prose or poetry, humor or pathos and in the dramatic pose demanded by her more classic renditions a degree of excellence was reached which stamped her work as being that of one "to the manner born." The assistance rendered by Miss Ruby Harkness Hamilton, soprano, was most effective in its contrast to the numbers of Miss Parker. Mrs. Hamilton is a grand opera singer and showed her versatility in several solos. Encores and bouquets were showered upon Miss Parker during the evening. Charles A. Crane was a most able accompanist.

CITIZENS OF PETERBOROUGH BANQUETED SIR FREDERICK

Many Did Honor to Minister of Militia at Oriental Hotel Last Evening—Speeches of Much Excellence—Peterborough Garrison Will be Well Looked After, Says Sir Frederick.

The banquet to Sir Frederick Borden, K.C.M.G., Minister of Militia, by the citizens of Peterborough at the Oriental Hotel last night, was one of the most brilliant events in the history of Peterborough. The scene in the banqueting hall was one of unusual splendor. The walls of the room were resplendent with Union Jacks, Canadian ensigns and bunting, and the bright uniforms of the officers of the units of the local garrison added to the brilliancy of the effect. Over a hundred and twenty-five were in attendance and everything passed off in the most harmonious manner. Great credit is due those in charge of the arrangements for the thoroughness in which their work was done. Praise must also be given the management of the Oriental for the way in which the banquet was handled. The menu could not have been improved upon and the service and all details could not have been better.

Sir Frederick Borden's speech in response to the toast to "Our Guest" was one of unusual power. He took occasion to refer to the fact that Peterborough was regarded by military experts as an important strategic point in the defence of the country, and stated that the local garrison would always be well provided for. The other speeches of the evening were excellent, and the running off of the toast list was a most enjoyable part of the banquet.

The chairman, Mayor Rush, was seated at the centre of the head table and on his right were Sir Frederick Borden, Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.; Col. Stevenson, Col. J. Z. Rogers, Major Hayes and Mr. J. R. Stratton. To the left of the chairman were Mr. R. R. Hall, M. P.; Col. J. W. Miller, and Col. H. C. Rogers. Others at the head table were Major Clegg, Major Bennett and Capt. Eastwood.

THE MENU.

The menu was as follows;—

New York Counts
Queen Olives Iced Cucumbers
Consomme en Tasse
Fillet of Kennebeck Salmon, Matilope
Pommes Celestine
Spring Lamb, Mint Sauce
Boiled Potatoes French Peas
Roman Punch
Young Turkey, Stuffed, Cranberry Sauce

THE TOAST LIST.

Mayor Rush proposed the toast to the King which was honored by the hearty singing of the National Anthem. The chairman also proposed the toast to the Governor-General which was honored by the singing of "The Maple Leaf Forever."

"Our Guest" was the next toast on the list, and it was proposed by the chairman. Sir Frederick Borden he said, had been Minister of Militia for the past twelve years, and not only had been signally honored in his own country, but had received a mark of distinction from our own sovereign. He extended to the distinguished guest a hearty welcome to the city. The Government at Ottawa had done well for the militia of Peterborough. They had recognized the need that existed for better accommodation and had come forward and gave the city the splendid new armouries which were now in course of construction. Peterborough, the speaker said, was honored by the visit from Sir Frederick. Peterborough was an important military centre and it was gratifying to know that this fact was being appreciated. In rising to honor the toast, His Worship again extended to the guest of the evening a hearty welcome to Peterborough.

"For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" was sung lustily, and when Sir Frederick arose to respond to the toast it was some time before he could proceed, so great was the applause.

SIR FREDERICK BORDEN.

When the applause had subsided Sir Frederick Borden said: "Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen,—I thank you from the bottom of my heart for this very hearty welcome and for the very hearty way in which the toast has been honored. I feel that the welcome I have received is not one from the lips but from the heart. I have had today the very great pleasure of being in your city; I shall always look back upon today as one of the most enjoyable of my life, as a red letter day in my existence. I feel great pleasure to think that this sentiment is so fully reciprocated by the good people of the city, and particularly by the fair ladies. I am altogether sorry that my visit is of such short duration. I have seen your beautiful city and must say that it is larger that I expected. I have heard the officers in my department talking about Peterborough, and they hold the opinion that it is an important military centre and would be a valuable strategic point in time of war. I concur in this view and I can assure you gentlemen that the garrison here will not be neglected. It will be kept up to the best possible strength. I was glad to see your factories and to learn that they are generally successful. That's the kind of factories we want. Industries that are not successful are a detriment to the country. I have always held that a reasonable and fair amount of protection should be given to the industries of Canada. There is practically no difference of opinion about the principle of this being right. It is now generally accepted as a good foundation. Canada must look to herself for everything she obtains. Unless individuals look after themselves, who is going to do it for them? It is a case of the survival of the fittest, a struggle to get and a struggle to hold what you've got. Canada has been greatly blessed by Providence. We have hardly commenced to realize this yet. We are only beginning to learn the greatness of our mineral wealth and of our agricultural capabilities. Scarcely 8,000,000 acres are now under cultivation in the Northwest and we get some idea of the wonderful possibilities when we consider that there are a hundred billion acres of equally good land yet to be brought under cultivation."

Continuing Sir Frederick predicted that within a measurable period, a short period in the life of a nation, over a billion bushels of grain would be grown in Canada instead of two millions at the present time. The rapid growth of agriculture in Canada was touched upon by the speaker. A glance at the cheese industry showed this. When he visited the United the United States he could not help but think what a stupid thing the Americans had done when they adopted the policy of excluding Canadian trade. But we had beaten them out in nearly every respect and especially in the cheese trade. They had forced us into competition with them, and we had shown that we could hold our own. The greatest competitor the United States had today was the Dominion of Canada. We had taught them a lesson and ourselves learned the great lesson of self reliance. We have learned that we can hold our own as far as securing a fair share of the world's trade is concerned.

HIS WORSHIP MAYOR RUSH.
Who made an excellent chairman at the citizens' banquet.

"There was another lesson that we learned," said Sir Frederick, "and that is the lesson which we learned when we awoke one morning in the autumn of 1899, with a feeling that we owed a duty to the Mother Country and to ourselves to assist the Mother Country in defending herself and maintaining her supremacy in South Africa."

"The position which we took at that time," Sir Frederick continued, "improved the good feeling that had always existed between the Mother Country and Canada, and it showed to the nations of the world that the resources of Great Britain were beyond the resources of any other country on the face of the earth. I believe that that act of ours had much to do with the prosperity that has marked our national life ever since."

"We hear sometimes about Imperialism," continued Sir Frederick, "although not as much now as a few years ago. Imperial federation was largely the talk then. I am not here to say that something should be done towards drawing the units of the empire closer, but it will be done as a result of the operation of that bond of respect, of affection and of common interest and in the meantime while we are waiting for this development let us prepare to do our share when the time comes. When the Canadian troops left for South Africa Canada had suddenly awakened to a sense of her responsibility and her share in empire building. Nearly 10,000 of her sons had gone to fight and uphold the supremacy of the British Empire, and they had done their duty well.

Let us be ready to do something, and when the time comes let us do it and let us begin to protect that which now ours, the integrity of this country, which belongs to us, and which we love. Preparations for defence should begin at home. I am content to leave the navy in the hands of those who for two hundred years have ruled the world and shown that they know how to run a navy. Let us continue to do what we have done. A few years ago Great Britain was spending from a million and a half to two millions for the maintenance of garrisons in Canada and without a dissenting voice. Canada agreed. Canada insisted to be allowed the privilege of relieving the Mother Country from the expenditure of that million and a half to garrison Canada. That one act has probably increased the expenditure of Canada two million dollars per year and we are all pleased to do it. I want to see a condition of things brought about gradually by which every able-bodied physically fit young man should be trained to defend his country, or taking the further step of going forward to aid in the defence of the British Empire. Is not that a laudable ambition for every man born in Canada, or who has made Canada his home?

The more countries we draw our population from the greater the responsibility becomes."

Sir Frederick concluded by making a strong plea for a citizen soldiery. Canada at the present time had not one more officer or one more man than was required.

The Minister resumed his seat amid hearty applause.

Mr. W. McIlroy favored the gathering with an excellent selection, "War War, War," which was given in splendid manner.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Mr. Burnham proposed the toast, of the "House of Commons," coupling with it the name of Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P. He referred in kindly terms to Mr. Hall and thanked the eloquent and learned guest of the evening for his reference to the fact that a reasonable degree of protection had been Canada's answer to American exclusiveness and had thus proved the indirect means of diverting our trade and attention to the mother country. It thus had also proved, the speaker said, the noblest afternoon and at the gathering in the evening to do honor to the distinguished guest. As the proposer of the toast had said, a splendid building had grown up beside the new armouries for the purpose of training the youth of the country mentally. The armouries had been given for the purpose of training the young men of the country to defend their native land.

Mr. W. S. Davidson sang "Harrison" and had to give an encore, making another great hit.

PETERBOROUGH GARRISON

The Peterborough Garrison was pro

Majors Young and Johnston also de excellent speeches.

Mr John Crane sang a solo with cellent effect and the banquet was ought to a close with the singing the National Anthem and Auld ng Syne and three cheers for the airman and Sir Frederick Borden.

Owing to Sir Frederick Borden hav- g to leave for Ottawa on the mid- ght train the last toast on the list, Our Municipal Institutions," had to omitted. It was to have been pro- osed by Mr. D. O'Connell and res- onded to by Mayor Rush, Ald. Elliott d Ald. Phelan.

Miss Kate Graham acted as accom- nist during the evening in her usu- excellent manner.

EIGHTEEN ARE SHOT DEAD; THE LEADERS ARE EXECUTED

Attempt to Assassinate President Cabrera is Visited by Drastic Punishment—More Death Penalties to Follow—New Plots Have Been Hatched.

Guatemala City, Guatemala, April 24.—President Cabrera himself is authority for the statement that 18 of the ringleaders in a conspiracy against him already have been shot to death and that probably more executions will follow.

President Cabrera, against whose life an attempt was made by students on Monday last, yesterday received the representatives of the various powers and made a lengthy statement to them that he had unearthed an extensive conspiracy against him, that led up to his attempted assassination. He declared that 18 of the leaders had been executed by his orders and that the death penalty would be meted out to others already in the hands of the military.

Among these are the men who were imprisoned a year ago, having been implicated in a plot to assassinate the President. They were sentenced to death soon after their arrest, but the sentence had not been carried out. President Cabrera said that he had proof that a majority of these prisoners were implicated in the new attempt against his life and that they would be executed without delay.

The President has issued a proclamation stating that he is confident the people are with him and that he will preserve order with a strong hand.

Although there is a surface tranquility here, conditions really are serious. The military is in control of the city and a partial suspension of business has resulted. The revolutionary feeling is strong in many quarters.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO DEAD STATESMAN

Was Faithful Servant Says King Edward of the Late Campbell-Bannerman.

London, April 24.—"He was the faithful servant of his country; I am truly sorry he has gone," is the expression of King Edward, used on hearing at Copenhagen of the death of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, and it expresses the deep feeling of regret, as for a personal loss, underlying the tributes given in ungrudging measures by public men and newspapers of all shades of opinion.

The Chronicle in an editorial yesterday morning says:

"He was one of the examples our public life often affords of the dominance of character. It was by force of character rather than by intellectual genius or emotional fervor that he led his party to unprecedented victory."

Gen. Louis Botha, Premier of the Transvaal, telegraphed a warm tribute, saying:

"The Empire loses one of its wisest men and the Transvaal one of its truest friends. In securing self-government for the new colonies he raised an imperishable monument to himself and laid the foundation of a united South Africa."

Almost all the morning papers recall as one of the most striking successes of Sir Henry's political career and the triumph of the tact, the manner in which he secured the resignation of the late Duke of Cambridge as commander-in-chief of the army.

Children's Horrible Death.

Lunenburg, N.S., April 24.—Report of a horrible accident comes from West Lahave Ferry, where two little daughters of Henry Pernette, aged 9 and 11 years, went together for mayflowers.

There is a sawmill in the vicinity, and the children were in the habit of taking a short cut under the wheel when the mill was idle, to shorten the distance.

On this occasion the father warned them not to go in that direction, as the mill was to be set going.

The children did not heed the warning, and when they were half way under the wheel started.

The mill men noticing an obstruction stopped the machinery and found the little ones crushed beyond recognition.

Kicked by a Horse.

Kingston, April 24.—Albert Fegg, an aged man, was frightfully injured yesterday by being kicked in the face by a horse, and his recovery is doubtful. When entering the stall the animal kicked at him, one foot giving him a terrific blow in the face. The force of the blow turned him around and before he could steady himself the animal kicked him on the shoulder and he fell senseless. His right shoulder was fractured and the face terribly lacerated.

Hands Blown Off.

Winnipeg, April 24.—Frank Foul[illegible], a young man employed on double-tracking operations between Kenora and Port William, had his hands blown off Wednesday through his own carelessness.

He was sent to light a fuse and before leaving to do so lit a cigarette. While the fuse was being handled, a spark from the cigarette fell on it, when it burst in his hands.

Cabinet Minister Re-elected.

London, April 24.—Walter Runciman, the first of Mr. Asquith's new Ministers to submit to an electoral contest, was re-elected for Dewsburg yesterday by a majority of 1,148, as compared with a majority of 3,810 received by him in 1906 against the same opponent, W. P. Boyd-Carpenter, Unionist.

Mr. Runciman is President of the Board of Education.

Acquitted of Manslaughter.

Montreal, April 24.—Joseph La[illegible], accused of manslaughter of William Kaiser on March 29, by poking his umbrella into Kaiser's brain through the eye during a fight on a street car, was acquitted yesterday.

Arrested For Passing Checks.

St. Catharines, April 24.—Arthur [illegible], who attempted to pass two bogus checks on the agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, and also on the Sterling Bank at Jordan on Wednesday, is now in the county jail.

SERIOUS CHARGE HAS BEEN LAID

Against Victoria Doctors as Result of Alleged Criminal Operation.

Victoria, April 24.—The court was crowded yesterday when Dr. Garesche, dentist, charged with procuring an abortion, and Dr. Carter, charged with a criminal operation on a 17-year-old girl, Miss Kitty G. McIntosh, who worked in the dentist's office, came up for a hearing. Three weeks later the girl was taken violently ill and Dr. Frank Hall was called. He refused to have anything to do with the case until told who was responsible and who operated. Then it required great skill and care to save the girl's life.

Negotiations for a settlement followed, which involve the Medical Council and Legal Society. A solicitor was advised and through his efforts $750 was accepted from Garesche. It appears the solicitor also brought the matter to the attention of the police commissioners, advising them to take no public action. The case was adjourned till Monday. Both men are out on $10,000 bail.

SENT MESSAGE ON KITE.

Suffragettes Hit on Novel Way of Reaching M.P.'s.

The suffragists recently completely baffled the whole of the police force at Westminster and succeeded in addressing both Houses of Parliament.

Shortly before the Commons met at noon, two women arrived at Vine wharf, at the foot of Lambeth bridge, with three parcels containing one mile of strong string, a blue and white war kite and a huge yellow flag, on which was printed in bold black letters: "Votes for Women; Albert Hall, March 19."

As Big Ben boomed the hour a mere man, who had been impressed for the service, as suffragists cannot fly war kites, ascended to a roof in the wharf and sent the kite and flag on its journey toward the Victoria Tower, a quarter of a mile away.

First it sailed boldly over the ventilating shaft, then played in the wind in front of the terrace, next dominated Palace yard and was finally manoeuvered to attract attention all around the palace of Westminster.

It was not long before the police were on the alert and the inspector at Palace yard in consultation as to how this "breach of privilege" should be dealt with. Crowds of Westminster schoolboys came to see the flag. Members of Parliament sallied out to the terrace to read it. Passers-by laughed, and the suffragists, a quarter of a mile away, smiled at their victory.

"We wanted to speak to the House quietly," said one of them. "This is our latest way of doing so, and we shall tell Parliament frequently now of our views in this way, as it is such a success."

After three hours the police "had no orders." A wag in the crowd suggested the kite should be shot; another thought it ought to be "arrested." An officer made inquiries, but the string was not tracked to its lair, and finally the suffragists retired, having achieved their purpose.

Church Built by Potatoes.

The little village of Virganhall, in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, possesses a Free Church (now United Free) which has a rather interesting history.

After the Disruption, considerable difficulty was experienced by the adherents of the Free Church in procuring a central site on which to build a church. A woman named Janet Fraser, who lived in very humble circumstances, gallantly came to the rescue. She owned a piece of ground on which she reared potatoes and other vegetables, and this she generously handed over to the Disruptionists for the aforementioned purpose.

The deed of gift is in her own handwriting, and the wording was characteristic of the donor. "The deed of gift is to be as free from henceforth to the Free Church as I wish the heavenly mansions to be made to me, and to last the property of the Free Church while sun, moon, and stars endure. Signed by my hand this 18th day of August, 1845."

PREMIER GIVES EXPLANATION OF THE IMMIGRATION POLICY

To Build up Canada, he Says—Debate on Mr. Monk's Resolution—Land Grant Should be Sufficient Inducement to Right Class—Contracts for Dredging Brought Down—Release of Doukhobors—Mr. Aylesworth Explains.

Ottawa, April 24.—Replying to Mr. R. L. Borden in the House yesterday afternoon Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that he had received a telegram from British Ambassador Bryce, who said he had sent the new British-American treaty to the Colonial Office and asked, if it was acceptable to the Government, to have a copy sent direct. Sir Wilfrid answered in the affirmative.

Referring to the creation of a new office of secretary of imperial and foreign correspondence, Dr. Sproule asked for a statement as to the functions of the diplomat, and whether he would take over some of the duties now performed by the Secretary of State and the Prime Minister's office.

The Prime Minister promised to bring down the order-in-council. Mr. Mackenzie had been appointed clerk of imperial and foreign correspondence and would be attached to the office of the Privy Council. His duties would be to classify, keep and deal with this correspondence which had grown to be voluminous.

Col. Sam Hughes read a letter from a correspondent who declared a recent accident on the I.C.R. was due to rotten ties.

The Minister of Railways declared that the I.C.R. was not immune from accidents, but the roadbed of the I.C.R. was equal to any in the world. Mr. Graham asked for the name of the writer.

"I assume the responsibility for anything I read in this House and I think my name will carry as much weight as that of the Minister of Railways," put in the colonel.

"That is not what Gen. Hutton thinks," was the observation of Col. Talbot.

Mr. Owen (Northumberland) caused merriment by hurling the following query at the Prime Minister:

"Is it the intention of the Government to come to the rescue of the woollen manufacturings by way of specific duties?"

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was unable, he was sorry to say, to give a specific answer to-day.

Answering Mr. Ganong, the Minister of Customs said 3,538,501 pounds of glucose were imported from Great Britain in 1907-08, the value being $72,583.

Mr. Oliver told Mr. Lennox that the appropriation for seed grain would not be diverted from the purpose for which it was voted.

Sir Frederick Borden said he was getting a report on the safety of the Dufferin Terrace, in view of the tercentenary celebration in Quebec in July.

The Minister of Justice gave a reply to Mr. Lake's question as to what disposition would be made of the 19 Doukhobors sentenced at Fort William for a crime against decency. On April 14 the inspector of prisons and hospitals of Ontario waited on him, bringing a letter from the Deputy Attorney-General. It was pointed out that there was no room in the Central Prison or the Fort William jail for the prisoners, and that the best course would be to pardon them. The Minister replied that it would be necessary to enquire the views of the convicting magistrate and a report was telegraphed for.

The other telegram asking the magistrate to "Report pardon" was not sent by Mr. Aylesworth or his deputy. A report was received by mail and the release of the prisoners was directed. It was intended to send them back to Saskatchewan. The Government does not undertake to recognize any responsibility for their good behavior.

Mr. Pugsley yesterday tabled the order-in-council which proposed to renew contracts for dredging at last year's prices. The order was rescinded after a stormy debate in the House precipitated by Mr. Bennett. The proposed renewals were:

Lunenburg and Mahone Bay, N.S.: The W. J. Poupore Co., $5 per cubic yard for rock, and 40 cents at Lunenburg, and 45 cents per cubic yard at Mahone for all other materials.

Hamilton: W. E. Phin, $2 for rock, 12 cents other.

Midland: The Canadian Dredging & Construction Co., $2.25 and 28 cents.

Point Edward: [illegible] & Co., 50 cents and 13 cents.

Tiffin Harbor, Ont.: Owen Sound Dredging & Construction Co., $2 rock, 27 cents other.

Victoria Harbor, Ont.: Owen Sound Dredging & Construction Co., $2 rock, 3 cents other.

Penetanguishene: A. F. Bowman, $2 rock, 14 cents other.

Waubaushene: A. F. Bowman, $2 rock, 20 cents other.

Wiarton and Owen Sound: A. F. Bowman, $2 rock, 20 cents other.

Toronto: The Windsor Dredging Co.: $4 rock, 13 1-2 cents other.

In recommending the renewals the Minister stated that work on each had been prosecuted satisfactorily, and good progress made. It was impossible, however, for the contractors to complete during the season the full amount of dredging required, and there remains further work to be done during the coming season at each of the above-named places for the execution of which arrangements should now be made.

That the contractors have on the sites all the necessary plants to continue the work, and can start operations as weather conditions permit. They have acquired a knowledge of the localities where the further dredging is to be performed, and experience in the work itself. It is, therefore, considered that they are in a better position than others to carry out this further work expeditiously, and to the satisfaction of the Department of Public Works: That it was provided in the contracts entered into that the contractors should vigorously and regularly carry on and prosecute said works so as to insure their completion on or before the close of navigation last season, or to such day or date as might be determined by the Minister of Public Works; that the contractors are prepared to do this at the same prices as for last season's work, which prices the chief engineer of the Department of Public Works reported to be fair and reasonable. For these reasons the Minister recommended the extension of the contract to cover the season of 1908.

The House sat till after midnight this morning to finish up the immigration debate precipitated before the Easter vacation by Mr. Monk, who moved a resolution condemning the bonus system.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke at more than usual length, taking the view that without immigration the country must become stagnant, moreover, he claimed that the present prosperity was due to the aggressive immigration policy of the present Government.

Other speakers were Mr. Borden, Mr. Cockshutt, Mr. Smith (Nanaimo). Not one of the western members of the Opposition was heard, while the only Quebec Government members who spoke were Lavergne, Verville and Robitaille, all of whom supported Mr. Monk's resolution.

The vote was taken at 12.30: yeas [illegible]

WHOLE REGIMENT WILL LIKELY GO

Pleasing News for Members of the 57th Regiment—New Regulation From Ottawa Does Away With the Trouble Over the 50 per cent.

An Ottawa despatch says:

Twenty-seven thousand officers and men will be the representation of Canada's militia at the Quebec Tercentenary, July 19th to 31st. This is 5000 more than the first estimate made by the military authorities. The orders governing the military at the celebration were received in Toronto yesteray afternoon and are of special interest to the officers and men of the city and rural corps. All qualified and warrant officers as well as the brigade and divisional staffs have been ordered to take part. It is especially stated that no provisional officer can attend. Rural battalions will be permitted to take a band of twenty and 50 per cent. of their establishment of men who have served their training three years and more.

With the city corps it is provided that they must make their choice of two alternatives which are given them. The first is that they may take their band, their officers and 50 per cent of their establishment and receive at least eight days' pay or perhaps more, and subsistence while away as well as their transport. The second is that they may take their full establishment and obtain transportation and subsistence for all but they will only draw pay for four days. Each infantry regiment will in addition be allowed to take five buglers, who, it is stipulated must be included in the 50 per cent of their establishment. This also applies to the artillery and cavalry who will only be allowed not more than three buglers.

These arrangements have just been made after a number of conferences between the Militia Department and the representatives of the railways. The Celebration Commission, it is understood had a conference with the railway officials last week in Montreal, and the outcome is a well thought out plan which will remove any difficulties in the way of transporting the troops, which at one time threatened to interfere to some extent with the success of the celebration.

Several officers of the 57th Regiment when spoken to regarding the proposition mentioned above to take the full establishment and draw only pay for four days spoke very favorably about it. They consider that it will be satisfactory in every way if the four days for which they will not be paid is not included in the annual training of the corps.

THREE YEAR OLD CHILD WAS LOST FOR SEVERAL HOURS

Little Clara Allin, the three-year-old daughter of Mrs. Allin of Drummond's Station, was lost here this morning for several hours, and caused her mother considerable anxiety. The child was finally located at the pottery on Crescent street.

Mrs. Allin with her son, about six years of age, and her little daughter, came to the city this morning from Drummond's Station. They went to Soden's bookstore, where Mrs. Allin purchased a writing tablet. She had her little girl by the hand until she took out her purse to pay for the article. Suddenly the child disappeared for when the mother turned to get her she was gone.

An immediate search was instituted, the police were notified and several others who had heard of the affair were on the lookout for the lost child. Mrs. Allin called at almost every store on George street, and went to the G.T.R. station, thinking probably she might have wandered down there. However, the little girl was not to be found. It was about 11.30 o'clock when Chief Roszel received a telephone message from the pottery on Crescent street stating that a little girl was down there. Her description answered that of the lost child. She was dressed in a fawn coat, with a brown bonnet faced with pale blue.

The little one at the pottery was none other than Clara Allin, and the joy of her mother can well be imagined when she knew that her child had been found. The youngster had wandered down George street and walked into the pottery.

TUG BROKE ICE WOMAN DROWNED

And Now Her Father Wants $500 For Damages

Brockville, April 24.—An interesting case was on trial here before Hon. Justice Magee and a jury, being an action brought by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pennock of Gananoque, against Mitchell and Wilson of the same place, to recover damages for negligence, which resulted in the death of their daughter on Dec. 19, 1906.

The defendants are contractors and builders and the owners of a tug boat and scow plying the St. Lawrence. They arrived at Gananoque with the scow from Brockville and tied up their craft. They broke their way through nine inches of ice and two days after the deceased young lady, skating with Lionel Berry, went on and through the ice. Both were precipitated into the water, but Berry was saved and Miss Pennock drowned. The defendants, after breaking the ice, failed to protect this aperture and on this point damages were asked. The leading witness for the defence was Capt. Lashay, whose evidence was mainly to the point that Miss Pennock and Berry skated into an ice-hole. The space through which they went in was four feet square and within a few inches the morning after the drowning a horse could have stood on the ice where the boats had been previously pulled through to the dock.

At one o'clock yesterday morning, after six hours' deliberation, the jury awarded the plaintiff $500 damages.

Never Feared Kitchener.

Sir Percy Girouard, the high commissioner of northern Nigeria, who has arrived home for a holiday, is the most brilliant of all Lord Kitchener's brilliant young men. Moreover, he is the only one of them who is said to have never been afraid of his chief. On one occasion, in Egypt, the general thought a railway was getting on too slowly.

"You must go quicker," said Lord Kitchener.

"I can't," replied Girouard, "I am not being properly supplied with materials."

"I have no use for a man who says can't," returned the general, and he sent Girouard to Cairo. Within a week he recalled Girouard, and admitted he was wrong.

Sir Percy Girouard has since been recognized as the greatest railway engineer the army has ever produced. He began young, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and at 23 he was traffic manager of the royal arsenal at Woolwich, where Kitchener spotted him as being just the man he wanted for the construction of the Soudan railway.

Girouard laid a most wonderful line across five hundred miles of desert for the advance to Khartoum, in spite of constant harassing from the enemy.

ASQUITH IS NOT TRUSTED BY THE IRISH NATIONALISTS

Signs of Restlessness in the Irish Party—Tangle of Land Act Finance—Will Attack Churchill's Candidature in Manchester.

Dublin, April 24.—The change of Prime Ministers is likely to have important consequences on the political situation in Ireland. H. H. Asquith, the new Premier, is not trusted by the Nationalists and his accession to office is giving rise to a restlessness similar to that which followed the resignation of the Irish Councils Bill. Some of the junior members of the Irish party are eager for a campaign of actual opposition to be opened by an attack on Winston Churchill's candidature at Manchester. The more experienced members, however, are in favor of giving Mr. Asquith a trial. The position is complicated by the production of the University Bill, which is generally approved in Ireland, and which the more solid elements of politics are anxious not to imperil. The tangle of the Land Act finance has also to be unraveled before a forward movement on the National question can be safely undertaken.

Meantime William O'Brien is about to summon a new conference on the land question, with Gen. Sir William Butler as chairman. The report of the congested districts commission is ready for publication. Sir Anthony MacDonnell's recommendations have been rejected by the majority of the committee and in consequence he is resigning his position as Under-Secretary for Ireland. It is possible he may be rewarded by a peerage for his services in India and Ireland, and as he is without an heir and the honor would be merely a life peerage, he will be succeeded by Sir James Dougherty, Assistant Under-Secretary, an Ulster Gladstonian Liberal and Presbyterian. The Sinn Fein party is endeavoring to make political capital out of the Asquith succession, urging it as a proof of the failure of Parliamentarianism. The production of the University Bill and the expected land legislation, however, hampers their campaign, as the measures will be generally accepted as sufficiently profitable results of the year's work of the Irish party.

News of the detention of a shipment of Scotch whisky by the customs officials of New York, on the ground that the labels do not disclose the presence of coloring matter, has dropped like a bombshell among the Scotch distillers and has aroused much ire. Representatives of the distillers visited the Foreign Office here yesterday afternoon and brought the matter to the urgent attention of the officials. Later it was declared that instructions have been cabled to James Bryce, the British Ambassador at Washington, in the premises.

HE HAS NOT YET BEEN CAPTURED

Man Supposed to be Fugitive Soldier Seen at Ingersoll.

Woodstock, April 24.—While police officers and sleuths are busy searching the country in the neighborhood of Goderich and Stratford for trace of Pte. Moir, the cowardly murderer of Col.-Sergt. Lloyd, it is probable that the notorious fugitive is at present hiding somewhere in the County of Oxford.

A man, answering in every detail to Moir, was found in the Noxon building engine house in Ingersoll by Watchman Meikle yesterday morning at about 6 o'clock. The fellow was travel-worn and said in a Scotch accent that he wanted to get warm. He got out of the building as quickly as possible and struck for the G.T.R. tracks. Wednesday the same man, according to the description, was in the vicinity of the Village of Maplewood. He begged for food from several farmers.

Family Lost In Prairie Fire.

Battleford, Sask., April 24.—Miss Anna Matthews is the only survivor of a family of five as the result of prairie fires in the Tramping Lake district.

The father went to fight flames which were sweeping down on their little home and perished in the attempt.

The house took fire, and Anna Mathews, 18 years of age, with her clothes ablaze, carried her five-year-old brother and sister to a place of safety and returned for her mother, but was to late.

The girl fought her way again through the sea of fire only to find the other children had wandered into the fire zone and perished.

To Remove Pulp Tariff.

Washington, April 24.—All of the members of the House of Representatives yesterday received telegrams from the publishers attending the annual meetings in New York of the Associated Press and the Newspaper Publishers' Association, urging action on the bill removing the tariff from print paper and wood pulp. In reply Hon. John Sharp Williams, the Democratic leader, sent the following:

"I join in your protest. Get the Speaker to recognize me or someone else to make a motion, and it will pass. It is up to him."

Robbers Held Up Club.

Hot Springs, Ark., April 24.—Four masked men with levelled revolvers entered the club-house of the Indiana Club, on Central avenue, early yesterday, forced the occupants to line up alongside the wall and looted the place of $10,000.

The occupants were then locked in a room and the robbers escaped.

Gen. Linevitch Dead.

St. Petersburg, April 13.—Lieut.-Gen. Linevitch, aide-de-camp to Emperor Nicholas, and commander of the first Manchurian army, died from pneumonia last evening. He had been ill for a little over a week, and on several occasions his symptoms were of heart failure, which manifested itself. On Tuesday he had an attack, from which he recovered satisfactorily, but Wednesday it was found necessary to perform an operation, after which the patient gradually became weaker.

Financier Kills Himself.

Paris, April 24.—Fritz Perrugia, brother-in-law of Leopold de Rothschild, who is prominently identified with the Anglo-Jewish Association of London, committed suicide yesterday in his apartments at the Grand Hotel here.

Douks May Come East.

Port Arthur, April 24.—The 50 Doukhobors in Fort William are likely to leave on a continuation of their pilgrimage towards the east in search of a promised land any day now.

To-morrow night ends the big walking tournament.

THE AFGHANS ARE WARLIKE

Several Thousand Hillsmen May Resist a British Force.

Simla, April 24.—A mixed force of British and Indian troops is at present being rapidly mobilised near Peshawur for another punitive expedition against the fanatical tribes who recently have been raiding and looting villages on the Peshawur border.

Ten thousand Rohmanis are gathered at Kamali, twenty miles from Peshawur, and several thousand Afghans are said to have crossed the Kabul River to join the malcontents. Officials of the Ameer of Afghanistan are apparently making no effort to check this movement.

The British force now being organized near Peshawur will be commanded by Sir James Willcocks, who stamped out the recent Zakkakhel uprising.

Use Subsidies For Mines.

Ottawa, April 24.—The mayor of Sudbury with representatives of the people of Manitoulin Island protested in the Commons Railway Committee against the renewal from year to year of the charter rights of the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway Co. to build a line from Sudbury to Little Current and across to Manitoulin Island.

This charter is controlled by the Lake Superior Corporation and the charge was made that the promoters have merely been using the Government subsidies in their iron mines instead of fulfilling the obligations they had assumed to the people.

As things were, property values on the island were rapidly falling, and no less than 200 families had left one village in the last two years.

Senate Considered Boundary Treaty.

Washington, April 24.—The Senate considered in executive session the Canadian boundary treaty, but no agreement could be reached concerning it.

It provided for the re-affirmation of the established boundaries and the marking of the line.

Senator Heyburn opposed ratification of the treaty on the ground that there has been some misunderstanding of the line in the northwest.

Ordered Five Battleships.

London, April 24.—The Russian Government, according to a trade journal, has ordered five warships, each one to be larger than the Dreadnought, from a firm of Clyde shipbuilders.

Ate Poisoned Salmon.

Welland, April 24.—The three daughters of George Sears of the Welland telegraph staff, were poisoned by ptomaine through eating canned salmon and made seriously ill.

Passed Bucket Shop Bill.

Albany, N.Y., April 24.—The bill making it a felony to conduct a bucket-shop was passed yesterday by a party vote in the Assembly. It now goes to the governor.

Stole Registered Mail.

Edmonton, April 24.—A bag containing registered letters was stolen on its arrival on the Winnipeg train.

Poisoned by Wild Parsnips.

Kittaning, Pa., April 24.—Two sons of Jacob Garuer, aged 10 and 12 years, were found dead in a field at Hawthorne, near here, yesterday, death having been caused by eating wild parsnips.

Wanted Police to Shoot Him.

Cleveland, April 24.—George McLaughlin, a saloonkeeper, shot and fatally wounded his wife early yesterday. When arrested McLaughlin begged the officers to shoot him.

Tornado Hits Pender.

Omaha, Neb., April 24.—A tornado yesterday afternoon struck Pender, Neb. Returns are meagre, but two people are known to have been killed and several injured.

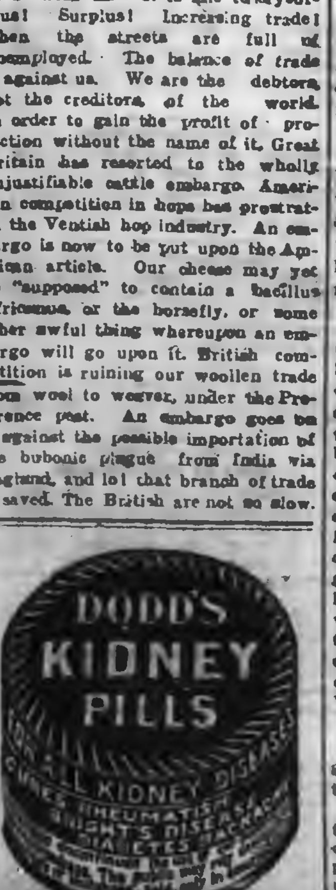
THE DECLINE OF FREE TRADE

Great Britain remained the stronghold of free trade from the forties to about the end of the nineteenth century. As mistress of trade and of the means of transportation of trade she could afford to ignore all plans for the readjustment of the world's trade. She did not desire its readjustment naturally. In the the course of time the U.S. began to rise on the western horizon. After a period of struggling youth the republic got its head above water and found the swimmer's stroke. Protection was the republic's schoolmaster. It taught while protecting it the art of developing national power and cohesion. Like the young pupil under the protection and tutelage of an experienced teacher, the republic gained in knowledge and self-reliance day by day. It ceased to be dependent upon foreign countries. Germany and France followlowed the example of the U.S. in high protection. The commercial equilibrium of the world began to change. The centre of gravity was perceptibly moving. This Great Britain soon began to realize. At first the branches of trade affected were small and not worthy of serious attention. As time passed the larger branches began to dry up and fall to earth. Great Britain is now fully alarmed. Free trade is no longer the same bulwark of her prosperity. It is necessary now to readjust. Readjustment or Tariff Reform is the movement of the hour. It is true her total trade has increased. But mere figures do not deceive the Britishers as they do ourselves. A prostrated, overtaxed nation with agriculture on its back, and its people fleeing from its shores are worth many times as a practical lesson even the Board of Trade returns and the therefore assumed prosperity of the kingdom. The balance of trade is turning against her. This, not the totality of her commerce, is the secret of her alarm. So ought it to be with us. It is idle to cry surplus! Surplus! Increasing trade! when the streets are full of unemployed. The balance of trade is against us. We are the debtors, not the creditors of the world. In order to gain the profit of protection without the name of it, Great Britain has resorted to the wholly unjustifiable cattle embargo. American competition in hops has prostrated the Ventish hop industry. An embargo is now to be put upon the American article. Our cheese may yet be "supposed" to contain a bacillus Africanus, or the horsefly, or some other awful thing whereupon an embargo will go upon it. British competition is ruining our woollen trade from wool to weaver, under the Preference pest. An embargo goes on it against the possible importation of the bubonic plague from India via England, and lo! that branch of trade is saved. The British are not so slow.



In America this is dubbed by the British sharp practice, but then, that is different, don't you know.

A MISTAKE

"A group of over a hundred persons on Ocean Boardwalk, near the Parkway Baths, at Brighton Beach, yesterday afternoon watched curiously while a young woman walked out from the shore on the breakwater which extends several hundred feet seaward at this point.

John W. Smith, the Secretary of the baths, and Frank Smith, a watchman, who were near at hand called to the girl to come back. They thought that she was merely foolhardy and did not realise her danger of falling into the water. The girl, however, paid no intention to them. Then Smith, closely followed by Miller, ran out on the breakwater after the girl

When they were within fifty feet of her the girl jumped into the water. Smith followed at once. For a moment he was in danger of being carried down by the girl. Miller, however, leaped into the water and was able to keep the struggling pair afloat until a rowboat, putting out from shore took all three aboard.

The girl was revived by Dr. Meaker of the Coney Island Reception Hospital. She said that she was Wilhelmina Ball, who had been discharged from her place as a domestic with a family in East 115th Street, Manhattan, because she had rheumatism and was unable to do her work properly. She had no friends in this country and so had tried to kill herself.—New York Times.

This girl who would have ended her life in so summary a way failed to remember that there are societies for taking care of just such as she in all cities of any magnitude. Had she asken to a policeman she would have found this out. Modern civilization is not so depraved as to leave no recourse to an otherwise friendless girl but suicide. Even in Peterborough, the Children's Aid Society has given and is always prepared to give shelter to any girl who for the moment is unable to find a place to settle down in. There is a vast deal of needless unhappiness in this world. There is much more kindness and goodfellowship in life than socialists and the like will admit to be. Victims are sometimes the victims of their own mistake. Unfortunately this is not always the case.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Verville and Mr Lavergue, Liberals from Quebec Province, joined the Opposition at Ottawa, in condemning the immigration bonus system.

Reports from all over Canada foreshadow an era of hard times. It is hardly possible to avoid such a contingency when waste and extravagance characterize the government of a country.

It cannot be admitted that when governments buy supplies from party supporters exclusively, they are observing the good free-trade rule of buying in the cheapest market.

Thus are our ideals shattered one by one. Thus are the days of unleavened bread returned again. Thus are the feet of our idols revealed to be of common mud. What can we do about it?

Poet Laureate Austin's recent verse almost makes one regret that his office is not subject to the spoils system.—Hamilton Herald

Some people are never satisfied. Kipling, the Imperial poet of an imperial," etc., etc., is getting hot too. "Kip," as the Yankees call him, is too busy building empires to waste time on little details like beating carpets and pushing the perambulator. One man can't do everything.

The Examiner clips a lengthy article from the Belleville Ontario in which it is made to appear that Sheriff Hope was virtually dismissed by the Whitney Government. Sheriff Hope was in no sense directly or indirectly dismissed, discharged or got rid of by the Whitney Government. He is an old man. His resignation was wholly of his own motion. Mr. Whitney has stated this explicitly and who disbelieves Mr. Whitney? Besides Sheriff Hope has never said that he was the victim of the Government. It is a whole cloth affair from beginning to end.

The Standard, of Kingston, takes us to task for saying that Mr. Mackay did not take the public into his confidence with respect to his salary as leader. A man must, if he aspires to represent the public, be above suspicion. If the Standard can assure us that Mr. Mackay is above suspicion, then we will withdraw our remarks. We always believe in playing fair, and if we have done Mr. Mackay a wrong, then up goes our hand. In that event, however, a list of the guarantors would be merely a matter of satisfaction to the public. "It is not for ourselves, but just so that the boys can't throw stones that we are." Who is the Standard anyhow?

The following is one of the latest gems from the Globe's "The Spirit of the Press."

Victoria Times.—The suggestion that the time has come for the imposition of a tax upon all immigrants is simply preposterous. Many years must pass ere the tide will rise so high that it will over-flow into and fill up British Columbia. We have room in this province alone for millions of people. We shall never reach the stage of development to which we look forward with confidence until we get them. Mr. Monk may mean well, but his vision is not large enough to take in the whole of Canada. The Province of Quebec is but a very small part of Canada.

Where would Canadians be if "millions" were to take advantage of this offer?

The Canada publishes an elaborate article by Mr. Victor Oliver on the political career of the Hon. Mr. Lemieux, showing his successful and useful work in the double capacity of Postmaster-General and Minister of Labor, and concluding with the following remarks on the secret of his success:—"The key to success with the Hon. Mr. Lemieux has been his love of study, a happy choice of the matters to be studied and of his friends, a sound judgment, the structest honesty and lofty ideals. He closely followed the example of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who is a great model. Like him he passes many nights with the British historians and parliamentarians, those great masters of constitutional doctrine. Like him he seeks light from British wisdom so imbued with the principle of equal justice for all, and while appropriating that wisdom, the Hon. Mr. Lemieux, like Sir Wilfrid, has borrowed from the masterpieces of France his intellectual and literary culture.—Montreal Witness.

It has been said frequently, especially of late, that Mr. Lemieux is to be the chosen successor of Sir Wilfrid Mr. Fielding is said to have displaced the French-Canadians with respect to the Autonomy Bill and is therefore not acceptable to them as a possible premier.

Le Canada's write-up looks that way.

AGONIZING PILES.

Cured by Zam-Buk

Mr. F. Astridge, of 3 St. Paul street, St. Catharines, Ont., says:—"For five years I suffered untold agony with protruding piles. No one knows the suffering one has to endure only those who are so unfortunate as to have them. The pain was so great at times I would almost scream. I went down in weight and had no appetite. I tried everything I heard of for piles, but got no relief. I went to several doctors but they would give me little hope of ever getting rid of them and I finally gave up in despair. One day a friend gave me a sample of Zam-Buk salve, and told me of someone who had been cured. I decided to try it, and the relief I got was encouraging. I bought a box and the piles kept on diminishing and the pain was getting less; I used three boxes and am now completely cured. I wish I could have got Zam-Buk years ago, it would have saved me a great deal of misery. One thousand dollars would be none too small an amount to give for such a cure as mine. I wish I could convince every sufferer of the value of Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk cures cuts, burns, chapped hands, cold sores, itch, ulcers, eczema, running sores, catarrh, piles, bad legs, abscesses, face sores, spring eruptions and all skin diseases. It is good good also for rheumatism, sciatica, etc., when well rubbed in. Of all druggists and stores, 50c., or from Zam-Buk, Co., Toronto.

MORE PAY FOR LOCAL NURSES

Will Charge $18 and $21 per Week in the Future—Meeting Was Held

The graduated nurses of the city have decided to raise their fees to $18 per week and $21 per week for contagious diseases. The former rates were $15 and $18 per week. The change was decided on at a meeting held last evening at which several schools were represented. The new rates will be in uniformity with those in surrounding towns and cities and will go into effect at once.

LAYING OF THE CORNER STONE

Excellent Photos of the Event on Exhibition in R. M. Roy's Window

The excellent photographs of the proceedings in connection with the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the new armouries in Mr. R. M. Roy's window are attracting much attention. They are remarkably fine and almost every feature of the programme of the day is photographed. Within two or three hours after the affair had taken place Mr. Roy had the photos out in his window. Each one is a clear and distinct likeness of the proceedings.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Easier—American Markets About Steady.

LONDON, April 23.—London cables are steady at 13c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 11c to 11¼c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, April 23.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market for Wednesday and Thursday, as reported by the railways, were 101 carloads, composed of 1539 cattle, 1809 hogs, 160 sheeps and yearling lambs, with about 100 spring lambs, and 493 calves of all descriptions.

Exporters.

A very few export steers were sold at prices ranging all the way from $5 to $6 per cwt., some of which were bought to kill for the local trade; export bulls sold at $4 to $5 per cwt.

Butchers.

Picked butchers, amongst which were cattle heavy enough for export, sold at $5.75 to $6; loads of good, $5.30 to $5.65; medium, $4.85 to $5.12½; good cows, at $4.25 to $4.60; common cows, $2.60 to $4; canners and rough cows, $1.50 to $3.25 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report fairly large receipts this week, especially the light stockers. If this class come in as freely next week they will suffer a decline unless outside buyers are more numerous. The 850 to 1100 pound steers are none too plentiful and this class will hold steady. Messrs. Murby bought about 350 head this week at the following quotations: Good steers, 1000 to 1100 lbs. each, at $4.75 to $5 per cwt.; good steers, 900 to 1000 lbs., each, at $4.25 to $4.75; good steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.90 to $4.25; good steers, 600 to 300 lbs each, at $3.25 to $3.90; light stockers, 400 to 600 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.25.

Veal Calves.

About 500 calves, principally of the dairy class, sold at lower prices, ranging from $2 to $5.25 per cwt. Choice new milk fed and properly finished calves, would bring $6 and probably $7 per cwt., but prices are weaker than at any time this season.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep and yearling lambs sold at lower prices, as the public have refused to use mutton at prohibitive prices. Export ewes were quoted by Wesley Dunn at $4.50 to $5 per cwt.; rams, $3.50 to $4.25; yearlings, at $6 to $7 per cwt.; spring lambs, $3 to $6.50 each.

Hogs.

There were 2409 hogs reported, of which 1800 were on the market. Mr. Harris quoted prices unchanged at $6.40 for selects and $6.15 for lights.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., April 23.—Cattle, steady; prime steers, $6.75 to $7.10.

Veals—Receipts, 230 head, active and 25c higher, $5 to $7.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 2800 head; slow and 10c lower; heavy and mixed, $5.90 to $6; yorkers, $5.80 to $6; pigs, $4.50 to $5.45; roughs, $4.90 to $5.10; stags, $3.75 to $4; dairies, $5.60 to $5.90.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 3400 head; active; sheep, steady; lambs, 10c higher; lambs, $5 to $7.50.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Beeves—Receipts, 377; no trading, feeling, steady. Exports, to-day, 84 cattle, 125 sheep and 1860 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 394; feeling, weak to 15c lower; all sold. Common to prime veals, $4 to $7; a few extra, $7.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2968, sheep, steady; lambs, firm to 10c higher. Sheep, $4.75 to $6; culls, $2.50; unshorn lambs, $8 to $8.50; spring lambs, at $5.50 to $6 per head.

Hogs—Receipts, 917; none on sale. Feeling lower on Buffalo and Pittsburg advices.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Cattle—Receipts, 6000; market steady; steers, $5 to $7.10; cows, $3.75 to $4.75; heifers, $3.50 to $6.75, bulls, $3.50 to $5.30; calves, $2.50 to $5.50; stockers and feeders, $2.25 to $5.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 17,000; market 5c to 10c lower; choice heavy spring, $5.60 to $5.75; butchers, $5.60 to $5.70; light mixed, $5.50 to $5.55; choice light, $5.50 to $5.65; packing, $4.85 to $5.60; pigs, $3.75 to $5.35; bulk of sales, $5.55 to $5.70.

Refused Operators' Scale.

Danville, Ill., April 24.—The miners refused to sign the scale presented by the Illinois operators yesterday and began preparation for a scale of their own, which will be presented to the operators. This scale will be an ultimatum. A strike will at once be declared upon the refusal of the operators to accede to the demands of the miners.

Tried to Blow Up Witness.

Oakland, Cal., April 24.—An attempt was made on the life of J. L. Gallagher, one of the main witnesses for the prosecution in the San Francisco bribery cases, at the home of his brother-in-law, when a huge bomb, placed in the porch, exploded and tore away the whole front of the house.

The Point Edward ferryboat was seized in Port Huron on a charge of taking foreigners into the States and Captain Glass was placed in jail.

STATIONERY STORE.

YOU ARE THE MAN WE WANT TO SHOE!

SOME MEN, who don't know, have an idea that all Shoes are alike. They think that when they pay $3.00, $3.50, $4.00 or $5.00 for a pair of Shoes that it doesn't make much difference where they buy them, that shoe is a shoe, and that's all there is to it.

These Men Are Mistaken

It's true that all shoe prices sound about the same, but there is as much difference in the shoes as there is in the men who wear them.

OUR MEN'S SHOES ARE THE CHOICE PRODUCT
Of the World's Best Shoe Makers

We select the best Shoes that the best makers turn out. There are no better Shoes than ours to be had anywhere.

If you've never worn our sort of Shoes, sir, suppose you test us this Spring We'll promise you the best Shoes for the money that ever covered your feet.

J. T. STENSON 364 GEORGE ST.

Beverly of Graustark

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark"

Copyright, 1904, by Dodd, Mead and Company

"If you call me 'your highness' again I'll despise you!" she flared miserably. "Another question: Is it true that the young Duke Christobal fled because his father objected to his marriage with a game warden's daughter?"

"I have never heard so," with a touch of hauteur.

"Does he know that the girl is dead?" she asked cruelly. Baldos did not answer for a long time. He stared at her steadily, his eyes expressing no emotion from which she could judge him.

"I think he is ignorant of that calamity, Miss Calhoun," he said. "With your permission I shall withdraw. There is nothing to be gained by delay." It was such a palpable affront that she shrank within herself and could have cried.

Without answering, she walked unsteadily to the window and looked out into the night. A mist came into her eyes. For many minutes she remained there, striving to regain control of her emotions. All this time she knew that he was standing just where she had left him, like a statue, awaiting her command. At last she faced him resolutely.

"You will receive instructions as to your duties here from the guard at the stairs. When you hear the hall clock strike the hour of 2 in the morning go into the chapel, but do not let any one see you or suspect. You know where it is. The door will be unlocked."

"Am I not to see you again?" he asked, and she did not think him properly depressed.

"Yes," she answered after a pause that seemed like an eternity, and he went quietly, silently away.

CHAPTER XXIV.

WHILE Baldos was standing guard in the long, lofty hallway the Iron Count was busy with the machinations which were calculated to result in a startling upheaval with the break of a new day. He prepared and swore to the charges preferred against Baldos. They were dispatched to the princess for her perusal in the morning. Then he set about preparing the vilest accusations against Beverly Calhoun. In his own handwriting and over his own signature he charged her with complicity in the betrayal of Graustark, influenced by the desires of the lover who masqueraded as her protege. At some length he dwelt upon the well laid plot of the spy and his accomplice. He told of their secret meetings, their outrages against the dignity of the court and their unmistakable animosity toward Graustark. For each and every count in his vicious indictment against the girl he professed to have absolute proof by means of more than one reputable witness.

It was not the design of Marlanx to present this document to the princess and her cabinet. He knew full well that it would meet the fate it deserved. It was intended for the eyes of Beverly Calhoun alone. By means of the vile accusations, false though they were, he hoped to terrorize her into submission. He longed to possess this lithe, beautiful creature from over the sea. In all his life he had not hungered for anything as he now craved Beverly Calhoun. He saw that his position in the army was rendered insecure by the events of the last day. A bold, vicious stroke was his only means for securing the prize he longed for more than he longed for honor and fame.

Restless and enraged, consumed by jealousy and fear, he hung about the castle grounds long after he had drawn the diabolical charges. He knew that Baldos was inside the castle, favored, while he, a noble of the realm, was relegated to ignominy and the promise of degradation. Encamped outside the city walls the army lay without a leader. Each hour saw the numbers augmented by the arrival of reserves from the districts of the principality. His place was out there with the staff, yet he could not drag himself away from the charmed circle in which his prey was sleeping. Morose and grim he anxiously paced to and fro in an obscure corner of the grounds.

"What keeps the scoundrel?" he said to himself angrily.

Presently a villainous looking man, dressed in the uniform of the guards, stealthily approached. "I missed him, general, but I will get him the next time," growled the man.

"Curse you for a fool!" hissed Marlanx through his teeth. As another hireling came up, "What have you got to say?"

The man reported that Baldos had been seen on the balcony alone, evidently on watch.

Marlanx ground his teeth and his blood stormed his reason. "The job must be done tonight. You have your instructions. Capture him if possible; but, if necessary, kill him. You know your fate if you fail." Marlanx actually grinned at the thought of the punishment he would mete out to them. "Now be off!"

Rashly he made his way to the castle front. A bright moon cast its mellow glow over the mass of stone outlined against the western sky. For an hour he glowered in the shade of the trees, giving but slight heed to the guards who passed from time to time. His eyes never left the enchanted balcony.

At last he saw the man. Baldos came from the door at the end of the balcony, paced the full length in the moonlight, paused for a moment near Beverly Calhoun's window and then disappeared through the same door that had afforded him egress.

Inside the dark castle the clock at the end of the hall melodiously boomed the hour of 2. Dead quiet followed the soft echoes of the gong. A tall figure stealthily opened the door to Yetive's chapel and stepped inside. There was a streak of moonlight through the clear window at the far end of the room. Baldos, his heart beating rapidly, stood still for a moment, awaiting the next move in the game. The ghostlike figure of a woman suddenly stood before him in the path of the moonbeam, a hooded figure in dark robes. He started as if confronted by the supernatural.

"Come," came in an agitated whisper, and he stepped to the side of the phantom. She turned, and the moonlight fell upon the face of Beverly Calhoun. "Don't speak. Follow me as quickly as you can."

He grasped her arm, bringing her to a standstill.

"I have changed my mind," he whispered in her ear. "Do you think I will run away and leave you to shoulder the blame for all this? On the balcony near your window an hour ago I"—

"It doesn't make any difference," she argued. "You have to go. I want you to go. If you knew just how I feel toward you you would go without a murmur."

"You mean that you hate me," he groaned.

"I wouldn't be so unkind as to say that," she fluttered. "I don't know who you are. Come, we can't delay a minute. I have a key to the gate at the other end of the passage, and I know where the secret panel is located. Hush! It doesn't matter where I got the key. See! See how easy it is!"

He felt her tense little fingers in the darkness searching for his. Their hands were icy cold when the clasp came. Together they stood in a niche of the wall near the chancel rail. It was dark, and a cold draft of air blew across their faces. He could not see, but there was proof enough that she had opened the secret panel in the wall and that the damp, chill air came from the underground passage which led to a point outside the city walls.

"You go first," she whispered nervously. "I'm afraid. There is a lantern on the steps, and I have some matches. We'll light it as soon as— Oh, what was that?"

"Don't be frightened," he said. "I think it was a rat."

"Good gracious!" she gasped. "I wouldn't go in there for the world."

"Do you mean to say that you intended to do so?" he asked eagerly.

"Certainly. Some one has to return the key to the outer gate. Oh, I suppose I'll have to go in. You'll keep them off, won't you?" plaintively. He was smiling in the darkness, thinking what a dear, whimsical thing she was.

"With my life," he said softly.

"They're ten times worse than lions," she announced.

"You must not forget that you return alone," he said triumphantly.

"But I'll have the lantern going full blast," she said and then allowed him to lead her into the narrow passageway. She closed the panel and then felt about with her foot until it located the lantern. In a minute they had a light. "Now, don't be afraid," she said encouragingly. He laughed in pure delight. She misunderstood his mirth and was conscious of a new and an almost unendurable pang. He was filled with exhilaration over the prospect of escape! Somehow she felt an impulse to throw her arms about him and drag him back into the chapel in spite of the ghost of the game warden's daughter.

"What is to prevent me from taking you with me?" he said intensely, a mighty longing in his breast. She laughed, but drew back uneasily.

"And live unhappily ever afterward?" said she. "Oh, dear me! Isn't this a funny proceeding? Just think of me, Beverly Calhoun, being mixed up in schemes and plots and intrigues and all that! It seems like a great big dream. And that reminds me—you will find a rain coat at the foot of the steps. I couldn't get other clothes for you, so you'll have to wear the uniform. There's a stiff hat of Mr. Lorry's also. You've no idea how difficult it is for a girl to collect clothes for a man. There doesn't seem to be any real excuse for it, you know. Goodness, it looks black ahead there, doesn't it? I hate underground things. They're so damp and all that. How far is it, do you suppose, to the door in the wall?" She was chattering on, simply to keep up her courage and to make her fairest show of composure.

"It's a little more than 300 yards," he replied. They were advancing through the low, narrow stone lined passage. She steadfastly ignored the hand he held back for support. It was not a pleasant place, this underground way to the outside world. The walls were damp and moldy; the odor of the rank earth assailed the nostrils; the air was chill and deathlike.

"How do you know?" she demanded quickly.

"I have traversed the passage before, Miss Calhoun," he replied. She stopped like one paralyzed, her eyes wide and incredulous. "Frans was my guide from the outer gate into the chapel. It is easy enough to get outside the walls, but extremely difficult to return," he went on easily.

"You mean to say that you have been in and out by way of this passage? Then, what was your object, sir?" she demanded sternly.

"My desire to communicate with friends who could not enter the city. Will it interest you if I say that the particular object of my concern was a young woman?"

She gasped and was stubbornly silent for a long time. Bitter resentment filled her soul, bitter disappointment in this young man. "A young woman!" he had said, oh, so insolently! There could be but one inference, one conclusion. The realization of it settled one point in her mind forever.

"It wouldn't interest me in the least. I don't even care who she was. Permit me to wish you much joy with her. Why don't you go on?" irritably, forgetting that it was she who delayed progress. His smile was invisible in the blackness above the lantern. There were no words spoken until after they had reached the little door in the wall.

Here the passage was wider. There were casks and chests on the floor, evidently containing articles that required instant removal from Edelweiss in case of an emergency.

"Who was that woman?" she asked at last. The key to the door was in the nervous little hand.

"One very near and dear to me, Miss Calhoun. That's all I can say at this time."

"Well, this is the only time you will have the chance," she cried loftily. "Here we part. Hush!" she whispered, involuntarily grasping his arm. "I think I heard a step. Can any one be following us?" They stopped and listened. It was as still as a tomb.

"It must be the same old rat," he answered jokingly. She was too nervous for any pleasantries and, releasing her hold on his arm, said timidly, "Goodby!"

"Am I to go in this manner? Have you no kind word for me? I love you better than my soul. It is of small consequence to you, I know, but I crave one forgiving word. It may be the last." He clasped her hand, and she did not withdraw it. Her lips were trembling, but her eyes were brave and obstinate. Suddenly she sat down upon one of the chests. If he had not told her of the other woman!

"Forgive me instead, for all that I have brought you to," she murmured. "It was all my fault. I shall never forget you or forgive myself. I—I am going back to Washin'ton immediately. I can't bear to stay here now. Goodby, and God bless you. Do—do you think we shall ever see each other again?" Unconsciously she was clinging to his hand. There were tears in the gray eyes that looked pathetically down there in the grewsome passageway with the fitful rays of the lantern lighting her face. Only the strictest self control kept him from seizing her in his arms, for something told him that she would have surrendered.

"This is the end, I fear," he said, with grim persistence. She caught her breath in half a sob. Then she arose resolutely, although her knees trembled shamelessly.

"Well, then, goodby," she said very steadily. "You are free to go where and to whom you like. Think of me once in awhile, Baldos. Here's the key. Hurry! I—I can't stand it much longer!" She was ready to break down, and he saw it, but he made no sign.

Turning the key in the rusty lock, he cautiously opened the door. The moonlit world lay beyond. A warm, intoxicating breath of fresh air came in upon them. He suddenly stooped and kissed her hand.

"Forgive me for having annoyed you with my poor love," he said as he stood in the door, looking into the night beyond.

"All—all right," she choked out as she started to close the door after him.

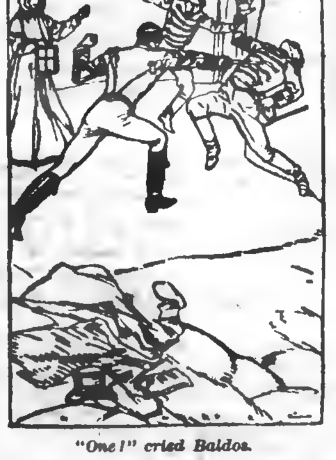
"Halt! You are our prisoner!"

The words rang out sharply in the silence of the night. Instinctively Beverly made an attempt to close the door, but she was too late. Two burly, villainous looking men, sword in hand, blocked the exit and advanced upon them.

"Back! Back!" Baldos shouted to Beverly, drawing his sword.

Like a flash she picked up the lantern and sprang out of his way. Capture or worse seemed certain, but her heart did not fail her.

"Put up your sword! You are under arrest!" came from the foremost of the two. He had heard enough of Baldos' skill with the sword to hope that the ruse might be successful and that he would surrender peaceably to numbers.



"One!" cried Baldos.

The men's instructions were to take their quarry alive if possible. The reward for the man living exceeded that for him dead.

Baldos instantly recognized them as spies employed by Marlanx. They had been dogging his footsteps for days and even had tried to murder him. The desire for vengeance was working like madness in his blood. He was overjoyed at having them at the point of his sword. Beverly's presence vouchsafed that he would show little mercy.

"Arrest me, you cowardly curs!" he exclaimed. "Never!" With a spring to one side he quickly overturned one of the casks, and, pushing it in front of him, it served as a rolling bulwark, preventing a joint attack.

"You first!" he cried coolly as his sword met that of the leader. The unhappy wretch was no match for the finest swordsman in Graustark. He made a few desperate attemps to ward off his inevitable fate, calling loudly for his comrade to aid him. The latter was eager enough, but Baldos' strategic roll of the cask effectively prevented him from taking a hand. With a vicious thrust the blade of the goat hunter tore clean through the man's chest and touched the wall behind.

"One!" cried Baldos, gloating in the chance that had come to him. The man gasped and fell. He was none too quick in withdrawing his dripping weapon, for the second man was over the obstacle and upon him.

CHAPTER XXV.

"HOLD the lantern higher, Bev"—In the fury of the fight he remembered the risk and importance of not mentioning her name and stopped short. He was fighting fast, but warily, for he realized that his present adversary was no mean one. As the swords played back and forth in fierce thrusts and parries he spoke assuringly to Beverly: "Don't be frightened! As soon as I finish with this fellow we will go on! Ah! Bravo! Well parried, my man! How the deuce could such a swordsman as you become a cutthroat of Marlanx?"

Beverly had been standing still all this time, holding the light high above her head, according to her lover's orders, for she knew now that such he was and that she loved him with all her heart. She was a weird picture standing there as she watched Baldos fighting for their lives, her beautiful face deathlike in its pallor. Not a cry escaped her lips as the sword blades swished and clashed. She could hear the deep breathing of the combatants in that tomb-like passage.

Suddenly she started and listened keenly. From behind her, back there in the darkness, hurried footsteps were unmistakably approaching. What she had heard, then, was not the scurrying of a rat. Some one was following them. A terrible anguish seized her. Louder and nearer came the heavy steps. "Oh, Baldos!" she screamed in terror. "Another is coming!"

"Have no fear, dear one!" he sung out gayly. His voice was infinitely more cheerful than he felt, for he realized only too well the desperate situation. He was penned in and forced to meet an attack from front and rear. He fell upon his assailant with redoubled fury, aiming to finish him before the newcomer could give aid.

From out of the gloom came a fiendish laugh. Instantly the dark figure of a man appeared, his face completely hidden by a broad slouch hat and the long cloak which enveloped him. A sardonic voice hissed: "Trapped at last! My lady and her lover thought to escape, did they!" The voice was unfamiliar, but the atmosphere seemed charged with Marlanx. "Kill him, Zem!" he shouted. "Don't let him escape you! I will take care of the little witch, never fear!" He clutched at the girl and tried to draw her to him.

"Marlanx! By all the gods!" cried Baldos in despair. He had wounded his man several times, though not seriously. He dared not turn to Beverly's aid.

The scene was thrilling, grewsome. Within this narrow, dimly lighted underground passage, with its musty walls sweating with dampness and thick with the tangled meshes of the spider's web, a brave girl and her lover struggled and fought back to back.

To her dismay, Beverly saw the point of a sword at her throat.

"Out of the way, girl!" the man in the cloak snarled, furious at her resistance. "You die as well as your lover unless you surrender. He cannot escape me."

"And if I refuse!" cried the girl, trying desperately to gain time.

"I will drive my blade through your heart and tell the world it was the deed of your lover."

Baldos groaned. His adversary, encouraged by the change in the situation, pressed him sorely.

"Don't you dare to touch me, Count Marlanx. I know you!" she hissed. "I know what you would do with me. It is not for Graustark that you seek his life."

The sword came nearer. The words died in her throat. She grew faint. Terror paralyzed her. Suddenly her heart gave a great thump of joy. The resourcefulness of the trapped was surging to her relief. The valor of the south leaped into life. The exhilaration of conflict beat down all her fears. "Take away that sword, then, please!" she cried, her voice trembling, but not with terror now. It was exultation. "Will you promise to spare his life? Will you swear to let him go, if I"—

"No, no; never! God forbid!" implored Baldos.

"Ha, ha!" chuckled the man in the cloak. "Spare his life! Oh, yes, after my master has reveled in your charms. How do you like that, my handsome goat hunter?"

"You infernal scoundrel! I'll settle you yet!" Baldos fairly fumed with rage. Gathering himself together for a final effort, he rushed madly on his rapidly weakening antagonist.

"Baldos," she cried hopelessly and in a tone of resignation, "I must do it! It is the only way!"

The man in the cloak as well as Baldos was deceived by the girl's cry. He immediately lowered his sword. The lantern dropped from Beverly's hands and clattered to the floor. At the same instant she drew from her pocket her revolver, which she had placed there before leaving the castle, and fired point blank at him. The report sounded like a thunderclap in their ears. It was followed quickly by a sharp cry and imprecation from the lips of her persecutor, who fell, striking his head with a terrible force on the stones.

Simultaneously there was a groan and the noise of a limp body slipping to the ground, and Baldos, victor at last, turned in fear and trembling to find Beverly standing unhurt staring at the black mass at her feet.

"Thank God, you are safe!" Grasping her hand he led her out of the darkness into the moonlight.

Not a word was spoken as they ran swiftly on until they reached a little clump of trees not far from one of the gates. Here Baldos gently released her hand. She was panting for breath, but he realized she must not be allowed to risk a moment's delay. She must pass the sentry at once.

"Have you the watchword?" he eagerly asked.

"Watchword?" she repeated feebly.

"Yes, the countersign for the night. It is Ganlook. Keep your face well covered with your hood. Advance boldly to the gates and give the word. There will be no trouble. The guard is used to pleasure seekers returning at all hours of night."

"Is he dead?" she asked timorously, returning to the scene of horror.

"Only wounded, I think, as are the other men, though they all deserve death."

To be continued.

MR. B. LASTAR GAVE HELP TO A PASSENGER

Collected Money on Board Ship, Returning from the Old Country—Received Letter To-day From Man He Assisted

Mr. B. Lastar received a letter from a gentleman now residing in the West, who was a fellow passenger of Mr. Lastar returning from the old country. The writer of the letter lost all his money on board ship and Mr. Lastar collected a large amount and gave it to him.

The letter is as follows:

Napinka, Man., April 19.

Dear Sir,—I thought I would just write a few lines thanking you again for the good you did me while travelling on the S.S. "Empress of Ireland." The money you collected for me after losing my purse was a God send to me and if ever I am in a position to help a fallen brother as you did me, you can rest assured I'll do so. Hoping you are well and any time I shall be glad to hear from you. I remain,

Yours faithfully,
WM. HORNER

WILL BE EPWORTH LEAGUE SUNDAY

At Charlotte St. Church on Coming Sunday---Rev. Pearson and Rev. Keith to Preach

The coming Sunday will be Epworth League Sunday at Charlotte street Methodist church. The members of the League are requested to meet in the school room at ten minutes to eleven in the morning in order to attend the service in a body. Rev. E. A. Pearson will preach in the morning and Rev. H J. Keith in the evening. The services will be unusually interesting.

CURIOS WILL BE EXHIBITED

An interesting feature of the Mission Institute to be held in the city on the 4th, 5th and 6th of May, will be the exhibit of missionary literature and curios which will be on display in the Sunday School room of St. John's church. This exhibit, which is in charge of Miss Winnifred D. Crouch of Toronto, assisted by a local committee will be open to the public from 3 pm. to 8 pm. on the first day of the Institute and from 9 am. to 12 noon, on the two following days.

THEATRICAL

"THE COWBOY AND THE SQUAW."

A western melodrama was presented at the Grand last night. It is called "The Cowboy and the Squaw," and the presence of everything which made things seem real was a feature of the production. The riding of Silver Heels, the Indian maid, in the big race scene, was a daring feat of horsemanship. Dorothy Lyons, who presented the character was natural in her portrayal and was given an enthusiastic reception after the act climax. The race is the big feature of the production. With the aid of the treadmill a steer is shown racing across the plains with a cowboy roped to its back, while in pursuit is the Indian girl on a broncho.

The play tells a story of life in Montana in the days when the west was "wild and wooly," and when a man feels safe only when his hand was resting comfortably on the handle of his revolver. The pictures of the localities mentioned are realistic, with a carefulness to detain in settings that aided materially in making the play a success.

A PROMISING ATTRACTION

When David Higgins presented his racing success, "His Last Dollar," in Toronto this season, all records were broken at the Grand Opera House. The drawing power of the piece was felt in all the surrounding towns and cities, Peterborough leading the race by sending more than four hundred theatre-goers down to Toronto during the week. Next Tuesday at the Grand Opera House this city will have an opportunity to witness Mr. Higgins' only other play, the southern melodrama, "At Piney Ridge," whose phenominal success in the sketch is even greater than that of his present vehicle. On account of the present theatrical depression in New York Mr. Coleman has been able to produce this play at popular prices, with one of the finest casts that has been ever sent into Canada, every member having appeared in leading roles at one of the Broadway theatres during the present season. The following list of a few of the company, the positions they have held this season and the theatres at which they have played will give some idea of the cast: Mr. Dalhan Cairns, leading man with Maxime Elliott at the Garrick Theatre; Mr. Norman Bland, leading man with Madame Naylmora at the Bijou Theatre; Mr. Fred Sullivan, leading man with "When Knighthood Was in Flower" Company; Mr. Castles Burt, leading man with Louis Gamen; Mr. Fred M. Conklin, leading man with Fabio Romani; Mr. Edward Saxon, star of "Peaceful Valley"; Miss Mabel Wright, leading lady with Dustin Fornum, and the star, Miss Louise Coleman, for four years a member of the Belasco New York Company. Such a play with such a cast should give certain satisfaction.

LADY ODDFELLOWS WILL BE PRESENT AT DIVINE SERVICE

A new feature of the attendance of the Oddfellows at divine service this year will be the presence in a body of the members of the Rebekah lodge—the lady Oddfellows. The triple-linked brethren will attend service at St. John's church on Sunday evening when Rev. Canon Davidson will preach a special sermon to them. The Rebekahs will not take part in the brigade but will gather at the church and attend service in a body. A section of seats will be reserved for them.

This is the first time that the lady Oddfellows have taken part in the church parade and their presence will add interest to the occasion.

ENGINE WHISTLE SCREAMED SHRILLY FOR MANY MILES

Passengers on the GTR. flyer from Tronto last night had a somewhat unique experience. When the train pulled out of Scarboro, near Toronto something went wrong with the whistle on the engine and it was impossible to keep it from blowing. The result was that the whistle screamed shrilly all the way from Scarboro to Lindsay and caused considerable excitement at every town the train passed through. People flocked to the stations to see what the trouble was, the crowd that gathered at Lindsay being especially large. The whistle was fixed at Lindsay and was all right for the remainder of the trip.

BOATS STARTING TO MOVE; "BESSIE BUTLER" MADE TRIP

Navigation on the Trent Canal will be in full swing in about two weeks. All the railway bridges on the canal will be opened for navigation on May 1st, and as the locks are all in good condition traffic should open on or about that date.

Some trouble has been encountered on account of the extreme height of water in the canal this spring, but it is fast subsiding, and is not expected to cause any more inconvenience.

The new boat "Bessie Butler," made a trial trip to Lakefield in good time yesterday. The steamer Rainbow is also expected to take her first run from "Burnham's Landing," to Peterborough to-morrow.

A considerable quantity of wood and various other supplies are ready for transportation at the various points along the canal, and a very busy season is predicted.

The channel in Rice Lake is now clear as is also the Otonabee River and tomorrow the steamer Monarch will make her first trip. She is expected to arrive at the Peterborough dock with her usual cargo of passengers and freight.

The elevator of G T Crow at Paris siding on the south shore of Lake St. Clair was burned to the ground. The elevator was full of grain but was covered by insurance.

Manitoba prohibitionists are confident of carrying the province in a year or two.

At Sarnia a man giving his name as J B Young, collected over $800 in a confidence game he successfully worked on two banks.

A young woman en route from Decatur to her home in Buffalo gave birth to a child on the train while nearing St. Thomas.

FREE AND EASY MONARCHS.

Kings Who Mingle Daily With Their Subjects Without Escort.

In view of the long series of assassinations of European rulers, culminating in the tragedy at Lisbon, one might expect royalty to take all sorts of precautions against sudden death. The life of the Czar of Russia, who is reputed to change bedrooms nightly and to eat his meals in apartments chosen at the moment, who is encompassed with a legion of spies and a regiment of devoted soldiers, would seem to be a proper model for all those engaged in the hazardous trade of kingship. It is, no doubt, uncomfortable and trying on the nerves to suspect everybody and everything, to look under the bed at night and to fear that a courtier drawing a handkerchief may be reaching for an automatic pistol, but such are presumably the drawbacks of holdng most royal jobs to-day.

However, some monarchs take as few precautions as presidents of republics, and sometimes mingle with their subjects in public places absolutely unescorted. The killing of Carlos has checked only momentarily the free and easy habits of such of his fellow rulers. Alfonso of Spain, for instance, may not be going out in the crowd every day just now, but he will not long endure the prudent advice of his councillors.

There may be, in fact, a deal of solid sense in the risk taking of kings. Their average years of existence might be increased if all followed the caution of the Czar, yet a few precautions would entail more, and by making themselves hard to get at they would excite the desire of a portion of their subjects to overcome obstacles and "get them." A king who hides seems to admit that he is a tyrant.

Then it may well be argued by royalty that their chances of death are not much greater than if they were miners or artisans, and that a short life free from care is better than days prolonged in terror. The lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place. At least such seem to be the arguments of Alfonso, who keeps his friends in a state of nerves by his habit of going about unprotected.

It is well known that King Edward of England goes to the race track like any English gentleman, and freely promenades at a French bathing resort, while King Leopold of the Belgians frequently slips away to Paris to have a good time in the boulevards all by himself. King Humbert of Italy, who was assassinated, never took any great care of his safety, but he would not extend the risk to his Queen by having her ride in the same carriage with him.

Played With Madman.

M. Rahen, a member of the Paris Boulevard Club, told the story of a very disagreeable experience he had recently.

He strolled into the cardroom of his club, and found that the only occupant there was a man whom he slightly knew as a fellow-member, but whom he had not seen for some time. He casually saluted the man, who asked him if he would have a quiet game of cards. The two men sat down at a card table and began to play.

M. Rahen was soon absorbed in the game, and presently, very much to his surprise, began to realise that his partner was openly cheating. Suddenly looking up, he was horrified to see the man leering at him over the top of his cards.

The look in the man's eyes and his whole demeanor at once cause M. Rahen to guess that his partner had gone mad. But he did not lose his presence of mind, and went on playing in the hope that somebody would come into the room.

The suspense lasted a quarter of an hour, during which his partner talked loudly about "cutting the King's throat" if that card were produced, and drew a razor from his pocket and placed it on the table.

Happily several people came into the room at this point. One of them went up to the madman and said: "Your highness, the carriage is below."

Without a word the madman got up and followed the doctor, for such the visitor proved to be, into the street.

It appears that the madman, until a few months ago, had been a frequenter of the club, but as he had a mania for personating royalty he was confined in a private asylum. He escaped from it and search was made for him in vain until it was remembered that he belonged to the club and had probably gone there.

Survived a Broken Neck.

Very few persons know that the Earl of Minto, Viceroy of India, is the only man who ever survived a broken neck. In his younger days the earl was one of the most daring and ardent of sportsmen, and he scarcely had a rival in riding, rowing, shooting and fishing. His lordship's great passion, however, was for horse riding, and it is related how he took his degree in a riding costume covered by an academic gown. Immediately after the ceremony he leaped into the saddle and galloped off to the race course arriving just in time to win the 'Varsity Steeplechase. In 1876 the earl rode Zero in the race for the Grand National, and it was then that he nearly met his death. Zero fell at one of the fences, and every one thought that the rider had been instantly killed with a broken neck. Sir James Paget was summoned, and even to the doctor's astonishment his lordship recovered, the famous physician declaring that in the whole of his experience it was the only instance he knew of the vertebra going back into its place after being stretched.

A Mansfield Story.

An actor had been engaged for Mr. Mansfield's company at a salary of $75 a week. He "made good" in the part and promptly insisted that his stipend be increased to $100.

"Why?" inquired Mr. Mansfield.

"Because I've achieved a big success in the role."

"Ah," returned Peer Gynt, "what do you suppose I gave you $75 for—to fail?"

Seven negro families are at Edmonton on their way to homesteads west of the city.

BRILLIANT COSTUMES AT COURT

King Edward Holds State Function at Buckingham Palace.

The second court of the season was a much more interesting affair than the first, by reason of the greater number of important presentations made, but the royal circle was even smaller. Prince Arthur of Connaught lately returned from Spain and Portugal and Gibraltar, stood near the Princess of Wales, immediately behind the King and Queen, who always occupy the foreground, and are the only personages to whom curtseys have to be made. It is a less trying arrangement for the nervous debutante, who formerly had to pay homage to each of the royalties in their order of precedence, and not infrequently lost her head in the strain of the attempt. The Queen and the Princess of Wales were once more in jetted black dresses, relieved with superb diamonds and pearls, and black and white were generally worn even by those without official connections, as the date of this court was not announced until the order for mourning had gone forth.

As a rule, the costumes of the women were unusually beautiful, and represented not only the outlay of thousands of dollars, but everything of the latest in fashions.

Lady Salisbury again did duty as mistress of the robes in the absence of the Duchess of Buccleuch, and wore many diamonds, with a heavily jetted princesse dress of black net and a velvet train. Lady Loreburn, who was kept away from the first court by an attack of influenza, was presented as a bride, and had many jewels, with a graceful white gown. Lady Graham made a splendid appearance in a toilette of heavy white satin, embellished with tulle and silver and old lace, and the crown of diamonds on her fair hair was very imposing, as were her other jewels.

The most important debutante was Lady Victoria Cavendish-Bentinck, goddaughter of the late queen, and only daughter of the Duke of Portland, and by a happy chance Friday was her eighteenth birthday. She looked a radiant vision as she shyly responded to the smiling welcome of the sovereigns, and her gown and train of white tulle, embroidered in silver and hemmed with pearls, was quite the daintiest worn by any young girl. The Duchess of Portland's graceful height and fine complexion were admirably set off by her dress and train of jetted tulle, and she wore her great diamond crown and a black tulle veil flecked with diamonds.

THE DOGS OF WAR.

Animals Meet One of the Needs of Modern Campaigning.

For dogs to be enlisted in every great army of the world, either in the ambulance department or as scouts and despatch bearers, is surely something of a novelty. In the Franco-Prussian war out of 129,000 killed and wounded, 13,000 were returned as "missing"; and who shall say what these men endured? Every war of the future, however, will see the dog lessening its horror, says a writer in "St. Nicholas." In Germany his education is at this moment being taken in hand by a voluntary society with nearly 2,000 members, among them some of the most able officers in that country's great army. The war dog proper is used for sentry, messenger, and scouting service, while the ambulance dog's training inclines him only to scour the battlefield in search of the wounded and missing.

The needs of modern warfare not only call for vast enlarging of the battlefield, but also compel the troops to take every advantage of natural cover. This and the fact that wounded men will use their last strength to seek protection from artillery fire, cavalry charges, and the wheels of guns by crawling into thick bushes, ditches, and natural holes, will show how difficult it is for the overworked stretcher-bearers of the Red Cross department to notice prostrate figures not readily seen. Moreover, modern warfare is carried on largely by night attack, and at night, too, the wounded have to be collected. The ambulance dog, however, is independent of artificial light, and relies only on his power of scent. Recently during the great Austrian manoeuvres, two hundred men were left lying on the field to represent the wounded; and the stretcher-bearers, working against time, overlooked 38 of these. Within 20 minutes the Viennese dogs had found them all! Each dog had about his neck a flask of brandy or soup and a roll of bandages. The wounded man, having made what use he can of this relief, gives the dog his cap or belt and the animal races off with it to the ambulance attendants, whom he then conducts to the spot.

Kings Were Famous Dancers.

One is not surprised to learn that Prince Edward of Wales is one of the most promising of all the dancing pupils at the Royal Naval College, Osborne, for skill in dancing seems to run in the royal blood of England.

King Edward in his younger days was as graceful and nimble footed a dancer as you would find in England, as many of his partners, now stately dowagers, love to recall; and so, with scarcely an exception, are all members of his family.

Henry VIII.'s dancing, from the pavon to "conrato high" was the envy and despair of his courtiers, but he was prouder of his performance in the ballet.

Queen Elizabeth had no rival in the stately pavon unless it was her favorite partner, Sir Christopher Hatton, and Queen Mary's grace and agility in the ballet sent more than one poet into rhymed raptures.

Charles II., however, seems to have been the king of royal dancers. He never knew when to stop, for when every one of his courtiers was dropping from fatigue he would call for a round of country dances. "Indeed," says Pepys, "he dances rarely."

Ode on the Income.

How strange a thing one's income is!
  A paradox it seems to be,
To live without one bothers some,
  To live within one bothers me.

City Engineer Rust of Toronto, estimates the cost of the proposed tunnel under the western channel at $ 626,000.

WE ANNOUNCE A LEAP YEAR SALE

TO BEGIN

SATURDAY, APRIL 25th

Something New in Leap Year Proposals---Something New in Sales
Scores of Proposals to Our Patrons of Most Acceptable Savings.

The tables are turned. We have reversed the Leap Year Proposal subject. Going in to proposing business for a week on our own account. Leap Year Proposals have long been laughed and joked about, but now we are going to make some that will be considered with a new seriousness and importance. And we will have them in over 57 varieties. All the week—beginning Saturday, April 25, ending Saturday Night, May 2nd, we will present Proposals of rare savings—Proposals that the many needs the new season necessities be supplied—NOW and HERE, at a considerable saving. We will not mince mattters. We will weigh the attractions of our proposals carefully and calculatingly. For rejections are not in our line. Every one of our proposals will be worthy of the utmost consideration and respect—and each will be most acceptable for a practical monetary reason.

But our creed is a creed of deeds. Our Leap Year Proposals speak for themselves. This announcement lists scores of them—a visit to the Store will reveal as many more. We trust you will give them your deserved consideration.

SPORTING NEWS

BLAKE AND HARRISON IN A BATTLE ROYAL

Are Putting up Grand Fight for Second Place—Hoagland Did 6 Miles in First Hour 22 Miles 1 Lap Altogether—Cooper's Fast Workout.

Hoagland, the flying champion, made the miles look small at the walking tournament last night. Despite the fact that he had been walking for three days, on the last of which was a ten-hour grind, he went freshly and easily at the tournament last night and seemed to be feeling just as well as when he took his first to Mayor Bush's "go" on Monday night. He had no one to force him to travel and simply set the pace to suit himself. Had he been actually under an obligation to exert himself to any great extent there is no telling what he might have accomplished.

WONDERFUL VITALITY.

To a person who has any inclination to do a little thinking it is easy to see that Hoagland's work since he has been here, has been a revelation in the matter of staying powers and vitality. Since Slater dropped out there has not been a single starter who could keep pace with him and he has held the audience spellbound by his cyclone sprints. It would easily be worth the admission money to see him perform alone against time.

TWO PARTS TO RACE.

The walk is divided into two distinct parts. One part includes Hoagland alone, and the other the balance of the field. And although the champion has had it all his own way, the walk would lose fifty per cent of its drawing powers without him. His name has probably been spoken more often than that of any man who has visited the city in many months and it is becoming almost monotonous to hear everyone saying "that Hoagland's a great walker."

A FIRST DAY DASH.

He started last night with as much speed as if he had just stepped on the track for the first time at the opening of a race after a course of invigorating training, and not like a man who had done miles of hard and fast grinding. He put all kinds of ginger into his first hour last night and during that space of time made six miles. He won the crowd by his great going and they were unstinted in their approval.

22 MILES 1 LAP.

Hoagland is a man who walks very consistently and makes it a point to take no chances. Although much in the lead he piled up 22 miles and 1 lap during the evening and if anything should happen him to interfere with his speed he has a good credit balance of mileage to fall back on.

BLAKE AND HARRISON.

The question of discussion concerning the tournament now is as to who will get second place. Barring accidents or something else unforseen happening it looks as though either Harrison o rBlake would be the first after Hoagland when the finish is made at 11.30 on Saturday night. Those who have followed the walking of the men since the opening of the tournament are much divided in their opinions as to which one has the better chance. They travel with great evenness and in all of the four hours of last night's walk there was only 1 lap difference at the conclusion. The struggle between them is a magnificent one and both men display remarkable grit and tenacity.

BLAKE LAPS HARRISON.

The negro went right out from the start to increase his lead. At the start he had a margin of twelve laps on Harrison from the night before. For a while the men went along with only a few feet between them. Blake raced away at top speed and gradually kept increasing his lead and lapped his opponent. This put him a mile in the lead.

TRIED FOR ANOTHER LAP.

Having gained one lap he set out for another, but it was no go. Harrison jumped right ahead and caught him and the men stayed together for the rest of the night, first one pacing and then the other.

HOAGLAND'S CENTURY.

At exactly 14 minutes to eight, Hoagland made the first 100 miles. When the three figures went up on the score board the crowd applauded him for his achievement. He was walking beautifully and was making his usual hit with the large gathering of spectators.

GETS BACK HALF A LAP.

A couple of minutes before eight o'clock Hoagland's score cards were pulled back indicating his one hundred and first mile. Blake had half a lap on Harrison besides the lap he gained near the start. Harrison reached out for him and after some hard chasing caught up to him and after going some little distance passed him. Then there was for seven or eight laps a grand short procession of Harrison, Blake and Hoagland.

STEVENS SHOWS FORM.

As the three leaders attempted to lap Stevens he got behind Blake and then passed Harrison and Blake at the stretch, showing unexpected strength as the big three were swinging along at a telling clip. He kept the lead for some time.

At 8.10 Blake got his 100 miles. About eleven minutes later Harrison made the century mark. Fenton came back to the track after having retired from the track for a short time. He was not walking very strong last night and the boy wonder is still wondering how he will get in the money.

GRAHAM SPEEDS SOME.

Jas. Graham, the Buffalo pedestrian, kept up the uniform pace which has been a notable feature of the race since the commencement of the tournament. He let out a little at times and walked fast in competition with Cooper, the Englishman, when the latter came on for an hour's spin between ten and eleven o'clock.

COOPER'S FAST HOUR.

Cooper, who walks an exhibition mile against time to-night, took an hour's workout and moved along in fast time, making six miles five laps in sixty minutes. And his exhibition pleased the large immensely by his fine work.

Stenner showed up well and walked strongly beside Hoagland for quite a length of time. "Warsaw" gets plenty of boosting from the crowd.

HOW THEY SCORED.

	Miles.	Laps.
W. A. Hoagland	120	7
J. E. Blake	116	11
Jas. Harrison	115	11
Charles Stevens	111	9
Jas. A. Graham	103	8

TOM SLATER WANTS A MATCH WITH COOPER FOR 25 MILES

Oswego Pedestrian Challenges the English Short Distance Expert—Would Like to Meet Him Monday Night—Race Would be Strong Attraction

Tom Slater is anxious to get on a 25 miles race with Cooper, the fast English short distance walker, and challenges him for a match for that distance, the event to take place on Monday night.

SLATER CONFIDENT.

Although his heavy cold forced him to quit, Slater thinks he will be able to do a 25 mile turn on Monday night and is willing to take chances on defeating Cooper.

If arranged the contest between Cooper and Slater should prove a great drawing card. The former showed championship form while he was in the race here and is undoubtedly a very fast man for either short distances or a grind.

COOPER A GOOD ONE.

As anybody who has seen Cooper walk knows he is a remarkably good man for the shorter distances. On the first night he got the track record for a mile and last night did six miles and five laps in an hour. It is just a delightful uncertainty as to which man has the better chance of winning.

HOW IT WAS PROPOSED.

The Review was in conversation with Tom Slater last night, and he was informed that there was a rumor of a 25 hour walk between Hoagland and Cooper. He said if the match was not clinched he would be willing to take on Cooper for the above distance and would be willing to make arrangements with him for the event.

JIMMY REYNOLDS WILL TRY TO MAKE PORT HOPE-TORONTO WALK IN THIRTY-THREE HOURS

Will Attempt What Looks Like Impossible task on June 15th—Has Wagered $350 to 700 That He Can Do it—Training for the Walk and Expects to be in the best of Shape.

Jimmy Reynolds, the efficient and popular referee of the walking tournament, is apparently determined to make the return trip from Port Hope to Toronto in record time. On June 15th he will attempt to walk the distance, which is 134 miles, in 33 hours and thinks he can make it.

$350 TO $700.

He has a bet of $350 to $700 that he can accomplish the feat, a Port Hope syndicate putting up the large amount against him.

A BIG UNDERTAKING.

The walk if accomplished, will be one of the best road grinds ever made. The last time Reynolds attempted to make the trip in 36 hours and did it in 18 minutes over the limit. In view of the fact that he was not successful in his last attempt it seems almost impossible that Reynolds will be able to make good on the Herculean task he will try.

BRISK STEPPING.

To make the distance within the 33 hours Reynolds will have to do some tall hustling. Leaving out all rests he will have to go two miles over four miles an hour on the total distance.

NO BETTING ON REYNOLDS.

Nobody but Reynolds himself is risking any money on the walk that the latter will try. He is the only one who has any confidence that he can do it, his most enthusiastic admirers all doubting that he has any chance whatever to make the journey within the specified time.

TRAINING HARD.

Reynolds is training for the walk every day and is feeling well. He expects to be in the condition of his life for it and will spare no pains to get into perfect shape. He is training consistently and paying particular attention to his feet.

HEAVY ROADS.

The course for the walk is not one that is by any means strewn with roses. The walking on the road will will be heavy and with big grades to overcome. The unanimous opinion is that Reynolds can't do it, but he is positive he can. If he does he will set Canada talking by a wonderful accomplishment in the sphere of pedestrianism.

SPLENDID PROGRAMME GIVEN AT "GYM" CLOSING EXERCISES

Large Audience Greatly Pleased at Y. M. C. A. Last Night—Exhibitions of Wrestling and Boxing Were Features—Great Skill Shown by Those Taking Part in Exercises

One of the best programmes of its kind ever presented in the city was that given at the annual closing exercises of the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last night. The gallery was filled with spectators and the event was a success in every way. The programme was of a varied nature and those present were delighted with the evening's entertainment. The physical director, Mr. Archie Froude, and the others who assisted in preparing the programme, are to be heartily congratulated on the splendid arrangements made, and those taking part in the exercises deserve great credit for the way they performed their work.

The programme opened with a chorus by the George street choir, under the direction of Mr. McCann. This number was given in a finished manner.

Three fencing bouts came next and they were well contested. Sergt.-Major Brittain was in charge and the bouts resulted as follows;—

Brightman defeated Wallis.
Sisson defeated Austin.
Morley defeated Sharpe.

This was followed by one of the features of the programme, a wrestling bout between Corney Burns and "Boobe" Long. The former had it on his opponent in weight and strength, and then showed a good knowledge of the fine points of the game. Burns won the first fall in three minutes and Long captured the second in about the same time. The third fall went to Burns in one minute. Long was slippery and showed skill in breaking holds.

"Chris" Graham was referee.

The obstacle race between the seniors and intermediates was won by the latter, who showed fine form in negotiating the barriers placed along the course.

A sabre contest between Sergt-Major Brittain and Sergt.-Major Duffus was most exciting. Both showed much cleverness and gave a fine exhibition. Sergt-Major Brittain won by 5 points to 4.

The rope climbing contest was won by C. Froude, who went up and down the hemp in twelve seconds. The other contestants were Austin, Carter and Davenport.

The "dead and alive" act by "Ted" Daley and F. Cressman proved very amusing.

MEDAL PRESENTED.

At the commencement of the second part of the programme, the medal won by Ernie Wilson when he defeated Coley at Toronto last fall, was presented to him by Mr. A. W. Cressman. Mr. Cressman congratulated the local boy on his achievement and great applause greeted the young athlete as he stepped forward and received the medal.

Another selection was given by the choir, and then came a boxing bout between Chris Graham and Corney Burns. Three two-minute rounds made up the mill which was of the most exciting nature. Both are clever with the mitts and furnished a great exhibition. Referee Sisson declared the bout a draw.

Connie Murphy, one of the outfielders of the Peterborough Baseball Club, and "Ted" Daley gave an exhibition of tumbling that made the audience sit up and take notice. The performers were in costume and did some stunts that would put many professionals in the shade. This feature of the programme was received with great applause.

A dumb-bell drill by thirty senior men was well executed and the apparatus work by three squads of the seniors was also done in a highly creditable manner. The leaders of the senior section were Sisson, S. Lang, Sutherland, Galley and Physical Director Froude. The pyramid work by the seniors was a revelation to the audience, so well was it done.

The programme included with a burlesque basketball match between the "Tramps" and the "Old Maids." They were dressed appropriately and caused all kinds of merriment.

The teams were as follows;—

Old Maids.	Tramps.
Barber	F. Cressman
Robertson	Sutherland
Dinsdale	Downey
McCarroll	Kerr
S Laing	J Graham

The "Tramps" were victorious by 6 points to 1.

WARSAW WALKER AND "THIRTEEN"

Charlie Stenner Has Much to do With the Hoodoo Numeral

Chas. Stenner, the Warsaw walker, is having considerable to do with the number "thirteen" these days. Whether it is going to be lucky or unlucky for him cannot yet be told but if he makes a good showing in the walking contest he will sure have something to blame it on. Those who have been at the rink know that his number is "13" and it now turns out that he is occupying room "13" at the Munro House where he is making his headquarters. Incidentally it may be stated that Stenner is thirteen miles from home. How is this for mixing it up with a hoodoo number.

SUMMER HOTELS HIGHLANDS OF ONTARIO

The Grand Trunk Railway System announces that arrangements have been completed for two handsome additions to the chain of hotels throughout the Highlands of Ontario.

The Wawa Hotel on Lake of Bays, one of the finest summer hotels in the Northern Resorts of Canada, is nearing completion and work is under way on the new Highland Inn, situated overlooking Cache Lake at Algonquin Park station. The Highland Inn will be of the cottage type, cosy and comfortable in its appointments, all modern conveniences, colonial fireplaces in the dining and living rooms, spacious piazza and most charming outlook over lake, mountain and virgin forests; in fact, all the comforts of civilization are transported into this virgin wilderness. Double daily mail service, telegraph and express facilities at this point with excellent train service will make this hotel unique and attractive for a restful sojourn so remote from the turmoil of the cities, but yet with all necessary facilities for communication with the outside world. The Highland Inn is situated about 1500 feet above sea level, giving it by far the highest elevation of any summer hotel in Eastern Canada. A good boat livery and corps of guides will be maintained and tourists who desire to make extended trips through the waterways of the Park will be outfitted and provided for in every respect without rendering it necessary to bring any baggage excepting wearing apparel, according to length of sojourn. The new hotel will provide every comfort and facility for the enjoyment of guests and the cost of accommodation will be so reasonable that it will not deter anyone of moderate means from patronizing them. In addition to this they will cater to tourist trade from Great Britain, where the Grand Trunk is organizing trips of parties and individuals for a lump sum of expenses, including hotels from the time tourists leave home until they return. Such trips need not occupy more than the average holiday, say one month, and will embrace the ocean trip, an opportunity of becoming acquainted with Canadians and Canadian affairs, and the entire cost will not exceed that of the usual summer holiday in Switzerland or other European resorts.

RESIDENTS COMPLAIN OF CHICKEN STEALING

Persons Living in the Vicinity of the Canal Bridge in Ashburnham Have Lost Several Valuable Chickens—A Gang of Fellows Cook Them in the Woods.

It is said that chicken stealing is being perpetrated in Ashburnham and several residents in the vicinity of the canal bridge have lost valuable hens and chickens. A gentleman stated this morning that a gang of young fellows were continually stealing people's chickens and carrying them off to Hazlett's woods where they cook them and have a feast.

Yesterday evening, Miss Mary Kelley, an old lady who lives alone on Maria street lost several fine chickens. Her chickens are the only means this poor woman has of making a living and it was a mean, cowardly act for anyone to steal them from her.

The police authorities would do well to pay a visit to this part of the city and try and get the names of the culprits.

MANUFACTURERS ENDORSE PAID BRIGADE PROPOSITION

Resolution to This Effect Passed at Meeting of Association Last Night—Views Expressed Practically all Favorable to the Proposal.

A meeting of the local manufacturers' Association was held at the City Council Chamber last evening, with the object of discussing the proposition to instal in the city a paid fire brigade, and with the additional object of strengthening the hands of the council so far as approval would go in so doing. The matter is a vital one and very large interests are involved.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, chairman of the Association occupied the chair and invited discussion, after giving an outline of the situation. He was impressed with the importance and the serious nature of the situation while fully cognizant of the situation of the services of the brigade as now constituted. The meeting had been called to consider the question of a paid brigade, which he felt should now be organized and of such a size as would afford clearly adequate service. A vital matter was that of getting the right number and kind of men, vigorous and active and alert paid and held responsible.

The old brigade, —if he might be allowed the expression —had done well but the city was grown too big to be served with less than a paid brigade any longer. He asked the members present to express their views and he thought it well that a committee should be appointed to express the views of the association and to lay such before the Fire, Water and Light committee of the city council. He thought we should go further and put the brigade under a commission such as the water works have. We had illustrations of friction among and about the force and that sort of thing was to be avoided.

QUAKER OATS COMPANY.

Mr. Denham endorsed what Mr. Patterson said and did not believe a volunteer department was sufficient for the needs of a city of this size, and to which we were growing. The first four or five minutes at a fire were most invaluable. The men should be out on the instant and the force should comprise sufficient men to handle the fire. There should not be less than eight or ten men available for any emergency. The question of getting out promptly was most important. The force should be ready with teams always available, fires going, steam up ready for operating on reaching the fire. Promptness is one of the great things. If it required four or five minutes to get into shape there may be a greater loss to the city than would pay the salaries of four or five men, possibly ten men. We should have a chief, who should be a chief absolutely. There should be no other authority above his in all that related to the force.

There should also be an assistant chief. He thought that a chief, and an assistant, driver, enginemen, driver on first waggon and ten men would make a department for the city that would be effective and would mean a reduction in fire rates that would be a substantial benefit to the merchants and manufacturers.

Mr. James Hamilton spoke in support of the proposition. We should find out from the underwriters as to what reduction would be made in the rates, before arranging for increased expense, even if it brought efficiency.

Mr. James English expressed his views, pointing out that we had only one station and that should be well manned. He thought that not less than fifteen men would be required to handle things properly.

Mr. Bruce Walker, of the Cordage Company referred to a fire they had some time ago and that the force that arrived on the scene was not nearly as large as it should have been. Fortunately they had their own men to give assistance. 7 minutes after the first rig arrived other men of the brigade reached the scene.

Ald. J. Turner, Jr., as a member of the city council said he felt that some change in affairs was necessary. If we branched out into a permanent brigade the expense must fall on the city and would be larger than the people thought it would be. The council had received suggestions for a permanent brigade including a chief assistant chief, two drivers, three permanent men and six volunteer men. The proposition was endorsed by the council. The chief would have complete control, engaging and discharging men—being held responsible for the efficiency of the force. The city has been fortunate in that we have not had for some time any serious fires. We may not pay higher rates but the impression prevails that we do. To get the rate down would be a step in advance and a permanent brigade would be a means to that end. He would not cast any reflections on the brigade as constituted but the greater and growing interests called for serious consideration of the situation.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth of the Light and Power Company said that the most important point was to have the men on the spot and ready to get them to the fire while it was small and to have men enough to handle it before it gained strength. He explained how the rates were formed and that a locality was penalized for lack of certain fire fighting appliances. He thoroughly endorsed the proposition to have a paid brigade always ready, alert and active.

The impression of those present, was that while a permanent brigade was a vital necessity and as far as its governing regulation and direction, that it should be under the control of a commission, removing it entirely from the arena of local politics and influence, and the following resolution was unanimously passed;

Moved by Mr. W. H. Denham.
Seconded by Mr. B. Fowler.

"That this Association express to the council its candid approval of the measure to instal a permanent paid fire brigade and will endorse and support any municipal legislation to that end."

"2nd—That a delegation from this Association would like to meet the City Council and further express the Association's views regarding this most important subject."

"3rd—That a copy of this resolution be handed to the council with the request that it be considered."

The meeting then adjourned.

WORK WILL BE COMMENCED AFTER SEVENTY YEARS LAPSE

Some seventy years ago the government of that time surveyed and commenced construction of the Trent Valley Canal, considerable work being done at Trenton. The rebellion of 1837 put a stop to construction work, as the funds voted for canal purposes were used for the defence of the country and government.

The age of railway buildings came on afterwards and left canal construction in abeyance. Every year since Confederation in 1867 monies have been spent in the centre section of the canal route, connecting the inland water courses, with the intention of extending the Canal from the Bay of Quinte to Georgian Bay.

AN HISTORIC EVENT FOR TRENTON

Next week after a lapse of seventy years actual work on Canal construction will again be taken up within the town of Trenton.

MR. H. J. BOOTH MAY PRESENT ANOTHER OPERATIC SPECTACLE

It is reported that Mr. H. J. Booth, who presented "Zephra" here last spring, will return to Peterborough at an early date and present the new "Zephra" here. It is stated that he will be here in May and present the operatic spectacle towards the end of the month. Mr. Booth is now presenting the new "Zephra" in Kingston and will likely come here after the engagement there is over. Mr. Booth would no doubt be greeted by large audiences if he returns to Peterborough and puts on another opera here.

Edward Nolan, a nine year old colored lad, of Chatham was found drowned in McGregor's creek.

Jos Edinger, representing the British Columbia Colonization agency has purchased 345 acres on the arm of Kootenay Lake, a colony there of Germans and other foreigners all used to grape culture and brought here from European vineyards.

THE VALUE OF ACCIDENT INSURANCE

DEATHS from accident are stated by the Census Officials, Washington, to have been 57,513 in 1902. The percentage of deaths from accident is 5.76, which is more than ten years ago. The "Insurance Press" in giving details from the Census, says, "An Inspection of the Census Tables showing causes of death brings out the fact that a person is more liable to meet death by accidental injuries than by any other single cause except consumption, pneumonia or heart disease

—From Financial Chronicle, Montreal.

The Utopia Policy issued by the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada, provides indemnity for disability, resulting from accident or sickness. It is in all respects a model policy.

FIGHT OVER HEIRLOOMS

NOBLEMAN ALLEGES HE WAS UNDER HYPNOTIC INFLUENCE.

Marquis Ousts a Trustee—Story of a Clergyman's Escapade and Scandal Figures In Interesting Trial—Court Greatly Amused—Valuable China Disappears—How the Clerical Tutor Dressed His Part.

The Marquis of Townshend's suit remove Arthur Geoffrey Robins and John Abercombie as trustees of a deed of settlement of the Townshend estates, made in 1903, and under which a number of heirlooms were disposed of, has finally come to an end after a protracted and generally tedious hearing.

The court ordered Robins removed from his trusteeship and praised the marquise on the manner in which his evidence was given.

The marquis has declared that he was for a long period under the hypnotic influence of Robins. The marquis is small and weak looking, and a year ago his wife sought to have him put under restraint as unsound mentally. The court spoke of this and said the marquis' health seemed improved since the lunacy trial ended.

One of the few interesting features of the trial was the story told by Robins of spending large sums of money on clothes in order that he might be smartly dressed as the companion of the marquis on his visit to the United States in quest of an American bride.

Robins obviously was embarrassed when the counsel for the plaintiff asked him what was the object of this expenditure, for he replied that it was purely a personal matter, and that he had no desire to wound the susceptibilities of Lord or Lady Townshend. Finally he declared:

"It was on account of certain affairs I was engaged in on behalf of the marquis' matrimonial affairs."

"Were the clothes to bedeck you out for any purpose?" asked the judge.

"Yes," was the reply.

Further questions elicited the fact that the quest of a wife for the marquis was made not only in the United States but also in England and in France and occupied several years.

Far from having their susceptibilities wounded, the marquis and marquise appeared to enjoy the evidence hugely, smiling continuously throughout the proceedings.

The marquis frequently abandoned himself to boisterous laughter. On one occasion his mirth was only suppressed by means of his pocket handkerchief, in which he buried his face more than once.

His infectious hilarity brought him a gentle reproof from the marquise, who, however, at last joined in. Even the court was amused by the merry scene.

In opening the case it was suggested that Mr. Robins had improperly disposed of the Townshend heirlooms and converted the proceeds to his own personal use.

Mr. Micklem, K.C., counsel for the plaintiff, explained that the heirlooms consisted of valuable china and other articles which were brought into a deed for resettlement by Lord St. Levan, executor under the late marquis' will.

A large part of the china had disappeared and counsel did not think it likely that Mr. Robins knew nothing of the fact, although the defence possibly would suggest that it was not done under his control.

Robins was described by counsel as a man of strong intellect, of unscrupulous character, who undoubtedly had obtained powerful influence over Lord Townshend.

In March, 1900, the marquis appointed Mr. Robins to the family living at East and West Raynham, and his lordship went to live at the rectory.

Soon after there was an allegation made against Mr. Robins and a young woman relative of the marquis, and the bishop brought pressure upon him to give up the living, whereupon he resigned.

Lord Townshend reinstated him, but the bishop refused to appoint him, and Mr. Robins thus became a layman.

Some time after this the marquis and Mr. Robins went on a six months' tour through America, and on their return to England lived together at Hove.

Counsel declared that large sums of money were paid to Mr. Robins, and that he would be able to prove that out of proceeds of the sale of the heirlooms his lordship received only $500.

The articles having been sold under Mr. Robins' control, the inference was that he had received the money.

Although the marquis' life was of the simplest character he was often without money. All of it went to Robins.

End of Derby Winners.

Like several previous winners of the Derby, Persimmon has ended his days tragically. It is not long since Donovan, who won the Blue Riband for the Duke of Portland in 1889, dashed into a tree while running loose in his paddock, and so seriously injured his head that he had to be destroyed. Silvio broke his leg and was shot; Kingcraft, the winner of 1870, died while crossing the Atlantic, a fate which also befell Blue Gown, the hero of two years earlier. Kisber ended his days an exile in Hungary; and George Frederick spent his latter days, sightless, on a Canadian farm. Hermit, the sensational winner of 41 years ago, lived to a good old age, and his skeleton, we fancy, still survives in the Royal Veterinary College, Camden Town; and the "flying Amato" lies buried in the beautiful grounds of The Durdans, Lord Rosebery's Epsom seat.

FATE OF MILITARY UNIFORMS.

Once Worn by European Regiments Sold to African Monarchs.

The world's biggest old clothes shop is to be found in the London thoroughfare of Houndsditch. It is presided over by Mr. John Hyman, who has rightly earned the title of the Prince of Old Clothes, for it is to this individual that the Lord Mayor of London, our army officers, our soldiers, sailors, policemen and postmen send their costumes when they have no further use for them.

Then, not only do all the old clothes of this country find their way here, but the firm has established agents all over the continent, and weekly large shipments of the most miscellaneous garments you ever saw reach the Prince of Old Clothes from his representatives on the continent. In one corner you will see the discarded garments of some crack French regiment, the next pile will consist of jackets lately worn by the Kaiser's soldiers, and lying alongside of them will be thousands of dress suits purchased from the leading German hotels.

But the showy military costumes and the piles of frock coats you see in the shop one day will be gone the next. Indeed, it is surprising how quickly the goods are disposed of, and it is here where the romance of the whole business lies. Mr. Hyman is not only the Prince of Old Clothes, but he may also well be called the costumier to the dusky monarchs of Africa. The goods are sent abroad in huge bales, each bale containing from 200 to 250 articles. From 300 to 400 bales are sent as a rule every month.

They go to all parts of the world—Africa, Asia, India, China and far away Japan. They are eagerly bought up by native traders, who sell them in the Oriental bazaars. From the bazaars they find their way into the far interior of the country, and explorers and travelers have often related how they have met a native king in Central Africa wearing a costume that put them in mind of a Lifeguardsman's uniform minus, perhaps, the belt and badly in need of a little pipeclay, but nevertheless much prized by the owner.

Explorers and travelers often call at the old clothes establishment and secure a quantity of showy wearing apparel. They find it makes ideal presents for native kings and chiefs. Said one well known traveler to the proprietor the other day, "There is nothing like a showy military coat to get a black king to allow you to take your party through his country."

"I have visited most of the great Oriental bazaars where our clothing is sold," said Mr. Hyman, "and I have watched with much amusement our goods being purchased by the natives. I have seen the blacks of Africa solemnly walking about with European waistcoats buttoned up behind instead of in front and even men wearing ladies' costumes. I have seen enormously big fellows wearing garments that for the life of me I could not imagine how they managed to get into them and am afraid when they tried to take them off some of the stitching must have given way."

Curiously enough, the showy costumes worn by the Lord Mayors of London do not find such a ready market abroad as the ordinary tunic of a private soldier. This is probably on account of its price. After his nomination the Lord Mayor has to purchase his official costume—a magnificent rigout of silk stockings, buckled boots, gold-laced coat and cocked hat—which costs about £60. At the end of his term of office he disposes of it to the second-hand dealer. The official costumes worn by London's Lord Mayors for the last twenty-five years have been purchased by Mr. Hyman.

Curious Norwegian Custom.

In England it is not unusual for ten or twelve couples to be married at the same time by the same clergyman, but in the district around Christiania, Norway, it is the rule and not the exception. Here may be seen a procession of twenty or more couples all dressed exactly alike, going to the village church to be married in bulk.

The sight is a very quaint one, and, owing to the picturesque costumes of both the maids and the men, also a very pretty one. The procession is met at the door by the Norwegian minister, who leads the couples into the church, where the marriage ceremony takes place according to the rites of that country.

The custom has its advantages, for besides presenting an interesting spectacle, much time is saved, and the fees of the clergyman make up quite a large sum.

MAKE WILL NOT BE LARGE BUT PRICES WILL BE GOOD

Good Prospects for Cheese Industry in This District—President Riddell, of Cheese Board, Discusses the Outlook.

"From present appearances the output of cheese in this district this season will be lighter than last year" said Mr. John Riddell today. Mr. Riddell is president of the Peterborough cheese board and is in close touch with the dairy industry in all its phases.

"I am inclined to think," Mr. Riddell continued, in answer to a further query "that conditions throughout the province are much the same as in the Peterborough district and that the output of cheese in the province will be less than in 1907."

Mr. Riddell based the above opinion on the ground that there will be fewer milch cows this season than last year as a result of the shortage of feed last fall which induced many farmers to dispose of their cows. Himthey try that feed was going to be scarce was greater than the reality but at the same time many farmers got rid of an unusually large number of cows. The season will be late too. Mr. Riddell states that it will be well on in May before the cattle can be turned out on pasturage and in many cases they will not go out in such good condition as in some previous years. This will have a tendency to keep down the production of milk.

Mr. Riddell thinks that the price of cheese this season will be well up to that of last year, perhaps a little better. This is a gratifying feature and will be good news to the dairymen of the district.

The first meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board will be held on Wednesday, May 20th. As far as can be learned none of the factories in the local district has yet commenced manufacturing but it is expected that many of them will be in operation within the next two weeks.

BACHELORS HAD PLEASANT TIME

Entertained Last Evening by Mr. Wm. O'Brien, Gilmour St.

About twenty members of the Bachelors' Club assembled at the home of Mr. William O'Brien, Gilmour street, last evening when a progressive euchre party was held. Mr. James Callahan was the winner of first prize and Mr. Vincent Corkery took the booby. A musical programme was run off in which the features were, a whistling duet by Messrs. Jas. Callahan and Frank Hickey, vocal solos by Messrs. Frank Pope and Harry Quinlan and step dancing by Messrs. Jas. Callahan, Godfrey Coughlin and Austin O'Brien. The evening was brought to a close by the singing of the national anthem and the guests departed to their different homes singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. O'Brien leaves to-morrow evening to resume his duties as principal of the Mattawa Separate school.

Thousands Will Benefit if Statement Made is Only Partly True.

It may be that some persons will be inclined to doubt the statement made by an eminent authority, at a recent meeting, that with a mixture of dandelion, kargon and sarsaparilla he would give prompt relief to any sufferer of rheumatism or the usual forms of backache, caused by inactive, clogged kidneys yet many cases of long standing that had been entirely relieved were cited to prove the truth of his assertion. The same authority further stated that many cases which failed to yield to the healing waters of the famous health resorts, or the usual remedies as prescribed, salicylate of soda, potash, colchicum, etc—were readily relieved by the use of this simple mixture—Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful dose after meals and at bedtime.

A well-known druggist, when approached upon the subject, that while this prescription, as written, is new, the ingredients are continually prescribed by the best physicians and any good prescription pharmacy has them; they are inexpensive and harmless to use and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

If the claims made for this mixture are only partly correct, it would seem that no sufferer here could afford to leave the prescription untried.

LITTLE BERNICE HOAGLAND HERE

Daughter of Celebrated Pedestrian Arrived in City This Morning

Little Bernice Hoagland, the 12-year-old daughter of W. A. Hoagland, the walking champion, arrived in the city this morning from Toronto, where she has been staying with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Richardson, 752 Sydenham street, Toronto, Mrs. Richardson being a sister of the famous pedestrian.

Miss Bernice accompanied her father as far as Toronto last Thursday, coming with him from Auburn.

WAS AT KANSAS CITY.

She was at Kansas City with him and stayed there during the whole of the week. She took a deep interest in it and didn't miss a single moment of the sport that she could help seeing every day of it.

IS WALKER TOO.

She takes after her father in the matter of pedestrianism and accompanies him on many long ajunts into the country. She likes walking very much and shows exceptional skill as a pedestrian for one so young. But then, she is a daughter of Hoagland, so what else could be expected.

WALKING

At one place in which Hoagland raced a lady ran him up at his hotel and asked him if he got his gait from sifting ashes.

The only drawback the champion can complain of is a blister on the ball of his foot. He got it at Kansas City and it has bothered him both at Trenton and here.

"The most appreciative audiences I have ever walked before are in Peterborough," said Tom Slater. "No matter who is doing good work they applaud. All the outside walkers are delighted with the way the crowd uses them."

The way Fenton is staying with it is surprising. His miles were very slow last night from 15 to 18 minutes.

ROLLER RINK AT LINDSAY IS DESTROYED

Fire Broke Out About Five O'clock This Morning---Loss Will be Heavy

Word was received in the city today that the Lindsay skating rink was destroyed by fire this morning. It was being used as a roller rink and the fire broke out about five o'clock and it was 8.30 o'clock when it was got under control. It is supposed that the fire was started by a cigar stub dropped in the rink last night and which smouldered and at last set the building in flames. The building was gutted, the roof being completely destroyed.

The loss will be heavy as a large number of roller skates were burned.

Mr. J. D. C. Lang received notice of the fire today by a post card received from Mr. M. J. Maher.

ARMY CRISIS IN BRITAIN.

Volunteers Do Not Take Kindly to Territorial Scheme.

There are ominous rumors that Mr. Haldane, the British Secretary for War, will not get all the men he wants for his new Territorial army. The Manchester Guardian voices the opinions which are being freely expressed in the Old Country.

"The present crisis," it says, "is an extremely serious one, for unless the volunteers approve the new conditions the old volunteer force will come to an end next month, and there will be no territorial army to take its place. We must remember, too, that our hopes of army economy, such as they are, all depend on our obtaining in the new territorial army a military weapon of so much greater value than the old volunteers as to justify a proportionate reduction of the more expensive regular army.

"We do not think that any small concessions will succeed in averting the danger that has now become evident, nor will it be safe to wait very long, because irreparable mischief may be done in the meantime. The only safe course, to our mind, is to transfer existing volunteers into the territorial army for a year's service on the old terms, or on as near an approach to them as is possible. The year's interval could probably be put to good use by the War Office, and might serve to reassure the men. But in any case it would save us from the danger of wholesale refusals on the part of volunteers to re-enlist in the territorial army.

"Mr. Haldane is a revolutionary in army matters though not a casual one, but how revolutionary his changes are was perhaps not generally realized until the enlistment forms were circulated. Volunteers had already been informed that 'enlistment was more formal and more military than enrolment,' but in spite of this warning the actual questions and the form of the oath seem to have taken them by surprise. That the volunteer is threatened with imprisonment with hard labor if he returns a false answer to any of the questions about the place of his birth, his wife's maiden name, the name of the man who married them, the number of his children, and so forth, is doubtless only a manner of speaking. But it illustrates the 'change of status.' He is being 'enlisted,' not 'enrolled'; that is to say, he is no longer a civilian who volunteers to devote his spare time to military work, but a 'Tommy.'

"Under the act the period of compulsory attendance at camp is from eight to fifteen days, which is no advance on the present requirement. But it may be extended by order-in-council to thirty days, and the colonel is the sole judge whether leave of absence should be given or not.

"The form of oath is a further stumbling-block to many, because it brings out quite clearly that the territorial army may be invited (it cannot, of course, be forced) to volunteer for foreign service. The territorialist is to serve the King not 'in Great Britain for the defence of the same,' as the old volunteers swore, but 'against all enemies according to the conditions of my service.' The form of oath shows that foreign service may be regarded as a normal function of the territorial force, and not a wholly abnormal development of the obligation to defend 'hearth and home,' which is what has made the volunteer force. The change in the oath is the sign at the cross roads—a warning that it is no mere turning in the old familiar road."

Don't Like Rubbers.

What is the explanation of the average Englishman's aversion to galoches?

Indisposed on account of a chill, the Bishop of London, who recently returned from a visit to Russia, stated that he ascribed his cold to "a national prejudice against wearing galoches."

In order to ascertain why there is so strong a prejudice against galoches in England the reporter for a daily paper called on the manager of a leading India rubber store and asked him for his views on this interesting question.

"It is estimated," he said, "that only 2 1-2 per cent. of the population in England wear galoches. In Canada and the United States everybody wears them.

"In England there is undoubtedly a great prejudice against galoches, and it is due to the fact that people do not appreciate their worth. They keep the feet dry and damp-proof and the boots clean.

"It is said that galoches make the feet hot; but surely hot feet are better than wet feet. You do not catch cold if your feet are hot."

An eminent health specialist consulted by the reporter took quite a contrary view.

"The Bishop of London," he said, "must have been wearing an old pair of boots when he caught cold. In my opinion, the only coverings necessary for the feet are socks shaped to the toes and strong, thick-soled, well-fitting boots.

"Galoches are a harmful footwear. They overheat the feet, which become swollen and tender, and thus are a cause of corns and bunions.

"Keep the feet warm certainly, but don't boil them."

CHURCHILL IS REJECTED; A BLOW FOR GOVERNMENT

Joynson-Hicks, Unionist Candidate, Carries Manchester by Majority of 429---Heaviest Poll of Twenty Years---Socialist Vote Was Not Factor.

Manchester, April 25.—The northwest division of Manchester, by the heaviest poll cast in 20 years, yesterday reversed its verdict of 1906, and by a majority of 429 votes unseated as its member of Parliament Winston Spencer Churchill, Liberal, who has just been made President of the Board of Trade in the new Asquith Cabinet, and who that year so brilliantly wrested the seat from W. Joynson-Hicks, Unionist, his chief opponent of yesterday. Three candidates stood for election and the result was as follows:

W. Joynson-Hicks (Unionist), 5,417.

Winston Spencer Churchill (Liberal), 4,988.

Mr. Irving (Socialist), 276.

The defeat of Mr. Churchill is a crushing blow to the prestige of the Government and the young and confident Minister, which is bound to have a marked influence in several other impending bye-elections. There will be no difficulty in finding for Mr. Churchill a safe seat elsewhere. The Liberals may derive from their defeat what consolation is possible from the fact that prior to 1906 the northwest division seat was held consistently by Conservatives.

Among the many influences and cross currents at work in this extraordinary contest it was not wholly beyond reason to suppose that Mr. Asquith himself was partly responsible for the defeat of his young colleague. It is customary for the leader of the party to send a letter wishing success to any member of his party seeking election to Parliament. Mr. Balfour in this case sent Mr. Joynson-Hicks an unusually long and adroit letter, which doubtless very materially assisted the Unionist campaign.

Mr. Asquith, on the other hand, for some as yet unexplained reason omitted to follow this custom, though he sent a letter to Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Education, who on Thrusday contested and won the seat for Dewsbury by a majority of 1,148 votes. It is impossible to imagine that the omission in the case of Mr. Churchill was not intentional; but in any case it gave the Unionists an opening to insinuate that the Premier rather disapproved of Mr. Churchill's tactics in pledging the Government on the Irish home rule and other questions, or that he would not be unwilling to see the over-confident young Minister receive a check.

Contrary to expectation the Socialist vote was so small that it had practically no effect on the election. Probably more damage was inflicted on the Liberal cause by the activity of the Suffragettes, who worked with the utmost energy against Mr. Churchill. It is also supposed that David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, by breaking the custom that the Cabinet abstain personally from canvassing elections, gave many votes of waverers to the Unionists, while Mr. Redmond's advice to the Catholics to support Mr. Churchill may have come too late, the English Catholic priests having conducted a very vigorous campaign against Mr. Churchill and the Government's education bill.

Licensing Bill Blamed.

Mr. Joynson-Hicks, in an interview after the election, attributed his victory mainly to the education and licensing bills. He is a London solicitor, 43 years of age and never before has had a seat in Parliament.

It is reported the Liberal leaders at Dundee sent a telegram to Winston Churchill inviting him to contest the seat in Parliament made vacant through the elevation to the peerage of the Right Hon. Edmund Robertson, Liberal, who has held the seat since 1885.

C.P.R. CONDUCTOR SUICIDES; SAD DEATH AT SMITH'S FALLS

Smith's Falls, April 25.—The town was shocked yesterday by the announcement that Robert Beatty, a well-known C.P.R. conductor of this place, had committed suicide by jumping into the river near the Perrin Plow Works. The act was a most deliberate one, as he walked up to the spot where the fatal leap was taken, apparently to look over the ground and went away again. He returned in an hour's time and walked the length of the dam at the citizens' electric plant and there jumped in.

Some men in the Perrin Plow Works noticed him come to the place the second time and called to him. As they did so he took a small can from his pocket and drank from it something which is supposed to have been poison. Then he pulled his soft felt hat over his face and threw the can away, just before he jumped.

The horrified on-lookers rushed at once to attempt to rescue him, but the current is very swift at this point and this was impossible. He went over the dam and the eddy washed him up on to the bank at the cut. Every effort was made to resuscitate him, but life was extinct.

The deceased made his last trip on Wednesday when he looked sick after coming in. Since that time he was noticed to have acted rather strangely and yesterday morning two of his friends were so impressed with this fact that they decided to watch him. They followed him to the Perrin Plow Works, when he went there the second time and as he stepped down on the dam they shouted to him, but beyond turning to look at them, he paid no heed.

What caused him to take his own life no one can conjecture. He was in comfortable circumstances and was most happy in his home life.

COAT AND SHOES HAVE BEEN FOUND

Traces of the Fugitive Moir on Outskirts of Stratford.

Stratford, April 25.—The opinion is prevalent here that the officers in pursuit of William Moir, wanted for murder, are on the wrong trail, and that the fugitive has doubled on his tracks and has even been in hiding close to this city for at least two days.

This belief is strengthened by the finding of a raincoat similar to the one worn by Moir and a pair of military shoes near the old Crystal Palace grounds at the outskirts of the city. These articles were not seen as late as Thursday morning, and the find, which was made yesterday afternoon, would indicate that Moir had been here very recently and is now heading in a southwesterly direction. Residents in the north end of the city claim to have seen a man resembling Moir in the vicinity of the old fair grounds.

His experience as a scout and cunning ingenuity peculiarly fit him for his elusive flight, and the feeling here is that he is wriggling out of the clutches of the law. No reward has yet been offered.

A Daring Robbery.

Bandana, Ky., April 25.—Four masked robbers, after taking possession of the Cumberland Telephone Exchange, and beating the operator into insensibility, compelled Assistant Cashier B. H. Hans of the Ballard County Bank of Bandana to unlock the bank and open the safe for them late last night. The robbers got away with $3,000.

Shot Plumage on Hat.

New York, April 25.—A hunter in the Edenwald woods, in the northern part of the Bronx, aimed at some birds in Mrs. Mary Sassen's hat, but missed and sent a load of shot into the woman's breast.

Mrs. Sassen, who lives at 232 South Eighth avenue, Mount Vernon, entered the woods early in the afternoon to pick flowers. She wore a rather squat, brown hat, trimmed with two brown birds and some foliage. In the woods, which are thickly grown, the hat looked for all the world like a big nest of birds.

The woman was bending over and placing flowers in a basket when shot.

CROWN JEWELS ARE NOW MISSING

Were Sold to Pay Royal Debts--King Manuel Refunds.

Lisbon, April 25.—King Manuel has announced his intention of personally refunding the value of the missing crown jewels to the royal treasury. His attitude has caused universal admiration.

When King Miguel was deposed as ruler of Portugal in 1634, the crown jewels, valued at $2,000,000, were confiscated and deposited in the Bank of Portugal as the property of the state. Recently the Republican press has charged that absolute proof existed of the fact that a large portion of these jewels had been sold without the consent of Parliament to meet the expenses of the royal house.

King Manuel thereupon ordered that an inventory be taken and this proved that jewels to the value of $750,000 were missing. The governor of the Bank of Portugal when questioned admitted the removal of the precious stones, but declared that the sale had been made upon the urgent demand of King Carlos, who desired to meet certain pressing debts of the royal household in order to avoid a scandal.

Bright Child Crushed to Death.

Wilberforce, April 25.—A fatal accident occurred at a sawmill in Harcourt Township on the T. B. & O., when Mary Ellen McCoy, daughter of James McCoy, who is a foreman in the mill, and a granddaughter of James Barrie of Hastings, was playing with two other children beneath the jack that carries the logs into the mill. A crooked timber coming up the jack toppled over upon the little one, crushing out her life instantly.

A Cowardly Assault.

Montreal, April 25.—City Constable Ernest Gauthier went out at an early hour yesterday morning to get his sick wife some medicine, when he was set on by five thugs, who took his watch and a small amount of money and left him unconscious.

Ottawa's Contribution.

Ottawa, April 25.—The Ottawa contribution to the Quebec battlefields fund to date is upwards of $4,000, to which Earl Grey and John Manuel contributed $1,000 each. There are some subscriptions yet to be collected.

TO PROBE THE COMMISSION COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED

Major Hodgin's Charges Will be Investigated---Government Paying Padded Accounts He Says---Hon. S. N. Parent Gives Emphatic Denial---Pugsley Floundered---Could Not Explain---Wordy Battle With Mr. Taylor.

Ottawa, April 25.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced yesterday that on Monday he would move for the appointment of a committee of five members to investigate the charges made by Major Hodgins, former engineer of the National Trancontinental Railway at Kenora, against the commission. He read the correspondence in the matter.

The first letter is from Hon. S. N. Parent, chairman of the commission, to Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Dealing with the charges categorically, Mr. Parent denies that any of them have any foundation. The main charge is that the Government is paying padded accounts for work done, and G. T. R. people are making no objection because they merely had to pay the added interest. In reply, Mr. Parent says the railway "makes objections when they see fit and these are looked into at once."

The chairman also refutes the statement that the commissioners wanted to change his (Major Hodgin's) ideas on construction to classification, that is allowed to contractors in Quebec.

"The commissioners," says Mr. Parent, "never, at any time, requested Major Hodgins to adopt in his district any classification not in accordance with the contract and specifications.

"As to classification in Quebec, it was looked over and found to be agreeing with these and therefore perfectly regular."

Charge three read: If Mr. Poulin, the engineer appointed by Mr. Parent to replace me on the western district, has allowed the introduction of a classification similar to that allowed in Quebec, this will account for the increase in the estimated cost of the line. If this increase amounts to $3,000,000 or $4,000,000, it is time the public demanded some explanation."

Poulin, replied the chairman, was appointed on the recommendation of the chief engineer because he was the best man to take hold of the work of re-organising the district, which had been left in such bad shape by Major Hodgins.

Proceeding, he, says: "Since leaving our employment, Major Hodgins has talked a good deal openly, in fact, much more than professional dignity, and the sense of justice would seem usually to permit. It is time, we feel, in justice to ourselves and the public, before whom there is an evident desire to misrepresent the facts, to call a halt and make it necessary for the accusor to bring facts to substantiate his charges.

In conclusion, the commissioners would respectfully request, as they do not wish to remain under the aspersions which such reports cast on them, that the whole matter be referred to and looked into by a committee of the House, and that Major Hodgins be assigned to appear before the same to repeat his charges in a specific manner in order to substantiate them, if he can. Then an opportunity will be given right-minded people to see where the truth is and if public interest would have been better served by keeping an engineer who ignored the specifications, or by replacing him, as was done, by one who will follow them."

Replying to Mr. Foster, Mr. Fielding said in the House yesterday afternoon that, in view of extensive enquiries before the banking and commerce committe, it was his desire that some time should elapse before the insurance bill was again taken up. In due time it would be heard from again.

Mr. Borden, asking about the Quebec bridge report, was told by Mr. Graham that good progress was being made. As there had been a large number of enquiries, both cable and otherwise, for copies of the report, it was proposed to have a larger number than usual printed, and copies placed in all the public libraries as well as the university libraries.

George Taylor rose to deny an allegation that he had been an applicant for timber limits. In looking over some fyles recently he had discovered that John Tolmie, M.P., had secured for his partner, John Gentiles, certain limits in Alberta, which had been disposed of for $4,000. In one of his letters Tolmie refers to Gentiles as his partner "in this deal."

Mr. Taylor also hurled a bomb at Hon. Wm. Pugsley, entertaining the House with detailing the prices paid for material and work on a breakwater at Petit Rocher. Some of these prices were enormously extravagant, and Mr. Taylor had made an effort to obtain all the correspondence, moving in the proper way. What he got was up to the end of 1905; whereas the breakwater had been since swept away and rebuilt. There were no documents concerning these events. Mr. Taylor went after the Minister for refusing to obey the mandate of the House.

Mr. Pugsley could have extricated himself and made his detractor uneasy if he had known the facts, but he floundered around in a slough of uncertainty. He believed that his deputy had brought down all the documents on fyle.

"I've done all that I can do," lamented the Minister, apparently anxious to appease the chief Opposition whip.

"Then he'd better resign," observed Mr. Taylor.

"I believe my deputy," retorted the Minister.

"Yes," replied Mr. Taylor, "and I would believe the deputy before I would believe the Minister."

The matter would have dropped but that Mr. Turgeon of Gloucester explained that the reason there was no correspondence was because the contractor was responsible to the Government for the completion of the work, and after it was blown away he rebuilt it.

Mr. Martin (Queen's, P.E.I.) was told by Mr. Graham that Mr. Haney's claim against the Government for the construction of the Hillsboro bridge was for $390,000. The arbitrator, Collingwood Schreiber, had awarded the contractor $164,000.

THE TRIBESMEN WERE DISLODGED

British Loss in Big Fight Numbered Sixty-two.

Simla, April 25.—A despatch received here from Peshawur says:

"The Matta was attacked Thursday night, but the enemy was repulsed. There was heavy artillery firing at Shabkadar and Gen. Anderson's brigade fought a big engagement. Our casualties number 62, including several British officers."

Lord Minto, Viceroy of India, and Lord Kitchener, commander-in-chief of the British forces in India, will arrive here to-day, and the British will assume the offensive as quickly as possible. Sir James Willcocks has control of 10,000 troops, comprising three brigades, two of which are concentrating on the border, the third being held in reserve at Peshawur.

Desultory firing is reported all along the line, fifteen miles from Michni, on the Kabul River to Abasai, on the Swat River. Major-Gen. Willcocks' centre rests on Shabkadar fort.

TROUBLE WITH SHIPBUILDERS

Lockout in Great Britain---Thousand Shipbuilders Will be Affected.

London, April 25.—At a meeting held in Carlisle yesterday afternoon the Shipbuilding Employers' Federation decided to order a lockout in every shipbuilding yard in the United Kingdom.

This action is in accordance with the announcement made by the federation April 15, when they said that unless the ship workmen on the northeast coast, who went on strike the middle of January, resumed work by April 25, all the shipbuilding yards in the country would be closed down.

The decision was reached after a five hour conference, at which representatives of the unions urged that the strike on the northeast coast be submitted to arbitration. The employers declined to discuss this proposition and insisted that the northeast strikers return to work at reduced wages.

SIX JAP SHIPS NOW AT AMOY

Naval Display Causes Considerable Excitement---Ask for Protection.

Shanghai, April 25.—The arrival of six Japanese armor-clad warships at Amoy has caused great excitement in the Fukien and Kwangtung provinces, as well as in Pekin.

There is varied speculation as to the object of such formidable display, as it happens just as the negotiations relative to the Chientao boundary dispute are re-opened. The Korean population of the latter place presented a monster joint petition to the Chinese resident official, asking for Chinese protection.

Meanwhile, Col. Sato, the Japanese military commander at Chientao, has arrived in Pekin, with the object of strengthening Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Minister, in his negotiations with Tun Shao Yih, the governor of Fukien Province, in pushing the claims of the Japanese military party, who regard Chientao as of vital importance, commanding and menacing Kirin, Vladivostok and Harbin equally.

Japanese reservists, in the guise of settlers, peddlers and farmers, are pouring into the territory in increasing numbers.

Sir Robert Hart of the Chinese imperial customs is due here to-day, en route to his home in Ireland. He has declared that he will return on the expiration of his year's leave of absence.

The British court has confiscated the steamship Maori King on the ground of false registration under the British flag. The owner of the vessel was accused of having allowed her to be used for the kidnapping of Chinese coolies, who were taken to Guaymas, Mexico, from Vladivostok.

It is expected that the Chinese Government will ask for the prosecution of those implicated in that affair.

Austrian Consul Fined.

Montreal, April 25.—The Austrian flag proved no protection to the consul when he appeared before the judge, charged with striking a clerk in his employ, who kept his hat on in the office. The assault took place in the consulate, and he pleaded that that was Austrian territory, and that Canadian law did not hold sway. The judge held that it did, and he imposed a fine of $5 and costs.

Basis of Settlement.

Winnipeg, April 25.—A basis of agreement was reached at a conference between the Street Railway Co. officials and representatives of the conductors and motormen. A compromise has been suggested under which the company will recognize the seniority rule demanded by the men, and will place seats in vestibules for motormen. They, however, refuse to grant a nine-hour day.

Street Sentenced to Six Months.

Oakville, April 25.—Richard Street, who was shot while trying to resist arrest on a charge of attempted assault on a little girl, was arraigned in court and convicted by Police Magistrate Shields. He was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison.

TORNADO WORKS GREAT HAVOC SEVERAL HUNDREDS KILLED

Towns Destroyed in Mississippi Valley---Death and Devastation Follows in the Wake of the Worst Outbursts of Nature's Temper.

Atlanta, Ga., April 25.—A wind of cyclonic proportions swept over portions of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama late yesterday, leaving a trail of dead and injured.

Last night the number of killed is estimated at close to a hundred and the number of injured at over a hundred, with many portions of the afflicted districts to hear from.

Most of the dead are negroes. Perhaps a dozen white persons were caught in falling buildings and either fatally injured or seriously disabled.

The loss of life was chiefly in the quarters of colored people, where the wind destroyed their cabins, burying the occupants in the debris, or in the farming sections of the country, where trees were uprooted, telegraph and telephone poles torn up.

Last night it was difficult to estimate the loss of life or the extent of the destruction of property, for there is little or no communication with the points where the wind and rain did its greatest damage.

In Louisiana it is estimated that a score of small towns were destroyed or partly wrecked.

They include Amite City, Arcadia and Independence.

Belle Grove, Melton, Lorman, Pineridge, Quitman Landing, Fairchilds Creek, Purvis and Lumberton, Miss., are reported seriously damaged by storm.

In Alabama, Dora was the chief sufferer. This town is also known as Bergen. Four or more persons were killed, among them the wife and daughter of Sectionmaster Moore.

Fifty persons at the lowest estimate were injured. Those most seriously hurt were carried to hospital in Birmingham, Ala. One woman, a Mrs. McCully, died on the train. Two other members of this family were seriously injured.

Cars were blown from the railroad tracks and considerable other property destroyed.

Reports also say that the storm struck Albertville, Ala., late yesterday afternoon and destroyed the entire northern portion of the town; a cotton mill was blown down, the storm ranging northward doing much destruction to life and property.

An unconfirmed report from this section gives the death list as from 30 to 35, with scores of persons injured.

A special train was sent to Birmingham, carrying physicians and a squad of state militiamen to the district.

Aid is also pouring in from all other directions.

Richland and Lamouri, La., were struck by the storm and nearly a fifth of the population injured.

Winchester, Miss., a small town, is reported wiped out though only two other persons are known to have been killed.

Natchez, Miss., reports sixty are known to be dead in the Northern Louisiana storm. Hundreds of plantation cabins are reported destroyed in this section.

Mobile reported nine dead in Hattiesburg, Miss., but this has not been confirmed.

FORMER PETERBOROUGH MAN VISITS ELK PARK, HOME OF THE BUFFALO

Col. E. B. Edwards, of Edmonton, Pays a Visit to the Park Near Fort Saskatchewan Where Between Three and Four Hundred Buffalo are Kept—Busy Seeding in the West.

(Readers of the Review are always glad to hear about the west and especially from former Peterborough men located there. The following letter from Col. E. B. Edwards will be read with great interest:

Edmonton, April 20, '08.

Dear Sir.--I have seen something which reminds me of the tales we used to read when we were boys, and of the tales which I have more recently heard from the old-timers on the western plains. On Friday I paid a visit to the Elk Park, about twelve miles east of Fort Saskatchewan, and saw a herd of buffalo of between three and four hundred. On seeing them, one can easily realize the chagrin of our neighbors to the south when they found that these buffalo had been bought and carried off by the Canadian Government. Even as a commercial venture they are worth a great deal more than the price paid for them, but as a matter of public interest, the preservation of a great herd of the animals that once roved over the prairies of Western Canada, is something upon which Canadians may well congratulate themselves.

LIEUT.-COL. EDWARDS.

The trip from the Fort on a warm spring day, over a splendid road, and through a vast extent of grain fields to right and left was most enjoyable. Coming to the Beaver Hill the level road was left behind and we passed over a stretch of rolling land, reminding one of a hilly part of Ontario. Turning to the south along the park fence which stands about from 8 to 10 feet in height, we could see inside, of the park on some of the small lakes, numbers of ducks, and a large flock of wild geese, resting quietly in the security that the park affords, no shooting being allowed in it.

We were fortunate in meeting the superintendent mounted and just ready to start for the corral where the buffalo have been enclosed for feeding purposes during the winter. Under his direction we drove close up to the wire fence, and on the other side of it, within ten paces of us, we saw this great herd of buffalo. They are in fine condition, and have come through the winter well, only one animal out of 400 having died. They are massive, ungainly looking animals, but their great strength and wonderful activity make them very dangerous when they turn upon a man or a horse. The superintendent told us of one case in which one of his men had a very narrow escape, his horse being badly cut up by the horns of a buffalo bull which had turned upon him, and but for the timely diversion created by his comrades his chance for escape was not very good. The superintendent also told of a fight between two of the largest animals, which he witnessed. One of them caught his opponent under the shoulder and hurled him bodily over the wire fence without knocking it down. There is a great deal of individuality about the animals; some of them stand very high over the withers, while others are lower and more compactly built. The sharp horns are generally curved backwards, but a buffalo when charging lowers its head so that the nose almost touches the ground, and in this way the point of the horns is thrown forward and the whole weight of the animal is thrown into the charge.

FED ON HAY.

The buffalo have been fed during the winter on hay, the most part of it out upon the natural meadows in the park itself. About seven tons a day are consumed. The buffalo will shortly be moved to a new park of much larger extent, about 75 miles south-east of Edmonton, and a number of the animals will be distributed to different points. There are still two or three hundred of them which have not yet been brought over from the United States, as Michael Pablo, the former owner, was unable to capture them last fall when the second detachment was brought over. It is expected that they will be brought over in the course of a month or two.

BUSY SEEDING.

The weather has been beautiful and warm for some time past, and farmers are busy ploughing and seeding. Settlers are pouring in in greater numbers than ever before. Many of them are English and Scotch, but many more come from the other side of the border.

The grading of the line of the G. T. P. west of Edmonton, is beginning this week. Large numbers of men with grading outfits have been moving to the west to cover the different sections of the work. It is likely to be a season of unusual activity in and about Edmonton. The weather is warm and beautiful. We have had the finest winter I have ever experienced. There was no rain from October until April, very little snow, very little wind, and no really severe weather, such as we have heard of elsewhere.

Yours truly,
E. B. EDWARDS.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mme. Emma Chatel, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I want to tell you that without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For months I suffered with painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the feminine organs. Doctors could do nothing for me, and said I must submit to an operation because I had a tumor.

"One of my cousins advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had cured her.

"I did so and now I have no pain and am entirely cured. Your remedy is deserving of great praise."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The turn-stile door is doomed and rightly so. In case of fire it would create a panic.

A brass heart has been invented. It is probably intended to accompany the brass mouth. Nature has not been able to keep pace with the demand.

It is not a sufficient plea in extenuation that there has been a corresponding increase of revenue.—The Globe.

This is in reference to the finances of the Province of Ontario. When the same question arises with reference to Dominion finances do you think, gentle reader, that this answer will be repeated?

The financial minister has announced his estimated expenditure for the next fiscal year. The sum is $119,-737,000, and when the supplementary estimates are submitted there may be conditions which will make the total $130,000,000. But of this large sum the outlay on account of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway will be $30,-000,000.—Lindsay Post.

How does this square with what Sir Wilfrid said would be the total cost of the railway to Canada?

It will not do to say that when Mr. Whitney railroaded the Canadian Northern guarantee of $2,500,-000 and the payment to the proprietors of the Larose mine of $130,000 through the Legislature, he was merely following in the footsteps of his predecessors.—The Globe.

You may bet it won't do to say it. Any reference to the late Government as an example to be followed would just about be a sentence of death. People of either or no political stripe would reach out again for somebody's scalp if it were all as the Globe says. But it isn't.

The stock market tipster is always to be distrusted. If his tips were of any value he would back them himself, and soon be independently wealthy. A New York man who advertised widely that he had inside information for sale has been found guilty of fleecing his patrons.—The News.

This has "oft been thought," but perhaps "ne'er so well expressed." If tipsters in anything from politics to baseball knew half as much as they say they do, the world would be as easy to a man as looking through a pane of glass. The craze for finding something by magic is a relic of the African or Hoodoo age.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

The international football match last night between England and Scotland—or to be more explicit, between the Caledonians and a picked team of Englishmen from several other local clubs, was the occasion of the most disgraceful exhibition of rowdiness yet seen at a football match in Calgary. It happened during the second half when Jackson, the outside right for the England team, sent in a very neat shot from a corner kick, which, after striking the head of Brain, the English inside right, bounced into the Caledonia goal just under the cross-bar. Referee Dalgetty, evidently mistaking the fact that it was a goal, did not allow it. At the same time Walshaw, the English left half put up his hands declaring a goal. At this the referee turned and struck at him, just grazing the side of his face. Walshaw replied by striking him twice in the face before the other players intervened and stopped the fight. The crowd, which was an unusually large one for a football match, swarmed in across the touch lines to the scene of the trouble and about four minutes were lost before the ground was cleared and play resumed. There is an unmistakeable evidence of bad blood between the English and Scotch football followers and last night's was an outburst which does not tend to the success of the game in Calgary. Dr. A. O. MacRae, of the Western Canada, remarked in the dressing room after the match, that this bad feeling had always existed, and always would exist, until a perfectly neutral referee was appointed to referee the matches. At the close the match was declared a victory of two goals to nil in favor of the Caledonians. It was undoubtedly the most evenly contested game yet played, there being very little in it to choose between either team, the superiority, if any, being with the Scotchmen.—Calgary News.

The immigrants are being acclimatized even too rapidly. It seems to be impossible to trust anybody nowadays except in the prize ring. The clergy even are accused of going "up in the air" sometimes. While it is not well to be too quick, still there ought to be a pronounced difference always, the quick and the dead.

SERMONS ON THE "LORD'S PRAYER"

Commencing tomorrow Rev. Robt. A. Pogue of St. Paul's church will preach a special series of sermons both morning and evening. In the morning the subject will be the "Lord's Prayer," and in the evening it will be on practical topics. Tomorrow morning he will take for his sermon that part of the Lord's Prayer "Our Father which art in Heaven" and in the evening his subject will be "The Christian as Master and Man."

YEAR HAS BEEN SATISFACTORY

Annual Business Meeting of First Church of Christ, Scientist

First Church of Christ, Scientist, held their annual business meeting last evening at which reports of officers for the past year, were received and officers elected for the coming year. The past year has been a very satisfactory one, the auditors' report showing a substantial balance on hand.

During the year the interior of the church has been improved and through the kindness of the board of trustees for the Nicholls Estate, a very nice library has been added to the Sunday School. A vote of thanks was tendered the board for their kind donation. [illegible]

THE C. N. R. GUARANTEE AN UNASSAILABLE POSITION

Not a Particle of Justification for Opposition's Criticism—The Arrangement an Admirable One—The Former Guarantee a Reckless and Useless, But Binding Contract—A Statesman's Act.

The party now in power in the Legislature of Ontario when in opposition opposed the CNR. guarantee. This was as everybody knows a guarantee of a Mackenzie and Mann colonization railway into Northern Ontario. Except as the plea that railways should not be subsidized there was otherwise no objection to it. The effect would be to develop the whole district which it penetrated. After a few years during which much work had been done upon the CNR. the CP R. cut in and injured the prospects of the CNR. accordingly. It now became incumbent upon Mackenzie and Mann to look out for additional objects of revenue. Iron mines and timber areas were discovered. These were made the new objective terminals of the road. About this time Whitney came into power. He took a look at the Ross contract. He saw that it was quite binding so far as it went but that the security did not include terminals. Terminals had evidently never been thought of. Then again the amount for which the Whitney government found itself responsible was $5,360,000! Just think of that. Mr. Whitney immediately declared that in his opinion the Ross government's security was valueless without terminals. He said to the CNR, "Construct a spur line into the rich Hutton iron mine and the 13-mile spur to Key inlet, your contemplated port on Georgian Bay. We will then agree to guarantee the bonds for the mileage of these short spurs and for their terminals to the full extent of the money already expended,—about $1,500,000— and 65 per cent of the amount remaining to be expended the whole in any event not to exceed two and a half millions." The borrowers saw the force of this suggestion. The guaranteed bondholders of the $5,360,000 agreed to it. They did not insist on useless though guaranteed expenditures. It was not the case then of granting an application of a railway for a bonus or for a guarantee. It was the case of two interested parties coming together and making mutual arrangements to preserve those mutual and important interests by which arrangement the one party received increased security and to a slight extent increased its responsibility or guarantee then subsisting to the extent accrued. It was the case of throwing out a sprat to catch a very much larger fish. The Whitney government is responsible therefore for slightly increasing the accrued guarantee but are worthy of commendation for having greatly increased the security, and diminishing the total guarantee. In addition they saved a much greater loss in wasted time and development to Northern Ontario, a thing which was of all things to be avoided at the juncture. A $5,360,000 guarantee had been changed into a guarantee of the amount already expended that is about $1,500,000 and in any event not to be more than $1,500,000 more. Is this being bought by Mackenzie and Mann? Even if the total guarantee had been increased, the security had been rendered secure and safe. And then as to the closing hours of the session The session closed on Tuesday and the bill was introduced on Thursday or five days before. Five days are a long interval in a short session. Did the Opposition debate the question? Not one word of objection came from it. It did not even ask for the bill to be declared "carried on a division," which is a formal way of registering an objection. Therefore according to well-known parliamentary usage the Opposition are chronicled as voting for it. The few dissenterents were Conservatives who wished to be consistent with their profession when in opposition. Their independence of spirit was commendable since it could be of no service as a mere matter of show. The above epitome is to be relied upon. It will be found correct in fact and we hope will be found reasonable in its deductions. The policy of subsidizing railways is out of date and no doubt in future will be considered so. The taxation of them also must be equalized with that of the rest of the community. Mr. MacKay vehemently opposes this proposal.

A HEARTLESS CONSPIRACY LIBERALS AGAINST LABOUR

The Globe Advises the Workingman to Work for Less—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Bonuses Competition—Between the Devil and the Deep Sea—The Liberal Party Against Labor.

It is unfortunate that every few days there are complaints from mechanics that laborers who have been told in some British cities that there would be work for them at high wages the moment they landed in Canada. Such instances go to show how widely the impression has been spread abroad and accepted that Canada is a country in which the laws of political economy have no existence. It is necessary to insist that the laws of political economy are as inevitable and as inexorable in Canada as elsewhere. The people might as well come here expecting a country free from the laws of [illegible]. Providence has no special dispensation for Canada. If an employer wants men in Canada and cannot obtain them he does not stand still till children grow to manhood or till immigrants arrive from distant countries. He modifies his efforts in operations to suit his necessities, and the opportunities for employment pass. If there is a great demand for men in Toronto when the seductive steamship agent is talking to the intending emigrant in London, it is no assurance that there will be any demand when the same emigrant reaches this city.

A reasonable view of the necessities of every line of business will convince any man that a demand for men or goods will not continue. If it is not met it passes away. Price variations make every demand virtually inexhaustible. A factory with its full complement of, say, 500 men has an opening for 500 equally capable men if willing to work for half the rate paid to the present employees. The employer can always say with perfect truth that he has an opening for 500 men.—The Globe, April 17th, 1908.

This is not a case of ill-defined lunacy. It is merely a Globe editorial. Let any sane man read this article to the end of the quotation above made and reflect upon the weakness of a case which has elicited such an "argument." Any employer who would say that he had an opening for 500 men when to produce that opening he would have to trade upon the necessities of those out of work, to such an extent as to compel them to work for less than the usual wage and to displace their comrades, is not only unprincipled—but is infinitely worse. What, we ask, becomes of the displaced 500? Is it not a paltry juggling with words for the Globe to say that there is under such circumstances an opening for 500 men. And this is the Globe's idea of "perfect truth!" It is moreover, the Globe's and the Liberal party's idea of fairplay to the workingman. It is also Sir Wilfrid Lauriers' idea of what the workingman should get. Is it any wonder that men combine against such treatment. Sir Wilfrid pays $5 bonus for every immigrant and the steamship companies pay $5 more.

With the code of ethics of the Liberal party as a standard, what hope is there for the common everyday workingman. He is at the mercy of the juggler. He is truly a victim of "circumstances!"

On March 8th, 1908, the Globe, as the chief organ of the Liberal party, affirmed in words addressed to the unemployed of Toronto that there need be no unemployed if they would work for less than those already employed! Is it any wonder that such a party and such an organ has stood up for coolie immigration. Fine phrases have been used in vain to cover up a shocking attempt upon the liberty and independence of the employed of this country. We do not find the Liberal press championing the rights of free men against the Globe's attack or against the bonus on immigration.

All such organs belong to the general conspiracy against the public weal. The present discontent on this continent is founded on reason. No set of men can be expected to put up with mockery of these votaries of Mammon. Labor cannot stand against it. Christianity itself cannot stand against it. Canada is in the grasp of the Pharisee.

Beverly of Graustark

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON,
Author of "Graustark"
&c &c
Copyright, 1904, by Dodd, Mead and Company

He went with her as close to the gate as he thought safe. Taking her hand he kissed it fervently. "Goodby! It won't be for long!" and disappeared.

She stood still and lifeless, staring after him, for ages, it seemed. He was gone. Gone forever, no doubt. Her eyes grew wilder and wilder with the pity of it all. Pride fled incontinently. She longed to call him back. Then it occurred to her that he was hurrying off to that other woman. No, he said he would return. She must be brave, true to herself, whatever happened. She marched boldly up to the gate, gave the countersign and passed through, not heeding the curious glances cast upon her by the sentry, turned into the castle, up the grand staircase and fled to the princess' bedchamber.

Beverly, trembling and sobbing, threw herself in the arms of the princess. Incoherently she related all that had happened, then swooned.

After she had been restored, the promise of Yetive to protect her, whatever happened, comforted her somewhat.

"It must have been Marlanx," moaned Beverly.

"Who else could it have been?" replied the princess, who was visibly excited.

Summoning all her courage, she went on: "First, we must find out if he is badly hurt. We'll trust to luck. Cheer up!" She touched a bell. There came a knock at the door. A guard was told to enter. "Ellos," she exclaimed, "did you hear a shot fired a short time ago?"

"I thought I did, your highness, but was not sure."

"Baldos, the guard, was escaping by the secret passage," continued the princess, a wonderful inspiration coming to her rescue. "He passed through the chapel. Miss Calhoun was there. Alone and single handed she tried to prevent him. It was her duty. He refused to obey her command to stop, and she followed him into the tunnel and fired at him. I'm afraid you are too late to capture him, but you may—oh, Beverly, how plucky you were to follow him! Go quickly, Ellos! Search the tunnel and report at once." As the guard saluted with wonder, admiration and unbelief he saw the two conspirators locked in each other's arms.

Presently he returned and reported that the guards could find no trace of any one in the tunnel, but that they found blood on the floor near the exit and that the door was wide open.

The two girls looked at each other in amazement. They were dumfounded, but a great relief was glowing in their eyes.

"Ellos," inquired the princess, considerably less agitated, "does any one else know of this?"

"No, your highness; there was no one on guard but Max, Baldos and myself."

"Well, for the present no one else must know of his flight. Do you understand? Not a word to any one. I myself will explain when the proper time comes. You and Max have been very careless, but I suppose you should not be punished. He has tricked us all. Send Max to me at once."

"Yes, your highness," said Ellos, and he went away, with his head swimming. Max, the other guard, received like orders, and then the two young women sank limply upon a divan.

"Oh, how clever you are, Yetive," came from the American girl. "But what next?"

"We may expect to hear something disagreeable from Count Marlanx, my dear," murmured the perplexed but confident princess, "but I think we have the game in our own hands, as you would say in America."

CHAPTER XXVI.

"AUNT FANNY, what is that white thing sticking under the window?" demanded Beverly late the next morning. She was sitting with her face to the windows while the old negress dressed her hair.

"Looks lak a love letteh, Miss Bev'ly," was the answer as Aunt Fanny gingerly placed an envelope in her mistress' hand. Beverly looked at it in amazement. It was unmistakably a letter, addressed to her, which had been left at her window some time in the night. Her heart gave a thump, and she went red with anticipated pleasure. With eager fingers she tore open the envelope. The first glance at the contents brought disappointment to her face. The missive was from Count Marlanx, but it was a relief to find that he was very much alive and kicking. As she read on there came a look of perplexity which was succeeded by burning indignation. The man in the cloak was preparing to strike.

Your secret is mine. I know all that happened in the chapel and underground passage. You have betrayed Graustark in aiding this man to escape. The plot was cleverly executed, but you counted without the jealous eye of love. You can save yourself and your honor and perhaps your princess, but the conditions are mine. This time there can be no trifling. I want you to treat me fairly. God help you if you refuse. Give me the answer I want, and your secret is safe. I will shield you with my life. At 11 o'clock I shall come to see you. I have in my possession a document that will influence you. You will do well to keep a close mouth until you have seen this paper.

This alarming note was all that was needed to restore fire to the lagging blood of the American girl. Its effect was decidedly contrary to that which Marlanx must have anticipated. Instead of collapsing, Beverly sprang to her feet with energy and life in every fiber. Her eyes were flashing brightly, her body quivering with the sensations of battle.

"That awful old wretch!" she cried, to Aunt Fanny's amazement. "He is the meanest human being in all the world. But he's making the mistake of his life, isn't he, Aunt Fanny? Oh, of course you don't know what it is, so never mind. We've got a surprise for him. I'll see him at 11 o'clock, and then"— She smiled quite benignly at the thought of what she was going to say to him. Beverly felt very secure in the shadow of the princess.

A clatter of horses' hoofs on the parade ground drew her to the balcony. What she saw brought joy to her heart. Lorry and Anguish, muddy and disheveled, were dismounting before the castle.

"Ah, this is joy! Now there are three good Americans here. I'm not afraid," she said bravely. Aunt Fanny nodded her head in approval, although she did not know what it was all about. Curiosity more than alarm made Beverly eager to see the document which old Marlanx held in reserve for her. She determined to meet him at 11.

A message from the princess announced the unexpected return of the two Americans. She said they were (to use Harry Anguish's own expression) "beastly near starvation" and clamored for substantial breakfasts. Beverly was urged to join them and to hear the latest news from the frontier.

Lorry and Anguish were full of the excitement on which they had lived for many hours. They had found evidence of raids by the Dawsbergen scouts and had even caught sight of a small band of fleeing horsemen. Lorry reluctantly admitted that Gabriel's army seemed loyal to him and that there was small hope of a conflict being averted, as he had surmised, through the defection of the people. He was surprised, but not dismayed, when Yetive told him certain portions of the story in regard to Marlanx; and, by no means averse to seeing the old man relegated to the background, heartily indorsed the step taken by his wife. He was fair enough, however, to promise the general a chance to speak in his own defense if he so desired. He had this in view when he requested Marlanx to come to the castle at 11 o'clock for consultation.

"Gabriel is devoting most of his energy now to hunting that poor Dantan into his grave," said Anguish. "I believe he'd rather kill his half brother than conquer Graustark. Why, the inhuman monster has set himself to the task of obliterating everything that reminds him of Dantan. We learned from spies down there that he issued an order for the death of Dantan's sister, a pretty young thing named Candace, because he believed she was secretly aiding her fugitive brother. She escaped from the palace in Serros a week ago, and no one knows what has become of her. There's a report that she was actually killed and that the story of her flight is a mere blind on the part of Gabriel."

"He would do anything!" cried Yetive. "Poor child! They say she is like her English mother and is charming."

"That would set Gabriel against her, I fancy," went on Anguish. "And, by the way, Miss Calhoun, we heard something definite about your friend, Prince Dantan. It is pretty well settled that he isn't Baldos of the guard. Dantan was seen two days ago by Captain Dangloss' men. He was in the Dawsbergen pass, and they talked with him and his men. There was no mistake this time. The poor, half starved chap confessed to being the prince and begged for food for himself and his followers."

"I tried to find him and, failing in that, left word in the pass that if he would but cast his lot with us in this trouble we soon would restore him to his throne," said Lorry. "He may accept, and we shall have him turning up here some day hungry for revenge. And now, my dear Beverly, how are you progressing with the excellent Baldos, of whom we cannot make a prince, no matter how hard we try?"

Beverly and the princess exchanged glances in which consternation was difficult to conceal. It was clear to Beverly that Yetive had not told her husband of the escape.

"I don't know anything about Baldos," she answered steadily. "Last night some one shot at him in the park."

"The deuce you say!"

"In order to protect him until you returned, Gren, I had him transferred to guard duty inside the castle," explained the princess. "It really seemed necessary. General Marlanx expects to present formal charges against him this morning, so I suppose we shall have to put him in irons for a little while. It seems too bad, doesn't it, Gren?"

"Yes. He's as straight as a string, I'll swear," said Lorry emphatically.

"I'll bet he wishes he were safely out of this place," ventured Anguish, and two young women busied themselves suddenly with their coffee.

"The chance is he's sorry he ever came into it," said Lorry tantalizingly.

While they were waiting for Marlanx the young Duke of Mizrox was announced. The handsome Axphainian came with relief and dismay struggling for mastery in his face.

ALMOST GIVEN UP

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" SAVED HIS LIFE

Mr. Dingwall was Superintendent of St. Andrews Sunday School in Williamstown for nine years and License Commissioner for Glengarry — and Tax Collector for Charlottenburg—for fourteen years continuously. Read how strongly Mr. Dingwall comes out in favor of "Fruit-a-tives."

Williamstown, Ont., April 5th., 1907.

I have much pleasure in testifying to the almost marvellous benefit I have derived from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I was a life long sufferer from Chronic Constipation and the only medicine I ever secured to do me any real good was "Fruit-a-tives." This medicine cured me when everything else failed. Also, last spring, I had a severe attack of bladder trouble with kidney trouble, and "Fruit-a-tives" cured these complaints for me, when the physician attending me had practically given me up. I am now over eighty years of age and I can strongly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" for Chronic Constipation and bladder and kidney trouble. This medicine is mild like fruit, is easy to take, but most effective in action. 147

"Your highness," he said after the greetings, "I am come to inform you that Graustark has one prince less to account for. Axphain has found her fugitive."

"When?" cried the princess and Beverly in one voice and with astonishing eagerness, not unmixed with dismay.

"Three days ago," was the reply.

"Oh," came in deep relief from Beverly as she sank back into her chair. The same fear had lodged in the hearts of the two fair conspirators—that they had freed Baldos only to have him fall into the hands of his deadliest foes.

"I have a message by courier from my uncle in Axphain," said Mizrox. "He says that Frederic was killed near Labbot by soldiers, after making a gallant fight, on last Sunday night. The Princess Volga is rejoicing and has amply rewarded his slayers. Poor Frederic! He knew but little happiness in this life."

There was a full minute of reflection before any of his hearers expressed the thought that had framed itself in every mind.

"Well, since Dantan and Frederic are accounted for, Baldos is absolutely obliged to be Christobal," said Anguish resignedly.

"He's just Baldos," observed Beverly, snuffing out the faint hope that had lingered so long. Then she said to herself: "And I don't care, either. I only wish he were back here again. I'd be a good deal nicer to him."

Messengers flew back and forth, carrying orders from the castle to various quarters. The ministers were called to meet at 12 o'clock. Underneath all the bustle there was a tremendous impulse of American cunning, energy and resourcefulness. Every one caught the fever. Reserved old diplomats were overwhelmed by their own enthusiasm. Custom bound soldiers forgot the hereditary caution and fell into the ways

Railway Engineer Drowned.

Alton, Ill., April 25.—A freight train on the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis Railway Thursday night dashed into a water-filled cut from which a storm flood had washed away the tracks, 15 miles above here, and the engine and 11 cars turned over. Engineer John F. Walsh of Springfield was imprisoned in his cab and drowned. The flood was rushing through the cut like a mill race when the accident occurred.

The Missing Link.

Philadelphia, April 25.—With Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada, as an interested spectator, Dr. Edward Anthony Spitzka, before the annual meeting of the American Philosophical Society, pleaded for an expedition to the Andaman and Nicobar Islands, in the Indian Ocean, to study the brains of the native, who, he says, are the only survivals of the pure ape stock from which the human race sprang.

Farmer Hangs Himself.

Lindsay, April 25.—William Lawrie, a farmer living about 10 miles north of here, committed suicide Thursday night by hanging. He was well-to-do, and no cause can be given for his action, other than that he was suffering from a partial alineation of reason. He attempted suicide two weeks ago, but was prevented by his wife, who found a rope hanging in the barn.

Attacked With Hatchet.

Johnstown, Pa., April 25.—Louis Fleckenstein, a well-known German resident of this city, attacked his wife with a hatchet early yesterday, fatally injuring her, and then hanged himself.

Fatal Fire.

Corry, Pa., April 25.—Three persons were cremated and a fourth probably fatally burned early yesterday in a fire which destroyed the home of David Wetherbee at Centreville.

The Point Edward ferryboat was seized in Port Huron on a charge of taking foreigners into the States and Captain Glass was [illegible]

Emperor Insured Till June.

London, April 25.—A committee of Vienna citizens, which is arranging for the jubilee pageant in honor of Emperor Francis Joseph, has just insured the Emperor's life with a British company for $1,750,000 until June next, in order to cover the expenses for preparations of the celebrations in the event of his death before they occur.

Aged Woman Drowns Herself.

St. Catharines, April 25.—An aged widow, Mrs. Calvin Travers, committed suicide at her home in Grantham Township by drowning herself in a pond near the house used for watering the cattle. She was in her night gown.

Want Paper on the Free List.

New York, April 25.—A committee with Medill McCormick of Chicago as chairman will go to Washington as representatives of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association to urge the passage by the present Congress of legislation putting white paper on the free list.

Decision to appoint such a committee was reached at yesterday's session of the white paper committee of the association, after a report on the white paper situation had been read by John Norris, business manager of The New York Times.

Will Build Her Own Ships.

St. Petersburg, April 25.—The report published in England to the effect that the Russian Government had ordered five warships from a firm of Clyde shipbuilders is untrue. The Admiralty has adopted the principle that all battleships should be constructed in Russia, and it is impossible that any vessels have been ordered either here or abroad for this year.

As the Douma intends to reject the estimates on the new battleships, the program for 1909 will probably be small.

Want Marking Act Amended.

Ottawa, April 25.—The gold and silver plate manufacturers of Canada yesterday asked Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding to amend the Marking Act by providing for the prohibition of the importation from England of gold plate below 9 karats.

The United States standard, which is the basis of Canadian manufacture, fixes 10 karats as the minimum, and the free entry of British goods of a lower standard is held to be unfair competition.

OTONABEE RIVER ALMOST HAD ANOTHER VICTIM

Irvine Brady, Five Year Old Son of Mr. B. Brady, Ashburnham, Had Narrow Escape From Drowning Yesterday Afternoon--Brave Act of Brother Who Saved His Life.

The Otonabee River almost claimed its second victim this season, yesterday afternoon, when Irvine Brady, the five-year-old son of Mr. Barnard Brady, Douro street, Ashburnham, had a narrow escape from drowning.

The youngster with his older brother, Rueben, were crossing a sluiceway just at the edge of the river a little to the north of Wand's planing mill, when the accident occurred. The water at this point is about six feet deep and the current is exceedingly swift. The young lad was endeavoring to cross the sluiceway from the north bank to the south pier. A plank was stretched across, but the little fellow had no sooner stepped on the board when it gave way and he fell head first into the river.

Fortunately he was not beyond his brother's reach and quickly as the little fellow came to the top, he put out his hand and caught the drowning lad by the hair and held him. Rueben then yelled vehemently for help, all the time hanging on to his brother. It was fully twenty minutes before assistance arrived. A man by the name of Revoy helped take the youngster out of the water and Mr. Wm. Irwin drove him home. He was wet through and chilled and to-day has been unable to leave the house.

Rueben Brady's action in saving his brother is worthy of some tangible recognition and his act is deserving of a Humane Society's medal for deeds of bravery.

NOTES

Delegates will register on arrival in St. Paul's church parlors.

The exhibit is in St. John's church school room and it is hoped that every delegate will inspect it.

Rest rooms will be found in the Y WCA. and YMCA building and in the churches.

For information apply to Mr. H. Wilkie or Mr. E. Best. They will be found in St. Paul's church.

To reach St. Paul's church take Auburn car from CPR. or Park car from GTR and get off at Central Park.

Look for the boys with white badges at the stations.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS FOR GEORGE STREET CHURCH

Spiritual light will not be the only radiance which will shine forth in the George street church on May 10th. The Church Board has decided to have the church re-lighted and Messrs. Alexander and Miller are at present busy installing the new system. The decision to have the church lighted by electricity was come to some time ago, upon the failure of the gas lights to burn on a Sunday night. Tenders were sent in from various firms, and the contract was finally let to Messrs. Alexander and Miller at a figure closely approaching one thousand dollars. There will be about 180 lights in all, and all wires will be laid in conduits.

The fixtures throughout will be of solid brass, except those outside the doors. These will be of wrought iron fashioned in artistic designs, and will carry ten inch globular lights.

This is one of the largest lighting contracts ever let in Peterborough and reflects credit on the firm which is handling it with such efficiency.

The project of re-decorating the interior of the church and of roofing it afresh, is also under consideration, and if decided upon will make this church one of the prettiest, as well as the most commodious church in the city. It is expected that the lighting in the auditorium will be ready for use by the second Sunday in May.

FOUR YOUNG BOYS FOUND HELPLESSLY DRUNK IN FIELD

That four boys ranging from 12 to 15 years of age were found helplessly drunk in a field at the rear of the creamery yesterday afternoon is a statement that is almost beyond comprehension. But nevertheless it is true for they were seen by several persons. Where they procured the intoxicating drink is not known but it is an appalling thing to thing of a man with any common sense at all supplying young boys with liquor. Some of these youths have appeared in court on previous occasions. They were taken into custody by P. C. Newhall last night shortly after eleven o'clock but were not retained over night. The four boys were told to appear this morning but only one put in an appearance. They were seen last night climbing a fence at the rear of the creamery, it is thought, in an endeavor to secure junk out of the field which they might sell.

SUPPLY OF BEEF STEAK RAN OUT IN PETERBOROUGH TO-DAY

Beef steak, or at least the price of it, soared to the sky today. The restaurant keepers were hot on the trail all morning trying to secure steak, but were not very successful in their efforts. Steak was as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth and there did not seem to be more than a few pounds in the whole city. The price jumped from 15 cents to 18 cents per pound, and even at the enhanced figure offered this line of meat could not be obtained. Whether the price will remain up or not will depend upon the amount of beefsteak placed on the market during the next few days. Hotel keepers, restaurant keepers and the public generally are hoping that it will come back to the normal figure again.

WEDDING BELLS

HUGHES—BELLEGHEM

The genial month of April has been the occasion for many pretty weddings in Peterborough and among the prettiest—although quiet of these, was the marriage this afternoon at 3 o'clock of Miss Clara Belle Belleghem, youngest daughter of Mr and Mrs. Wm. Belleghem, 583 Bethune street, to Mr. Gordon Bruce Hughes, Park Place, son of the late Mr. Jas. L. Hughes. The bride is one of Peterborough's best known young ladies, being a talented soprano soloist, and having filled most acceptably the position of soloist in the Charlotte street Methodist church for the past five years, as well as similar positions, previous to that time, in other churches.

On account of recent bereavements in the family of the groom and of illness in the family of the bride, the wedding was of a quiet character only the relatives of the bride and groom being in attendance.

The ceremony which took place at the home of the bride was performed by Rev. H. M. Manning, pastor of the Charlotte street Methodist church at three o'clock. The bride, on account of the illness of her father, was given away by her uncle, Mr. Daniel Belleghem. Mr. F. E. Walden, brother-in-law of the bride, performed Mendelsohn's wedding march as the bride entered the parlor and during the signing of the register, he sang "O Perfect Love."

The bride was handsomely gowned in champagne eolienne, with trimmings of pointe lace and carried lilies of the valley and bridal roses. She was unattended except by the ring bearer, little Miss Mary Lucile Grant who was prettily attired in a French frock of pink silk, with pink sash and wore a Dutch bonnet of lace and rosebuds.

To the bride the groom gave a beautiful gold pin and he also presented the ring bearer with a gold pin. The bride was the recipient of a handsome array of gifts from her many friends, among them being a set of Limoges china from the choir and congregation of Charlotte street Methodist church. The groom was presented with a beautiful Morris chair of weathered oak by the office staff and foreman of the Canadian General.

A buffet luncheon was served after the ceremony and on the 4.48 CPR. train Mr. and Mrs. Hughes left on their honeymoon trip the bride wearing a dress of navy blue voile a tan hat and tan gloves. On their return they will reside at 504 Park Place and will be at home to their friends after June 1st.

SUNDAY SALE OF REFRESHMENTS

What is Lawful and What is Not ---Decision of the High Court

Readers will remember that about a year ago Judge Morson, the junior of the three County Judges of York, Ontario, reversed a conviction by Magistrate Kingsford against John Devins, a restaurant keeper, for selling on Sundays, candies, peanuts, and other eatable articles to be carried off the premises.

It was pointed out to the public at the time that this judgment was going to result in an immense increase in Sunday business, inasmuch as it implied, if it did not declare, that any man holding a restaurant license, and doing a restaurant business might also carry on a confectionery business, a fruit business, a grocery business, and a business in all sorts of eatable articles, and could sell freely any or all classes of these things over the counter, to be carried away and used as the purchaser might desire. It was evident that large numbers of shop keepers and their employees were going to be deprived of their Sunday rest and other privileges if this interpretation of the law were to remain unchallenged. The matter was therefore brought to the attention of the Attorney-General of Ontario, the Honorable J. J. Foy, and, recognizing the serious import of the judgment, he requested Magistrate Kingsford to grant a "Stated Case," and requested County Crown Attorney H. L. Drayton, K.C., to take charge of the case in its preparation, and in its argument before the High Court. The case was duly granted, and came before Mr. Justice Clute, of the High Court, on Friday, 10th April. The Case was known as "The King vs. Weatheral." Weatheral held a restaurant license and did business at Toronto Island, selling refreshments of various kinds, and among other things he sold on Sunday, 9th June, 1907, "candies, popcorn, peanuts and soft drinks."

The questions submitted to the Court were as follows;—

1. Does the mere fact that Weatheral holds a license as restaurant-keeper enable the said Weatheral to sell on the Lord's Day, candies, popcorn, peanuts and soft drinks, notwithstanding the Statute (Lord's Day Act.)

To this question Mr. Justice Clute replied "No." Unlike some judgments this does not lack in clearness.

2. Can a bona fide restaurant keeper sell candies, popcorn, peanuts or other commodities not in connection with any meals served on the premises, but done up so as to be taken away by the purchaser, on the Lord's Day?" To this Mr. Justice Clute replied "I take this question to mean that the articles there referred to are sold, not in connection with the giving of meals served on the premises, but in the ordinary way of business as a merchant, so as to be taken away by the purchaser. Taking this to be the meaning of the question, I answer again "No."

There was a third question as to whether the Restaurant License that Weatheral holds from the city prohibits him making such sales on Sunday in itself apart from the Lord's Day Act. The judge gives substantially the same answer as to the other two.

This judgment makes it clear, therefore, without equivocation, and beyond peradventure, that even a bona fide restaurant keeper, who holds a license and is running an eating house under that license, is not entitled to sell on Sunday anything excepting what is purchased and consumed as a meal. Articles of food may not, therefore, be sold on Sunday under any circumstance, to be carried off the premises unconsumed in the restaurant at the table or lunch counter as a meal.

It is important to observe that this judgment is binding upon all Magistrates and Division or County Court Judges throughout the Province of Ontario and for that matter will be followed by Magistrates and Trial Court Judges throughout the Dominion. It is well that this judgment be given prominence in the press everywhere so that restaurant keepers may not unawares, during the coming season, commit violations of the Lord's Day Act and lay themselves liable to its heavy penalties. The public generally will recognize also the reasonableness of the law in this regard. It is proper that the hungry should have the right of going to a restaurant and satisfying their hunger. No one will contend, however, that this necessitates or would justify general business in the sale of articles of food to be carried away, which, if it were allowed, would result in depriving large numbers of shop keepers and their employees of their Sunday rights and privileges.

Hoop drill, by 12 girls under the direction of Miss B. King.

Solo, "Forebodings," by Miss Olive Howell.

Instrumental duet, Misses L. Shearer and Mary Potter.

Solo, "No Sir," Miss Bessie Read.

Band, Overture, "Just the Thing."

Violin solo, Miss Evelyn Dorris with piano accompaniment, by Miss Addie Dorris.

Solo, "The Tars," by Mr. Stewart Laing.

Band, Quick Step, "Hot Stuff."

God Save the King.

Miss Ethel Tully presided at the piano during the evening in a most acceptable manner.

MOTHERS FEEL SAFE WITH BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mothers who have used baby's Own Tablets say that they feel safe when they have this medicine in their house, as they are a never-failing cure for the ills of babyhood and childhood. And the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine contains no poisonous opiate. It is always safe. Good for the new-born babe or well-grown child. Mrs. Alfred Suddard, Haldimand, Ont., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for constipation, vomiting and restlessness, and have found them a splendid medicine. In my experience no other medicine can equal the Tablets for little ones." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SCAVENGER WAS HEAVILY FINED

Jas. Richards Appeared in Police Court This Morning.

Jas. Richards pleaded guilty in the police court this morning to having deposited night soil in the creek at Bethune street and also to having scattered it over Bethune street from Hunter to Brock streets. He was fined ten dollars to be paid in ten days or in default of payment twenty days in gaol. The above act, His Worship stated, is one deserving of the severest punishment and he added to Richards, "If ever you come before me again for such an offence, you won't get off so easily.

G.T.R. TRAINS WERE DELAYED

The Belleville train this morning was forty minutes late, the delay being caused by the train having to wait some time to make connections at Belleville. The Toronto flyer was also delayed about half an hour at the local station waiting for the train from the east.

BLAKE GAINS LAP ON "JIM" HARRISON

The Fight For Second Place Still Continues—The Negro Now a Mile and a Lap Ahead—Hoagland Makes New Lap Record of 37 Seconds.

Hoagland, first; Blake, second; Harrison, third, that is still the position of the walkers after the second last night of the big walking tournament at Brock street rink. The walkers travelled along well the first three mentioned and Stevens and Graham who are in fourth and fifth place respectively getting way with the miles in fine style.

BLAKE LAPS HARRISON

Hoagland, Blake, Harrison, Stevens, Graham and Stenner started in the order named. Harrison paced Blake and after half an hour's racing the negro did what he did the night before, lapped Harrison while fresh. This put him a mile and a lap in the lead. The men again stayed together for the entire night, first one and then the other taking the lead. Harrison didn't get back his lap, however and will have to travel mighty fast if he wishes to get second money

"WARSAW" MAKES 100

"Go it Warsaw," is what everybody was shouting to Stenner when he decided to take a sprint. The crowd would like to see him do well and heartily approve of his game showing. At 25 minutes to eight, five minutes after the start he made his 100 miles and was loudly applauded by the spectators.

FENTON STILL THERE

When the starters stepped out Fenton was missing. The boy in the pink tights had been going pretty slowly of late and it was generally thought that he had dropped out of the race for good. Five minutes after the start, however, the came onto the track and commenced going with the rest of the field.

BLAKE GETS HIS LAP

At 8 o'clock Blake struck out for his lap. At 8.10 he caught Harrison and was a mile and a lap ahead. He didn't gain or lose during the remainder of the night. It was the signal for a great show of enthusiasm when the plucky colored man got a lap on his opponent.

HOAGLAND'S FAST TIME

On one occasion last night when the band struck up "Yankee Doodle" Hoagland did the lap in 37 seconds. This is the track record, beating his best best time of 38 seconds. It was one of the prettiest dashes of the walk.

RACING AGAINST IHMSELD

The champion had no competition whatever and the only man he had to race against was himself. Every now and again he accommodated the crowd with a fine sprint and the people craned their necks so as not to miss a single step of the flyer.

AN INTERESTED SPECTATOR

Bernice Hoagland, the young daughter of the leader in the tournament, occupied a front seat on the west side of the rink and applauded her father whenever he sprinted. She seemed highly pleased with the race and was one of the most interested spectators in the audience.

COOPER'S MILE

Cooper came on to do an exhibition mile but hadn't gone two laps before he was seized with a stitch in the side which compelled him to slacken down for the entire mile. He made it in 8.50 under the greatest difficulty.

Graham seems to be getting stronger instead of weaker and gained several laps on Stevens. The latter has a pretty safe lead on him of 7 miles and 9 laps and looks good for fourth money. Graham did some pretty sprinting with Hoagland much to the enjoyment of the spectators.

HARTLEY GOES MILE

Dave Hartley came on for an exhibition mile. He started strong but slowed down somewhat while he was going the 13th lap. He completed the mile in 9.51.

SPLENDID BAND

The full band of the 57th Regiment was in attendance under the intelligent direction of Bandmaster Gliddon. The band played an excellent programme of well chosen selections and will be playing at the tournamentnow is playing at the tournament now and tonight. The complete band will be in the arena in uniform and will give a continuous concert in keeping with the occasion.

THE WINNER OF THE WALK WILL BE KNOWN AT 11.30 TO-NIGHT

Struggle is Betwween Blake and Harrison—CroWd Will be Mammoth One—Full Band in Attendance.

Tonight sees the finish of the walking tournament. By 11.30 o'clock the five men within the money will be known.

Hoagland is certain of first place barring accidents. There is a great uncertainty as to who will get the second place and Blake and Barrison will wage a great battle for supremacy tonight. The interest of the game lies in the pedestrian duel between the two and a capacity crowd is assured.

COME EARLY

The old advice of come early is the best possible for those who want to see the race tonight. Special arrangements to have the crowds accommodated have been made by the management. It would be well to repeat the advice to come early as there is every indication that a great many will be unable to secure admission.

STAY OUT OF RING

Nobody will be allowed in the ring without a badge to which he is properly entitled outside the walkers who have dropped out of the race. Every official and trainer must have his badge. Anyone wearing a badge that is not his property will be ejected from the ring. In case it is absolutely impossible to get any standing room along the sides, admission to the ring will be allowed by the management.

REDUCED TICKETS

The regular cours tickets, the price of which are $1 are now being sold for 50 cents and entitles the holder to go or come as often as he or she pleases.

FULL BAND

The full band of the 57th Regiment will be in attendance all the time. The band will render a first class programme.

WALKERS' SPEECHES

The walkers will deliver short speeches after the race. This will be an interesting feature and the crowd are requested to wait until the finish to hear them.

HAVELOCK WILL ENTER A TEAM

In the Midland Football League ---Prospects Good

Havelock, April 23—A meeting of the Midland Football League will be held in the YMCA, Peterborough, on Saturday of this week at one o'clock for the purpose of drawing up the schedule for the season.

The local football enthusiasts have decided to enter this League and will send a representative to Peterborough to look after their interests in regard to dates, etc. There is a large number of good football players in town this season and a strong team can be selected to uphold Havelock's name in sporting circles.

LARGE CROWD SEES WALKERS

Position of Men Unchanged at 3.15 O'clock---Hoagland Makes 150 Miles

A large crowd saw the walkers go this afternoon. At 3 o'clock Hoagland had made his 150th mile. Blake took pace on Harrison and up to 3.15 led by a mile and a lap, the positions of the men not having changed since last night.

THE STANDING.

The men stood as follows at the time of going to press;—

Plants as Well as Animals Thrive In Arid Regions.

It is difficult to comprehend the part that water, or, rather, the lack of water, plays in shaping the life of the desert. Mice and other small rodents native to arid regions have been known to live on hard seeds without green food for periods of several months or even as long as two or three years, and nothing in their behavior indicated that they ever took liquid in any form.

Similar adaptations are exhibited by a large number of plants. The guarequi of Sonora is a member of the squash family, inhabiting a region in which the annual rainfall occurs within a few days in the autumn. The base of the stem at the surface of the ground becomes swollen to the size of a market basket in the adult plant, and this serves as a reservoir for water. During the hot rainy season the thin vines are sent up, leaves are formed, and the small, squashlike fruit is formed; then the vines and roots quickly perish, leaving the guarequi resting on the surface of the sandy soil like a bowlder until the next rainy season, when the vegetative activity is repeated.

One of these huge tubers was picked up under an acacia tree in the Sonora sands in February, 1902, and placed on a shelf in a museum case with a number of preserved exhibits. In the summer of that year and in every year since it has sent up its thin stems and spread its leaves at a time corresponding to its active season in the desert. These have soon died down in a very natural manner, all of the plastic material and water not used being carried back into the tuber, which now goes into a sleeping or resting condition for another year. Six times has this awakening occurred, and no change in the firmness of the guarequi or of its external appearance has taken place. It has already lived six years upon water which it had in reserve, the last addition to its store having been made in October, 1901. It would not be unsafe to say that this plant accumulates a reserve which may last it for a quarter of a century. —Dr. D. T. Macdougal in Outing Magazine.

SPRING

WE'VE sped the parting guest, "WINTER" and we turn to make our bow to "SPRING" embodying among other new things the latest evolution of Men's Suit Styles:—

This year we've struck out and away from the beaten path and have distanced all our past accomplishments. All lines making up the new Spring styles combine to spell "GRACE." No angular corners; instead they're softly rounded—the lapels sweep gracefully down over the chest, while the question of button arrangement is answered in a variety of ways

From now on we'll present, from time to time, the proper styles for men, which it will pay you to look over Sir, if you're at all interested in nobby clothes

THE STEAMBOATS THAT HAVE PLIED THE OTONABEE RIVER

During the Past Thirty-seven Years—Mr. H. Calcutt, Ashburnham, the Pioneer Among Steamboat Men, Has Built Many Steamers.

A visit to the docks in Ashburnham at the foot of Mark street calls to memory some of the old steamboats that used to ply between Peterborough and Rice Lake points. Peck's wharf, as it is most familiarly known by, has been the scene of the erection of a great many steamers and for some years past has during the spring and summer months been an extremely busy spot. Practically all the boats that have run on the lower waters within the last thirty years have been built there. It has served as Peterborough's shipbuilding yard for a considerable length of time.

Walking along the dock one notices an old cabin of the steamer "Whistle Wing." It was built in 1869, the old captain's cabin now lying there being thirty seven years old.

Mr. H. Calcutt, who resides on Robinson street, Ashburnham, is probably the pioneer in steamboat circles in Peterborough. He has had a long career in the business, owning several steamers, and only withdrew from steamboat activities about two years ago when the old "City of Peterborough" was sold to the Otonabee Navigation Company, and refixed, afterwards being called the "Otonabee" Mr. Calcutt at one time controlled all the steamers that plied between here and Rice Lake.

"WHISTLE WING" BUILT FIRST.

The first steamer built by Mr. Calcutt was the "Whistle Wing," the rather unique name given it being taken from a certain species of duck called the "Whistle Wing." It was constructed with a sidewheel and would accommodate about one hundred passengers. From 1881 to 1883, Mr. Robt. Carson, who resides at 62 Lock street was captain of this boat. It gave excellent service for about fifteen years afterwhich it was taken apart and its machinery used in other steamers. About the same time the "Whistle Wing" was built Mr. Calcutt owned the "Pearl" a pleasure boat. It carried about thirty persons.

THE "DAISY" BURNED

The "Whistle Wing" was replaced by the "Daisy." It plied the waters for several years and had a capacity to carry one hundred passengers. The burning of this steamer will be recalled by many citizens. It took place in 1895 on the Trent River. It had been towing logs for the Rathbun Company when the conflagration took place. Owing to a disastrous explosion on board the steamer in a few minutes it was wrapped in flames and burned to the water's edge. Some of the crew were severely injured by the explosion and barely escaped with their lives.

THE "GOLDEN EYE

Another one of Mr. Calcutt's boats that he called after a species of duck was the "Golden Eye". This steamer was constructed in the early eighties and was built with a big sidewheel.

After running for some years, it sank at Hastings. It was afterwards raised, rebuilt and called the "City of Peterborough," the change taking place about ten years ago. The handsome, and commodious steamer "Otonabee" now replaces the old "City of Peterborough."

Other steamers that were built by Mr. Calcutt were the "North Star," and the "Water Lily."

It will be remembered that three years ago, the "North Star," then owned by Capt Harris was partly destroyed by fire. It was reconstructed the Spring following its catastrophe and named the "Monarch."

The "Water Lily" is now owned by the Otonabee Navigation Company.

"WHY I RECOMMEND DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS."

The Particulars of a Remarkable Cure Told by a Presbyterian Clergyman—The Sufferer Brought Back from Death's Door.

St. Andrew's Manse,
Cardigan, PEI., Jan. 1908

Though I have never been sick myself and have not had occasion to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I thought you ought to know of the remarkable cure they have wrought in Mr. Olding's case.

During a visit to my home in Merigomish, NS., some years ago, I was grieved to find our next door neighbor and friend, Michael Olding, very low. "He is not expected to live," my mother informed me. "And you must go over and see him as he is liable to pass away at any moment." "Not expected to live." That was the opinion not only of the doctor who attended him, but of his wife and family as well. Upon visiting him myself I found abundant evidence to confirm their opinion.

Mr. Olding had for years been afflicted with asthma and bronchitis, but now a complication of diseases was ravishing his system. He had been confined to his bed for months, and was reduced to a skeleton. Though evidently glad to see me, he conversed with the greatest difficulty and seemed to realize that it was the beginning of the end. He was daily growing weaker; his feet were swollen to twice their normal size, and the cold hand of death was upon his brow.

"Its no use," he said feebly, "the doctors medicine is not helping me, and I am going down rapidly." I prayed for him as for a man soon to pass into eternity and when I took his hand in parting it was the last time I expected to see him in the flesh.

Three years later while on another visit to my mother's, Michael Olding was seemingly in better health than I had ever seen him, for, as I said, he had always been ailing. In sheer desperation he had asked his wife to get him Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They soon began to help him. His appetite and strength began to improve and to the astonishment of his family and friends he rapidly regained his health. Now, though the burden of well nigh four score years is upon him, he is able to do a fair day's work and is in the enjoyment of good health even the asthma has ceased to trouble him as in former years.

Mr Olding himself, as well as his neighbors and the writer of this letter, confidently believe that his rescue from the very jaws of death—seemingly so miraculous—is due under the blessing of God to the timely and continuous use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

REV. EDWIN SMITH, MA."

Mr. Olding himself, writes: "I am glad Rev. Mr. Smith has written you about my wonderful cure, for I confidently believe that if it had not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I would have been dead long ago. It would be impossible to exaggerate the desperate condition I was in when I began to use the Pills. No one thought I would get better. I scarcely dared hope myself that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills would bring me through, but they did and I have ever since enjoyed good health. Although I am seventy-nine years old, people are always remarking on how young I look—and I feel young. I can do a fair day's work and I am better in every way than I had been for years. I cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I take every opportunity I can to recommend them to friends who are ailing."

"SOCK SOCIAL" WAS A SUCCESS

Mission Band of Park St. Church Had a Successful Function

The "Sock Social" at the residence of Mr. T. G. Gillespie, 110 Lock St. under the auspices of the Mission Band of Park street church was a great success. Over $25 were realized and those present had a most enjoyable time. The admission fee was regulated on a unique basis, each person having to pay a sum just double that of the size of the socks worn. The scheme produced many amusing incidents. One man paid 35 cents and there has been considerable speculation as to whether he calculated correctly.

An excellent programme was given as follows:

Instrumental solo—Miss Sisson.
Recitation—Miss Deyell.
Recitation—Miss Viola Palmer.
Recitation—Geraldine Hooper.
Instrumental duet—Misses Mabel and Janet Quinn.
Vocal solo—Miss Clayton Hambidge.

Candies and ice cream met with a ready sale. Refreshments were served during the evening. Games and contests of different kinds completed a most enjoyable programme.

The body of an unknown man, believed to have been in the water all winter was taken from the Lachine canal.

WILL ATTEND BIG MEETING OF ODDFELLOWS

Lieut. Col. Miller Goes to Brantford on Monday---Presentation to Grand Secretary

Lt. Col. Miller has received an invitation from Gore Lodge No. 34, I.O.O.F., Brantford, to attend an assembly of Oddfellows there on Monday, April 27th. The event is the occasion of a presentation of a fifty year Honorable Veteran's Jewel to Mr. U. B. King, who has been Grand Secretary for forty-two years.

Grand Master Brett will preside at the meeting and the speakers will be Deputy Grand Master McBride, Grand Warden Senator Derbyshire, of Brockville, and Lt. Col. Miller.

Mr. Miller will leave for Brantford Monday morning and will also take with him congratulatory addresses to Mr. King from the Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges.

MRS. WAND MADE LIFE MEMBER

Honored by Members of Women's Missionary Auxiliary---Presented With Address

At the annual thank offering service at the Mark street Methodist held at the church on Thursday afternoon Mrs. Catharine Wand was made a life member of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary in recognition of her great services to the auxiliary.

Mrs. Keith addressed the meeting on India, and Miss Robson of Norwood sang. The president, Mrs. Spier was in the chair and there was an unusually large attendance.

THE ADDRESS

Besides being made a life member, Mrs. Wand was presented with the following address:

From the members of Mark Street Mission Band, to Mrs. Catharine Wand.

Dear Mrs. Wand—We young people members of the Mission Band in Mark street church, wish very respectfully to address you upon the present occasion of the Easter thank offering meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary in order that we may give an expression of the love and esteem in which you are held by us, of the Junior Society.

Long before we knew anything of the missionary work of the church, even before some of us knew any being, you were identified with the cause of missions in your sympathies and efforts and when the Women's Society was organized here in the year 1891, seventeen years ago, we understand you took an active part in the organization and have continuously given your best effort to the promotion of its interests.

Your zeal and devotion have long been sources of inspiration to younger people in Christian service and especially to the women and children of our congregation in their efforts to obtain missionary education and to aid missionary work. Your loyalty to the church you have always loved, your liberality in supporting its various enterprises, your interest in young people, your enlarged vision of Christ's Kingdom and devotion to its world-wide interests, are outstanding features of your Christian life, and we wish to assure you, dear elect lady, that we young folk find a very great joy in giving recognition to these things while you are yet among us.

It is in our hearts, and we find it accords with the hearty wish of the Women's Society to present you with a Life Membership Certificate in the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist church, in loving recognition of your worth.

In doing this we feel that you are receiving only a well merited honor and we hope you will receive the same from us in the same spirit of love in which it is offered you.

We trust that in God's providence you will be long spared to the society and our prayer is for your comfort and happiness here till God calls you to your Heavenly reward.

Signed on behalf of the Mission Band.

OPERATTA IS CHARMING ONE

"A Day in Flowerdom" Will be a Rare Treat--Pretty Music

The operatta, "A Day in Flowerdom," which will be presented at the Conservatory Music Hall on Wednesday evening, April 29th, promises to be one of the events of the local theatrical season. A hundred and fifty young people are taking part in the presentation which will be on an elaborate scale. The libretto is by Jesse A. Moore and the music, which is of a particularly bright and toneful nature is by Geo. Spaulding. The principals and chorus have been carefully selected and those who have seen the rehearsals state that "A Day in Flowerdom," will be a rare treat. It is understood that the seats are selling rapidly.

THEATRICAL

ROYAL ALEXANDRA ENGLISH PLAYERS

Never in years has any one aggregation of actors won so much creditable comment from the Toronto newspapers as the English company which has been playing at the Royal Alexandra Theatre all the season, and which will visit Peterborough on April 30th, while making their short spring tour through the province.

When the management of this fine new theatre decided to establish a permanent company it at once communicated with that prominent young English actor, William Sauter, who agreed to organize a company of the best players available.

Early in his career Mr. Sauter enjoyed an excellent schooling in the company of Mr. Forbes Robertson. Then Mr. E. S. Willard selected him, to be his leading man on his American tour, and those who saw Mr. Willard have cause to remember the magnetic young actor who supported him.

Mr. Sauter first telegraphed to Ernest Stallard, for years leading comedian with Mr. Willard. Mr. Stallard agreed to join the Royal Alexandra players and is perhaps the best known in America of the English comedians. His work with Mr. Willard, as Jesse Regg in "The Middleman," Dick Chivvy in "David Garrick," "Henery" in the "Professor's Love Story," and many such roles is remembered with pleasure by thousands all over this continent. As leading comedian in the Drury Lane, London, England, theatre, he is equally famous. In "Our Boys" he plays the part of Perkin Middlewick, the wealthy retired butterman of humble origin, who, "never opens his mouth without putting his foot in it."

Mr. Sauter then added to his company Miss Ida Waterman, well known on both sides of the Atlantic, Miss Jane Marbury, George Graham, Joan Simpson and many other players such as Gwendolin Howard and Catherine Eldridge, who appear in "Our Boys."

Mr. Sauter's full company is perhaps the most evenly balanced seen in Canada this year and "Our Boys" calls practically every comedian into the caste.

ROSELLE KNOTT'S FAREWELL

Canada's favorite and representative actress —Roselle Knott — will leave these shores on August 17th via C.P.R. steamship lines from Vancouver for a tour through Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the Far East presenting her excellent repertoire of "Alice Sit by the Fire," "Cousin Kate" and two new plays.

The trip will be over two years' duration and will be under the energetic direction of Frederick Shipman, who has made a great success of theatrical matters in Australia.

All precious stones are purified by a bath in honey, according to an old idea. Many curious notions are current in regard to gems, as, for instance, that the agate quenches thirst and if put into the mouth allays fever.

Bibles.

Almost 90 per cent of American households possess one or more Bibles.

Polish Brides.

In Poland a girl is not eligible for marriage until she has not only made her own trousseau, but the garments for the friends that will accompany the bridegroom to the altar.

A Peculiar Pastime.

The orientals of Bokhara indulge in a peculiar pastime which is said to resemble "football on horseback, with no sides." A decapitated goat takes the place of the ball, and 200 horsemen scramble for it.

Gauze.

We have to thank Gaza, in Palestine, the gates of which Samson carried away, for gaze or gauze. Gaza means "treasure," and precious to the fair is the tissue which covers without concealing their charms. Voltaire, wishing to describe some intellectual but perhaps dressy woman, said, "She is an eagle in a cage of gauze."

A Cross Examiner.

Baron Alderson once remarked to an advocate who was notorious for the personal nature of the questions he addressed to witnesses, "Really you seem to think that the art of cross examination is to examine crossly."

NAVIGATION OPENED TO-DAY RIVER BOATS MADE TRIP

Navigation opened in earnest on the Otonabee River to-day. The steamer Monarch from Harwood arrived at the street railway wharf about 10.30 o'clock, and the Rainbow from Birdsall's arrived at eleven o'clock. Both carried about forty passengers. Capt. Harris was in charge of the Monarch which is now the property of the Otonabee Navigation Company, and Capt. Burnett was in charge of the Rainbow, his own boat.

Owing to the high water in the river the boats had a rather difficult time coming up. Neither could land at Smithson's wharf, owing to the height of water. The Rainbow went up Squirrel creek and turned around, something that has not been done for years.

SERIES OF ARTICLES ON NORTH WEST REBELLION

The Review has been fortunate in securing for publication a series of articles on the Northwest rebellion of 1885 by Mr. Jos. Crowe, of this city. Mr. Crowe aws a member of the Peterborough company that formed a part of the regiment that went to quell the disturbance, and will treat the subject from an interesting local standpoint. The first of the series of articles will appear next week. Review readers should watch for it.

MR. H. J. BOOTH MAY PRESENT ANOTHER OPERATIC SPECTACLE

It is reported that Mr. H. J. Booth, who presented "Zephra" here last spring, will return to Peterborough at an early date and present the new "Zephra" here. It is stated that he will be here in May and present the operatic spectacle towards the end of the month. Mr. Booth is now presenting the new "Zephra" in Kingston, and will likely come here after the engagement there is over. Mr. Booth would no doubt be greeted by large audiences if he returns to Peterborough and puts on another opera here.

THE VALUE OF ACCIDENT INSURANCE

DEATHS from accident are stated by the Census Officials, Washington, to have been 57,513 in 1902. The percentage of deaths from accident is 5.76, which is more than ten years ago. The "Insurance Press" in giving details from the Census, says, "An Inspection of the Census Tables showing causes of death brings out the fact that a person is more liable to meet death by accidental injuries than by any other single cause except consumption, pneumonia or heart disease

SOME MEN, who don't know, have an idea that all Shoes are alike. They think that when they pay $3.00, $3.50, $4.00 or $5.00 for a pair of Shoes that it doesn't make much difference where they buy them, that shoe is a shoe, and that's all there is to it.

These Men Are Mistaken

It's true that all shoe prices sound about the same, but there is as much difference in the shoes as there is in the men who wear them.

OUR MEN'S SHOES ARE THE CHOICE PRODUCT Of the World's Best Shoe Makers

VOL. LVI., No. 98. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, MONDAY, APRIL 27, 1908 TEN CENTS PER WEEK

WAS THE WORST ON RECORD; APPALLING RESULTS OF STORM

Forty-six Towns in Four States Suffer—Three Hundred and Fifty Dead—Twelve Hundred Hurt—Thousands Made Homeless.

New Orleans, April 27.—The totals of death and ruin caused in four southern states by Friday's tornadoes came to hand yesterday in approximately correct form. Briefly stated they are:

Killed, about 350.

Injured, painfully or seriously, 1,200.

Homeless, several thousand.

Towns reporting serious wreckage, 46.

Habitations and business houses practically complete ruins in these towns, about 2,500.

The above figures do not include the wreckage on plantations and farms, scores of which were struck and damaged. The number of dead will never be known accurately for the reason that about 300 of them were negroes and they were buried in many communities without careful returns being made of their numbers.

Apparently the storm struck in three separate currents, each describing the arc of a circle, and traveling to the northeast. The first struck before daybreak Friday morning through Northern Louisiana and Mississippi and passed into Tennessee.

The second appeared further south about 7 o'clock in Central Louisiana and Mississippi. This apparently was the portion of the storm which swept through Alabama and Georgia Friday and Saturday morning.

The third portion appeared during Friday afternoon, further south than either of its predecessors. This was the storm which demolished Amite, La., and Purvis, Miss., the towns in which the wreckage was worst.

Whole blocks of what were formerly little residences and cabins, lie massed over the ground.

Under this mass of wreckage many hundred persons were buried, not one in a hundred escaping without some injury. The houses which thus scattered about were mostly negro inhabitants. The homes of the whites held together better. The photographs show many of them, however, with half the top of the upper half of the structure ripped off leaving below protections which must have saved scores from death.

Along with the accounts of suffering have come many recitals of remarkable experiences of which the following is typical:

At Amite, La., when the tornado appeared there were several persons at the dinner table of Hamilton Warner's home, including three children. The wind in a second tore off two doors on opposite sides of the rooms, and an astonishing procession of live and inanimate objects began to pass into the room through these doorways.

First came a calf, running before the wind. The animal jumped over the dining table and went out the opposite door. Afterward came a horse, which followed through the exit taken by the calf. The three children sought refuge under the table and no one was injured.

The ruined towns were visited by thousands of spectators, many of whom distributed money among the needy. Sheds made from the wreckage have become the homes of hundreds.

Small parties of men on horseback have gone through the country districts, taking inventories of the assistance needed and rendering aid where it was most necessary.

NOTHING TO IT, IS WHAT THEY SAY AT HAVELOCK

Assert That There is Nothing in the Rumor That Terminal Point of Local C.P.R. Train Will be Changed.

Havelock, April 27.—A great deal of excitement and talk has been caused in Havelock, Peterborough and other towns by the rumor that the C.P.R. Company intend to change the terminal point of the local express train from Tweed to Havelock, as formerly, and as a result the Board of Trade of Peterboroug and the City Council will send a deputation to Toronto to wait on the C.P.R. officials there, asking that no change be made in the present arrangements.

It seems that all this talk and undue excitement has grown out of nothing, for as far as can be found out at the C.P.R. station here, the Company have not even intimated that such a change would be made and the railroad officials here do not think that there is any intention to change the old arrangements.

Where the Peterborough Council and Board of Trade got the information on which they acted, is a matter to be explained.

LEGISLATURE IS PROROGUED

Quebec Session Ends With Some Mild Pyrotechnics.

Quebec, April 27.—Lieutenant-Governor Jette prorogued what is evidently the last session of the present Legislature of Quebec, at 11 o'clock Saturday night.

The final hours of the session were marked by a severe attack by Mr. Leblanc, Opposition leader, on the royal commission which investigated the Abitibi land deal, and its report. He asserted that the commissioners were not impartial in their investigation, and that the Government failed in its duty in not sending a commission to Belgium to take the evidence of Baron de Lepine and others. He insinuated that Mr. Turgeon had not come spotless out of the enquiry, but Mr. Turgeon made no reply.

Prior to prorogation, the railway land subsidies, amounting to two and a half millions of acres, valued at $3,000,000, were all voted and $100,000 was voted towards the battlefields park project.

Landslide on C.P.R.

North Bay, April 27.—A landslide on the C.P.R. near Schreiber delayed traffic twelve hours. Thirty feet of rock and dirt covered the rails.

A Domestic Tragedy.

Salem, Mass., April 27.—Harry H. Lebaron, 17 years old, yesterday shot and killed his wife, to whom he was married in February, and then committed suicide. A note left by the couple showed that they had agreed to die together. Despondency because the young husband could not secure employment is ascribed as the cause of the tragedy.

Brantford Man Killed.

Brantford, April 27.—Jonathan Marshall, aged 57 years, who leaves a wife and family, was killed late on Saturday afternoon at the Western Counties Co.'s power house, where he was foreman. The heavy windstorm which passed over the city tore off a portion of the roof at the power plant. Mr. Marshall went up to remove some debris, which was covered with galvanized iron. This, through the accident, had become highly charged with electricity. When he touched it Mr. Marshall was knocked from his position, falling 30 feet to the cement floor and striking on his head. The side of his head was caved in, and death was instantaneous. Medical examiners state death was due to the fall and not to the shock of electricity. Dr. Ashton, coroner, has ordered an inquest.

INQUEST TO BE RESUMED TO-NIGHT

The inquest into the death of the late Elgin Weaver will be resumed to-night at the City Council Chamber at 7.30 o'clock, before Coroner Dr. Gray. The report of Prof. Ellis, of Toronto, on the analysis fo the stomach of the deceased will be presented.

Their Majesties Dined.

Copenhagen, April 27.—Count Raben-Levetzau, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and his wife Friday night gave a dinner at their residence to King Edward and Queen Alexandra and King Frederick and Queen Louise and which was attended by all the members of the Danish royal family and thirty other prominent personages.

The dinner was served on silver and gold plates and the dining-room was magnificently decorated with flowers.

Wealthy Man's Suicide.

New York, April 27.—Eugene Munsel, a wealthy manufacturer, killed himself early yesterday by throwing himself from a seventh storey window in the Vandyck Apartments in West Seventy-Second street, where he lived with his family. He had been greatly worried by financial matters. He asked his wife to get him a glass of milk and while she was absent he crawled through a window and hurled himself to the street. He was instantly killed.

Another Revolution.

Buenos Ayres, April 27.—News has been received here of a serious situation in the Province of Corrientes. The Provincial Chamber of Deputies has approved a motion that the governor of the province be arraigned before a local court on charges of treason, and the press predicts that anarchy may be expected in Corrientes.

Furthermore, a revolutionary outbreak has taken place in the Province of Santiago.

Fleet Can't Come to Canada.

Washington, April 27.—Naval officials say that while they appreciate the invitation of the Canadian Government to have the Atlantic fleet visit Victoria and Vancouver, this will be entirely impracticable owing to the lack of time.

Mail Bags Stolen.

London, April 27.—The London postal authorities have learned that two bags of mail from this city, containing securities and other valuables worth $250,000 were stolen in New York, the latter part of last month.

TERRIBLE LEAP WAS NOT FATAL

St. Catharines Man Has a Marvelous Escape From Death.

St. Catharines, April 27.—William Convey, an employe of Taylor & Bates' brewery, made a wild leap from the Grand Trunk trestle at midnight Saturday to Twelve Mile Creek, over 140 feet below.

The man had started on a fishing expedition with a brother-in-law, William McCarthy, and John Roberts. When in the centre of the trestle Convey is said to have pulled off his coat and jumped from the north side of the trestle. He landed on his back in the water. He missed a large number of rocks in the bed of the creek, which is very swift, but only three or four feet deep.

He dragged himself up the steep bank to the railway track and was proceeding home, when he met his companions, who had summoned aid.

Dr. Ratcliffe found that the man had suffered fractures of the collar bone and one arm and several ribs, but despite his desperate jump, recovery is almost certain.

Fire at Nelson.

Nelson, B.C., April 27.—Part of the city power and light sub-station was destroyed by fire on Saturday. It is supposed that the starting of one of the street cars from the barn caused a collapse of an overheated switch at the sub-station, the bottom blew out and the oil took fire.

The loss to the West Kootenay Power & Light Co. is $12,000, while the joint loss of the city and the tramway company will be another $12,000.

Brodeur is Housecleaning.

Ottawa, April 27.—Hon. Mr. Brodeur's reform of the Marine and Fisheries Department is progressing apace.

As a result of the investigations of the Minister, a steward on one of the hydrographic survey vessels has been dismissed, his offence having been to overcharge the Department for supplies, and another official will be asked to resign without delay.

Killed by a Blow.

Montreal, April 27—Xavier Favreau, 65 years of age, was instantly killed as the result of a blow on the head, inflicted during an altercation with a young man named Edward Bolduc.

Twenty-Eight Killed.

City of Mexico, April 27.—Twenty-eight persons were killed and 15 seriously injured at Gargartau siding, west of Maltrata, on the main line of the Mexican Railway, Saturday, in a collision between a freight and the second section of a special excursion train bearing pilgrims from the shrine of Guadaloupe. The pilgrims left Mexico City in the morning.

Stopped the Elopement.

El Paso, Texas, April 27.—At Lordsburg, N.M., yesterday Olive Garrison shot and killed his wife, shot George Allen through the abdomen, wounding him fatally, and then committed suicide. Garrison had been informed that Allen and his wife were about to elope.

PETERBOROUGH ODDFELLOWS

Send Congratulatory Address to Grand Secretary---Col. Miller Goes to Brantford

Lieut.-Col. Miller left this morning for Brantford to attend a convention of Oddfellows there. The event is the occasion of a fifty-year Honorable Veterans' Jewel to Mr. J. B. King, who has been grand secretary for the past forty-two years. Col. Miller carried with him an address to Mr. King from Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges of the I.O.O.F. It will be read by Col. Miller and is as follows:

To J. B. King, Grand Secretary, Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F.

Dear Sir and Bro.,—Having learned of the intention of your parent lodge to honor you on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of your connection with the order by the presentation of an Honorable Veterans' Jewel, we, the members of Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, and Peterborough Lodge No. 111, I.O.O.F., feel that we cannot let the opportunity pass without conveying to you our heartfelt congratulations on your having been spared to such a long life of usefulness in our beloved order.

When we recall the fact that since your incumbency in the office of Grand Secretary of this thriving jurisdiction, the "brightest jewel in Imperial Crown," and the brightest pearl in this realm of Oddfellowship to-day, there being none other where the true and abiding principles of our Order are more thoroughly and effectively enunciated, this Grand Lodge has grown from 15 lodges and 650 members, to 340 lodges with a membership in round numbers of 40,000, and a corresponding ratio of increase in financial growth and funds for the relief of distress in the matter of relief, while the principles of our Order which are inculated tend to our prosperity, it is our proud boast that we provide amply for times of distress and old age as evidenced by the commendable provision made at Oakville.

With this proud boast of growth and progress we ascribe to you, dear sir, your full share of credit, for, is it not true that, actuated as you have been by the noble impulses embodied in the principles of Oddfellowship, your heart and intellect have been plainly visible in fashioning the structure and shaping the destinies of Oddfellowship, not only in our own fair province, but it has extended to other jurisdictions to be crystallized and legalized by your various colleagues elected as the chief executive heads of the Order.

For all the blessings which we enjoy as a society mainly through your instrumentality, we are deeply grateful to the Grand Master of the universe, and we again express our congratulations that you have been spared to a life of usefulness and finally in your closing years may you realize the fruition of all your earthly desires and the careworn man shall have bowed himself down to God.

Signed on behalf of Otonabee Lodge No. 13.

WAS POISON FOR MARIE DRESSLER

An Alleged Attempt to Murder Foiled by Dog's Death.

New York, April 27.—Shortly before 10 o'clock Saturday night a messenger boy appeared at the Colonial Theatre with a package addressed by typewriter to "Marie Dressler, Colonial Theatre." The package was taken to Miss Dressler's room, and when she opened it she thought it contained vermouth.

Miss Dressler and her maid were about to take a drink when the actress got a call for the stage. As she hurried from the room the bottle fell and broke on the floor. Returning about twenty minutes later Miss Dressler found her dog dead, the animal having licked up some of the liquid from the bottle. Miss Dressler was greatly excited, and believed that an attempt had been made to poison her.

The dog's body was greatly swollen. The police were asked to make an investigation.

Stowaway's Fate.

Halifax, April 27.—Taking a desperate chance for liberty, an unknown stowaway leaped from the deck of the steamship Lake Michigan into the sea when the liner was abreast of Sandwich Point at the mouth of the harbor.

The liner was bound from Halifax to London and the stowaway was being deported. He did not want to return to London, and when the steamer was about half a mile off Sandwich Point the man sprang to the rail and plunged into the sea in a vain attempt to reach the shore.

The steamer was at once stopped and after searching for half an hour and failing to pick up the man, proceeded on her way.

Two Drownings.

Carlton Place, April 27.—Two drowning accidents occurred here. The first about ten in the morning, when Lorne Thom, aged 16 years, youngest son of W. H. Thom, who was sitting on the high bank of the river, accidently slipped in and was instantly carried into the rapids.

About five in the afternoon as a couple of boys were coming down the river in a boat they observed what they thought to be a coat floating in the water. They found that the coat covered the lifeless body of William Bremmer.

Death Blow to Free Trade.

London, April 27.—Most of the morning newspapers, in their editorials, regard the defeat of a Cabinet Minister in the citadel of Cobdenism as a disastrous blow to free trade.

The Unionist organs hail the victory of Mr. Joynson-Hicks as sounding the death knell to the present Government, and they include a lecture to the successful candidate for having tried to keep fiscal reform in the background in his campaign.

The Morning Post says: "The death knell of free trade reverberates through the land."

The Daily Telegraph says: "Manchester has rallied to fiscal reform. It is a victory that will resound not only through the country, but throughout the Empire."

QUEBEC LANDSLIDE RESULTS IN THIRTY-ONE FATALITIES

Terrible Disaster is Reported From Quebec Hamlet, a Short Distance From Buckingham—Eleven Bodies Recovered—Children Among the Dead.

Ottawa, April 27.—The little village of Notre Dame de la Salette, situated on the Lievre River, 16 miles north of Buckingham, was almost wiped out shortly before daybreak yesterday morning by a landslide, and 31 persons were killed.

A piece of land half a mile wide, and extending 500 yards back from the river, making a hill on the west side of the river, slid out into the Lievre, carrying with it two houses and crushing into a row of five houses on the opposite side.

The river at the point where the disaster occurred is a narrow stream running between towering walls of clay, which rise steeply to a height of probably 60 feet above the river.

The village consisted of 25 houses on both sides of the river, with the greater part on the east, and the row overwhelmed stood right on the brink. Ten of the houses were demolished.

The water is blocked by the huge mass of earth and the river last night had not yet cut a new course through or around, but extends back in a huge lake, threatening further damage.

The slide commenced about 4.30 a.m. on the west side, half a mile north, or up stream from where a family named Lapointe lived, at the top of a hill nearly 60 feet high. A family named Deslauriers also lived on this hill. Mrs. Lapointe and five children were killed. Mrs. Deslauriers and three children are dead.

The two houses disappeared as the land slid across the river, and at once demolished the row of five houses in which resided the proprietors of little farms on the east side.

Among the victims are: Mrs. Joseph Murray and four or five children; Mrs. Adeland Murray and a brother; Mrs. Paul Desjardins and two boys.

Thirty-one were killed and 11 have so far been recovered.

The whole countryside has gone to assist at the rescue and at Masson and Buckingham, Quebec, not a single rig was to be seen; the two towns went up en masse. Twenty-four coffins were sent up from Buckingham.

Notre Dame de la Salette, the scene of the appalling catastrophe, is a little place in East Portland Township, Labelle County, 16 miles north of Buckingham. It is situated on the Lievre River, 18 miles from its confluence with the Ottawa.

The place is surrounded with an agricultural country, following the clearing after lumbering operations, which are still carried on extensively in and adjacent to the locality.

La Salette is seven miles from Poupore, where, on Oct. 11, 1903, another landslide occurred. It is a co-incidence that the slide happened also on a Sunday, and at almost the identical time of this disaster. It was much less serious, for while three farms belonging to Messrs. Brasseau, Clement and McMillan slid into the river, no loss of life resulted. The escapes, however, on that occasion, were miraculous. The Lievre River was completely blocked for a mile, while the Government locks were carried away and navigation impeded for months.

The geological formation of the whole district around there is similar. It is a blue clay, the upper strata of which rests on one of the glacial period. The Laurentian rocks beneath have been polished smooth by glacial activity, and the spring moisture percolating through probably started the movement of the upper strata.

This was the cause of the Poupore landslide and the disaster was probably due to similar conditions.

"WHEN THE GREEN GETS IN THE PARK"

Winter and spring were back numbers in Peterborough yesterday. It was like a jump from January into July; if some lone male had strayed forth wearing a straw hat of last year's style the transformation would have been complete. Although April is still here it was a summer day, and everybody appeared to be cognizant of the fact. The men came forth without their overcoats and the ladies donned their white dresses and other summer garb with the exception of white shoes. Billy Naugon, the Indian walker, has apparently corned the market for this kind of footwear.

The whole city was out walking or driving in the afternoon. Young men and boys stretched themselves on the grass in the parks, which were visited by hundreds of people. Scores paid a visit to Little Lake cemetery, which is unusually pretty, although it is still early in the season. Down by the locks a large number stalled or sat down upon the banks and watched the Otonabee rolling by. Out in Monaghan road a Chinaman was learning to ride a bicycle under the tuition of a fellow countryman, who was quite skilful in the manipulation of the bike. The wheel was an 1898 model or thereabouts but it served the purpose well and must have been built substantially, or it would not have stood the contacts with the hard roadbed so well. Some canoeists could not resist the temptation to get on the water, and there were a number of paddlers on Little Lake during the afternoon.

Peterborough people can't stay away from the Lift Lock, and as the road to it is now dry, many walked over during the day and inspected the big lock, which will soon be in operation again.

It was spring all right, if not summer in Peterborough yesterday. People simply couldn't stay within doors.

RAMS BRITISH WARSHIP AND MANY SAILORS MEET DEATH

Twenty-one Drowned Through Collision With Liner—The St. Paul Crashes Into the Cruiser Gladiator at Anchor—Damage so Great That Vessel Goes Down Within Few Minutes—Sailors Lined up on Deck as if on Parade.

Portsmouth, Eng., April 27.—The admiral commanding the Portsmouth station has issued a list of the victims of the collision between the cruiser Gladiator and the American liner St. Paul, off the Isle of Wight on Saturday.

Drowned—Cowdry, first waiter, body recovered; Widgery and Sieberres, stewards.

Injured—One seaman, since died in the Golden Hill hospital; seven injured in hospital.

Missing—Lieut. Wm. P. Graves, five petty officers and fifteen seamen and stokers.

Passengers were assured by the officers who hurried among them directly the boats came together that there was no danger, but the condition of the steamer's bows, disclosed as she lies at the dock, shows that she had a very narrow escape from meeting the same fate as the Gladiator. As it was the St. Paul was more seriously damaged than at first supposed. She shipped a great quantity of water through her broken plates, and from the moment she backed away from the wrecked cruiser until she reached her wharf in this port, all her pumps were kept going to their full capacity.

The damaged bows of the St. Paul indicate that she forced her nose at least twenty feet through the cruiser's side, but fortunately the greatest damage she received, was above the waterline. The bow post was buckled, while the plates on both the port and starboard bows were crushed in and gaping cracks extend along the side. Just along the water line, the paint had been scraped away, but from that point downward there is no apparent damage, although the bolt must have started, which would account for the water pouring into her hold.

Captain Passow, and the first, third and fourth officers were on the bridge with pilot Geo. Boyer, the American company's regular pilot, at the time of the accident and the closest lookout was being kept, two men being stationed in the bow and two in the crows nest. Both a channel and a French pilot also were aboard, but, of course, they were not on duty."

Neither Captain Passow nor any of his officers would discuss the accident, preferring to wait until they can submit their reports to the proper officials. It is learned, however, that Captain Passow is sorely grieved at the disaster, this being his first serious mishap.

The snow was falling so thickly that it was impossible to see a yard ahead; it was far worse than the thickest fog. The weather had cleared before the St. Paul had left her dock, but snow commenced to fall again as soon as the Solent was reached. It was then impossible to stop, as a very strong tide was running which might have carried the steamer on the rocks. The only alternative was to go ahead and keep the closest lookout, and this, as he explained, was done.

The St. Paul, which left Southampton on her regular voyage, bound for New York, Saturday afternoon in a dense snowstorm, rammed and destroyed the British second-class cruiser Gladiator off the Isle of Wight.

The first reports stated that from twenty to thirty of the Gladiator's crew had been drowned.

The St. Paul left Southampton at 12.30 o'clock. She was an hour behind her usual time of sailing, the delay being due to the belated arrival of the passenger train, which was blocked by snow drifts on the trip from London. The weather was comparatively clear in Southampton waters, but immediately the St. Paul turned into the Solent, which runs parallel to the Isle of Wight, she encountered a terrific snow blizzard.

Capt. Passow and his chief officer, with the American line's regular pilot, were on the bridge, and a lookout man was posted in the bow. Suddenly a ship appeared immediately in front of them. It was the Gladiator at anchor. Orders were given on the instant for full speed astern in an endeavor to clear the cruiser, but it was too late.

The St. Paul's sharp stem rammed the anchored vessel amidships. She quivered and reeled, and the passengers rushed on deck in great alarm, the women being on the verge of a panic. The officers and crew acted with the greatest coolness, and allayed the terror with as fine a display of discipline as though she were the best-trained man-of-war.

Five lifeboats were lowered within a few minutes to rescue the crew of the Gladiator, which had sustained a death-blow.

The cruiser began to sink almost at once. Her men gave a magnificent demonstration of discipline. At the captain's command they formed in line on the deck and stood in ranks while the cruiser settled down.

In obedience to orders, successive batches marched to the gangways and entered the St. Paul's boats, until practically the whole crew had been taken off and landed at Yarmouth, on the Isle of Wight.

The Gladiator's crew numbered 450 men, and Capt. Walter Lumsden, true to naval traditions, was the last to leave his ship. Only a few men then were missing, and it was thought that most of them had been saved by a boat which had put out from Yarmouth.

Capt. Lumsden, on landing, at once sent a message to Capt. Passow, thanking him for his promptitude in lowering boats, and speaking in the most complimentary terms of the conduct of the St. Paul's seamen.

The Gladiator soon settled down. Only her upper works are now visible. The St. Paul returned to Southampton, and her passengers were put ashore, seeking accommodations at the various hotels. They will sail by the Teutonic on Wednesday, special arrangements having been made by the Americon company.

The fact that the St. Paul sustained no worse damages than a badly twisted bow and a comparatively small hole on her port side is the most remarkable feature of the whole occurrence.

WILL SOON QUELL THE DISORDERS

Ameer's Action Causes Uneasiness But Kitchener is Ready.

London, April 27.—The Government has been informed of the gravity of the Mohmunds' movement in India, but every confidence is felt that it soon will be suppressed, Lord Kitchener having made a timely disposition of his forces.

The worst aspect of the situation is seen in the apparent complicity of the ameer, which is regarded in some quarters as an outcome of the recently concluded Anglo-Russian compact, which leaves Afghanistan free as a buffer state from either British or Russian agents.

The ameer's attitude is considered to be less due, however, to any real feeling against Great Britain than to his indifference to the assistance the Afghans are rendering the fanatical tribes by supplying them with arms, ammunition, etc.

The frontier of this region has never been delimited. Part of the Mohmund country lies within the Afghan border, and part in British India.

This also may account for the assistance being rendered the tribesmen by the Afghans.

Queer Cattle Disease.

Belleville, April 27.—Henry Boulton, a farmer living between here and Kingston, has lost 20 fine milch cows in a very short time from some mysterious disease. The animals became paralized in the fore legs, after which the hind legs became affected. The Government inspector is investigating.

Married Man Eloped.

Kingston, April 27.—Alfred Bedour, Bathurst, who eloped with 16-year-old Annie Thompson, has been taken to Perth for trial. The girl has been handed over to her parents. He will face a charge of seduction.

Bedour was a neighbor of the Thompsons, and the prisoner called at the home in the middle of the night and got the girl to go away with him. Bedour is married, but does not live with his wife. He intended to marry the Thompson girl, and his arrest by the Kingston police put a stop to the romance.

MOTHER'S GUIDE

When a young girl's thoughts become sluggish; when she has headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep; dislikes the society of other girls; then the mother should come to her aid promptly, for she possesses information of vital importance to the young daughter.

At such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and has helped to bring three generations safely from girlhood to womanhood. Read what has accomplished for Miss Olson.

Miss Ellen M. Olson, of 417 North East Street, Kewanee, Ill., in a letter to Mrs. Pinkham says:

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of backache, sideache, and established my periods after the best physicians in Kewanee had failed to help me, saying that an operation was necessary."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

A STRANGE CASE

The larger proportoin of the bonuses went to the North Atlantic Trading Company. It is significant in this connection that only $3 for each man, $2 for each woman and $1 for each child is being paid to agents in the United States, while for the poorest European immigrants $5 is paid for each adult and $2 for each child.—Ottawa Citizen.

Was there ever a clearer case of graft by preferment? Who would pretend for a moment that the settlers coming into Canada from across the line are not immeasurably superior to the riff-raff of Europe? It makes one almost doubt the sanity of Sir Wilfrid and his Cabinet when they can continue to perpetrate such scandalous acts of impropriety and injustice. The North Atlantic Trading Company, we were informed on the floor of the House, was composed of men who would have to commit hari-kari if their names were made public. Why do these sensitive souls run the awful risk? For what there is in it. That is the answer to this question, and to nearly every other that arises in Dominion politics today. The whole affair is crude, preposterous and silly. No ordinary laguage will do justice to such occasions. Words in their ordinary meaning fail to convey the extraordinary meaning of this riot of misgovernment.

EDITORIAL NOTES

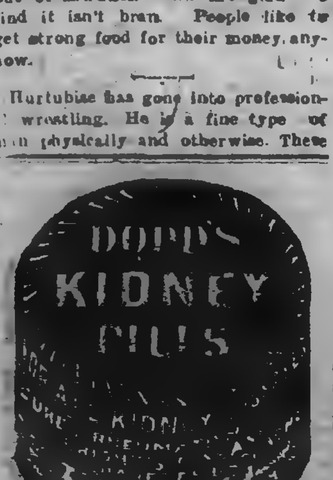
Mrs. R. A. Dutton, London street, will receive tomorrow, and not again this season.

It is said that cakes are being made out of sawdust. We are glad to find it isn't bran. People like to get strong food for their money, anyhow.

Hurtubise has gone into professional wrestling. He is a fine type of man physically and otherwise. These men, strong in body, courage and enduring stamina, are pretty much the pick of the nation. We wish him well.

Penalties are inserted in bonds to bind men to do that which they might fail to do if "in honor bound." Elections are matters of honour. Can't we trust each other? The Examiner's insinuation against Mr. Bradburn is, as everybody knows, without point.

The Examiner keeps on at Mr. Bradburn, MPP., regarding the proposed bond. It alleges that Mr. Bradburn should sign a bond as he gave his vow before for a pure election and broke it. We invite the Examiner to specify. Charges such as these if unsubstantiated recoil upon the head of the maker. Mr. Bradburn is an upright, honest man, at whom it is especially unbecoming for the Examiner to throw stones. We hope Mr. Bradburn will decline the insulting proposition.



DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

MEMBERSHIP IS MUCH INCREASED

Local Council of Chosen Friends Secures Over 130 New Members

Peterborough Council, No. 423, C. O.C.F., has established a record to be proud of. During the campaign conducted by Organizer H. S. Davy, and enthusiastic and energetic son, about three weeks they have been working here, and have initiated 130 candidates. Friday night's meeting was the largest ever held in Peterborough, fully 200 being present. 75 candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the Order, the largest class ever initiated at one time here. Some of the members were very anxious that the Council should be increased thought that not much could be done here at the present time. However, when Organizer H. S. Davy had delivered his magnetic speech, all the members with one accord gave him their hearty support and commended his efforts with great success. In fact the members were so enthused that a resolution was passed extending an invitation to Organizer Davy to pay Peterborough Council another visit in the near future.

During the contest the rivalry existing between the members was most amusing, but the very best of harmony and good feeling prevailed. On Friday night refreshments were served by the ladies, during which a short programme of vocal and instrumental music was rendered. There were also farewell speeches by Organizers H. S. and H. M. Davy, bringing to an end the most successful and pleasant meeting in the history of the Order here.

VERY GOOD HOME MADE REMEDY

Anyone Can Prepare This Mixture Which is Said to Relieve Catarrh

The coming months will be a harvest for the doctors and patent medicine manufacturers unless great care is taken to keep the feet dry, also dress warmly.

This is the advice of a well-known authority and should be heeded by all who are subject to rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles and especially catarrh. While the latter is considered by most sufferers an incurable disease, there are few men or women who will fail to experience great relief from the following simple home prescription, and if taken in time it will prevent an attack of catarrh during the entire season.

Here is the prescription which any one can mix: Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

These are mostly vegetable ingredients and can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost.

The Compound Kargon in this eliminative tissues of the kidneys to make them filter and strain from the blood, the poisons that produce all forms of catarrhal affections. Relief is often felt even after the first few doses and it is seldom that the sufferer ever experiences a return attack within the year.

This prescription makes a splendid remedy for all forms of blood disorders and such symptoms as lame back, bladder and weaknesses and rheumatism pains are entirely dispelled.

As this valuable, though simple receipt comes from a thoroughly reliable source, it should be heeded by every afflicted reader.

HE ASSAULTED HAVELOCK MAN

And Was Taxed $10 for the Diversion---Havelock Police News

Special to the Review

Havelock, April 27—Mr. Ira Zufelt a young resident of Belmont township was brought up before Magistrate Mathison on Saturday on a charge of assaulting a local citizen in a quarrel. The result was that Zufelt was found guilty and fined $10 and costs amounting to $16 or 15 days in gaol for the offence. He paid the fine.

Another citizen was arrested on Saturday for being drunk and disorderly and fined $1 and costs.

The 22nd Oxford Rifles will attend the Quebec tercentenary full strength the men excepting four days' pay in preference to taking half the regiment and getting full pay.

Eugene's mother was thankfully putting him to bed after a particularly trying day. A Good Habit.

Baby Florence was much annoyed when her requests to go to see her little cousin, who was ill, were refused. On demanding the reason the "catching" qualities of her cousin's malady were explained at length, but to no avail, for she drew herself up to her infinitesimal height and slowly and scornfully lisped, "I theldom take the meathles."—Lippincott's.

A Different Brood.

"Who was it," queried the student boarder, "that said, 'All flesh is weak?'"

"I don't remember," rejoined the fussy bachelor who was giving an imitation of a man sawing wood, "but whoever he was he evidently never tackled a steak like this."—Boston Post.

Sweeter Than He.

"Say, Miss Prue," suddenly exclaimed Mr. Nervey, "I swear you're the most kissable creature in this town"—

"Sir," she cried indignantly, "you forget yourself!"

"Aw, go on! I ain't kissable; but, even admitting that I am, you're more so than me."—Philadelphia Press.

Extreme Cold.

Kidder—I saw that arctic explorer today, and he certainly looked blue.

Gull—Not blue with the cold, though?

Kidder—Just so. It was a frost he encountered last night that made him blue. He lectured before empty benches.—Minneapolis Journal.

Mattress Bald Too.

Mrs. Benham—What are you going to do with that hair restorer?

Benham—I'm going to use a little on my head and the rest on that hair mattress of ours.—New York Press.

THE VALUE OF ACCIDENT INSURANCE

DEATHS from accident are stated by the Census Officials, Washington, to have been 57,513 in 1902. The percentage of deaths from accident is 5.76, which is more than ten years ago. The "Insurance Press" in giving details from the Census, says, "An Inspection of the Census Tables showing causes of death brings out the fact that a person is more liable to meet death by accidental injuries than by any other single cause except consumption, pneumonia or heart disease

—From Financial Chronicle, Montreal.

The Utopia Policy issued by the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada, provides indemnity for disability, resulting from accident or sickness. It is in all respects a model policy.
